A SAFE AND SANE FOURTH

The Fourth of July has been appropriated named, "The All-American accident day." Every year its observance of this great national holiday hundreds meet their death in automobile accidents, by drowning, powder burns and explosions.

A safe and sane Fourth appears impossible for us Americans who revere the signing of the Declaration of Independence with a vehemence.

Traffic will be heavy on the Fourth. Let us resolve to drive more safely than usual. There will be more drunken drivers. Let us resolve to remain sober. It seems perfectly alright to shoot fire crackers and other fireworks, but we should do it sanely and safely. Thousands will flock to the beaches pools and swimming holes. We should all be doubly careful, while the number of life guards at such places should be doubled.

We should all strive to do our part in celebrating this Fourth of July in a manner that will decrease instead of increasing the number of fatalities.

A GREAT POLITICAL YEAR

America can sit back and hear the biggest political hullabaloo they have ever witnessed!

The conventions of the two major parties are over. Something like 300 or more political speeches featured the Republican and the Democratic conventions. It was the first blowing-off of orators who will stump every county and practically every hamlet in every state during the forthcoming campaign.

We will hear enough of the New Deal, the Supreme Court, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alf Landon between now and November to fill every brain cell to capacity if digested.

Perhaps it is well. This political oratory may serve well in taking the minds and thoughts of the people from something else. The farmer now has an opportunity to stop worrying about the drought long enough to listen to our silver-voiced speakers. He can go to the R.F.D. box and be sure of getting some mail for every train will benevolent carry volumes of literature down in pamphlets and letters to envelope the voter.

The campaign will furnish material for arguments and discussions on every street corner, every office and business place. The radio will be taxed to capacity. And, the newspapers will have too much to fill their columns.

It's going to be a great year for another major political controversy.

JURIES LAX IN CRIMINAL CASES

Speedier trials for accused law-breakers is the aim of Circuit Court officials in this county, as demonstrated during the past two weeks.

Commonwealth Attorney W. C. Hamilton declares, however, that "unless the Rowan juries are less lenient in acquitting law-breakers and more forceful in dishing out punishment there is little hope of making headway in stamping out lawlessness in this county."

It is true that the evidence in many of the cases heard during the June term justified an acquittal. At the same time, it becomes apparent to the average spectator, that our juries are putting too much faith in petty defense evidence and turning law-breakers free even after a substantial case has been built against them.

Sentences too, have been entirely far too short a duration in most of the trials. We cannot help but find fault with our juries, for their classification of justice has resulted in entirely too many verdicts of "not guilty" and prison sentences of such short duration that those convicted criminals will be back menacing society within a short time.

MERCHANTS' CAMPAIGN REGISTERING SUCCESS

Morehead merchants report that a substantial increase in Saturday business has resulted from the trade-at-home days during which cash prizes are given at shop hours.

The trade-at-home campaign has been running only three weeks, and has not had an opportunity to amply demonstrate what it will do. As the rural people become acquainted with the method of giving tickets and the drawing, they should come to Morehead more-and-more to do their shopping.

THE WEALTH OF AMERICA

Did you ever stop to consider who owns the wealth of this great United States? You have often heard that 2 per cent of the people own between 60 and 80 per cent of the total wealth. Did you ever analyze from your personal knowledge this declaration?

Who creates wealth? Is the real job of America to divide the national income, or to increase the "total wealth"?

A pamphlet headed, "The Wealth of America," which is being distributed by the Lee Clay Products Company to their employees says much in a very few words. Actually wages is the bulk of our national income, and 2 per cent of the people do not own 60 to 80 per cent of wealth.

This piece of literature is so enlightening on this subject, that it is reprinted, in its entirety herewith. "Who owns the wealth of the United States? This can best be answered by taking stock of what we actually mean by "wealth." Automobiles, radios, electric, telephones, homes, farms, life insurance policies, saving accounts, industries, stocks, bonds—all these constitute the greatest bulk of America's wealth. And this wealth, as statistics prove, is widely distributed among the people in this country.

"On the face of things, the absurdity of the statements that 2 per cent of the people receive 60 to 80 per cent of our national income is apparent.

"As a matter of fact, if such a poor distribution of wealth existed, the very mass-production and mass-consumption of goods, in which the United States has led foreign countries, would have been impossible. Our great plants, our millions of employed workers, would have been impossible.

"In other words, the soap-box orators, who have been poisoning the public mind with false statistics, have been trying to explain away a plain truth.

"As the Brookings Institution of Washington has reported, those who work for a living receive about 85 per cent of all the national income.

