Historical Information: The Provost's Office of Morehead State University was established in 2002 from the Office of the Vice President of Academic Affairs and the Dean of the Faculty. The Office of the Provost presently works to insure the quality and effectiveness of the University's academic programs and services. The Provost also serves as the chief academic officer for the University.

Scope and Content: Collection consists of college, department and program audits acquired by the Provost's Office of Morehead State University from 2007 and 2008. The audits included self-studies for every academic department and program at the University. The reports reviewed internal and external demands for the programs; quality of program inputs and processes; size, scope and productivity of the program; impact, justification and overall essentiality of the program; opportunity analysis of the program; and future unit plans. The reports also include raw data and supplementary materials to support findings.
