PROMINENT CITIZEN PASSES

Rowan county lost one of its most illustrious citizens Sunday with the passing of "Uncle" Marion Tolliver. Mr. Tolliver had been a citizen of Rowan county for almost 40 years.

His life was a pleasant and industrious one; his death is a sad reminder that the good must also pass away. Mr. Tolliver's friends were legion.

Hale and hearty at 79 his death was unexpected. It is well, however, that he died without pain.

LESS HOLIDAY DEATHS OCCUR

It is gratifying to note that this is one of the sections of the state and country that did not show an increase in fatalities on Independence Day this year.

July 4, 1935 was marked by three deaths and four injuries in this section. Two were killed in an automobile wreck on the Christy creek road, another Moreheadian met his death in a Bath county motor accident, while a youth drowned in Elliott county, a few miles from here.

So far as has been reported here this same radius had no deaths this year. There was a flooding episode on Christy creek in which one man was injured and may die.

In Morehead Mrs. Curtis Hutchinson was injured when a fire cracker was thrown and exploded in her face. She suffered burns that may cause disfigurement. This is very lamentable, especially so in view of the numerous local newspaper warnings as to the proper method of putting-off fire works.

Throughout the nation the highest death rate for any Fourth in the past five years was recorded. Automobile accidents, deaths from drowning, shooting and burns from fireworks and explosions again reaped their harvest in human lives. Americans cannot seem to heed the pleas for a safe and sane Fourth.

REGISTER ON AUGUST 1st

The new registration law in Kentucky states that "every citizen of the United States not otherwise disqualified by the laws of this Commonwealth, who is twenty-one years of age or over before the next regular election to be held in November of any year, or on or before the date of any special election, and who will have been a resident of the state of Kentucky one year, and of the county six months, and of the precinct, outside the corporate limits of a city of the first class, in such county for sixty days next preceding such election, and who is a registered voter, and is otherwise qualified, shall be entitled to vote for all officers elective by the people, and on all measures or questions submitted for determination by the voters at any popular or special election. PROVIDED, HOWEVER, THAT ONLY PERSONS WHO ARE DULY AND PROPERLY REGISTERED AS PROVIDED SHALL BE PERMITTED TO VOTE AT THE PRIMARY ELECTION TO BE HELD ON THE FIRST SATURDAY IN AUGUST, 1936, AND AT ALL PRIMARY, GENERAL AND SPECIAL ELECTIONS HELD THEREAFTER."

The portion of this in capital letters is set out for the attention of those who are not acquainted with the new election registration law in Kentucky. The law further provides that voters can register in their own precincts on only one day—the date of the primary election, which will be August 1, of this year. However, it is legal for any voter to register after that date by going to the county clerk's office. But he can register at his precinct, and save time and expense of going to the county courthouse on only this one day in the year.

It is the duty of every right-thinking Kentuckian whether Democrat or Republican to register and vote Saturday, August 1. Failure to register on that day disqualifies anyone from voting in November, unless they later register with the county clerk.

MEN AND MACHINES

A common phrase these days is "technological unemployment." It usually is used by those who oppose modernization because of the mistaken belief that machines take work away from men. They seem to think that the introduction of a machine which lets one man do the work of five means that the other four men join the bread-lines.

upon thoughts that go only half way. Actually, the machine, instead of throwing men out of work, has increased employment. That is proved by facts. During the three decades ended in 1929, the United States went through the most rapid development in its history in the application and invention of machines. And what was the result? The number of persons employed rose 88 per cent while the population increased only 25 per cent, mechanization increased 331 per cent and production rose 216 per cent.

The linotype machine was one that let a single man do the work of about five. It was introduced in the early 1890's. Yet in 1889 there were only 50,000 employed in the printing and publishing business as against 150,000 in 1929. That 150,000 does not include the thousands who got new jobs to supply paper, ink, and machines needed by the stimulated printing business.

The real result of this marvelous invention has not only increased employment but better education. Costs dropped so that now everybody can afford to buy printed matter. And literacy dropped from 10.7 per cent of the population in 1900 to 4.3 per cent in 1930.