"The remaining 15 per cent goes as a return on capital investments. MORE THAN HALF of which is owned by INDIVIDUALS OF MODERATE INCOME who own the stock in our corporations. Some corporations have more small stockholders than employees.

"As a matter of fact, those receiving incomes of $5,000 a year or more in 1933 got less than 10 per cent of the entire national income.

"Those with incomes above $100,000 in 1932 and 1933 have less than 1 per cent of the national income.

"The figures are proved by a study of the Federal income tax statistics.

"It has further been figured that if in 1933 the entire income of all those receiving five thousand dollars and more had been confiscated by the government and redistributed evenly to the remaining 125,000,000 persons, each person would have received only $32 more each year.

"Our real job is not of re-dividing national income, but of increasing the total of our wealth so that we will have more to divide. American expansion and redistribution of the increases in our national income will go into wages.

"BEFORE WEALTH CAN BE DISTRIBUTED IT MUST FIRST BE CREATED. Every employed worker is a partner in the creation of this wealth. And any experiment which holds back recovery prevents the creation of new national wealth, cuts the returns to the employee and employer alike, leaves us less wealth to share, and prevents the return of the jobless to regular employment."

One Year Ago This Week

Local headquarters of Thomas S. Rhea for Governor, announced speeches by local politicians in 17 spots in the county.

Funeral services were held Sunday for Miss Hilda Franklin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Franklin, who was burned to death.

Mrs. S. B. Huston, well-known Soldier woman, died after a year's illness.

The Board of Education set July 15 as the date for the opening of rural schools in the county.

A judgment of $7,000 plus interest was awarded the Banks-Miller Supply Company, against Rowan county in federal court at Catlettsburg.

Charles Combs, Hazard, charged with forgery at West Liberty escaped after leading a state policeman a merry chase through the business section of Morehead.

Morehead dropped a twin bill to Brooksville by 2-1 and 5-3 scores in a Kentucky State League engagement.

WHAT OTHER KENTUCKY EDITORS ARE SAYING

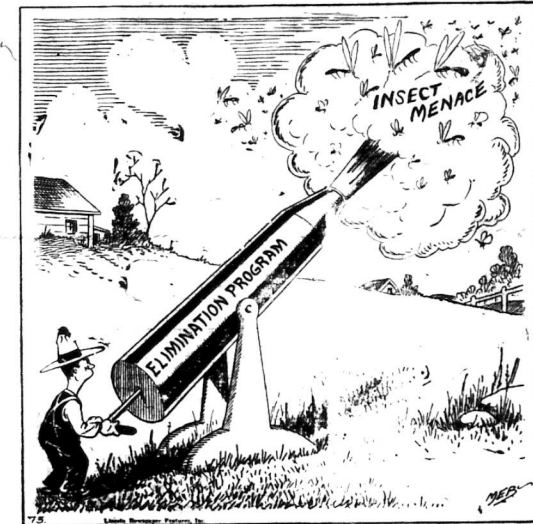

Where Can Young People Locate?

An editorial written for an Illinois weekly newspaper discussed recently the continuance of education for those high school students who are graduated in small towns this and next month.

The young folks, themselves, he concluded, should be the ones to determine their future course. Those who could financially afford it were urged to attend college as a further preparation for earning their way in life.

Private initiative has not solved this problem in the past. Since the government has become more concerned within the last few years in a planned society and has announced an interest in the small communities here is a place to start. Young people are ready to settle into a job and to start a home are a real asset to any small community, and most communities need more of them.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT SWINGS INTO ACTION

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

I wish to take the opportunity to express my appreciation and gratitude to the Republicans, both young and old in Rowan county, for their solid support at the Eighth Congressional District convention of young Republican clubs at Ashland last Saturday. An indeed proud to bring the chairmanship of the 21 counties to Rowan county and the highest office in the district for a period of two years.

I specifically wish to thank the officers of the Young Republican Club of Rowan for their work here and at the convention. Mr. Robert Bishop for his mastery introduction and nominating speech. Mrs. Ebel Ellington, Mrs. Nadine Adams, Mr. Paul Pelfrey, and Attorney Hubert Counts for their active campaign work in my behalf.

Sincerely, ELWOOD ALLEN, Chairman Young Republican Clubs of Eighth Congressional District.

FINAL GRAND JURY REPORT

Hon. D. B. Caudill, The Grand Jury for final report.

We have been in session nine days and presented in open court 52 indictments.

We have endeavored to investigate conditions generally throughout the county and when evidence authorized, we have reported true bills.

We have a few recommendations to make affecting the county welfare and its property.

