Groundbreaking Signals Beginning Of Work On Morgan County Camp

New Camp to Rehabilitate Delinquents

CHECKING OVER PLANS for Woodsbend, Kentucky's second forestry camp for delinquent boys are (from left) U. S. Representative Carl Perkins; State Forestry Director Gene L. Butcher; Kentucky Child Welfare Commissioner Richard J. Clendenen; and J. T. Cox, assistant to the commissioner of the State Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. The four participated in groundbreaking ceremonies for the Child Welfare Department's new institution located near West Liberty in Morgan County. The camp will offer schooling, work in an adjacent State Forestry Division tree seedling nursery, and counseling and treatment for 30 to 40 delinquent boys from the Eastern Kentucky area. Construction is expected to be completed by early summer.

Construction has started on Woodsbend, Kentucky's second forestry camp for the treatment of delinquent boys at West Liberty in Morgan County. Participating in the recent groundbreaking ceremony were Congressman Carl Perkins, State Child Welfare Commissioner Richard J. Clendenen, State Forestry Director Gene Butcher, and J. T. Cox, assistant to the commissioner of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

The Morgan County camp is the first extension of the Child Welfare Department's camp system since its original boys camp at Gilbertsville, in Western Kentucky, was established in 1958. Funds for construction of the camp are being provided by the State and Federal governments—$2,000 each.

The Federal Government's share was made available through a grant under the Accelerated, Public Works Program. It was obtained through the Fish and Wildlife Resources Department because of the camp's usefulness in conservation work and wildlife protection.

Boys committed to the camps participate in a work program at nearby State Forestry Division nurseries, as well as receiving treatment and schooling. They are paid a nominal $6 cents a day for their work. Immediate construction at the new camp will include a combination dormitory and administration facility with an other building for storage and

Ashland Dealers Hear Plans For Upcoming Season

Ashland Oil dealers from the Morehead, Mt. Sterling, West Liberty, Havana and Jackson areas met recently at Dill's Restaurant, Stanton, to hear company representatives outline marketing plans for the months ahead.

George Brackman, district sales manager from Mt. Sterling, described the company's plans for a number of special sales events this summer. He also explained how Ashland Oil is supporting various national, state and local programs to attract vacation and other warm-weather travelers to this area.

Tourism is one of the state's largest sources of income, he added. Guest speakers were Clifford N. Goff, merchandising manager, and Homer R. Hays, sales manager for tires, batteries and accessories, both of the Ashland Marketing Division.

Both Goff and Hays detailed the summer marketing and merchandising schedule, forecasting a record year in Ashland (oil service station activity).

Also participating was Carroll DaLong, a marketing area supervisor from Mt. Sterling. The meeting at Stanton was one of 40 scheduled this month for some 3,500 Ashland Oil dealers from Tennessee to the Great Lakes.

Commissioner Clendenen said construction will start at once and boys generally in their mid-teens, will be assigned to it by early summer.

Construction work is being done jointly by the firm of Fredrick and May and the firm of Haney and Haney, both of West Liberty. Architects were Shannon and Morgan, Lexington.

Clendenen said future plans of the department include construction of two other forestry camps for boys. One is being planned in the Lake Cumberland area for older boys capable of general and heavy-duty forestry work such as building fire trails, roads, towers, thinning out woods and replanting.

The other camp as planned for younger boys. Clendenen pointed out that children as young as 10 may be committed to the Department under Kentucky law, and that many of this age are presently at Kentucky Village near Lexington.

This institution is the State's main center for rehabilitating delinquents. Clendenen hopes the construction of these additional camps will allow the Department to thin out the population of Kentucky Village to about 330 children a year. It presently averages about 450 per year.

Both the Morgan County camp and the projected Lake Cumberland Camp will accommodate between 30 and 40 boys. The camp near Gilbertsville—the Alben W. Barkley Camp for Boys—has a capacity of 32.

Water Crisis Not New; Problems Started In 1948

In 1948 this newspaper editorially said - "This is serious business."

A few issues back we wrote "This serious business."

We spoke of the water situation in Morehead and used the introductory phraseology about the same problem 16 years later.

"We are not trying to say today that 'we told you no' but confess the public has more spade and faith that things will work themselves out somehow than this hard core country newspaper scribe."

Seldom have we seen as much street talk, and misinformation, as this week after the Utility Plant Board passed an order prohibiting additional water taps outside the city limits except homes under construction. Most people interpreted the Utility Board's declation to mean that anybody who built a house or business within the city limits would be unable to secure water.

Unfortunately, very few desirable commercial or residential lots remain vacant inside the city limits but a building boom exists in the immediate area, mostly served with municipally owned utilities - water and gas.

In a dozen conversations with business, or professional, people, we were surprised that few knew the story as it has developed from 1948 until today.

The following is repetitious of what this newspaper has printed in time form or another several times. But, we rehash the developments because, as we predicted three months ago, this will become the top, and most controversial, local news during 1964, and maybe for several years to come.

In 1948 Dr. William Jesse Baird, then the capable President of Morehead State College, warned Council the institution might have to close down in the event of a drought. The college was purchasing water from the City and Dr. Baird called upon Council in almost prayerful language to come forth with some solution or plan.

Council subsequently advised Dr. Baird that they were without resources to construct an impoundage reservoir.

