Two Injured Slightly In Auto Mishap

Two persons were injured slightly Saturday when their car and a tractor-trailer collided near Farmers, Rosecrans, 64, of Portsmouth, Va., and Lillian I. Rosecrans, 61, a passenger, received minor injuries in the mishap which took place about 9 a.m.

State Police said the Rosecrans car was traveling west and the tractor-trailer east when the truck made a left turn into a truck stop. Rosecrans applied his brakes and lost control on the wet highway, sliding into the rear wheels of the truck, which was being operated for Ashland Oil & Refining Company by James Lane Butler, 46, of Ashland.

The truck was completely off the highway when the impact took place. Trooper Robert Morguson reported.

He was married to Nancy Ann Sergeant, who survives, along with these children: Noah Fugate and Charles Fugate, both of Morehead; Reed Fugate, Clearfield; Russell Fugate, Lexington; Mrs. Jessie Lane and Mrs. Ruth Ellington, both of Clearfield.

So You Think Your Job's Hard? Harold Williams of Boone, N.C., looked comfortable as he painted the flag pole at the Morehead Post Office Tuesday, it's a safe bet that not everybody would change places with him. Williams is employed by Gallimore Construction Co., of Greensboro, N.C., which is doing a renovation job on the Post Office here.

Mrs. Lucy T. Evans, 88, Claimed By Death Monday

Mrs. Lucy Thompson Evans, one of Rowan County's most prominent older residents, and a member of one of Eastern Kentucky's outstanding pioneer families, died Monday at St. Claire Medical Center. She was 88.

The widow of Drew Evans, who was widely known in Eastern Kentucky for his extensive lumber operations, she had been ill for several years. A school teacher in Elliott and Rowan Counties before her marriage, she was active in church and civic affairs. Mrs. Evans taught a Bible class at the Morehead Methodist Church and was on the Board of Commissioners of the church. She was also a charter member of the Women's Society of Christian Service and later was awarded special membership in the group.

As a member of the Rowan County Women's Club, Mrs. Evans was on the committee which was responsible for the erection of the statue to World War I soldiers which stands in the courthouse yard here. A daughter of the late William and Sarah Francis Leeds and Rowan Counties before her marriage, she was born in Elliott County Sept. 24, 1875. On Feb. 18, 1909 she was married to Drew Evans, who preceded her in death Apr. 5, 1934. Four children were born to this union and three of them. (Continued on page 11.)

Heavy Downpour Hits Area Sunday Dumping 2.75 Inches Of Rainfall

Caudill, Morehead, and these nieces and nephews: Mrs. Alisa Porter, Elliottville; Mrs. Stella Conn, Clearfield; Mrs. Ruby Terrell and Mrs. Ida Belle Caudill, both of Morehead; Mrs. Jewell Dillon, Mrs. Betty Gibson and Douglas Caudill, all of Mansfield, O.; and Orville Caudill, Elliottville.

St. Claire Emergency Room Menaced By Rising Creek

A thunderous downpour of more than two inches of rain struck Morehead and surrounding areas in mid-afternoon Sunday, flooding streets, causing creeks to leave their banks and generally causing inconvenience.

There was little, if any, damage from the torrential outburst and the runoff water quickly subsided, leaving in its wake a trail of mud, debris and trash. Triplett Creek and its tributaries, swollen by showers earlier in the day, shot up almost to flood levels shortly after the thunderstorm broke, about 2 p.m.

Probably the most severe threat to safety came at St. Claire Medical Center, where Julius Branch washed over water rushing toward the emergency room. A hospital spokesman said approximately two inches of water was on the emergency room floor at one time.

Volunteers rushed to the hospital and assisted in carrying out the removal of supplies and equipment, a precautionary measure which later proved unnecessary. The hospital administrator, Sister Mary Edwin, said Tuesday that response from the community was "just wonderful."

Teachers who came to the rescue in the emergency. Low-lying sections, as well as those on higher ground were affected by the torrent.

Railroad Street and the section across the C&O Railway tracks were flooded with surface water. At the same time a river of muddy water flowed down Battson Avenue past around the Bert Combs Classroom building at the bottom of the hill.

Water swept into the MSC fieldhouse on the east end of the campus and went a short distance up the ramps leading to the basketball floor. However, the floor itself was spared.

All traffic was barred from Railroad Street. On Main Street, overtaxed storm sewers caused water to back up almost to curb level in many places.

