BY THE TELEGRAPH!

From the Louisville Journal.
New Orleans, Sept. 9.
Papers from New Orleans of the 9th are to hand. They contain not much of importance. Intelligence from Campechy to August 25, announces the re-annexation of Yucatan to Mexico, which event has been celebrated with great eclat. The whites have obtained three signal victories over the Indians, and in all their engagements the former have proved victorious. An amnesty has been tendered to the Indians.
The number of deaths at New Orleans on the 6th inst., from yellow fever, were twelve.

The returns from Arkansas show Johnson (Dem.) majority for Congress, 4,637, and five counties not reported.
New York, Sept. 16, 8 p. m.
Slavery was abolished in French Guiana on the 10th of August, by public proclamation, by virtue of a decree of the French Republic. This event was celebrated by great demonstration on the part of the military and citizens with cheers and salutes. After which, mass was celebrated with a general orchestral performance of Te Deum in church.

Maine Election.
Correspondence of the Baltimore Patriot.
Boston, Sept. 12—p. m.
We have returns which show the following results, viz:
Cumberland county: sixteen towns heard from, for Governor—Nesbitt, 2,857; Dana, dem., 3,561; Fessenden, free soil, 1,169.
York county, four towns return as follows: Hamlin, 187; Dana, 554; Fessenden, 70.
In the Cumberland district, fifteen towns heard from, the vote for Congress stands as follows: Hamlin, whig, 11,673; Dana, Jefferson, 12,743; and Fessenden, free soil, 3,937. As the names of the towns are given, we have no means of making a comparison.
John Van Eaton is present and intends addressing the convention this evening.

The John Donkey, a neutral print, and frequently "hears down" upon the Democrats, as well as whigs, perpetrated the following:
EXTRAORDINARY OMISSIONS.—We have hitherto neglected to give to our readers the pungent and powerful resolutions prepared by the Philadelphia Whig Convention, previous to its adjournment. They are to the point; and while they may be regarded as the whig platform in the coming campaign, present at a glance all the opinions of Gen. Taylor upon all mooted points of national policy. They are as follows:
Resolved,
Resolved,
Resolved,

We hope that these sterling opinions will be fully weight with the public. In ascertaining old Zack, we know exactly what line of policy, in case of his election, will be carried out in the administration of the government. Ed—Zack—ly.

From the Louisville papers report that errors are being found which leaves no doubt that the Treasurer's account will be found to be correct. For the credit of an old officer and for the interest of the State, we trust it may go to the bottom. But the commissioners appointed to settle his accounts have not yet entered on their duties, or if so, only since Tuesday last, and of course they have found nothing, or reported nothing. Their report, when made, will be satisfactory to the public no doubt.—Frankfort Yemassee.

General Taylor paid more respect to the Charleston nomination than to the Whig slaughterhouse nomination. He was the letter out of the office promptly—perhaps paid the postage.

Arrest of a Mail Robber.—Recovery of a stolen money.
During the past three months, numerous robberies of the mails had been made at the Post Office Department of letters stolen from the Western mail, containing sums of money; and, notwithstanding every effort that had been made to discover the thief, he continued his depredations and baffled all efforts for his detection until Tuesday last. The Postmaster General, finding the case one that required prompt action, he proceeded to the place of the most efficient and experienced agents of the Department, who had before reported under depredations of this kind in the West that had for long time baffled detection.
Having succeeded in tracing the depredations to the office at Winchester, Va., he dropped into the office at that place a copy letters, containing notes marked so as to be easily recognized, and on ascertaining that they did not pass from that place, he proceeded to a general search of all who had ingress and egress among these, of a young named John D. Fenton, of most respectable connections, a clerk in a hardware establishment at Winchester, who being an intimate friend of the son of the Postmaster, had for some time past been in the habit of calling in at the office on Sunday mornings, where he thought to see some sport, talking and smoking. On a search being made, money to the amount of $2,400 was found on his person, some of which he recognized as the stolen money, and he confessed having carried off the money in a letter box, which he had hidden in a hole in the wall of his office. The money recovered, is believed to be all that has been stolen since the first of last June. The other portions of the stolen money were quarter commenced to be received at the Department.