The matter was discussed, with grave concern, at meetings of the Board of Regents, all reported in the columns of this newspaper. In retrospect, we doubt if most citizens were concerned too much on the assumption that something would be done and "why worry about it" . . . after all everybody had all the water they needed by simply turning on the tap.

Dr. Baird made several trips to the State capital conferring with Governor Clements. He had one thing on his side - William Jesse Baird, as it developed, was the Governor's favorite college president in the Commonwealth.

The Governor called a special meeting of his cabinet to discuss the water situation at Morehead. The publisher of this newspaper was present and the results, and decision, were duly reported.

One of the cabinet members delivered a sharp speech in which he said the State was not in the utility business but the State bought water everywhere else where: colleges, state institutions, were located.

If the Commonwealth broke precedent by selling water to the City of Morehead it could lead to repercussions, criticism and undesirable future policy.

It is obvious that most of the cabinet looked unkindly on the whole thing. Then Governor Clements all but delivered an ultimatum by stating that Commonwealth had a multi-million dollar investment at Morehead College and this investment had to be protected even if it meant the State had to go into the utility business. He stressed an engineering survey that MSC would have to close its doors in the event of a drought, and had made his own survey and ascertained the local government was without funds, or credit, to improve the system or construct the impoundage reservoir.

The cabinet finally voted to spend the necessary money to correct the grave situation.

Surveys had been made . . . and subsequent surveys were made . . . to determine whether water should be pumped from Licking River, over eight miles to the west, or a dam be erected in the area. It was thought at first the most feasible location for water impoundment would be Rodday Park. This was later cast aside and the decision reached to build the Evans Branch reservoir creating a 25 acre lake with 125 million storage gallons.

A contract was entered into in 1950 whereby the City would purchase water (at a master meter) from the college for 20 cents a thousand gallons. This was later increased to 25 cents when the City requested, following an informal referendum, that the water be fluoridated.

So, the crisis was evidently over and everything was hunky-dory in the foreseeable future.

In the ensuing 13 years the college and the town enjoyed remarkable growth, particularly since 1955.

About three months ago Dr. Adron Doran, the MSC President who has spearheaded the growth and advancement of the college, reported to Council that another crisis had developed, previously discussed at several Regent meetings.

Dr. Doran said the college-owned pumping and purification system had been operating at almost maximum capacity.

MSC is expected to double its enrollment in the next 10 years . . . the town was using more water (at a meter) by each year . . . and the Regents had decided to spend over $80,000 to insure a future adequate supply.

Thus, we have two MSC Presidents - William Jesse Baird in 1948 and Adron Doran in 1964 - saying almost the same thing to the city government.

Dr. Doran said that the city is presently using about twice as much water as the college, and the Regents were adamant that the city help pay for the more than $80,000 expansion. He claimed this could only be done by charging the city more for water, as indicated jump from 2¢ to 4¢ a thousand gallons.

The second water crisis was at hand, although some complacent folks thought the whole thing would blow over. This newspaper carried factual articles saying it would not work itself out unless the City agreed to pay the higher price for water or came up with some plan to pump and purify its own supply with adequate storage facilities.

Council and/or the Utility Plant Board employed Howard K. Bell Associates of Lexington to make a survey . . . of many engineering surveys, or you'll have to wait. The Lexington firm came up with a figure that the city could have its own water system, pumping from Licking River, at a cost of $1 1/2 million. A hypothetical, and hopeful, report was heard that the federal government might provide half, or more, of the money.

The controversy hit its top note this week with the order that the Utility Plant Board would make no further water taps in suburbs. Everything around Morehead has become highly valuable property, and rural lots are selling at almost unbelievable figures.

The people who own, or are developing, these subdivisions are hit, and hit hard. Evidently they had not realized the seriousness of developments.

Today the status is: 1. The college intends, under its contract, to supply its own facilities first; and 2. Council or the Utility Board would be forced to discontinue supplying any customers outside the city limits in the event their supply is curtailed.

Further complicating the problem are these facts: Moreheadians are paying one of the highest water rates to be found anywhere, plus a 95 percent "service tax," and the Utility Board has a bonded indebtedness of about $600,000.

The solution - some deep thinking by competent community leaders. Even if a federal government came through with half the money, and the city could sell three, or four, years, before water cost, or repairs, would be less than $100,000.

There are thinking citizens who are also thinking, and informed, citizens who know that . . . Relations between the college and the city are strained because of several reasons other than the water supply; and 2. Relations between Council and the Utility Board have not been amiable or cooperative.

It is obvious that the $2,500 a year the college pays for use of the city-owned sewage treatment plant is not enough. This is the strongest point in favor of the city.

But, it is becoming increasingly evident that the college does not have to depend on water revenue from the city and is in a position to borrow money to install its own sewage disposal system.

Yes, this is serious business so serious that water rationing could develop within the city so serious that values of homes and lots in fast developing subdivisions could sky rocket so serious that the city's growth could be sharply curtailed . . . so serious that no new industry would consider locating in Morehead so serious that new home construction could come to a standstill, with resultant unemployment and service business transactions.

We note, with concern, that the Bell report says rights-of-way to Licking River could be procured for $4,500. This is evidently based on the premise that the state will permit the city to lay a 16-inch line along U.S. 60.

The State Highway Department might agree to this, but here again is a real danger.