1. That our public school building be repaired immediately and that the plaster be patched before the next session of school as it is now seemingly ready to drop which would endanger the lives of the children.

2. That the jail be cleaned up and put in livable condition; it is now in a very unsanitary condition.

3. That the lock on the first inner door of the jail be fixed so that it cannot be opened from the inside, also that the walls be repaired in a secure way so that prisoners cannot break through. We recommend beds be placed in jail.

4. That the toilets be kept in sanitary condition in the courthouse and that this be looked after immediately.

5. We ask that something be done immediately to relieve the unsanitary condition at the disposal of the sewer at Triplett creek.

6. That the county roads be looked after as they are now almost impassable.

We find the report of the officers of the county are in fairly good condition.

Feeling that we have completed our work, we submit this as our final report.

C. P. CAUDILL, Foreman.

The usual spring and early summer decline in interest in the small cigarettes in China is now in full swing, with many smaller and poorly financed factories closed, which situation is expected to continue until mid-August.

Circus To Show At Lexington July 11

Ringling Bros. Barnum and Bailey Has Largest Performance In History

With the most impressive and brilliant seven-ring-and-stage program in its history, the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Circus, which will exhibit in Lexington, Saturday, July 11 offers this season, as a sensational super-feature, a herd of African pany elephants, the first ever to set foot on this continent. These tiny tuskers are not babies, but full-grown, middle-aged midget elephants, the rarest animals on the face of the earth. Accompanying them is a herd of miniature African ponies, the world's smallest beasts of burden.

The pigmy elephants have proven the greatest attraction the Big Show has ever placed before the public, not even excepting its presentations in the past of disc-lipped Ubenigs, the giraffe-necked women from Burma, the sacred white elephant of Siam, Jumbo, Tom Thumb and Goliath, the sea elephant.

Among the scores of new features, to say nothing of the new importations from Europe and Asia, including the incredible Naitis troupe, the Royal Bokara troupe, the Imperial Viennese equestrian troupe, the great Federico and a free running horse, pony and elephant liberty act of 60 members, is Col. Tim McCoy, the screen's most outstanding western star, at the head of his congress of rough riders of the world—Cossacks, cowboys, cow-girls, vaqueros, Sioux and Black-feet warriors and Australian bush-rangers. Colonel McCoy, plainsman, cavalry officer in the U. S. Army Reserve and friend of the Indian, is the idol of American boys and girls, and he will be seen in both the main performance and the wild west.

Menhaden fish oil has been found to be an excellent vitamin D supplement for poultry feeding.

NEW SYSTEM INSTALLED FOR EMPLOYMENT DATA

New Hampshire State Department of Labor Keeps Up-to-Date Figures on Business Conditions; Social Security Act Demands Information Never Before Compiled

A MECHANICAL accounting system which at any given moment can show an exact picture of employment, including such minute details as the number of men or women at work in a certain industry, the average age of such employees, or the amount of money paid to them during any one period, has recently been installed in the Department of Labor under the direction of F. Gordon Kimball, Deputy Commissioner.

It is believed that these high-speed machines will be the answer to many of the problems arising from the provisions of the Social Security Act. Labor information never before available is now necessary for the proper handling of this work.

Extensive knowledge must be obtained about every phase of employment and wage payment conditions throughout the entire state.

Some labor employees and employers are required to make contributions to unemployment insurance. Compensation records of both must be kept. The monthly $8.50 is paid to the state and is held in trust with any local bank. Farms having these deposits must be included in the statistical plan. Hundreds of other facts must be kept at fingertips for the proper administration of the law. Among them are individual payroll totals for every company in the state, number of employes working during a given period, and specific information about each employe, showing his name, age, sex, and citizenship, the amount of time he worked during any week, the time he has been employed, the money he earned, and the contribution he made to the Fund.

The secret of the new system's efficiency in handling this mass of data lies in the method of tabulation. All information is posted on punched cards, which are then easily and rapidly sorted by automatic devices. Powers punched-card accounting machines are synchronized with Remington typewriting machines, so that tabulation can be accomplished at a tremendous rate of speed. Likewise, when the cards of a particular classification are wanted, they can be obtained by pushing a button, the near-human Powers "sorter," operating by means of the punch holes in the cards, eliminates all but those cards carrying the desired information.

Information which a few years ago would have taken days to find is here available at a moment's notice.

The value of this method of accounting is at once apparent. Accounts as to one aspect of a week by week record of wages, employes, and contributions to the fund is always at hand. Moreover, there is a thorough, accurate check over every worker in the state. Officials can tell in an instant just what industries are employing more people and what ones are laying them off. Sectional labor conditions are also shown clearly by the statistics. For that reason, it is believed that the system installed by the New Hampshire authorities will not only facilitate social security payments, but will help to forestall unfavorable labor conditions and to correct them when they do occur.