Mr. Hale is deservingly, and will doubtless receive the thanks of the whole business community, a large number of whom in our city are sufferers, for his energy and success in ferreting out this and other depredations on the mails. We also hope it will serve as a warning to postmasters to allow no one to enter their offices, let their characters be what they may, as most of the mail robberies of late years have been committed by persons of good characters who secured their admittance, and to whom the temptation to steal has proved too great to be resisted. —Washington Union.

The barnburners are attempting to seize upon the name of "free soil" and "free soilers" to characterize their faction. We protest against the de nomination. They should receive at the hip the name of "free soil abolitionists," that is their real title and superscription, and that alone shall we heretofore distinguish them.

The federal party played a fraud upon the country by adopting the name of whig. They are not entitled to it—they are federalists still; and the free-soilers are to all intents and purposes abolitionists. —Washington Union.

We understand that Mr. Walker, the Secretary of the Treasury, has declined to visit the city of New York, and which he so richly deserves at the hands of the Empire city—the great commercialemporium of the United States.
Mr. Walker is a part of his family are now on a visit to Boston.—Washington Union.

The whigs are bragging about their great meeting at Fort Harrison, Indiana. Wonder if any of them believe Taylor will carry the vote of the Hoosier State? Mr. Walker is a part of his family are now on a visit to Boston.—Washington Union.

DEATH OF COM. MCKENZIE.—Commander Alexander Siddell McKenzie, of the navy, while riding through Sing Sing, (his place of residence), fell from his horse and was killed. The immediate cause of his death was a disease of the heart. Com. McK. was the officer through whose order young Spenser was hung by the brig Somers.—Bellows Falls, America.

A Side Shake.
To those who love to laugh we commend the following from the St. Louis Republic. It is a real and discomfiting to colored brethren, for we are among those who believe that a white man is as good as a negro if he behaves as well:
Great English Discomfiting Meeting—Wonderful enthusiasm—Speech of Pompey Bigheel.
On Saturday evening last a grand and enthusiastic meeting of the "free niggers" of St. Louis was held in the upper hall, usually denominated cockloft, of an immense stable, belonging to a "free goman ob color," to respond to the nomination of Van Buren and Adams, and to receive the report of Pompey Bigheel, delegate to the "Buffalo Free Nigger Convention."

On motion of Dick Shink, Esq., the "How," Samuel Ranjo, was called to the chair, and Bob Shinkbone and Jim Possam were appointed Secretaries.
After a few appropriate remarks the President announced the following: Pompey Bigheel, Esq., who was escorted by the most enthusiastic chorus.

Mr. Bigheel said, "He felt proud all over his body to stand before you, the most 'spectable and patriotic ordinance" my father citizens said—Mr. B.—I just returned from Buffalo Convention, and I never was so well treated in my life. I feel citizen, free nigger, I dober know'd what it was to be a free nigger afore I went to the buffer Convention—I shaked my hands in white folks'—I eat wid white folks—I play wid white folks—I have your poor white folks, but yer real big white folks. [Immense cheering.] Fellow citizens—In dem nominations was med, ebbery free nigger in de convention—and day was some—gin free three nigger candidates. [Loud and repeated cheer.] Fellow citizens, if ye called states, I 'sponded for Missus! I pledged de convention dot more dan "seven" free niggers could be found in Missouri. [Great applause, and cries of "free nigger!"]

Mr. Bigheel then said, "I had only one thing to say to ye, my ebbery free nigger will stand up to de denomination, we'll soon have all der poor folks under our heels—and no three choers for de free nigger ticket of Van Buren and Adams." (Here the cheering was great, and the applause so prolonged, that fears were entertained that the asste would fall down from the height of his enthusiasm. He had not room for all the resolutions—the following is the principal one commensurate to the occasion.)

Resolved, That we cordially depend on denominations of Van Buren and Adams, by de Free Nigger Buuffer Convention, and free nigger should withhold all support of dem nomen, and be white folks; and we cordially give de hand of fellowship to all 'spectable white folks in de free nigger movement, and pledge ourselves to support such white folks on terms ob de most perfect equality."