A gas line was washed out on the Wilson Avenue extension (Oakley Branch), necessitating a city repair crew being called out to repair it. At the same time water was washed into several areas of unimproved streets, mud and debris from unpaved driveways was washed into streets and accumulated in large bumps when the runoff subsided.

The city's sewage disposal plant, west of town, was surrounded by water from Triplett Creek. The level of that stream was at one point only two inches below the highway bridge which leads to Clearfield.

The downpour—virtually a cloudburst—lasted approximately 45 minutes. Sunday's total precipitation was reported to be 2.75 inches.

Rites Held Friday For Morrison

Funeral services were held Friday in Grayson Christian Church for L. H. Morrison of Morehead, who died Tuesday in St. Claire Medical Center.

Morrison's passing came following an illness of several years from a heart condition. He was 61.

Funeral services were under the direction of the Owingville branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, of which he was a member.

Burial was in Grayson Memorial Cemetery with Masonic rites at the grave. Stucky Funeral Home cared for the arrangements.

Pallbearers were Jack Morrison, Johnny Morrison, Sammy Morrison, Eddie Clark, Carl McCormick, James Roberts and Kenneth Burchett.

Morrison was a native of Carter County. He was born Sept. 26, 1902.

He was married to Etta Waggoner, who survives, along with these children: L. H. Morrison Jr. and Mrs. Anna Kimmel, both of Morehead; Robert Morrison, Thompsonville; Conn. George W. Morrison, Fairfax, Va.; Mrs. Colleen Kiser, Wreakon, Md.; Mrs. Pauline Strickland, Forestville, Md.; Mrs. Ida Snyder, Stevensville, Mont.; Mrs. Patricia Anderson, Falls Church, Va.; and Edna Carman and Marguerite Morrison, both of Morehead.

Conley Speaker At Indiana Meeting

Rev. John Conley, pastor of Morehead's First Church of God, was one of the principal speakers at the annual meeting of the Indiana Men of the Church of God Saturday in Indianapolis.

Conley addressed some 300-400 men from all over Indiana at the meeting in the Indiana State Fairgrounds service building.

Growth Seen For Area Along Ohio

An 18-month study of the industrially-important Ohio River Valley made by Spindletop Research, Lexington, predicts substantial economic growth for much of the area which includes sections of Kentucky and six other states.

Among chief economic advantages of the region, the report lists "inexpensive electric power and natural gas, proximity to raw materials and product markets, and excellent barge and rail transportation."

The comprehensive study, made under a grant from the Kentucky State Department of Commerce, defines the Ohio valley region as 85 counties along both sides of the 98-mile river route from Pittsburgh to Cairo.

The 400-page report, entitled "Economic Development in the Ohio River Valley Region," cites the need for detailed knowledge of the region's present economic base and industrial development potential in order to match its resources with the location and service requirements of industry.

The report states among its conclusions: "Generally, action programs are needed to modify certain economic and industrial conditions in order to benefit fully from the region's locational advantages for specific types of economic activity."

Domestic Help Can Lose Out On Benefits

"Some household workers in Rowan County may lose out on Social Security checks because their employers don't report their cash wages for Social Security," stated Thomas B. Thompson, Social Security district manager in Ashland today.

"As many as half of all household workers are not getting the Social Security credits that are due them," he said.

According to Thompson, a household employer must report all cash wages of $50 or more paid in a calendar quarter to a matron, cleaning woman, gardener or other household worker. The calendar quarters end with the months of March, June, September, and December.

The Social Security reports are filed with the District Director of Internal Revenue in Louisville, Ky. in the month after the end of each calendar quarter. For example, the report for January, February, and March quarter is due in April. The employer sends a tax payment of 7 1/2 percent of cash wages with these reports. He holds out half of that amount from

LBJ May Not Be A Shooin For Presidency

The popular impression among today is that President Lyndon B. Johnson is a shoo-in in the November election. Judging from the results of the popular opinion polls, this is the prospect.

But it must be remembered that the election is more than six months distant. Changes and attitudes can change, and change, considerably, in that length of time. Also, it is normal for a new President to enjoy a high level of popularity in the beginning. He has not yet been forced to turn down people, or choose between two factions, or take the blame for White House policy during a congressional session.

In President Johnson's case, it should also be remembered that he has not yet been subjected to attack on the basis of geographical prejudice. The Republican nominees have not yet been named and neither party convention has been held, and the conventions stir the voters' imagination.