THE GARDEN

Bruce's Sprouts

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

Bruce's sprouts is another of the more or less unusual vegetable crops which are being added to the list of the crops they grow. Bruce's sprouts are offered on the farm markets. There is no basis for this idea, for Brussels sprouts can be grown with no more trouble than late cabbage, to which family they, in fact, belong.

Danish, Fries and Long Island are the main varieties. The time to start seed is in late June or early in July. Inasmuch as the season for this time is usually dry and hot, all precautions should have been taken to conserve all possible moisture in the land they are to occupy. The ground should have been spaded and raked fine, and firmed, and cultivated to keep it free of any weeds. The earlier this could have been done the better, thus taking for granted that an extremely early crop should have preceded; any crop, by the way, not a member of the cabbage family. Even though thus enough moisture is assured to support plant growth, there may be too little to enable transplants to become established. For this reason, this condition, it is well to sow the seed in groups of three or four where the plants are to stand, and to thin to one. Spacing in the rows should be 24 inches and the rows should be 24 to 30 inches away from any other.

Bruce's sprouts plants tend to grow upright, with wide-spreading leaves, wide-spaced on the stem. When they reach a height of about 24 inches, buds appear in the axils of the leaves, which develop into small heads resembling those of cabbage. As soon as the buds or "sprouts" appear, the adjacent leaf should be cut to a stub to throw the energy of the plant into developing size in the sprouts.

As the lower sprouts reach desired size they are harvested. Harvesting continues until the plants are killed from frost (freezing). Brussels sprouts are a leaf crop, and need nitrogen in plenty. Part of it may be provided through the manure of a mature poultry, particularly chicken manure, but it will pay to apply commercial fertilizer. The rows may be dressed with nitrate of soda and sulphate of ammonia, 1 1/2 pounds per 100 feet, or "spaded" with the same a teaspoon to a plant, the first application made when "sprouts" begin forming and another two weeks later.

The general cabbage pests, the green worm, the cabbage louse and the Hessian fly, all may bother Brussels sprouts. For the worm, and until sprouts begin forming, arsenical dusts are effective. After sprouts appear, a dust containing rotenone, deadly to chewing insects, but harmless to

In the counties adjoining Rowan no petitions for a local option vote have been started. Magoffin is the only county in Kentucky that has voted on local option. It voted dry.

The question of where the county will secure the money to carry out the election remains to be ascertained. In a recent order Federal Judge H. Church Ford ruled that the Fiscal Court could not make any expenditures but those absolutely necessary to carry on the county government. County Clerk Vernon Alfrey estimates the election will cost approximately $600.

Scroggins Not Hired

W. D. Scroggins, who has been assistant basketball and football coach for the last two years was not re-employed in any capacity but it is generally understood among campus administrative officers that he will later be offered a position as teacher. Scroggins compiled an enviable record while assistant coach, and was strongly endorsed by the students. He did not lose an S.I.A.A. conference game in football, being defeated in this sport only by the University of Kentucky freshmen. His basketball record was almost equally as good.

With the foregoing exceptions the Board employed all the faculty and administrative staff.

Dr. J. G. Black, head of the department of mathematics and Mr. Mildred Silver, training school teacher, were allowed a year's leave of absence. L. A. East was being head of the mathematics department during Dr. Black's absence.

Prof. Romie D. Judd was named head of the department of education, replacing Hollis.

Have Envious Record

The new football and basketball coach was a star performer of these sports at Ashland High school and the University of Kentucky. Johnson led the Ashland team to a national championship in basketball and was twice named on the All-American team. He was all-Southern at the University. Upon graduation he coached for one season at Williamson, Va. High school and was an assistant coach at Ashland during the last season.

Mr. Miller, the assistant coach, was likewise an outstanding player in these two sports at the University under Harry Gammon and Adolph Rupp. For the last two years he has been coach at Cool Grove, Ohio, High school.

All of the members of the Board of Regents were present, except Superintendent of Public Instruction Harry W. Peters. The Board consists of, besides Mr. Peters, C. B. Bennett, Greenup, Donald Putnam, Ashland, Dr. A. C. Fayler, Magyaville, and Mr. Alvin W. Young, Morehead.

CONSTRUCTION CONTINUES HIGH ALL OVER DISTRICT

Retail trade, apparently unaffected to any great extent generally by the payment of the soldiers' bonus, continued to maintain with universal consistency a sizable improvement over the corresponding period last year, according to reports from 36 cities made to the Department of Commerce the past week just received by its Louisville District Office. Wholesale markets showed improved trends with considerable replacement buying of summer goods and advance purchases of fall requirements. The drought situation continued to cause uneasiness in many sections.