The City laid lines along Ky. 32 (Flemingsburg Road) to supply the Pine Crest Home vicinity which has been mushrooming. With the next five years it is almost certain the State will tell the City to remove these lines as they give the path to the Interstate interchange. Plans are afoot to widen U.S. 60 and the road also is to make a deep cut in Diviside Hill, presently almost impassable during freezing weather.

We could write columns, upon columns, about this water crisis.

IMPORTANT - DOG QUARANTINE

The City Council of Morehead is aware that hundreds of stray dogs are roaming the streets of Morehead, day and night, and as a result constitute a menace to the populace of the city. The ever-present danger of rabies, one of medical science's most dread diseases, make it imperative that measures be taken to control this illegal situation.

STARTING WEDNESDAY, APRIL 1

a dog quarantine will be imposed in the City of Morehead. This will continue in effect through the entire month of April and all dogs that are illegally running at large during this time will be destroyed by members of the Morehead Police Department upon orders of the City Council. Persons who own valuable or valued animals are urged to confine them during this period in order to insure that they may not be destroyed under this order.

columns. But, when the editor related this story recently told by a friend. The person said that a prominent couple . . . he mentioned them by name . . . were getting a divorce.
We came back that we had known this man and wife for years and didn't believe a word of what he said. Then he bit with the question: "What happened?"
With a slick and sly grin came the answer: "He caught her in the bathroom with Mr. Clean."
This is an Age of Gimmicks.

A Moreheadian said he was reading an advertisement in the largest magazine in the world which advised the reader to turn to a certain page and ascertain if the number displayed there was his lucky number.
Sure enough it was.
So he took the magazine to a district dealer at Huntington, W. Va. to claim his prize, having built up illusions that it might be an automobile.
The prize was a coupon book allowing certain discounts if he bought four new automobile tires, etc.

He tore up his prize, threw it in the face of the manager, and departed with some choice curses.
NOT A SECRET - The new publication report of a political coalition between A. B. Chandler, Bert Combs and Gov. Nott Broaditt, engineered by Frankfort Attorney Clifford Smith, was a stunner in county seat political circles. But, it came as no surprise to a considerable number of seasoned political observers. We knew about it more than a month ago when the rift developed between Lt. Governor Harry Lee Waterfield and the Governor. An inside effort exists within the party to eliminate Earle Clements. Fry in the contest is that Mr. Clements is one of the closest men to a fellow with LBJ's initials.

MORE POLITICS - Now that we've written a paragraph about the Democratic party it is proper that we say something about the Republicans. Well, as expected, Morehead's Curt Bruce was elected GOP vice-chairman of the 7th district during the week. Senator John Sherman Cooper is courting friends that he is a candidate for re-election next year and reports to the contrary (including 1958 health) are false. Both Republicans have high hopes of carrying Kentucky in this year's Presidential race.

CONCERN - Meetings of newspapermen and other Kentucky leaders, are being held mornings in offices of the Kennel Road Course to develop and present a program to preserve Kentucky's thoroughbred breeding industry. Other states are making great strides in this multi-million dollar business, principally Florida and California and cause exists for genuine alarm. It is to be a race horse was considered Kentucky because of our bluegrass and limestone water. This country publisher was invited but had to decline, but may attend one of the gatherings within the month. After struggling with our income tax, we're right certain we don't have enough money to remain for the races, possibly a two dollar daily double ticket. Yesterday (April 15) - income tax on the farm of Black Wednesday for a great many people, but suppose we'll all survive even if we have to go on relief.

NO PREDICTION - While on race horses we admit personal interest, but as of today, about who will win the Kentucky Derby on Saturday, May 2, Don't be alarmed - we'll have our sure winner in the edition two weeks hence. Our misinformation and false information is about to give way to a long series of Derby winners, starting with 1964. We employ the usual caution - don't risk the family jewels. Or, maybe you pawned the family jewels to buy your income tax.

BUSINESS WAY OFF - The importance of Morehead State College to this community was accentuated last week at the institution closed for spring vacation. Merchants report a tremendous drop in business. Not only do 3,500 students leave, but also the dollars from the faculty and personnel, and many Moreheadians use this week for a vacation. Incidentally, teachers were required to attend the annual KEE meeting in Louisville or lose their pay.

APPLY NOW - If you're interested in one of the low rent apartments at Morehead's federal housing project now in the time apply call Mitchell Kellar at 784-314. Initial occupancy is expected for June 1964.

APPLY NOW - In the same connection the Secretary Manager of Morehead's Municipal Housing Commission, Legrand Jayne, is improved and has been brought from the hospital to his home. Visitors are discouraged, at least for the time being.

SUGAR AND SPICE - An elderly associate says he likes to accompany his wife to food supermarkets because the happiest sight in the world are little boys and girls riding the shopping carts.

WOODEN AGE - Earley Saunders, "MSC" Dean of Women, is quoted in an interview as saying the moralistic rigidity students is about the same today as in the past. She also thought the present day college student is not as happy, and has more personal problems than those of a few years back.