It is agreed everywhere that Johnson is and has been a capable politician. And yet he could not get far in 1960, in his bid for the Democratic nomination. The question remains, then, whether he will convey a winning television image in the 1964 campaign.

The odds are on his side. Certainly if he maintains anything like a 60 percent rating in the popularity polls, he will be safe. The key might be in watching the popularity polls — and the major factor affecting them will probably be the choice of the Republican nominee and the GOP convention, and the campaign the nominee makes, including his television campaign.

Word Spread Fast That It Had Another Flood

Water, water everywhere, but not enough to go around.

Moreheadians probably had some thoughts like this Sunday as the heavens opened up with 2 1/2 inches of rainfall and fears of another flash flood.

As the tide subsided in late afternoon the automobiles on Main Street were thicker than politicians at the State Capitol, creating a traffic problem.

We have since learned that the water and mud areas, and surrounding towns, that Morehead had a flash flood like that of July 4, 1959 and many drove over to see and learn the morbid details.

It is mentioned a personal visit of like folks was used to see the fire trucks until an ordinance was enacted with penalty for this practice.

Actually, as you will read in the editorial page one report, storm sewers, and creeks in, and near, town couldn't handle the heavy downpour, but damage was comparatively negligible.

Some business places did have water and mud areas, near Triplet Creek made plans for a quick exit to the adjacent hills, while an entire section of macadam paving at the northwest corner of the Morehead State College campus of basements were damaged.

Sister Mary Edwin, Administrator of St. Claire Center, said a hundred, or more, volunteers rushed to the site as word spread that it had been flooded.

St. Claire probably suffered the biggest threat as the overflow from Julius Branch and a partly clogged culvert at the west end of the parking lot, at 2 p.m., caused 18 inches of water outside the emergency room door (and 2 inches inside).

At least as impressive as the flood, however, was the wonderful response of the community. Neighbors and friends of the hospital, the hospital continued to function throughout the episode and was returned to its former appearance by 5 p.m.

Many thanks from St. Claire Medical Center to the Community. A friend in need is a friend indeed!

health center for this part of Kentucky. We have previously made this statement in print and would like to become a reality day by day.

To merchants — you'd be surprised how much business our hospital brings in indirectly to you in patient-volunteer shopping, meals at local restaurants, etc.

More About This Water Dilemma

Sometimes we doubt if people interpret what we write. For example, a leading citizen would like to complain that this newspaper had the danger of a water shortage in Morehead all wrong.

He mentioned a personal visit to Evans Branch reservoir and came up with computations that a million storage capacity would take care of us for a long time to come and through any drought.

Improvement of water is not the problem like in neighboring Flemingsburg, as simply as we can put it the approaching crisis is that the purification (and pumping) facilities owned by Morehead State College operating at capacity. Roughly, Morehead college uses one-third and the town two-thirds of the supply. Perhaps you don't know it, but water pressure in most parts of town dropped alarmingly during the recent LBJ flood. It is a fact that college really want to know, prima facie and first hand, how serious the water problem is. It was a visit to the office of W. H. Rose, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds. He has the charts and records that show many of the unflooded street corner numbers.

The agreement calls for the college to sell surplus or excess water to the Utility Plant Board, and the college has everything back, back and span within the hour.

The threat subsided as the Utility Plant Board members through the hospital property, went out of its banks into the lower floor, including the emergency room, was flooded. The volunteers, plus the Morehead Fire Department, had everything back, back and span within the hour.

The threat subsided as the Utility Plant Board members through the hospital property, went out of its banks into the lower floor, including the emergency room, was flooded. The volunteers, plus the Morehead Fire Department, had everything back, back and span within the hour.

Sister Mary Edwin and Doctor Richard Hudnut and Warren Proudfoot, of the medical staff, said at a hospital Community Committee meeting Monday they would like to personally thank the entire community for the work, and scores of volunteers who helped. They had never before witnessed such civic spirit.

I thank you for them. I just about everybody in Rowan County because Editor Wilson pointed out yesterday that Morehead News has 95 percent coverage, based on actual survey, and that is the nearest you get to saturation. The volunteers please note accordingly.

Our once wrote that if all the columns and pictures this newspaper has printed about St. Claire, since its inception in the matter of a few individuals, were pasted together they would reach from Morehead to the headwaters of the Kentucky River. For which we make no apologies. For someday they will extend as far as Lexington and that would be part of newspaper to the overworked linotype operator who is setting this rambling and judding column can attest.