Nearly the same things are true of other inventions. There have been periods of adjustment when employment in a single industry was temporarily reduced. But, in short, the machine instead of gobbling up jobs, ogre-like, has raised our standard of living until no one is the highest in the world, and has provided millions of new jobs.

One Year Ago This Week

Two died in an automobile accident when a passenger car and a truck collided near Morehead. The dead: Curtis Howard, 19, Elliott county and Leonard Lowe, 17, Rowan county. The two boys were stranded at the running board of a motor driven by Homer Williams when it hit a truck of the Fannin Coal Company on the Christy Creek road.

After deliberating five hours a Greenup jury, which heard the evidence in the case charging Forester Motters, 45, of Ashland with manslaughter, was unable to reach a verdict.

Motters was indicted in connection with the death of Hazel Francis, 18, Morehead College student.

Local headquarters of Thos. S. Rheo announced Judge Friend of Beatville would speak in this county in behalf of the Russellville candidate.

All work projects of the Federal government in Rowan county were ordered stopped one year ago today as a new set-up was prepared.

Elgin Sharp, 26, of Sharpburg, who worked on the State Highway Department here, was killed in an automobile wreck in Bath county July 4.

The Masonic Lodge at this week planned ceremonies to take eight into the third degree here July 18.

The Morehead College Board of Regents convened to let bids on a new water, heat and light plant.

July 15 was set as the date for the opening of rural schools in Rowan county.

Clarence Salver was drowned in Elliott county July 4.

P. L. Alderman was elected president of the Rowan County Tobacco Production Control Association.

WHAT OTHER KENTUCKY EDITORS ARE SAYING

New State Taxes Become Effective Taxes on ice cream, chewing gum, bottled and unbottled drinks, candy, cosmetics and flavored syrups went into effect in the State of Kentucky on July 1st.

Under the provisions of the new law consumers are now forced to pay one cent on each five-cent purchase on all of the above named articles, or at the rate of 20 per cent in large purchases.

The retailer is forced to pay the tax in advance and there is no chance for him to escape payment, and it is up to him to collect from the consuming public.

The ice cream dealers, who are particularly active in opposition to the new tax, have announced their intention of carrying the matter to the highest court and have already filed suit, and in this spite of the fact that Governor Comer's office has announced its opinion that the measure is constitutional and the tax collectable. Manufacturers of candy and cosmetics are expected to take similar action, but in the meantime the public will have to pay with never a chance of having its money refunded.

This points out a very real weakness in the law, from the viewpoint of the layman and the taxpayer. It ought to be possible to find out whether a tax is legal before it is collected. Efforts have been made to provide for such rulings of the court, but the courts refuse to rule in advance. As a result, even if the taxpayer should be declared unconstitutional, those who pay their pennies and dimes will never get them back.—Mt. Sterling Advocate.

Police say that motorists are triple parking. Well, if there's not enough room in the streets to park, let 'em use the sidewalks—pedestrians can crawl underneath or over the top.

A contemporary claims that the average span of human life has lengthened. It looked that way for a while, but we think the automobile has taken up all the slack.

dealt the hardest blow during the past week they have encountered in this section for many a year. No fewer than 16 were placed under arrest and a half dozen still were confiscated as revenue agents swooped down on them.

There has been some talk that Judge J. W. Riley will be a candidate for county judge, if the arrests continue at this rate.

Judge Riley, who is United States Commissioner for this district, will do better, from a financial standpoint in keeping his present position.

ELLIOTT COUNTY is the center of moonshiners in Eastern Kentucky, according to the reports of the agents. "A still of every hill" without the "whistle on every still" is their version of the situation.

People who contend that Elliott county manufactures the best grade of moonshine are reputed by the records at the Commissioners office, for tank stills, which are generally nothing more than a lard can or gasoline tank, are much more in the majority in Elliott, while the copper stills prevail in Rowan, Lewis and other counties in the district.