IN CLOSURE - In the next stretch of 154 to be put on contract is from Mt. Sterling, Owingsville and New York Yankee Manager Yogi Berra thinks Morehead's Steve Hamilton will become the best left-handed relief pitcher in the American League. Western Coach Ed Diddle, beloved by Morehead fans, is in real critical condition, following more than one severe heart seizure.
Gov. Breathitt will soon increase the number of members on the controversial Higher Education Policy Committee to include the President of Morehead State College. This was a glaring error for which no one will take the blame, but everybody apparently recognizes. Morehead merchants, working through the Chamber of Commerce, are planning three or four promotions, such as Dollar Days, each year. Charlie Chumley will head the planning and promotion.

Searchers Report Finding Swift's Lost Silver Cache

An exploring party has reported finding what it believes to be the famed, long-lost Swift Silver Mine.

Ralph W. Griffith, president of the Mountaineer Mining Exploring Co., of Clarksville, W. Va., said the discovery was made on the farm of Black Wednesday on Mill Creek in Wolfe County.
The location is about one mile south of Pine Ridge and within a mile of the Mountain Park way. The Adams farm, consisting of approximately 300 acres, was leased immediately after the discovery by Griffith's company. It joins the U.S. Forest lands.

Griffith said his party went inside the opening where they encountered a four foot thick stone blocking an other passage. He said machinery will be moved in this week to drill and dynamite the obstruction.
Griffith said his company has been searching in the area at various times for six years for the mine and a vein of silver, described in reproductions of Swift's Journal as the "richest" Swift has ever seen.

The group is equipped with electronic equipment and reproductions of Swift's Journal and maps, which give directions for finding the mine and silver, as well as some 500,000 in money and crowns Swift reportedly hid in the area.

Information to Griffith's party, came into Southeastern Kentucky from 1769 to 1789, as head of a company of Englishmen, Frenchmen and Shawnee Indians that mined silver. Their operations were abandoned in 1768 when Swift was imprisoned in England for 15 years. After he was released, he returned but was unable to guide a party to the exact location of his mining operation, according to the Journal.

Another exploring party, headed by Ed McGowan, vice president of the Swift Mines, Inc., of Norfolk, Va., is searching an area of two miles north of Griffith's operation. McGowan said his party has 6,000 acres of U.S. Forest lands. Their operation, which started several years ago, has been conducted various times for nine years in the area. McGowan's party has rented a house near Pine Ridge and employed Robert Hill, Pine Ridge, as guide. Kelly Dunn, Glade, is guide for Griffith's party.

McGowan said markings, identified as those made by Swift's party, have been found in the area his party is searching, which is about a mile west of Pine Ridge in the Chainmail Top area of the Cumberland National Forest lands.

McGowan has reproduced copies of Swift's Journal and other material. He said his party found what it believes was the furnace operated by Swift's company.
When informed of Griffith's report, McGowan said he is hopeful it proves to be Swift's mine, as that will be proof that the vein of silver is in the immediate area of the two parties' operations.

Early Planting Of Corn Gets Best Yields

Early-planted corn yields best and has less lodging (stalk fall-down), says S. H. Phillips, University of Kentucky Agricultural Extension Service specialist. Plantings delayed after May 10-15 (average best corn-planting date in Kentucky) lose about a half-bushel a day in yield for every day past the May 10-15 date.

A three-year test on various planting dates showed: April 25 plantings averaged 95 bushels an acre, May 22, 91 bushels, May 25, 81 bushels, and June 8, 61 bushels.

Early planting: Phillips says depends on the season and soils condition. This spring soil temperatures probably will be lower than in 1963 and the heavier, wetter soils will have to be planted later.

Why does early-planted corn yield better? Probably because crops have longer days (more light from the sun), higher temperatures during grain formation periods, avoidance of the corn-borer, and leaf diseases tend to hit later in the crop's growth period and cause less damage.

However, he points out, there are some disadvantages. Soil insect damage can be greater with early-planted corn; thus, soil insecticides are recommended. Also, weeds can be more of a problem; but cultivation can help control these, or perhaps a pre-emergence chemical may be used.

Half-Million Foot Timber Sale Coming

By Joe J. Mauk

Ranger Bob Reynolds, along with Forester Roger Bucklew and other members of their timber marking crew, expect to complete the field work of marking all of the Hancey Branch watershed soon. Preliminary estimates indicate the area will contain over a half-million board feet of sawtimber. Part of the timber to be removed is within the path of Interstate Highway 75, which will travel up Hancey Branch from the North Fork of Trip-tod Valley to the dividing ridge between North Fork and East Fork of Triplet at the head of Big Perry Branch. When the timber volumes have been computed and this timber is ready for sale a notice will appear in this newspaper.

Civil Engineer Joe Reinhardt and his aide Gene Carter of the Forest Supervisor's office in Winchester have been working on the Morehead District surveying land lines on some tracts of land in the process of purchase by the Government. These tracts will be added to existing national forest lands within the area.

Many people are under the impression that national forest lands are not taxable by the county and state, which is true, and that the county tax base suffers as a result, which is not true. Under existing laws the counties in which national forest lands are located receive 25 percent of the revenue taken in by the Forest Service from the entire Cumberland Forest, from the sale of timber, land rentals, mineral royalties etc., on a ratio base according to acreage per county. The 25 percent amounts to far more than is collected in taxes for comparable lands. Rowan County receives several thousand dollars each year. The money is earmarked by law 50-50 for schools and roads. In addition to the 25 percent which is paid to the county treasurer, 10 percent of the revenue is returned from the U.S. Treasurer to the national forest for roads on this side of U.S. Highway 460. I will try to give you a break-down of the use in this column in the next few issues.