CLAY DEMONSTRATION AT THE CAPITOL.
The following, in the shape of an imposing handbill, was in circulation in this city yesterday, and was published in the Evening Journal. It will be seen that the Clay whigs of the capital are to be outdone by their friends in the city of New York, who, as you soon know what stuff they are made of:
"Here's to you, Harry Clay!"

A MASS MEETING
of whigs will be held at the Thursday evening, Sept. 15th, at the Capitol, to respond to the nomination of HENRY CLAY, for President,
MILLARD FILLMORE, for Vice President.
A presidential elector for this district is also to be appointed. David Graham, Dudley Selden, and other distinguished speakers will address the meeting. All the Ashland Golf Club will sing some good old songs.

All those who are in favor of remaining steadfast to the old platform of whig principles are requested to attend.—Free Day.

American Sympathizers.
The Dublin Evening Herald of Monday, Aug. 22nd contains the following statement:
Information has been received by the government, that most of the officers and non-commissioned officers, with the exception of a number of the private soldiers of a disbanded American regiment, recently employed in the Mexican war, sailed from a Texas port on the 18th or 19th of the last month, for the Irish coast, whom they expected to find in arms on their arrival. Both officers and men are nearly all Irish; they are provided, it is said, with a number of cannon, and with orders to direct their military organization of the Irish revolutionary army. Arrangements have been made, calculated to insure the capture of the vessel, and Sir C. Napier has received instructions to deal with them in the most summary manner should they fall into his hands.

DEATH FROM THE BITES OF A TARANTULA.
The Blountville, Arkansas Eagle of the 10th inst. says that the late John Dillinger, that vicinity, was bitten while asleep at night, by a tarantula or poisonous spider, which entered the crevice of his leg, and, in his bed, swelled to the size of the second day, when he died.

The First Steam Voyage Across the Atlantic.
A friend has been kind enough to furnish us with the following extract from the report of the "Savannah" steamer, which crossed the ocean in 1818. We like to pay due tribute to the ingenuity and enterprise of our own countrymen; and we have no idea that British genius has done more for the world in the way of steam navigation. We discovered the steamboat, and we first braved the Atlantic with the power of steam. The Savannah was built by the late Capt. Rogers—the father of our friend J. W. Rogers, who is now captain of the Augusta steamer, but who, we hope, will be long placed in command of one of those steamers which are so bravely navigating the ocean. He deserves it, if not by hereditary claims, by his own skill and experience, his enthusiasm and devotion to his profession, (of which we have already given some examples), and that fine bearing and gentility of manners which make him so great a favorite with all who have the honor to know him.

The Mr. Vail who is spoken of in the foregoing account, is the father of the worthy gentleman who superintends our steam navigation.

It is amusing to trace out the adventures of the first vessel which crossed the ocean with steam, and it is still more creditable to our countrymen, that the principles in which she succeeded in increasing the speed of our steamers, and reducing one-half the duration of the voyage, and saving one-third of the fuel, are the same which are the basis of the present day. But we have not got to the bottom of the matter, and it is still more creditable to our countrymen, that the principles in which she succeeded in increasing the speed of our steamers, and reducing one-half the duration of the voyage, and saving one-third of the fuel, are the same which are the basis of the present day.

THE SAVANNAH, (D. C.) Aug. 29, 1848.
It may not be interesting to the public to pursue the following details in relation to the origin and projection of "trans-Atlantic steam navigation," having recently heard and read from sources seemingly entitled to much respect and consideration, statements sending to the belief that the English were the first projectors of "trans-Atlantic steam navigation," which statements were in direct conflict with my previously-entertained impressions, I have been at no little pains to ascertain in readiness, the ship was built and obliging master of the steamer Augusta, Captain J. W. Rogers, the accompanying brief account of the first voyage of the trans-Atlantic steam ship that crossed the briny deep.