SENATORIAL CANDIDATES

apparently are taking more than the usual amount of time to select campaign chairmen and get their county organizations started. Up until Monday of this week the campaign manager for Brown, Logan or Beckham had not been selected. It appears that a number of politicians are on the fence and won't jump until they see what lies before them. It shouldn't be long now, however, before the band-wagons pick them up. A 3-way split in the Democratic party for this primary appears far from improbable.

say that coca cola and soft drink sales have fallen off about one-third since the 20 per cent state tax on them went into effect. In many cases in Kentucky retailers are charging 10 cents for ordinary nickel drinks in an effort to make the manufacturer, principally the coca cola people, assume the tax. In the meantime a legal battle over the constitutionality over this administration's revenue-raising measure looms in the court of appeals.

With the woods in their present dry condition a cigarette butt or a glowing match will easily start a fire and it is hoped that this case will be an object lesson to all people traversing the National Forest, as well as all woodlands. The particular fire in question was cut off from National Forest lands and confined to the area between the heads of Stockton and Indian Creeks by the fire crew of the CCC camp at Clearfield. Several hundred acres of young timber were burned over.

FARMING BY IMPROVED METHODS

Soybeans, Cowpeas May Be Grown for Hay in New Program

Soybeans and cowpeas may be grown as emergency hay crops in Kentucky under provisions of the Agricultural Conservation program, provided they are followed with cover crops, according to an announcement from the College of Agriculture, at Lexington. This fact is said to be of particular interest at this time, since the drought has focused attention to the need of these crops to offset the scarcity of hay in the state. Thousands of farmers may still sow soybeans, cowpeas, sudan grass, millet and other hay and pasture crops.

Soybeans and cowpeas pastured, grazed or hogged-off, either when green or mature, are classified as soil-conserving crops in the Agricultural Conservation Program. They also may be harvested for hay and still be classified as soil-conserving, provided a winter cover crop is planted on the acreage prior to October 31.

Other changes contemplated in the program, as a result of the drought, include permission to plant additional acreage of sudan grass, sweet sorghum and millet without affecting soil-conserving payments.

The College of Agriculture recommends soybeans as the best emergency hay crop that still may be grown, if weather conditions are favorable. Cowpeas make equally as good hay, but the seed is more expensive and the hay harder to cure. Drilling soybeans with a grain drill at the rate of 25 to 30 pounds to the acre is recommended.

Sudan grass and millets may be grown for hay and sown even later than soybeans, but their hay is inferior. Millet may be sown late as August 1.

Sudan makes a good emergency grass crop, and will produce an abundance of grazing until freezing weather, if the fall is favorable.

The college also suggests that farmers wherever possible sow alfalfa this fall. Alfalfa is considered the most dependable hay crop that can be grown in Kentucky.

Suggests Sudan and Soybeans As Emergency Crops

Sudan grass is named by Prof. E. J. Kinney of the Kentucky College of Agriculture as probably the best emergency crop to sow for late summer and fall pasture. Sown now, with favorable weather conditions, it should furnish a large amount of grazing until killed by frost. Drilling is preferred to broadcasting using 25 to 30 pounds of seed to the acre. As the supply of hay in Kentucky is certain to be scanty, Prof. Kinney suggests liberal seedings of rye or other small grains, in order to lessen the amount of hay needed.

For an emergency hay crop, he recommends soybeans, the seed of which is certain to be plenty. Best varieties for late seeding are Virginia, Wilson and other medium late kinds. Cowpeas give better yields than soybeans from late seedings, but the seed costs more and the hay is more difficult to cure.

Sudan grass and millets permit even later seeding than soybeans or cowpeas, but the hay is less valuable. Millet will make a crop when sown as late as August 1, if moisture conditions are favorable.

If most of the lespedeza is killed by the drought, seed will be scarce as the carry-over was small. Therefore, Prof. Kinney recommends that surviving stands be kept for seed.

He also suggests that alfalfa be sown this fall wherever possible. Alfalfa is unquestionably the most dependable hay crop that can be grown in Kentucky. He also would sow more grass with small grains.

Poultry Men Join Drive On Thieves

Plans to join in a national drive against chicken stealing were announced by the directors of the Kentucky Poultry Improvement Association, meeting during the 12th annual poultry show course at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The 1,400 members of the association are to be asked to use the tattoo method of putting a brand on the webs in each bird's wing. These brands then will be furnished to law enforcement officers to help trace stolen chickens. The methods used to be the most expensive and effective. Cooperating farmers will be furnished a large sign readable day or night warning thieves that their flocks are protected.