Six Rules Help In Spotting A 'Health Quack'

By Herbet B. Hudnut, M.D., Medical Director, St. Claire Medical Center

Question: How do you spot a health quack? Miss X, Detroit, Michigan.

Even though the "quack" has become more sophisticated and subtle in the scientific age in which we live, you can still recognize him. The Department of Investigation of the American Medical Association gives these six simple rules for spotting a quack:

- He uses a special or "secret" machine or formula.
- He claims to cure disease.
- He guarantees a quick cure.
- He advertises or uses case histories and testimonials to promote his cure.
- He clamors constantly for medical investigation and recognition.
- He claims medical men are persecuting him or are afraid of his competition.
- He tells you that surgery or X-rays or drugs will cause more harm than good.

Bass Fishing Is Year 'Round Sport In Kentucky Waters

Bass fishing, if favorable weather conditions prevail during the winter months, is a year-round sport in Kentucky. Fisheries experts with the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources believe the greatest success can be had by fishing a season timetable. In short, fish for bass where they are most likely to be during a given season.

About 95 percent of all bass caught are taken by live bait. The fishermen may see a bit unbalanced to the average person, but when one considers the number of fishermen visiting a body of water who know little or nothing about the terrain of the lake and less about the habits of black bass it is easy to understand.

About the only sure way to catch bass is to keep a lure in the water. However, the water must be over the proper temperature for the time of year the angler is bass fishing.

Before actual spawning starts black bass roam the shallow to medium deep water looking for a desirable place to spawn. It is impossible to catch bass in winter types of water but one might as well have the odds lake and less about the habits of black bass it is easy to understand.

During the spawning and nesting period bass are reluctant to hit a lure. However, they will take certain types of lures if worked slowly on the bottom near the nest. They are not actually biting the lure to kill it for food but to carry it to the nest. Many bass can be hooked and boated if allowed enough time to get the lure in its mouth. Bass have been known to carry a lure as much as 20 to 30 feet away from the nest. Many anglers make the mistake of getting over-aggressive and end up losing most of their strikes.

After the spawning season it is entirely a different story. The female is free to roam while the male guards the nest. She is quite naturally, however, on her long stay on the nest and will hit just about anything that moves. The male, in his eagerness to protect the young, will fall easy prey to a surface lure.

Surface fishing and under water lures are very effective so long as the water temperatures range from 52 to 75 degrees. When temperatures climb above that point surface fishing will be productive only during the early hours of the morning or at night.

When water temperatures start bass seek the deeper canyons of the lakes where the water temperatures are much lower. This calls for a different type of fishing, commonly called "bottom bumping". Lead-headed lures with long strips of pork rind attached or rubber worms have proved very effective if properly used along deep rocky banks and points. Fishing the lure slowly is the secret to this type fishing.

Late fall fishing is always good and exciting because the angler can toss his season timetable aside and go for broke. Bass at this season of the year are likely to be found any place and just as likely to charge one lure as another.

James Garner and Polly Bergen are discussing the marital mixup in which they find themselves in "Move Over, Darling," the romantic comedy which also stars popular Doris Day. 20th Century-Fox is releasing the Cinemascope, De Luxe color feature, produced by Aaron Rosenberg, and Martin Melcher, starting tonight at the Trail Theatre.

Too Much Manure Toxic, Hurts Quality Of Leaf

By Adrian Reser
County Agent

In view of the fact that many of us are going to be preparing our tobacco fields this year, I think it might be well to mention one thing that sometimes might cause us trouble that we need to think of right now. It has been the common practice of the farmers over the many years to put all the manure they have on their tobacco patch. In past years we have gotten by with it with no serious effects. However, it has been found that where large amounts have been used that there have been some damaging effects on tobacco growth in those fields.

In work at the college and in fields out in the state, they have found that where large amounts of manure are applied they have gotten, in some cases, a toxicity or poisoning effect on the tobacco. The tobacco doesn't grow off and is not in a healthy condition. The theory is that in the decomposition or rotting of the material in the soil, toxin is given off by the bacteria which produces this effect on the young tobacco plants.

Another ill effect from using too much manure is the building of muriate of potash in the soil which results in a tobacco that has white stems when it goes on the floor, comes in case, and will not dry out and in other words, is of poor quality. This is why we say to use a fertilizer with sulfate instead of muriate of potash. However, some farmers are getting the same effects that they would have if they use muriate potash fertilizer by using too much manure even though they have been following the recommendations on the kind of fertilizer that they use.

We think that a farmer should not go over 10 tons of manure per acre of his tobacco ground. This should be put on as far ahead of planting as possible which means that it can be done anytime now and is decomposed before setting the least likely the chance of toxicity.

Landscaping

Do you plan to plant any shrubs around your house or yard this year? If so, this should be done right away. Select shrubs that will adapt to your home or farm site. They should grow, and easy to maintain. Make use of flowering shrubs since they not only provide beauty in the open but also in many cases make nice cut flowers.

Court Says Billboard Law Valid

The 1960 billboard law banning outdoor advertising signs within 600 feet of an interstate highway, limited access road or turnpike, was upheld Friday by the Court of Appeals.