It is in order to mention a few other timely items about the hospital.

An order is being placed for the perpetual (in silver) capital sign, financed through a $400 contribution from the Morehead Women's Club which sold their own recipes' cookbook.

The master lobby plaque bearing the names of all donors, $20, or more, won't be installed until later in the year, but it is in process as are the individual donor, nursery, etc. You'll read it mentioned, personally informed, more about this later.

The Director, and his staff, are planning all aspects of the entire building a 'must' before hot weather and are prepared to despite high cost and financial problems.

The patient load continues to climb, or same for the practice, pediatric, orthopedic, and have had relatives in, St. Claire.

The St. Claire Auxiliary (pink ladies) has 92 active members. Among other services they contribute 48 hours each week, 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

To repeat visiting hours: 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

We don't want to steal Dr. Hudnut's thunder (author of an appropriate and interesting editorial column in The Morehead News) but reposing in his share his view that one of these times, maybe not too far distant, Morehead will become the

Southern Solons Follow Rules

Zealots of civil rights legislation are beginning to shout that those few Senators engaging in a filibuster are guilty of thwarting the democratic process itself.

They argue that for so few to blunt the desire of so many is a gross miscarriage of justice.

Whether the Dixie band is right or wrong in its present stand against the pending civil rights bill is not doubted by most of those who have been following the struggle. However, until they are subdued in due time, it is their prerogative to exhaust all legal outlets in their battle.

What should be remembered by their opponents is that every tactic employed by the Southern forces has been employed before by liberals and conservatives and is lawful.

That great deliberative body thrives on adherence to strict rules and regulations. Though civil rights could have gotten the required votes to alter Rule 22 early in the first session of the 86th Congress, they didn't push for it diligently, for it would have meant the probable end of the Senate forum as an open deliberative society, the most famous in the world.

Is Hitler Aide Still Alive?

The most fascinating of all the possibilities concerning the survival of a top Nazi is the possibility that Martin Bormann survived the war and is still alive, hiding out.

It was Bormann, who was Hitler's adjutant and right-hand man even before the dictator came to power in 1933, and who stayed with him all through the war and who shared Hitler's innermost thoughts and secrets.

Bormann was last heard of in the last days of the battle in Berlin, toward the end of April and the first of May, 1945. He was in the bunker with Hitler until the latter and signed many of the last telegrams Hitler dispatched in those final days.

He was last seen trying to escape from the bunker and it was reported that he was caught in artillery fire and killed. A German court even pronounced him dead in 1946. And yet...

There are persistent rumors he is still alive. The strongest evidence to reach the public was the recent statement of the man who helped track down Adolph Eichmann. Simon Wiesenthal insisted recently he has proof that Bormann survived World War II.

Wiesenthal says two years ago he gave German authorities the name of a woman who said she knew him in Sao Paulo, Brazil. He also says he has proof that Bormann escaped from a prisoner-of-war camp after the war, saying: "I know the exact way he took them."

Wiesenthal, who heads the documentation of the "Society of Jewish People Persecuted by The Third Regime," declined to say more. But what he has already said is stronger evidence Bormann is alive than the public has yet had.

MacArthur Top Military Hero

General of the Army Douglas MacArthur was undoubtedly one of the most colorful military figures in the United States Army history. That he had a brilliant mind few doubted, for this was proved at West Point and many times thereafter.

Whether he was excessively vain is a point writers, historians, acquaintances and friends will debate for years to come. But we are not concerned with that here.

Whether or not that was the case, his military record stands as an outstanding one. His administration of conquered Japan was a monumental success. His recapture of South Korea was a brilliant operation, even though he later mixed the threat from Red China and the capability of Red Chinese arms. His record in World War II stands for itself.

President Harry Truman thought MacArthur was not obeying orders as he should in the Korean Conflict and removed him from command. MacArthur made a dramatic return and in a sentimental and emotional speech won new friends and sympathizers.

He was surrounded by controversy all his life. He and former President Dwight Eisenhower, who was once his adjutant, never seemed close. Some who served under him became devoted admirers and almost worshiped him.

There can be no doubt that he was a brilliant military strategist, an unusually able individual and one possessed of immense charm. Whether he would have dragged the nation into an immensely costly war with 750,000,000 Red Chinese is the nagging question which lingers on concerning this Korean campaign.

But, there were ample contributions which give him a place in the front row of our great military heroes of the past.