Declaration Is Signed After 2 Days

drawn up and presented by Richard Henry Lee, pursuant to a resolution of the Virginia house of Burgesses adopted on May 15, the same year. It was seconded, when presented to the Congress by John Adams, on behalf of the Massachusetts delegation. Consideration, however, was deferred until the following day, when it was referred to the committee of the whole. Postponed again on the eighth, which was a Saturday, on the tenth of June a committee was appointed "to prepare a declaration to the effect of the said first resolution." That committee was composed of Thomas Jefferson, chairman, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Robert R. Livingston and Roger Sherman.

This committee brought in its report on June 26, with the first draft of the Declaration. It was read and ordered to lie on the table. That was a Friday. The Congress adjourned that day until the following Monday, July 1.

Then came July 2, with the passage of the resolution presented on the seventh of June by Mr. Lee, but still without agreement on the text of the declaration itself. July 3 saw a similarly fruitless discussion. But on Thursday morning, July 4, differences had been smoothed out. The Journal, in its entry for that day, records: "Agreeable to the order of the day, the Congress resolved itself into a committee of the whole, to take into their further consideration, the declaration. The president resumed the chair. Mr. Harrison reported that the committee of the whole Congress have agreed to a Declaration, which he delivered in. The Declaration being again read, was agreed to."

The text of the declaration as agreed to finally was substantially as Jefferson had prepared it.

The Declaration received the votes of all the Colonies except New York, whose delegates were not then authorized to commit themselves on the matter. A short time later they were so authorized and also sanctioned it. At the July 4 session, after agreement to the Declaration, the Congress ordered that it be printed and copies sent to the various Colonial Assemblies and to the commanding officers of the Continental troops and that it be proclaimed "in each of the United States, and at the head of the army." It was signed the same day by John Hancock, as president of the Congress. The other signatures, however, were not inscribed on the original text. This text was copied on parchment, and on August 2 the formality of signing took place. Fifty-three signed that day, three signed later in the year. Of the fifty-six signers, seven were not members of the Congress on July 4 when the Declaration was agreed to, and of those who were present on that historic day, seven never signed the document.

The Declaration was first proclaimed in public on July 8, when it was read by John Nixon from the platform built in Independence Square in 1769.

The Declaration was not adopted by the Continental Congress until almost fifteen months after the War for Independence started with the engagements at Concord and Lexington. They occurred on April 19, 1775. In fact, seven important battles of that war had been fought before the resolution of independence introduced by Mr. Lee was agreed to. They were, besides Concord and Lexington, Ticonderoga, on May 10; Bunker Hill, on June 17; Montreal, on November 13; Quebec, on December 31, all in 1775, and Fort Mifflin, on June 28, 1776. George Washington had been commander-in-chief—though he was termed a general—of the Continental forces since June 15, 1775. At the time of the Declaration Washington was in the field and had been for more than a year. On the day it was

'And So They Were Married' Title of Show This Week

Fire and water mix in a judicious concoction of gay sophistication and uproarious romance in Columbia's "And So They Were Married," the new attraction scheduled at the College Theatre Friday. The water in the case is formally adopted he was in New York, preparing for what was to be the Battle of Long Island.

Despite the deliberate action of the Congress, however, there had been demands for a declaration of independence months before that July day in 1776. There was the Mackinac Declaration, passed on May 20, 1775. And on April 22, 1776, the freeholders of Cumberland county, Virginia, called for similar action by the Virginia convention itself which met on May 6 and moved for the declaration which Richard Henry Lee presented to the Congress the following month.

surpassed only by each other in their aversion to men. The "fire-creators" are Melvyn Douglas and his woman-hating, 11-year-old son, Jackie Moran. With their preconceived ideas of the uselessness of the opposite sex, these interesting pairs are brought together at a winter resort where they have gone, separately, to give their children a "white" Christmas in the snow.

Against their will, Astor and Douglas discover themselves falling in love. Although they can't help themselves, their children determine to end the romance. Amusing situations continue to develop as the children do everything in their power to achieve the end. Nothing happens until Douglas by accident happens to give Mary's young daughter a sound spanking. Furious, Mary breaks the engagement.

From there on "And So They Were Married" swirls in a series of hilarious episodes to a laugh-filled climax.

Elliott Nugent directed from the screen story by A. Laurie Brazee, Doris Anderson and Joseph Anthony.