The unanimous decision means that the State Highway Department will be able to receive about $3 million from the total amount for enactment of such a law.

Kentucky was the first state to receive this federal bonus. The total grant for this far is $65,488.

The federal government provides one-half of the cost of the total grant, the other half for interstate highway construction of an anti-billboard law is in effect.

In affirming Franklin Circuit Court, the high court said the legislature had ample basis upon which to find that the public interest outweighed the private rights in the subject matter of this controversy.

Motel interests and landowners attacked the law as an arbitrary exercise of the state police power.

Appellate Commissioner Watson Clay said this argument asks whether the regulations are within the scope of public purpose and whether they are reasonable.

The appellants who filed the suit acknowledged that the law is within the scope of public purpose, Clay said.

As for its reasonableness, the commissioner said "obviously a billboard sign is a distracting device. It diverts, and is designed to divert, the motorist's attention from the highway."

"In the public interest the legislature could weigh the right of the motorist to be free of such distractions, and it would determine if they impair the motorist's enjoyment of the highway."

Clay said promotion to scenic beauty surrounding the highway is closely allied to this conclusion.

"Aesthetic considerations are of sufficient potency for the legislature to find a public necessity for this type of legislation," Clay said.

The high court quoted from a previous decision which upheld the constitutionality of the 1960 junkyard law. The court held that state could regulate junk yards for the promotion of beauty.

"The surroundings of highways are matters of public interest and welfare. It is reasonable if it does no further than to fairly protect the public interest."

The argument that the law results in the taking of property without due process of law is of no independent significance. It is not a violation of that constitutional mandate if the police power is properly exercised.

FORD TOTAL PERFORMANCE WINS ATLANTA "500" FOR 3RD YEAR IN A ROW!

Latest win gives Ford 11 out of last 12 NASCAR 500 milers!

ATLANTA, April 5. In a blazing exhibition of total performance, race driver Fred Lorenzen piloted his specially modified '64 Ford to a stunning victory in the Atlanta "500" before a cheering crowd of 75,000 spectators.

This victory marks the 11th time that Ford has captured the NASCAR stock car event of 500 miles or more starting in May, 1962.

In the past two years, tough, dependable Ford-built races have carried out an incredible history of victories in virtually every kind of automotive event, from stock car races to endurance tests, from rallies to endurance tests.

This is the dramatic way to show that Fords have changed... and the sure way to be certain they keep on changing.

Ford enters special cars in open competition, in addition to its extensive laboratory and test track programs, because competition provides an intensity of testing that no proving ground alone can provide.

The lessons Ford has learned in racing have already led directly to such refinements as a stronger rear axle, streamlined "fastback" styling, better brakes and an improved ignition system.

Because Ford enters open competition, the cars at your Ford Dealer's are stronger, better handling, safer and better in the long run. They're built for total performance.

Solid Front Sought By Ky. Demos

Harmony is the keynote and fund-raising the objective of the Democratic United Fund Raising Jamboree set for April 28 at 3 p.m. at Kentucky Fair and Exposition, according to Carl P. Thurman, general chairman.

The jamboree was postponed from April 18 in order to accommodate the schedule of Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. Un-dersecretary of Commerce, who will be the keynote speaker, Thurman said.

This will be a Democratic Kentucky with President Johnson heading the national ticket, said Thurman, and all loyal Democrats are urged to present a solid, unified front in support of the Democratic ticket in November.

Tickets for the jamboree are $25. Thurman said part of the proceeds will be used to defray last year's Primary and General Election expenses, and the balance will go into the Democratic Party's "war chest" for the November elections.

V-Ditch Helpful In Carrying Off Excess Water

By Donald B. Nelson

Ed Mabry of Morehead has just completed 1200 feet of V-ditch on his farm. Even though this ditch is constructed on Clay's bottom soil, some times there will have to be a ditch constructed to let the surface water out into the creek or some kind of outlet. This is necessary in most cases due to the ground being higher at the creek and causing the water to pocket in his field.

The ditch was constructed with eight to one side slopes so that he can cross the ditch when he is cultivating the field and also he can mow across the ditch when the field is in meadow.

Mabry received cost sharing through the A.C.P. program in which farmers can receive up to 50 percent of the cost sharing for construction if money is available.

There are many bottom land areas in Rowan County that need V-ditches built due to the creek and river banks being higher than the bottom land. If anyone is interested in constructing a ditch on their bottom land, contact the Soil Conservation District Office at Morehead.

One Person In Eight Here Now Gets Social Security

About one out of every eight residents of Rowan County is now receiving monthly Social Security check according to figures released by Thomas B. Thompson, Ashland, Kentucky Social Security district manager.

Thompson's report listed the number of Rowan County beneficiaries as 1627 at the end of 1963. The dollar benefit amounts total more than $978,444 yearly.

Retired workers are the largest single group of Social Security beneficiaries in the county. There are 609 in this group and their old-age insurance benefits total $41,188 monthly. The following table shows the number and amount of the other monthly benefits paid in Rowan County, as of Dec. 31, 1963.

Group	Number	Total
Retired Worker	650	$41,188
Wife or Husband	207	6,328
Widow or Widower	124	6,953
Mothers and Children	343	13,580
Disabled Workers	223	11,490

Releasing the figures, Thompson pointed out that the Social Security benefits are important to the community as well as to the people who receive them. "It is a fact," he said, "that almost every dollar of Social Security benefits coming into the County is spent each month in local businesses for food, clothing, shelter, and other essentials. In this way, the benefits have a stabilizing effect on the local economy."