Joe H. Wetherill, Carrollton, was elected president of the association. D. S. Lanning, Lexington, vice-president, and Miss M. C. Lane, Lexington, was re-named secretary and treasurer.

One hundred and eighty-six men and women from 53 Kentucky counties and from New York, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Arkansas and Tennessee attended the poultry short course, which each year offers intensive training in poultry raising. Lectures, demonstrations, practical work in culling, judging and treatment of diseases and pests make up the course.

In giving the course this year, members of the poultry department staff at the College of Agriculture and Experiment Station were assisted by Prof. J. R. Smyth, head of the poultry unit at the University of Maine, and Dr. A. J. Durant and Prof. H. C. McDougale of the Missouri College of Agriculture.

Advices Calling and Better Care

Scarcity of feed brings a statement from J. E. Humphrey, College of Agriculture field agent in poultry, urging the culling of the pullets, so that better care can be given to the birds that will lay eggs next fall and winter when prices are higher.

In the flock are pullets that developed rapidly, are the first out in the morning and the last to go to roost, have vigor and vitality, possess broad, deep and short heads that blend into long bodies with good spring of ribs. Their bodies are deep and slab-sided rather than shallow and round. They stand well, and have width between the wings.

There is a class of pullets not quite so good, a little less mature, with bodies and heads not so good. Some of this class probably should be culled. A third class consists of the out and out culls, most of which should be sold. They have bare backs, and long, slim crow heads. They often are knock-kneed.

Mr. Humphrey says the good birds should be moved to clean ground, if possible, and to a field where there is alfalfa, lespedeza or other green feed, and plenty of shade and fresh water. Shade and water cost nothing, and yet are important in reducing feed cost. If there is no alfalfa or lespedeza field, then the next best is a cornfield after the corn has been harvested, so that no damage can be done to it.

Grain and mash must be kept before the birds if they should develop to where they will lay well when egg prices are good in the fall and winter. It is a good plan to move the hopper and watering utensils frequently.

yield of the first cutting of alfalfa in a four-year old field in Trigg county. Ninety-eight phosphate demonstrations have been established in Trigg and Lyon counties. Elliott county farmers purchased nearly 100,000 chicks this year, many of them entering the poultry business on a fairly large scale. Several thousand broilers and cockers have been sold at a profit, despite the low prices for poultry.

Extensive seedings of grasses and legumes were planned for Henderson county following terracing operations. One farmer had planned to sow 90 acres of bluegrass, and another 126 acres of alfalfa. Dry weather interfered with plans.

Garrard county homemakers, in discussions in their current project, "The Livable Home," favored elimination of dining rooms. In many instances, dining rooms were considered to have "a stiff and cold atmosphere" and to be largely a waste of space.

The Boyd county rural electricity committee plans to have electricity for all rural homes at least 100 miles of road in the county. Approximately 500 farmers have signed petitions for power and light.

Good Curing Adds to Tobacco Price

Twenty-eight Todd county farmers who cooperated with County Agent Stuart Brabant in demonstrating improved methods of curing dark-fired tobacco sold 310,000 pounds for an average of 11 cents a pound, against an average of 7 cents a pound for the county as a whole. The demonstrators averaged $103 an acre, compared to a county average of $57. The county average included the demonstration crops.

Tobacco is grown for the cash income and services received by farmers using improved curing methods prove the worth of the quality tobacco program which has been carried on in this county for the past six years, comments Mr. Brabant.

Best Wool Brings 37 Cents

The Carlisle County Wool Growers Association sold 21,900 pounds of wool for $7,811, receiving 37 cents a pound for clean wool, 33 cents for light burr, 31 cents for medium burr and 28 cents for hard burr. The expense of handling the wool, including shrinkage, housing, insurance and blue was 50 cents per hundred.

United Civic Effort Made For Dam

Finally the Mississippi. The Licking river "has a very rapid runoff and it rises rapidly after local rains." To quote the report of the State Planning Board: "The town of Salyersville and a section of about 14,000 acres, extending from Yale to Shortburn were flooded in 1928. Salyersville is very near the limit of the drainage area and could be protected by levees. A retaining reservoir at Cave Run would solve the problem of the other location."