MAY USE KAPOK IN WINTER CLOTHES

Efforts are being made in Netherlands India to develop new uses for kapok, much used for furniture stuffing, etc. says reports from this state. Attention is being paid particularly to the possibility of using kapok as a lining for winter clothing. Local kapok interests are also conducting a study of the United States and Great Britain to determine the extent of potential use of the product and to determine the best methods of use in those markets.

SAN FRANCISCO

Synopsis—Mary Blake is attracted to the friend of Blake Norton, the proprietor of Barbary Coast's Paradise Music Hall until the latter's "loyalty" frays from nothing to fear unless she is afraid of her herself. Mary is grateful to Blake for giving her a job singing at the Paradise, and when Jack Burley, Nob Hill swell, offers her an audition for the Tivoli Opera House, she refuses because Blake has a contract with her. Blake is running for alderman against Burley's warnings, to get good fire laws for the Coast. At one of his political rallies, Mary sees him knock down one of Burley's hecklers, and is thrilled.

IN THE MATTER OF A CONTRACT Chapter Five That little thrill continued as Mary saw Blake turn and head her job singing at the Paradise, and when Jack Burley, Nob Hill swell, offers her an audition for the Tivoli Opera House, she refuses because Blake has a contract with her. Blake is running for alderman against Burley's warnings, to get good fire laws for the Coast. At one of his political rallies, Mary sees him knock down one of Burley's hecklers, and is thrilled.

That little thrill continued as Mary saw Blake turn and head her job singing at the Paradise, and when Jack Burley, Nob Hill swell, offers her an audition for the Tivoli Opera House, she refuses because Blake has a contract with her. Blake is running for alderman against Burley's warnings, to get good fire laws for the Coast. At one of his political rallies, Mary sees him knock down one of Burley's hecklers, and is thrilled.

"Well, I don't know, thought something must have happened to you or me." "No. Nothing." "No. Nothing." She assured him on that point. He looked at her with amused interest. "I'm a sucker and I never knew a girl like you before. I guess those chumps out in Benson weren't so hot."

"But what about Miss Blake?" said the Professor. "I brought her—"

"Huh— Oh, how d'you do, Miss Blake. I'll see that she gets home, Professor." He nodded casually to Mary, said "Stuck around and would, certain that the Professor would obey his order. Mary's eyes followed Blake as he saw him come to a halt in front of the hecker who had got to his feet and held a glass of beer in his hand. He said something to the man, then his arm shot out suddenly and the hecker went to the floor again, amid the raucous laughter of those around him.

And again Mary Blake felt that little thrill running down her spine. Her lips parted, she watched fascinated, as Blake resumed his progress to the speaker's stand. He made a simple little talk, and his confidence in his election, renewing his promise to see that the Coast got proper protection against such acts as the one that had recently destroyed the Bristol.

When Blake was driving her car back to town, she felt very self-conscious and Blake's manner denoted a sort of timidity new to him. They were tremendously drawn to each other, although they did not understand each other's nature—even their language was different. There had been little but mutual understanding between them.

Blake broke the diffident silence that had fallen between them. "Not ion eh?" he said, gesturing at the countryside scenery. "Not bad," she agreed. "I don't," he said, and slapped her arm with the back of his hand. "Van guards with Italians working on."

"I suppose Italy must be like that," she murmured. "Ah—but it isn't half as good." He was contemptuous. She studied him with a momentary sideways glance. "You rather like your own state, don't you?" "California," it's the best place on earth. I'd be a sucker to deny it." Underneath his kidding, Blake's infection she felt his sincerity. "But that don't go for the south. Los Angeles is a black town."

"I see," was her noncommittal response. He drove more slowly, glanced down at her. "That's that mug you're stuck on. Where does he hang out?" "There isn't any 'mug' I'm stuck on. Why do you think there is?"

He let her out at the Mission but did not go in. Jack Burley arrived at the Paradise early the next morning as rehearsals were about to begin. Blake received him with a surprise that he successfully concealed.

"I've come to make you a business proposition, Norton. I want to buy the contract you hold with Mary Blake."

"You're running down here against the law—all of you. There's the Johnson anti-gambling ordinance. I'm just telling you—that's all."

"I'm only interested in making a useful member of the Tivoli Opera Company," But Burley allowed himself a smile that meant much more than that. "Now isn't that just great!" Blake called to an attendant to bring Miss Blake. "I'm going to put it up to the little girl herself. If she wants to leave me I'll let her go."

"You're taking a long chance. You don't know what I've got." They were silent until Mary arrived. "Sit down, kid. Burley is here trying to buy your contract."