Latin America Is Unstable

The tragedy of South America is that no stability seems to be in view. The latest turn of events in Brazil, cheered by the United States, is a turn for the better there.

However, the causes of the plight of South America's millions largely remain until causes are removed there is little chance of bringing stability, a high standard of living or even adequate education to the masses.

The cause of the causes is the mass production of children of ignorant masses, who are told by their church not to take advantage of birth control devices. And as long as they continue to attempt to raise families far in excess of their capacity to educate children, or even keep them clean and well fed, poverty, degradation and the communist threat will persist, and grow.

The fact that Brazil seems in safer hands now does not hide the basic tragedy of South America.

The situation is complex, but among its basic causes is the fact that most people live in squalor, lack education, in turn a result of the inability of parents to properly care for all the children they raise.

The United States has poured billions of dollars into these countries in recent years and, with one or two exceptions, it has been money down a rathole. The living standard has not risen. The rich enrich themselves and the poor remain exploited and poverty stricken.

Until science and truth prevail, and common sense dominates government policy, the masses will remain in squalor and ignorance and communism will steadily gain influence — as one could expect.

JOHNSON PUSHES RIGHTS

President Johnson speaking before an audience of business men recently, said emancipation may be a proclamation but it is not a fact and the businessmen to provide leadership in making it a fact. He said the group that "we are assured to pass the civil rights bill" now embroiled in heavy Senate debate.

And His Friend, TIMOTHY TUGMUTTON

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The fellows at the country store Saturday night come out strong again this plan for "streamlining" the Congress. I look from the papers like the folks back home is complaining on account of them Congressmen ain't giving nothing, but yep more and more, and less.

Ed Doolittle had some figgers he had took from a newspaper on what has happened since the last time there was reformed in the Congress in 1946. First off, the Congress of 1946 said the Congress should adjourn by July 31, ever year except in time of war. According to the figgers, Ed was adjourned but twice in their 17 year by July 31 and that was 1952 and 1956 when we was electing a President and they had to get back home and do some other job.

Furthermore, the 1946 Act reduced the committees in the House from 35 to 15, and in the Senate from 12 to 10. In 17 year of reform we now got 106 committee in the Senate and 122 in the House.

But the main reason we can't stand no more streamlining of the Congress, allowed Ed, was on account of the costs. In 1946 when we got our last streamlining job it was costing $22 million a year. In 1952 it was $279 million, a increase of 800 per cent.

All the fellows was agreed that one more streamlining job on the Congress and the cost would get in orbit. It was all so noted by Clem Webster that them Congressmen might not even get adjourned in time for the presidential election and the voters would be bad handed without their advice in that matter.

It might be a public service, Mister Editor, if you'd write a editorial warning the voters to keep their eyes on this matter and not push it.

Next to not streamlining the Congress, the fellows was of the opinion that the next, most pressing domestic problem was how to keep the husbands in the country doing something off and leaving their wives. Zeke Grubb had a item from the U. S. Tracer Company reporting that 75,000 husbands took off from home in 1963 and ain't been heard about since.

More husbands has been disappearing ever year since 1950 and that it had reached a all-time high last year. They just pack up their clothes when the old lady is gone and take off for good.

All the fellows was agreed that unless we can put the stopper on this jug, grass widows would get to be a big a problem in America as the Congress.

Yours truly,
Claig Sprout
and

Volunteer Aid Is Appreciated At St. Claire

By Herbert Hudnut, M.D., Medical Director, St. Claire Medical Center

Sunday, April 19, 1964 is a day to remember at St. Claire Medical Center. A flash flood from Julius Branch and a partly clogged culvert at the west end of the parking lot, at 2 p.m., caused 18 inches of water outside the emergency room door (and 2 inches inside).

World's Fair Sets Day For Kentucky

Gov. Edward T. Breathitt announced today that June 1 has been set aside as Kentucky Day at the New York World's Fair.

Breathitt said that all arrangements for Kentucky Day are being coordinated by Mack Slack, director of the Industrial Promotion Division in the Department of Public Information.

"This special day," Breathitt said, "will give Kentucky a splendid opportunity to present to the world our state's tourist attractions and the many advantages for industry and business. It also will serve to demonstrate the interest of Kentuckians everywhere in the progress of the Commonwealth."

An official Kentucky Day, headed by the governor, will take part in the day's ceremonies.

Slack pointed out that "to be fully effective the Kentucky Day program must represent progress in every important facet" of the state's economy.