Owing to the fact that it is known that the drainage area of the Licking is for the most part seriously eroded and that federal mopping up of the eroded areas has recently been done, it is hoped that a project similar in purpose to the TVA, on a smaller scale, may be considered by the government. If residents of the 18 or 20 counties drained by the Licking show sufficient interest in the matter, should the government take a hand, it is believed that planning would include a retaining reservoir in the upper river at Cave Run, in Bath county, a power dam possibly near Myers and at Falmouth. The effect of the lower dams would be to prevent flood conditions and incidentally to furnish the means of potential power for subterranean rural electrification.

The organization made in Carleton on Monday night, at which were present representatives from Harrison, Bath and Nicholas, must depend upon the cooperation of all counties along the Licking watershed and that interest and cooperation must be forthcoming if any progress is to be made. The benefits of a project similar to the TVA in scope in the Licking valley would be vast. Much of the erosion and is now useless for agriculture bordering the river, the timber is gone and frequently the land is deserted as worthless. A six-hour at the meeting Monday night called attention to the fact that population in this area is steadily dwindling, tenancy on farms is rapidly increasing. The realization of this development project would mean the bringing of new life to the Licking valley.

Newspapers in every county along the Licking watershed are urged to give publicity to this movement, to the end that sufficient interest may be aroused to make the Licking Valley Development association a permanent and actively functioning organization.

Later it is hoped to call a meeting at some central point in the area and perfect such an organization. At the meeting in Carleton Monday night, J. Shanklin Piper of Owingsville was made president of the temporary organization and Warren Fisher, Carleton, secretary and treasurer. The following board of directors was named: Harrison — F. L. Duffy, W. M. Terry, E. K. Watkins, Bath — O. H. Knight, E. L. Byron, Judge Clyde Alexander, Nicholas — W. B. Knight, Robert Fisher, E. A. Van Bever.

Individual membership is solicited throughout the district. Members being asked to contribute a dollar to help defray expenses of promoting a permanent organization.

The secretary, Warren Fisher, Carleton, will be grateful for any information that may aid this movement. He would especially like to hear from those who were active in the plan for a dam in the Licking at Falmouth some years ago.

"Of course this may be but a dream," one speaker said Monday night, "but all movements must have a beginning—and sometimes even dreams come true."

553 Farmers Sign On Soil Worksheets

The maximum amount of money possible for farmers who filed these worksheets to obtain if these acreage figures are approved would be approximately $22,000. This is considerably large sum than is likely to be received because of many farmers qualifying for only a part of the money that might be paid for full compliance with the program. It is not possible to estimate the probable amount that will be paid to the county association members but this will likely run much larger than AAA payments farmers may yet sign worksheets if they have not done so yet, according to County Agent C. L. Goff.

Louisville bank clearings registered increase of 28.4 per cent over same week of 1935.

11,000 expected to beat work of PWA projects in Kentucky in August when peak is reached.

Funeral Rites Held For Marion Tolliver

(Continued from Page One) a Colonel on his official staff because of his successful career in agriculture, stock-raising and the merchandising business and upon motion of Hon. W. E. Proctor, county attorney of Rowan county, Lt. Charles E. Jennings, Judge of Rowan County Court do proclaim that out of respect to his memory all public offices in the Courthouse be closed between the hours of 1 p. m. and 4 p. m. of July 8th, 1936, during the progress of his funeral and in our tribute we are pleased to remember him as a landmark of Morehead, the promoter of its first wholesale house and bank, a man of civic pride whose large, fine home (a veritable mountain mansion) stood where Myrtle's Tea Room now is; East of Morehead and we recommend that all upright and ambitious young men emulate his life. This proclamation shall be spread at large upon the order book of this Court and a copy delivered to his surviving sons.

H. L. Moore Elected President of Fair

Heads of other important committees that come under the foregoing general heads will be named this week by the Reverend Moore.

The teachers in the county will again have an important part in the Fair, along the same lines as they participated last year, Superintendent Cornette stated.

It is probable there will be more exhibits and larger prizes this year's fair than have been given heretofore, according to plans now being drafted by the Fair officials.