"After a silence he asked 'I haven't been complaining about your work recently, have I?'"

"I mean to put in the next two years to the best account I can." "To go to the Tivoli?" "I'd say, no. Or somewhere else. New York has always been pretty good to folks from here."

"I see," was her noncommittal response. He drove more slowly, glanced down at her. "That's that mug you're stuck on. Where does he hang out?" "There isn't any 'mug' I'm stuck on. Why do you think there is?"

FARMING BY IMPROVED METHODS

Written by the Staff of the University of Kentucky Agricultural Extension Work, College of Agriculture

College Announces Outstanding Utopia Club Man and Woman
 Mrs. Ben C. Stephens of Boone county and Hillman Collier of Fulton county have been named by the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture the most outstanding Utopia club members in Kentucky. The selections were made on the basis of leadership, the results obtained from their projects and the value of their work to their communities.

Mrs. Stephens has been a 4-H or Utopia club member eight years, has taught 4-H canning and sewing, been secretary of her Utopia club four years, and secretary of the Boone county fair board three years. In her club work, Mrs. Stephens has carried the landscaping, room improvement, gardening, budgeting and canning projects. Last year her sewing brought her $195, and her garden supplied her family with vegetables and $50 worth to sell. She canned 438 quarts of fruits and vegetables.

Through his Utopia club work, Mr. Collier has become one of Kentucky's best farmers. Last year his returns were second among the 10 best farmers in Western Kentucky. Forty-two acres of his 100-acre farm are terraced, and he practices every improved method advocated by the extension service of the College of Agriculture. An acre-orchard is being developed along scientific lines. He does his own repairing in his own workshop. Credit for much of his success he gives to the farm account project, which has enabled him to put his farm on a strictly business basis.

State Holsteins High Producers
 The Holstein-Friesian Association of America reports that during the 219 days of the current herd test year, the herd of registered Holsteins at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station maintained a daily average of 1.3 pounds of butterfat per cow.

High honors for the period went to Lyons Mutual Adoration, with 8,699 pounds of milk and 346 pounds of butterfat; and U. K. Lass Louise led the herd for the last reported test period, with 1,814 pounds of milk and 67 pounds of butterfat.

Two cows have completed their lactation periods: U. K. Beth, with 13,696 pounds of milk and 521 pounds of butterfat to her credit; and U. K. Lad Glen, with 11,736 pounds of milk and 528 pounds of butterfat as her record.

Less Crop Land, More in Pasture
 Practices which will make possible the present production of harvested crops on two-thirds to one-half of the present acreage are discussed in the recently published annual report of the Agricultural Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky. With good management practices, two-thirds of the farm land of Kentucky could be kept in grass and legumes for hay and pasture, the report declares, permitting a great extension of land for pasture.

 The results of experiments on the outlying soil fields of the Experiment Station continue to emphasize the fundamental importance of the use of lime and phosphate and legumes in economically increasing productivity.

Chicks Thrive on Corn-Wheat Ration

Farmers inspecting a feeding test recently at the Western Kentucky Experiment Substation saw that chicks at the age of three months had done practically as well on corn and wheat as they had on a mash feed.

The pen of Leghorns received a mash composed of 70 pounds of ground yellow corn, 25 pounds of middlings, 10 pounds of meat scrap, and salt. The other pen consumed equal parts of cracked corn and wheat, and meat scrap and salt. Both pens received cod-liver oil the first four weeks, and milk for the three months.

Moths Give Up to Vapor, Not Smells

The saddest thing about the universal human occupation of fighting moths is that smells don't kill the pests, or even discourage them so anyone would notice it. Vapor is effective only if enough of it is kept in a tight container to kill the insects, according to the Kentucky College of Agriculture. A pound of a chemical such as naphthalene, paradichlorobenzene or gum camphor will protect a whole trunk of winter woollens. As the chemical evaporates, it makes a gas that causes the moth to feel that life is no longer worthwhile. It should be used plentifully. Clothes should be washed or dry-cleaned before packing. Gunned tape around the edge of the package, hat box or the closing of a trunk or closet in which the clothes are stored will help keep moths from entering.

Kentucky Farm News

Nearly 400 acres of land were terraced in Graves county in May and more than 1,500 acres have been signed up to be terraced during the year. The cost in May averaged $127 an acre. A large acreage also will be terraced in Marshall county.

Rockcastle county homemakers have done so well refinishing and upholstering stools and comfortable chairs that their husbands are laying claim to them. Interest in upholstery has reached a high peak, reports the home demonstration agent, 91 pieces of furniture having been reconditioned.