"For this reason," he said, "I am extending an invitation to all Kentucky organizations to help round out the program by getting in touch with me immediately so that full details of the Kentucky presentation can be set down well in advance of June 1."

Slack can be reached at the Division of Industrial Promotion, office, 410 Ann Street, Frankfort.

He said that members of The Kentuckians, an organization of distinguished former Bluegrass State residents now living in New York City area, are taking this "very active interest" in plans for Kentucky Day.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War In Kentucky

By Joe Jordan

(Ky. Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week, Brig. Gen. Stephen G. Burbridge, military governor of Kentucky, had received additional ammunition for anti-Lincoln, election-year orators who were already campaigning for Gen. George E. Manly, Lincoln, destined to be the Democratic Party nominee and opponent of Abraham Lincoln in the fall. Burbridge's General Order No. 34, dated April 18, provided for enlistment of Negroes in the United States Army and there was a strong sentiment against that among the voters.

The order said Negroes recruited were to be mustered in squads and immediately sent to camps outside Kentucky. Owners of slaves taken into the army were to give certificates which would enable them to receive the compensation authorized by law. This enlistment would be of one year, and that was one of the reasons Kentucky slaveholders were against it.

Many of the outstanding Union men of the Commonwealth were slaveholders; they opposed abolition as strongly as they did secession. In 1862 when the state was still neutral between Kentucky would not secede or remain in the Union was yet uncertain, an argument

ETB Edict Slashes Seasonal Hiring By Commonwealth

Gov. Edward T. Breathitt is sued an order Saturday calling for a cutdown in summer employment by the state.

Along with the memorandum to department heads was a few stipulations — no children of state commissioners, deputy commissioners or directors are to be hired for summer jobs.

There have been recurring private complaints that some state officials used their power to put their sons and daughters on the seasonal payroll.

Breathitt's administrative note made no reference to these reports, but it was understood to be one of the reasons for the new limitations.

The ban on relatives presumably would affect almost every state employee earning $10,000 or more, although the governor did not mention salaries.

He said employment of students and other seasonal workers will be "limited to jobs which are absolutely necessary for economic administration of the state departments and programs."

Most of the summer jobs to be filled are in the Parks and Highway departments.

Last year's cycle is being repeated — there are many more applications than a positions available, and Breathitt's memorandum is one method of indicating to parents that the job situation is tight.

Last summer, personnel officials estimated that for every

'Witnesses' Set Assembly May 8 In Lexington

"Facing Up to the Urgency of Our Times," will be the theme stressed at the fourth annual Christian Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses to be held at Mary Todd School in Lexington, May 8-10.

The announcement came from James Fields, presiding minister of the Morehead Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses. Fields stated that so urgent are the times in which we are now living that sponsors of this assembly, The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, are now arranging for Christians to come in increasing frequency for Bible study and education in preparation for right guidance and direction as we approach the climax of this age.

According to Fields, all congregations in northeastern and north central Kentucky have been invited and more than 700 are expected to attend. He commented that this is almost a 70 percent increase in attendance in Kentucky Circuit No. 3 since it was organized in 1961.

Pasture Rotation Is Advantageous On Most Farms

By Donald B. Nelson

On your pasture land you can receive around 15 percent grazing if you will rotate your livestock to different pasture fields instead of just one pasture field.

The most ideal way to have your pasture fields divided is to break them down into five equal fields. In this way you can leave all or most of your livestock in one field for around seven days in which they will graze down to around five inches if you have ample live-stock on your farm. After around seven days you will rotate them to another field and keep on this way until you have grazed all your fields and then start over and repeat the same cycle.

There are several more advantages in rotating your pasture fields besides receiving more pasture. It gives your pasture a chance to grow evenly and will let the soil develop as well as the top growth. If you don't give the pasture a chance to grow the root development will become weaker. Then if you have a dry period some of your grasses will die because of the weak root development. It also gives you a chance to spread your droppings. The legumes will last longer.

Overflows Sewage Plant
SURFACE WATER - The runoff from Sunday's thunderous downpour sent Triplet Creek, and its tributaries, to their banks in much of this section. Water from the main stream itself leaped out of the normal confluence of the creek and spread rapidly to lower sections. The Morehead Utility Plant Board's sewage disposal plant was almost surrounded late Sunday when Triplet overflowed near Clearfield. Although the rainfall was the heaviest for such a short period since 1939, damage was slight.