This narrative is compiled from the "log-book" of Capt. Stephen Rogers of New London, in Connecticut, (and a sailing log), who is the father of Rogers allied to the "sailing-master" of the "Savannah," an act of merited justice to his skill, energy, enterprise, and indomitable patriotism, and I have respectively to the publication of the following narrative: "The first Atlantic steamship (Savannah) was built in New York, in the year 1818, by 'Fichtel and Crochet,' under the direction of Capt. Moses Rogers—subsequently her commander. The engine was built by John Stevens, in Elizabeth town, New Jersey. The engine being put on board at Elizabethtown, and all things being in readiness, the ship was hoisted under way, and sailed for New York on the 29th of March, 1818, sailed from New York for Savannah, Georgia (where the ship was owned). After a short stay at the latter place, she sailed for Charleston, South Carolina, to take the President, James Moore, to Savannah—whence (after these successful experiments) she sailed on her homeward voyage, and for Liverpool—a full rigged ship of about 350 tons burden, with a low-pressure engine of 80 or 90 horse-power. She proved a fast sailer, and with the power of her engine alone she would make 8 knots per hour. She was commanded by Captain Moses Rogers of New London, Connecticut, and Captain Stephen Rogers of the same place was sailing-master. After a most successful passage of 22 days, 14 of which her engine was used, she arrived at Liverpool. Before crossing the bar, which was a most interesting look place, which may be worthy of narration here. The ship was first discovered from the telegraphic station at Cape Clear, (the harbor of Ireland), and was hailed as a 'ship on fire.' The admiral, who lay at the Cove of Cork, despatched one of the King's cutters 'to get relief; but on board and with her crew total in company, with all sail, in a fast vessel, to come up with a ship under her power.' After several shots were fired from the cutter, and the ship was so much surprised of the crew at their mistake, as well as their curiosity to see the singular ' Yankee craft' can be readily imagined. They at once sailed upon some one board and were most gratified by the inspection of this novel novelty. On approaching Liverpool, hundreds of people came out in boats to meet her—some on board, and some on the shore, outside until the tide should serve for her to over the bar. During this time the steamer had all her colors flying, when she bore from a British ship of color came alongside and hailed. The 'sailing-master' was on deck at the time, and promptly answered the officer of the boat. The question was, 'What is your name?' To which the laconic reply was soon given: 'I have no master, sir.' 'Where is your captain, then, sir?' 'He is below, sir.' 'I wish to see him, sir.' 'The captain then made his appearance on deck, and wished to know, what was the officer's business? The officer replied, 'why do you wear that pendant, sir?' Because my country allow me to do so, sir, was the spicy answer of the sailing-master. The commander, replied the officer, 'I think it was done to insult him, sir; and if you don't take it down, he will send a force that will do it. The captain Rogers, without reply to this threat, ordered the engineer to get ready the hot water engine right away.' Now, although there was no such machine on board, the sailing-master, the order had the desired effect, and the officer was glad to 'vacillate' as fast as possible.

"On approaching the city, the shipping piers and roofs of houses were thronged with an excited populace, cheering the odorous craft. During her stay at Liverpool, naval officers, and noblemen, and merchants, from London, came on board, and were especially curious to ascertain her speed, destination, &c. As it will be remembered, this was soon after 'Jerome Bonaparte's' visit to England. The commander, who would succeed in raising his brother 'Napoleon,' then at 'St. Helena.' This was the suspected design of the commander, who visited Liverpool, and the ship was visited by thousands of people of rank, and her officers the while treated with marked attention, as 'hell for 'Copan hagen, Dear Sir, I have the pleasure to inform you that the ship which I have the honor to command, which place she reached in due time. Here she was visited by noblemen, military and naval officers, who all expressed their admiration for the ship, and which they seemed much delighted. Lord Lyndoch, of England, who was then on a tour through the north of Europe, by invitation of our master, took passage on board, and remained in Liverpool, Norway; whence she returned to Savannah, where she safely arrived after a passage of 25 days. Shortly afterwards the vessel sailed for Washington city, where the ship was laid up, and the first steam vessel that ever crossed the Atlantic. The whole performance of this ship of high reputation, and creditable to American ingenuity and enterprise."
