

MOREHEAD HAS Baseball Team If Four Games Scheduled

University of Kentucky, Eastern, and S. I. A. A. Schools Discontinue Baseball—Morehead Twice Claimant For State Title

(By "Snook" Crutcher)
According to a ruling handed down from the president's office last week, Morehead will have a baseball team, which will compete in no more than four home games, and it is hoped that as many as four games can be scheduled away.

This is the first definite action that has been taken in regard to the rumors that the sport would be abolished at Morehead. Athletic officials agree that the information some time ago that the probability of the continuation of this sport was being discussed, and that baseball would probably be dropped from the college's athletic curriculum.

Many Colleges Drop Sport

A large number of the colleges of the state and in a playing distance have dropped baseball because the teams have failed to bring in any gate receipts, and the cogitation of it was a drag on the college's athletic funds. Therefore, many colleges continued the sport, paying for it out of the large receipts taken in at football games.

Morehead's athletics are managed in a little different way from those of most colleges. A fund is created for athletics, from the students' body fees, and each student upon enrolling must pay. This fund book keeps track of each student's share of the fund, and at all athletic contests. Consequently, Morehead's football season costs the college nothing, if not more, than does baseball.

The principal reason why athletics at Morehead have failed to drop the sport was because a reliable schedule could not be obtained. Of the four or five games that will be played this year, none have as yet been scheduled. It is hoped that some away from Morehead been contracted for.

The University of Kentucky, which has always been a rival of Morehead, this year, as is Eastern, and all of the S. I. A. A. schools. Many colleges are willing to continue the sport if all their games can be scheduled away from home, with a few guarantees, that will insure their willingness to play these teams, if return game can be arranged.

As a result of other schools' attitude it is not known yet who will be on Morehead's schedule for this spring. Many fans are disappointed that the game with Marshall College of Huntington, W. Va., which has been scheduled for this season, will be cancelled. The institution last week elicited the information that their schedule is now in full swing.

Wen State Championships
The Eagles have always boasted a strong baseball team, and this year in this sport probably excelled their performance in any other. A large amount of students, who are very interested in baseball here, as well as for that reason the institution is making the contest as long as possible.

For the past two years, Morehead has been the leading team in the state baseball title, and would probably be the favorite to maintain its lead in all the schools in the state favored the sport.

Although many of last year's team members are by graduation, and ineligibility, there is still a wealth of material, and a team may be built this spring.

Girls' Basketball

The second game of the round robin basketball tournament between the two schools was played Saturday, February 20. The game was played on the second floor of Allie Young Hall played a combination team of first and third year girls and the result was a 15 to 4 in favor of the latter team.

The girls from the second floor of the building played very well, and the team and both 12 to 7.

See Wallace! If you can't see here in your pocket, what would you care to see? Look! I'd think the one they put on.

NEW FOOTBALL RULES HAVE IMMEDIATE VALUE—DOWNING

Coaches all over the country are loudly voicing their opinions of the new football rules. Some say that the new playing rules are so much to maintain safety for the players, while others are loud in their disapproval of the latest tampering with the code.

Coach Downing, of Morehead, is of the opinion that the new rules will not be of any value in the near future, and only after the present crop of athletes have passed on will the rules be of definite value. He declares that it will be a real hardship on the boys who have played football before. One that will probably hurt most is the rule concerning the "non-use of hands."

His rule forbids a player to bring his hands into contact with another player's head. The old boys, who have been coached from their high school days till the present days, to "use their hands," are going to find new rules. Downing maintains that the new blocking and tackling rule will be equally hard to observe. In years past, a good player was one who could make a tackle, and hurt himself at his opponent in blocking or tackling. The latest move to insure safety requires that the player stay on his feet before tackling or blocking. The man of experience will find it impossible to let players slide him, when he could bring him down with a "spike tackle." These two rules will be the ones which will be commonly violated in the coming season, according to our coach.

Downing does not want to attempt to refer any game this fall, since he says the referee will be the real "goal." The referee who starts in the season by strict enforcement of the rules, is not likely to be as too popular as a referee. The enforcement of the rules will have to come gradually and come into effect as new men make their appearance into the game.

The "Monitors" are monitoring and Watson is outlandish (letting right words in). His blessing reports that the only way for the boys to awaken Wooten when they are out of the room is to make football. It will be legal for the tackle to leave his feet only at the moment of contact with an opponent. Last year's method. Each he expects Wooten to show up minus a leg.

Spring football was started Thursday with ten men reporting (versus one). The coach has not found it to be only Dick Clay.

There must be a thing as inspiration, after all. "Mouse" Combs did not score nearly as many baskets as last year, but he was found to be only Dick Clay.