Flood-Hurt Cities To Get Help

Plans to speed up financial aid to local governmental units in flood-devastated areas of Kentucky by eliminating red tape have been made by Federal and State officials meeting in Frankfort.

Slate Adjutant General Arthur Y. Lloyd, Kentucky's Civil Defense director, said the red tape is being eliminated from processing applications for the aid by coordinating the work of Federal and State officials handling the forms.

Lloyd said processing of 1964 flood-relief applications is about five months ahead of similar work after the 1962 and 1963 floods. He said 34 applications have been filed with the Kentucky Civil Defense office. President Johnson has allocated $200,000 to Gov. Edward T. Breathitt to start financial assistance to flooded towns and counties in Kentucky.

This sum could grow to $3 or $4 million, said J. G. Tooby, field director of U. S. Office of Emergency Planning. He, Robert Kearney, O.E.D. staff officer, and Alfred Graves, U. S. Corps of Engineers, Louisville, met with Kentucky Civil Defense officials.

Tooby said Colonel Leon Reed, Kentucky deputy director of Civil Defense, "has done an outstanding job in briefing local officials in procedures for qualifying for the aid."

Congress May Get Depressed Areas Plan Early Next Month

Proposals that will hopefully redraw the economically depressed landscape of Eastern Kentucky and the Eastern Appalachia may be presented to Congress by President Lyndon B. Johnson in early May.

The presentation is the logical next step following President Johnson's acceptance of the Appalachian Regional Commission's proposed program. The Commission's chairman, Undersecretary of Commerce-Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., met with President Johnson earlier this month, along with John Whisman, Kentucky's representative to the Commission. Whisman heads the State Area Program Office in Frankfort and is a special assistant to Gov. Edward T. Breathitt.

President Johnson is expected to visit the Appalachian area and meet with the state's governors during the next few weeks. His tour will probably include a brief visit in Eastern Kentucky.

The Commission's proposals are geared to prepare the eight-state Appalachian area as a seed-bed for new industry. Unemployment among Appalachians is 15.3 million people runs over seven percent of the total labor force, compared with five percent nationwide. Almost one in three Appalachian families live on less than $3,000 a year - the thin line generally recognized as the difference between poverty and the means to enjoy some of America's affluent life.

The Commission's proposals, endorsed by the signature of Gov. Breathitt and the governors of West Virginia, Alabama, Georgia, Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina and Maryland, attack these statistics in terms of highway, water and natural resource and communities development as well as the development of human resources - training and education, housing, health, vocational rehabilitation, welfare services and nutrition.

To avoid duplication of effort the Commission recommended that about half of its requested budget - totaling 71 million dollars for 1965-66 - be transferred to President Johnson's national Office of Economic Opportunity. The organization formed specifically for Appalachian development would then retain supervision of new regional health centers and the construction of new vocational education facilities.

Whisman pointed out that the economic opportunities offered would carry out a certain part of the "human resources" proposals made by the Commission and would give specialized The Office of Appalachian area funds has been introduced already pending in Congress, he said.

Among the Commission's other proposals:

Developmental Highways - Construction of 2,150 miles of highways and 500 miles of local roads which would serve specific industrial, residential and recreational facilities and encourage other such developments.

Southeastern Kentucky - not served directly by the interstate highway system, is allotted 482 miles under the Commission's plan. Whisman anticipates that the Kentucky mileage will be financed by 80 percent Federal funds and 20 percent State funds.

Agriculture - Develop over a five-year period 65 million acres of pasture lands, financed through cost-sharing for a maximum of 25 acres per farm. The Federal cost share would be 80 percent of the first 21 acre development; short-term, low-interest loans would be available for larger developments.

Water Resources - Accelerate construction of dams and other water-control projects through the U. S. Corps of Engineers, Tennessee Valley Authority, and the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Thirty-five million dollars requested for 1965-66.

Community Facilities - Accelerate the construction of sewerage and water supply projects through the Area Redevelopment Administration and other existing agencies. Federal financing through the $10 million requested for 1965-66 would aid communities which cannot now meet the local fund requirements to participate in the programs offered by these agencies.

Timber Resources - Develop local timber complex to manage and utilize commercial timberlands. These complexes would be patterned after the Knottwood corporation pilot corporation recently formed in Eastern Kentucky with technical assistance from A. E. A. and the Kentucky Timber Development Task Force. The complexes would draw their original capital from Federal Government loans, with State funds or loans and private investors providing the balance.

An additional 4.5 million acres of depleted Eastern Kentucky timberland would be included in the national forest to restore full productivity.