Thompson forecast that the number of Social Security beneficiaries will continue to increase in the future, but at a much slower rate than in the past 10 years. He said that nationally, the Social Security benefit rolls increased from about 5 million people in 1954 to more than 19 million at the end of 1963. This rapid growth in the beneficiary population resulted from major amendments to the Social Security Act from 1950 through 1961. He cited several amendments which extended Social Security coverage to self-employed business and professional men, farmers and agricultural workers, and other groups. As a result, several million people whose work was brought under Social Security are now receiving benefits. Others qualified through amendments which reduced the amount of work needed to get benefits. One change—lowering the age at which older people can get benefits from 65 to 62—accounts for 1.8 million out of the 19 million people now entitled to benefits. The amendments also introduced a new protection under social security—disability benefits—and 1.5 million disabled workers and their dependents now receive benefits under the disability provisions of the law.

Kentucky Garden Tour Scheduled

Many of Kentucky's most beautiful homes and gardens will again be opened to the public during the annual Open House in Kentucky tour, Mrs. Gene Combs, chairman of the Garden Club of Kentucky, which sponsors the tour, announced this week.

The six day circuit has an improved timetable making for easy coverage of the 22 homes in three cities where yellow arrows guide the way.

The homes are open in Bowling Green on Saturday and Sunday, May 9-10; one day in Hazard, Thursday, May 14; and in Louisville Friday through Sunday, May 15-17.

Ky. Mother Of Year Is From Jackson

Mrs. Omeda Hadden Terry, a mountain schoolteacher and church worker, was selected Saturday as Kentucky Mother of the Year.

"I can see the tremendous influence on so many communities," Gov. Edward T. Breathitt told the 56-year-old Mrs. Terry during a luncheon attended by about 250.

The governor also said, "The best way to keep a home is to make it attractive, spiritually and morally, not only to the husband and children, but to all whom you can bring into your home to help."

Mrs. Terry, who lives at Jackson, becomes the state candidate for American Mother of the Year.

She was selected by the Kentucky Association of Mothers headed by Mrs. Kyle Taylor of Glasgow. The organization is affiliated with the American Mothers Committee.

Mrs. Terry raised five children after her husband's death. Seven years ago she was cited for community service and named Mother of her church.

A teacher before her marriage in 1933, Mrs. Terry went to work in a bank after her husband died in 1945. For the last 15 years, she has held positions in the Jackson and Breathitt County school systems.

Mrs. Terry's sons are Charles, a medical student at Vanderbilt University, and James Isaac, now in the U.S. Army. Her three daughters are married. They are Mrs. Mary Ellen Little, wife of an Army officer; Mrs. Elizabeth Louise Martin and Mrs. Addie Christine Wright, the latter living in Nashville.

Little League Tryouts Set Friday, Saturday

Tryouts have been scheduled for tomorrow (Friday) and Saturday for boys interested in playing in the Morehead Kiwanis Little League this summer.

Those who are nine and 10 years old are to report to Little League Park, near Rowan County High School, Friday at 5 p.m., while those who are 11 and 12 will go through their paces Saturday at 10 a.m.

All players will report to their managers Tuesday at 5 p.m. at the park.

Farm Family Contest Set

For the third year the Agriculture Committee of the Louisville Chamber of Commerce will sponsor the Kentucky Blue Ribbon Farm Family Contest as a special event of the Kentucky State Fair. ### New Mental Unit To Open Partially By Mid-Summer

Dr. Harold L. McPheeters, State mental health commissioner, has announced that plans are going forward to open by mid-summer the corrective psychiatry unit in Central State Hospital's complex of several new buildings.

After a review of the department's budget for the new fiscal year beginning July 1, the department has decided to proceed with opening the corrective psychiatry unit first, followed by the other facilities as soon as possible, Dr. McPheeters said.

Studies now under way will determine when and in what order the other facilities can be put to use, McPheeters added.

The commissioner said that the new corrective psychiatry unit, which will replace an existing building, will house from 40 to 60 severely disturbed men. These patients are now living in a grossly adequate, outdated building, which will probably be abandoned after the move, he said.

Net Farm Income Slides Two Percent During 1963

Kentucky farmers "realized" net farm income was about $2.13 billion on an average — down some two percent from 1962. That's the statement this week from the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service agricultural economics department's bi-weekly outlook letter.

"Realized net farm income is, generally, the amount the farmer receives from sale of his products. To arrive at this production expense are subtracted from his gross income (total money received but with out expenses deducted.)

Nationally, the report shows, personal income per capita of the farm population increased for the fourth consecutive year. The economists said Kentucky farmers got more money in 1963 from tobacco, dairy products and soybeans sales which offset small declines from hogs, cattle and calf marketings. "However, total government payments (feed grain program etc.) were lower, and production expenses were higher. Expenses increased for all major items except purchased livestock."

did not increase as much in 1963 as in 1962. In the former, expense increases amounted to about $600 million, in 1963, it was $1.1 billion.

Prices paid for production items, interest, taxes and wage rates were up 1.5 percent in 1963 compared to 1962. Purchased seed and feed items were up sharply, vehicle and equipment also rose. But feed, livestock and fertilizer were down in 1963.