Midwest Crops Are Almost Total Loss

(Continued from Page One) Kentucky's fields and crops was revealed and plans were discussed for meeting greatly increased demands for federal aid, due to the drought, at a meeting of WPA area engineers from 23 central and northern Kentucky counties at Lexington, yesterday morning.

Ernest Rowe, director of the Third Kentucky WPA district, Lexington, yesterday announced that intake and certification offices will be established here within three weeks' time and that WPA during the current season will pay on a new wage scale, the "prevailing" rate rather than the former "security" basis.

Gardens, pastures, hay and the potato crop were described as being "hopeless" in the survey reports submitted yesterday by Rowe. The corn and wheat crops, although irretrievably damaged in many of the counties, were said to have a chance to recover if heavy rains fall at an early date.

Higher prices on everything this winter is predicted.

Explanation Given Of New State Taxes

(Continued from Page One) chewing gum, and nuts are exempt from the tax. The payment of the tax on candy, chewing gum and nuts is evidenced by destroying in the presence of the customer tax stamps equal to the amount of the tax due on each sale. The Department of Revenue is busily engaged in supply retailers throughout the state with these stamps in 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 20 cent denominations.

It is believed that many retailers in the state have not yet placed their order for these stamps. The department advises that retailers selling candy, chewing gum and nuts without destroying the stamps must keep a record of all such sales made on and after July 1, and upon receipt of stamps must cancel stamps equal in value to the tax due on the sale of these commodities, and return the cancelled stamps to the Department of Revenue, transmitting therewith an affidavit that the cancelled stamps cover all taxable sales of these commodities.

Cream separators are designed to operate at a certain speed. Slower speed results in a larger volume of thinner cream and a loss of butterfat in the skim milk. Higher speed causes a smaller volume of richer cream and more skim milk.

To control cucumber beetles, use a well-mixed dust made of one part of calcium arsenate and 15 parts of gypsum or land-plaster. Screen the dust into the plaster before mixing. The dust may be applied with a gunny sack.

Cultivation of straw berries throughout the season is advisable. Many growers narrow the rows to about 5 inches, and apply a side-dressing of sulphate of ammonia or nitrate of soda at the rate of about 20 pounds to a tenth of an acre or 50 pounds to a quarter of an acre.

Lexington plans construction of $75,000 municipal swimming pool.

SAN FRANCISCO
Adapted by LESBIE MITCHELL
From "The Girl in the Red Coat"

Synopsis—Jack Burley financial support of San Francisco's Tivoli Opera Co. is intrigued by the pretty and gifted singer Mary Blake, who is a performer at Blackie Norton's Paradise Music Hall on the Barbary Coast. Blackie had taken her in and given her a job when her funds exhausted she had been driven out of the Bristol Hotel by fire. Mary is grateful to Blackie, and thilled that he does not want her to leave him, and refuses Jack Burley's offer of the role of Marguerite in "Faust."

THE KISS—AND A FLIGHT

Chapter Six
 But Jack Burley would not yet admit defeat. He offered Blackie five thousand dollars for Mary's contract, then doubled that offer. "Nothing doing," said Blackie. "You may be going to need the money," said Burley significantly.

going to tip you off about a few facts about the Paradise."

He led her into his office. Its walls were covered with photographs, posters and trophies of San Francisco's underworld life. In a corner were three large silver loving cups on pedestals. He told her they were trophies offered every year by Freddy Duane and the rest of Frisco's wine agents at an event called "The Chickens' Ball."

"They hold a competition at the ball and give a prize of ten thousand dollars in gold to the proprietor of the joint that puts on the most artistic show. And do you want to know the joint that's won it three times running—the Paradise? He slapped her arm with the back of his hand. She was touched by his evident pride in the Paradise and the prizes it had won. "Thirty thousand dollars that Chickens' Ball has sent home to Blackie! For artistic achievement! That's what they said every time they slipped me the trophy."

Mary looked up at him, his pride was so like a boy's. "Why, it's wonderful," she said.