Power - The Commission placed high priority on the development of Appalachia, with its abundance of water and coal, as a source of power. Recommendations call for intensive research in this area through a committee of private and public power interests.

Mineral Resources - Although declining to state that the area's abundant coal resources are a major hope of Appalachia, the Commission calls for intensive research into new uses of coal and investigation of additional export markets. Three million dollars requested for these purposes for fiscal year 1965-66.

Appalachian Development Corporation - Creation of a financing body with State and Federal backing, authorized to issue bonds for local development projects.

Whisman stressed that the existing area development councils already organized at multi-county units in Eastern Kentucky and throughout the state would be the basis of formal development districts through which the Appalachian Regional Commission would work locally.

The Commission itself would be composed of the governor of each participating Appalachian state (or his appointee) and a Federal representative appointed by the President. Whisman said the Area Program office is expected to coordinate the work of the Commission.

Library List Shows Heavy Reading Up

Kentucky's library patrons are not only reading more, but their selections of books from Kentucky's 100 Bookmobiles and 61 county libraries also reflect a trend toward more serious reading.

A spot check revealed that the most popular authors last year were four Kentucky writers whose non-fiction works were widely read not only here but around the nation.

The four are Harry Caudill, Whiteburg attorney whose "Night Comes to the Cumberland" was published last year; Jesse Stuart, Greenup, and his "Thread That Runs So True"; an autobiographical work which continued to be popular along with "The Jesse Stuart Reader," a new collection of short stories and poems; Janice Holt Johnson, Adair County, and her autobiographical work "A Little Better Than Plumb"; and Harriette Arnow's non-fiction title "Dawning of the Cumberland."

Biographies of the late President Kennedy are still in heavy demand, along with biographies of President Lyndon B. Johnson and possible presidential candidates.

The consistent demand for juvenile books of all types grows each year. No library can keep enough books in stock for young pre-school children, whom Miss Willis describes as "omnivorous" readers.

Requests for subject-matter titles cover a wide range from electronics wiring to the problems of mental retardation. Other topics in demand include business, music, art, psychology, and crafts, current events and economics, local and world history, house and car repair, dairying, fruit tree culture, conservation and mental health. Discussion groups, film forums, and planned adult programs sponsored by local libraries in some areas have introduced many readers to more serious subject matter, Miss Willis explained.

The emphasis of schools and colleges on individual research sends many students to their public libraries in search of technical and reference material for term papers and theses.

The collections of county libraries and regional headquarters are supplemented by the State Department of Libraries reference collection in Frankfort. Miss Willis said Reference librarians, Mrs. Ralph Lewis, and her assistant, Mrs. Elizabeth Middleton, answered 287 requests for information or material last year, including many books for student research.

The 104,700 new books selected, cataloged, and shipped throughout the state by the Department last year included 55,900 volumes for Bookmobiles and 48,800 for county libraries and regional collections.

THINK ABOUT DEATH and START TO LIVE!

It is human nature to put off thoughts of death as long as we can.

This is especially true when our years are young, our health is good, and we're having a wonderful time. But even in old age, the true values and real joys of living come into clear focus only when we face up to the fact of death and ask ourselves "What does it mean?"

Once we do this, the terrifying specter of death becomes less fearsome. We see it as a teacher, cautioning us to shape our lives in a manner pleasing to God. We see it as a Golden Hammer, robbing us of our worldly pleasures, but as the golden gateway to God's greatest of gifts - eternal life.

There are some people, of course, who believe that after this life there is no more. The pure and the selfish, they contend, all meet the same gloomy end of eternal nothingness; there is no judgment, no punishment, no reward. But if our reason did not tell us this is wrong, we have the clear assurance of God Himself that man shall live on earth, shall eventually meet death, that he shall be judged and, upon that judgment, shall live eternally in joy - or misery.

This has been the teaching of the up-god Catholic Church since the time of the Apostles. It is a doctrine that compels a Catholic to think of his life in terms of his death. It reminds him of gloomy destinies to those who decline to face

"The old way can't compare with the electric way"

That's the way this up-to-date couple sees it. In the words of Mr. Duncan, "We've lived in other houses and with other kinds of heating. Believe me, nothing else comes close to electricity for clean, trouble-free operation." Says Mrs. Duncan, "I like electric cooking and flameless water heating." When you go Gold Medallion, you travel first class: you get the best and pay no more. Live modern. Live all-electrically.