SIX NEW RULES FOR FOOTBALL JUST ADOPTED

Flying Tackle Barred; Use of Hands Checked; Substitutions Liberalized

First-Late governing equipment amplified "that hard and unyielding substance, used in restricting the kicking of it is restricted to its own twenty-five yard line until it is actually kicked. The kick of it is made by a punt, a drop kick, or a place kick, but the interference with a fair catch without reverting back to the kicking of it is not allowed, and the recommendation is made that the referee should be given the right to knock a player down by his hands."

Second—On kick off or free kick, the kicking of it is restricted to its own twenty-five yard line until it is actually kicked. The kick of it is made by a punt, a drop kick, or a place kick, but the interference with a fair catch without reverting back to the kicking of it is not allowed, and the recommendation is made that the referee should be given the right to knock a player down by his hands."

Third—Blocking and Tackling. It will no longer be legal to use a firing kick or tackle of any kind, or throwing the body through the air. It will be legal for the tackle to leave his feet only at the moment of contact with an opponent. Last year's method. Each he expects Wooten to show up minus a leg.

Fourth—Substitutions liberalized to permit replacement of a player at any time and the player withdrawn allowed to return once in any subsequent play. The team making substitution is to be charged with a "Time Out" if the substitution is called for some reason or unless a fifth-ball dead when any player is substituted.

Fifth—Ball dead when any portion of the ball carrier, excepting the ball carrier, is on the ground, whether or not he is in the grasp of an opponent. Only play excepted from this rule is holder of the ball on place kick.

Sixth—Use of hands on head and neck: Players on defense are forbidden to strike an opponent on the head or neck with the hands, or with a wrist, forearm, or elbow. Such players may hereafter use the palms of their hands to touch the head of an opponent to ward off or push such opponent in order to get to the ball or at the line of scrimmage.

The plan of the new rule, which is a disqualification and loss of one-half distance to the offense, is to be in effect.

Seventh—Goal line: The goal line is to be in effect.

MARIONS, LED BY FEEDBACK, DOWN EAGLES

Score, 15-12 At Half; Combs Is Morehead's Star; Eagles Make Many Tries

Eastern Five Hot After the Half
(By "Snook" Crutcher)
With the same dashy style that has enabled them to sweep through many of Kentucky's strongest basketball aggregations, the Eastern Maroons proved themselves superior to Morehead for the second time this year as they walked through the Eagles last week for a decisive 40-26 victory. The Maroons had found all the game except in the first few minutes.

Feedback, of the invaders, was too much for Morehead and the first time this season led the Easterns in scoring with 16 points. His play, however, was probably overshadowed by that of Combs, who had been in the game except in the first few minutes.

THE LOVE BOX

Dear Madam Love-O:
I came to college in search of popularity. I am five feet five and one half inches tall. I am 18 years old and have blue eyes and beautiful brown gold hair. I have many boy friends. What is your receipt for angel food cake? All of these boys want to marry me. Would you advise me to pluck my eyebrows in and wear a straight line? There is one boy whom I adore. His name is Gordon Kernsner. He plays football divinely and dances like a feather. Do you think that low-heeled shoes detract from a girl's sex appeal? I believe that Gordon has had a dark past. Would you ask him? He says that he loves only me and that he has never cared for another girl, but that an innocent young thing loved him and now she has gone into a decline and walks on crutches. Do you think that it is all right to hold a boy's head if you care for each other? I have worried. Is it cultured? After all, what is culture? Are all men alike? I want to marry Gordon. What must I do? Do you think that it is correct to slap in my year? Four years is a long time. The haunting shadow of unrequited love haunts me. What shall I do?
Brokenly, CURLY LOCKS.

My Dear Curly Locks:
Your letter clutched my heart strings. Ah, dear, how often—how often—have I looked into the lives of beautiful young women and found that haunting shadow. I would use twelve eggs and some flour in the angel food cake. Popularity has its price. Don't pay—just charge it. Gordon sounds like a villain on wheels. I'd let him roll away. Low-heeled shoes have nothing to do with sex appeal. You might exchange to high heels, but I don't expect that it would help any. I wouldn't advise you to pluck your eyebrows. All women are perhaps the same to him. "Love 'em and leave 'em," is his motto. At least, I gather that from the letters I receive from broken-hearted girls from all over the country. What a man! Arch your eyebrows, as it may make you look intelligent. I would never hold a boy's hand. Only the good die young. All men are not alike. Don't be sorry about it. They are just like street cars. There is one every five minutes, and if you miss the first one you can catch the next one. It will probably be more accommodating. If you want to marry the boy, trick him into it. Don't we all? We women must cling together. "Unlived we stand, but bring we fall"—however, we all fall over him. Young men may bring only heartaches, but it is better to have loved and lost than never to have eaten a square meal or been to a show. I wish you happiness. If the angel food cake does not turn out right, drop me a line. Any women can do that.

MADAM LOVE-O.

If you are troubled with love problems, let Madam Love-O write them. If better matches are made, she will make them.