That thorough sanitation pays in poultry raising is being demonstrated on the farm of Wilson Hendrix in Laurel county. Starting with 1,000 chicks, he had lost but 2.6 per cent at the end of three weeks.

 Eighty sheep raisers from Union, Henderson, Webster, Crittenden and Livingston counties and from Indiana attended a meeting at the farm of E. R. Morton in Union county. Flock management and the feeding of lambs were discussed, followed by a barbecued supper.

The town of Earlington in Hopkins county conducted a clean-up and fix-up campaign, in cooperation with local organizations and the county and home demonstration agents. Results warrant making the event an annual affair, the sponsors report.
 Five Lincoln county 4-H club boys began large-scale poultry raising this year, purchasing purebred, blood-tested chicks and using brooder stoves and brooder houses. To date they have lost but 6 per cent of the 1,500 chicks with which they started their flocks.

The Farm and Home
 Regardless of fade-proof claims, care should be exercised in washing colored materials, for faded garments are never attractive. Likewise attention should be given to the possibility of shrinkage, although most garments now are pre-shrunk.

Now is the time to begin planning a laying house for the poultry. Egg prices are highest in fall and early winter, and a good house increases production. Write the College of Agriculture, Lexington, or see your county agent for plans.
 For canning, select firm, ripe tomatoes of medium size and uniform shape. Never use overripe tomatoes or any part of those from which decayed spots have been removed. Never add water when canning tomatoes.

Eating on a screened porch, especially in the evening, is one of the joys of summer living. In remodeling a house or building a new one, don't forget a deep back porch fully screened where the family can spend many happy hours.

Exports of cotton from Haiti have increased steadily in recent years.

THE FLOWER OF LIBERTY

When those fleeting flaming glories
Were displayed across the sky
In remembrance of the stories
Of brave men in days gone by.
Then we thought of deeds of daring
And of clear and steadfast minds
That had set the country faring
Safe through the tempestuous winds.

Then we pondered on the tolling
And the wailings of the night
Of the suffering and despairing
Braved in reverence of the right.
And each memory we cherish
Shall not fade away and die.
Shall not be allowed to perish
Like a rocket in the sky.

FRANCE TO "FINGERPRINT" ITS PRECIOUS STONES

The laboratory established in Paris by dealers in diamonds and other precious stones has by official decree been taken over by the Paris Chamber of Commerce, according to a report to the Lexington District Office of the Department of Commerce. The function of the new Government service is to make laboratory tests of gems and pearls voluntarily submitted to it in order to determine their exact nature, their natural industrial formation, and their place of origin if possible. An interesting phase in connection with the service is that it will keep a file of identity cards for all stones submitted to it. These records will contain microscopic photographs which will make it possible to identify lost or stolen stones even though they may have been recut.

Kentuckians Play Lead In Convention

Senator Barkley Makes Key-Note Address; Roosevelt, Nominated

Kentuckians played a prominent part in the Democratic convention at Philadelphia, during which Franklin D. Roosevelt and J. N. Garner were selected as the party's nominees for President and vice-president in the November election.

Senator Alben W. Barkley made the key-note speech, which is one of the outstanding addresses during the convention. The honor of seconding the nomination of Roosevelt for this state went to Gov. A. B. Chandler, while Congressman Fred M. Vinson secured the nomination of Mr. Garner. Mr. Vinson and Vice-President Garner have been close friends for many years.

Governor Chandler and Mrs. Chandler were with President Roosevelt for a 40-minute conference yesterday during which the impending campaign was discussed.

Chandler and Vinson predicted that the Democratic party will carry Kentucky by an even larger margin than the Roosevelt-Garner ticket did four years ago.

Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas is on a vacation with his daughter, Peggy. He will follow this with a vigorous speech-making campaign that will carry him into practically every state in the Union, except the solid South. Kentucky is expected to be in his itinerary.

Visitors from 27 states and five foreign countries registered at Mammoth Cave during January.

Feed and Labor Big Costs In Dairies

Feed and labor accounted for over 85 per cent of the cost of producing milk on the farms of 23 dairy men who cooperated with farm economics department of the State College of Agriculture at Lexington in keeping records of the cost of producing milk, cost of raising heifers and cost of maintaining a herd sire.

Feed and bedding constituted 68 per cent of the total cost of producing milk; labor, 20 per cent; shelter and equipment, 5 per cent; interest and taxes, 4 per cent; depreciation, less than 1 per cent, and miscellaneous items, 5 per cent or less.

The average net cost of raising heifers to freshening age, which is the total cost less credit for manure, was $46.41. The cost varied from $29.85 per head to $72.84.