"Well, ain't I telling you! And I got few plans for the future." He took her arm and led her to a door across the room. "Just take a gander at this!" He threw open the door of the coat closet on the back of which was tacked a poster—a "three-sheet" lithographed portrait of Mary in tight, shimmering, black, dress, knee-high gait boots, and a tautly embroidered cape thrown over one shoulder. Lettering on the glaring poster proclaimed: Beginning Feb. 15th—Blackie Norton's Paradise—Engagement Extraordinary—Mary Blake, the Colorado Nightingale."

Admiring the poster himself, Blackie did not notice the look of amazed disgust on Mary's face. "Look at it! Great, eh?"

In mingled emotions of fright, disgust and astonishment, yet touched withal, she merely nodded, unable to trust herself to words.

"I've been working on this for weeks, kid," he said, looking down at her with pride and love. "Just Clever ideas, putting you in tight. I wanted it to be a surprise, so I got Trixie to pose for the figure. Then they slapped your head on top of it. I'll have it on every billboard in San Francisco! You'll be queen of the Barbary Coast for Blackie!" He pinched her cheek. She looked up at him, greatly moved, unable to speak. "I'm stuck on you, kid. I like to look into those big lamps of yours."

pinched her cheek possessively. But when his back was turned, she looked after him, terrified.

When Blackie returned from giving the order to Joe Lee, Mary was not where he had left her. The Professor sat at his piano on the stage thoughtful and depressed; Trixie leaned dejectedly against the proscenium arch, the rest were grouped around a table backstage at which Babe was pouring champagne.

"Here's to Blackie!" toasted one of the girls warmly. "Bless me hear!" Trixie laughed bitterly as they drank the boss' health.

"Where's Mary?" Blackie called to those on the stage.

Mat answered, "Gee! She went up to set the table."

"Thanks," Blackie all but barged into a cleaning woman, a glass of champagne in her hand.

"Here's to you, Blackie!" she called after him. "I wish I had me you!"

"I wish I'd never had mine!" Trixie burst out bitterly.

"Blackie stopped for an instant, surprised. "Why, Trixie, that's not nice."

Babe lifted a glass aloft. "Tell Mary here's to her!"

"When that runs out, Babe, open up some more," Blackie said as he left the auditorium on the way to his apartment. He was half way up the stairs when Father Mullin's voice hailed him.

"Oh, Hello Tim." Blackie's voice was impatient.

"I just saw Mary."

"You did?" Blackie turned, stepped down a tread or two.

"I met her on the street and put her in a cab. She said for me to tell you goodbye, and that she's taking you up on your offer to let her off that contract."

"What's that?" Blackie's face expressed his consternation.

"Yes, but—"

"Well, she's gone to the Tivoli!" Father Mullin went up the stairs and put a hand on his friend's shoulder. "I'm glad you did it, Blackie. This is no place for her."

"You think not, eh?" said Blackie, angry at the reflection on his "joint."

"Of course not," said the priest, "and you know I didn't say!" He looked Blackie squarely in the eyes.

"Do you think she'd be better off at the Tivoli—in the hands of Jack Burley?" asked Blackie, resentment for a moment overcoming his fondness for his childhood friend.

"She'll be safe with Burley, Blackie. You see, she doesn't love him!"

Blackie looked keenly at Father Mullin for a moment, then gave vent to an ironic laugh.

"You like chop suey, don't you Tim?"

"Sure," replied the priest, mystified at the turn in their talk.

"Well, come on upstairs! We're going to have some." There was irony in Blackie's smile—the joke was pouring champagne.

FRIENDSHIP

Friendship isn't just a thing That anyone can give Unless they learn that selfishly Is not the way to live.

Friendship is the helping in The trouble of a friend In being close beside him A word of cheer to lend.

It's comforting in sorrow, It's laughing when he's glad, It's making all the world look A little bit more glad.

It's telling him the nice thing You heard the other day, And helping him remember The pleasant things folks say.

It's telling him quite frankly The way you look at life, And showing him you're brave enough To face the roaring strife.

It's being there to say it when He needs a word of praise, It's always having patience with The tenor of his ways. It's helping him go ahead, His eyes upon the sky. It's aiding him to reach his goal With glory in his eye.

Friendship isn't just a way To pass away your time, It's just the course we take to Make someone's life more sublime.