6-Year Plan For Teachers Is Forecast

The trend toward a five-year program of teacher training might soon change to six years "because teachers just have to know more nowadays," an education specialist said Friday.

Dr. Robert Poppendieck predicted that some day the pattern for graduates of teacher training courses would include a period as a paid intern in a school system.

Poppendieck, of the U. S. Office of Education, also told the Kentucky Association for Higher Education that pre-education courses might soon become as widespread as pre-law or pre-medicine programs in colleges.

"Two year general programs as a prerequisite for admission to teacher education programs in the third year of college are fairly common now but they are going to be more so," he said.

"With the emphasis on professional programs at the third year, we might find ourselves inventing pre-ed to go with pre-med and pre-law."

The meeting was held in connection with the Kentucky Education Association.

The KEA installed Roger Jones, Spanish, art and journalism teacher at Breathitt County High, as president. With out opposition, Mrs. Bernadine Steele, Central City counselor-supervisor, was elected vice-president. Richard Van Hoose, Jefferson County school superintendent, was elected president to take office next year.

Meanwhile, the Kentucky Association for Secondary Education was told that elementary schools are making significant changes in their programs but those at the high school level are rather fixed.

Dr. Louis Swanson of the University of Kentucky College of Education, said, "Over the past 50 years, little change has been made in the program of studies to which students preparing for college have been exposed."

"In fact we may wonder what changes are taking place in our institutions of higher learning to meet the needs of present students."

Wrong Address Causes Delay In SS Checks

Faulty notification of change of address by Social Security beneficiaries can cause considerable delay in receipt of monthly checks, Thomas B. Thompson, Social Security district manager in Ashland pointed out today.

The Social Security Administration processes between 17 and 19 million actions for beneficiaries each month, he pointed out. While not all these involve changes of address, a sizable portion do.

The change of address process is quite simple if the person getting Social Security benefits will use the cards given him when an initial claim is filed. These can be obtained from any of the more than 600 Social Security district offices in the country.

"The person wishing to change his address should give his or her name, the new address and the claim number," Thompson said. "The latter is always found on the award letter which is furnished every person when his claim for Social Security benefits is approved."

"In each case the post office should also be notified," Thompson said.

The Ashland Social Security Office, located at 1816 Carter Avenue, is open Monday through Friday from 8:45 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Henry Sutherland, Social Security representative for this area, will be at the Rowan County Courthouse at 10:30 a.m. each Tuesday for consultations with persons having questions about Social Security.

Record Set In Placing Adoptees

More children were placed in adoptive homes through the Kentucky Department of Child Welfare in March than in any other single month since Kentucky adoption records have been kept. Child Welfare Commissioner Richard J. Clendenen has reported.

Clendenen said the March total of 55 children placed for adoption was nearly half as many as in the entire year of Child Welfare's first year as an independent department, 1960-1961, when the total was 118.

The rate of adoptions in March, Clendenen said, was higher than in 25 percent higher than in the same month of 1963. The total number for the 12 months ending June 30, 1963, was an all-time high for the department of 368.

"The March record was due to an increased emphasis on adoption studies and casework, involving both the field workers in every county and in the institution," Clendenen said.

"Reports from the field show the effect of the Department's modification of many traditional rules governing the adoption process, which has shortened the waiting period for applicants and adapted the program to changing patterns of life and social custom."

"However, with more adoptions completed and the prospect of another year's record, additional problems are created. The list of suitable homes which seek to adopt children grows smaller. This condition, which is a national trend, approaches a crisis. The great effort now is to find more applicants."

State Payroll Up But Federal Aid Called Responsible

The state payroll climbed last month by 142 employees, reversing a downward trend of the past few months. But Personnel Commissioner Walter Gattis said this week the over-all gain was due to expansion of federal programs. "For helping the poor - a move which requires the state to hire more people."

Outside of that factor, he said, the state payroll basically is at a standstill. "The trend of expansion of permanent full-time jobs within the state government has just about stopped," Gattis said.

In February the state listed 19,436 regular employees receiving $7,697,604 in salaries. Last month the total was 19,578 and the pay reached $7,765,297.

The largest agency, the Highway Department, had 7,072 workers last month - a decrease of 75 employees from February. But highway salaries last month were $2,885,000 or $4,000 more than February. Gattis said pay raises accounted for the boost.

The Parks Department, which lapped off hundreds of workers last winter by closing numerous parks, stayed on much the same level - with less than 300 permanent employees receiving less than $10,000 on each of the past two months.

1900 - about $14,000 over the previous month. The Education Department held pretty much to its regular employee list of 740 and its $355,000 monthly payroll. But last month it added 60 vocational teachers - who are paid hourly. The total of such "special" employees now is 173.

Economic security also is responsible for hiring supervisors in the program of hiring unemployed fathers for public works projects. The Corrections Department payroll rose from 545 in February to 576 last month.

Gattis said the hiring of more prison guards is the main reason.

He said the impact of a modernized parole program also may be felt soon when additional probation officers are hired.

MORE AID FOR SAIGON

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said that the United States would pay nearly a million dollars a week to help support a program under which South Vietnam would add up to 50,000 men to its armed forces. This aid would be in addition to the present aid bill of $500 million a year.
