Jos. Kennedy's Sta. was at the head of Drake's Creek, 4 mi's of Boyle's Spring on the Gooch Pike. John was killed by Indians in 1781 while Jos. was captured. In 1804 Jos.'s bro David moved there. (Ruth White "First Station in Garrard Co. Est'd. in 1775" Lexington LEADER, 5/2/1958);
LANCASTER (Garrard Co., Ky): Its founding was approved by leg. act on 2/10/1798. Acc. to this act, Wm. Early Buford laid off 57 1/2 acres into lots and public square what was then called The Cross Roads. (P. 337). But the acquisition of this site as the new co's 1st permanent seat, from Buford had been initiated on 6/5/1797. (P. 338). ("Pion. Times in Garrard Co." by Sam'l. M. Wilson, in CENTRAL RECORD of Lanc. 6/16/1932, and repr. in REG. of KHS, Vol. 30, 10/1932, Pp. 335-43); Lanc. was named the new co's. seat in the spring of 1797. On June 5 a contract was signed with Wm. Buford, a Rev. War vet. who owned the site centering on the jct. of the roads betw. Boonesb. & Harrodsb. and Crab Orchard & Lex. nr what was then called Wallace X Rds. The site was surveyed & platted by Jos. Bledsoe, Jr. ("Govt. Ch. Brought Lanc. into New Existence" LEX. MANSE (Garrard Co.): Store, church, & a few homes on Ky. 52, e. of Lancaster and near Paint Lick. Acc. to Mrs. Annabelle Burnside Brown, historian of nearby Old Paint Lick Pres. Chur., local people wanted to distinguish their commu. from P.L. down the road so they named it Manse for this was where the church's manse was located. (manse is name given by Presbyterians for the home of their minister). The church was built c.1784 and the manse in 1848. A large white brick house, still standing. But preacher live in a bldg. in the churchyard. (Ora Spaid, LCJ, 7/3/1961, A12:1-6);
MANSE (Garrard Co., Ky): First called Old Paint Lick. Centered on the home of the pastor who served the Kennedy plantation & the surrounding area. This bldg. was on the highest hill in the co. The com. was named for the home which Presbyterians customarily called a manse. Local historians think the home was built in 1797...and may have been the site of the last Indian raid on a Ky. settlement. (c. 1812). Home was destroyed and rebuilt soon thereafter. The home was later modernized and is still in use on a 5½ acre hilly site. (Acc. to a brochure on Manse at Old Paint Lick, undated, which I was shown by Pat Ballard, 4/21/1978);

PAINT LICK (Garrard Co.): (Pron. "Pānt L(ih)k’")
Active po with Mr. Dillon as pm. Wm. Miller’s fort was the 1st settlement in this area. It was right at P.L. A beautiful colonial home was built almost on the site of the fort. The lick and sta. were at the same site. Commu. was probably named for the creek. There was a lot of limestone in the water that attracted livestock. cf Patches. The Indians painted the rocks and trees to designate this as a good watering spot. No evidence of the fort or sta. now. At one time a thriving commu. Now: po, several stores, bank, attractive homes. (Pat Ballard, interview, 4/21/1978);
Paint Lick Creek "was named from the painted trees and rocks near..." (Letter from Forrest Calico of Lancaster, Ky. 7/3/1969), named for painted trees and a lick nr. Wm. Miller's Sta in 1775 or '6. PAINT LICK (Garrard Co.): Col. Wm. Miller, a member of Dan'l. Boone's party, selected site for settlement on Paint Lick Creek at a salt lick where the Indians had painted signs along the banks. Hence its name. Creek first named; then presumably the community that was later est. there took the name of the creek. Miller built there a log fort and it was called Ft. Paint Lick. Joined by other settlers... Allegedly from a statement by Col. Miller. (check).

PAINT LICK (Garrard Co., Ky): "This vil. with (a)po is on Ky. 52 & Paint Lick Creek, 8½ (air) mi e of Lanc. It was named for the creek along whose banks Indians are said to have painted rocks and trees to mark a good spot to hunt animals that came to lick the salt. Col. William Miller (1717-1811), a Va-born Rev. War vet. who had acquired some 2000 acres on the creek, built a log fort at the lick in 1776 and initiated settlement. The Paint Lick po was est. sometime in the 2nd decade of the 19 cent. A fanciful, certainly unsubstantiated acct. of the name was once offered by Clay Sutton of Lanc. in the Lex. Her. A hunter once ambushed a squaw on the upper reaches of the creek. He was soon captured by the Indians and hung by his heels from a tree with his throat cut. His blood was splashed on the white trunks of nearby sycamore trees and his body was left hanging as a warning to other white men.”   (Book-P. 225);
Col. Wm. Miller (1776) settled on Paint Lick Creek which was named for the signs Indians painted on the creek's banks to adv. the presence of a good salt lick. He built Ft. Paint Lick stockade. (Acc. to Anna Burnside Brown, Patches, Pp. 335-7, 347); The folk version I have of the naming of Paint Lick was in Patches, P. 347); Was the Paint Lick po on the L&N?; Paint Lick Creek was once called Walnut Meadow Fork. (check) (Acc. to Calico, 1947, P. 6);
PAINT LICK (Garrard Co.): Named for the creek that "divides Madison from Garrard Co. Along its banks, Indians painted their queer sign lang. on the surrounding stones and trees." Lick attracted game animals such as buffalo, elk, and deer from the canebrake. Th creek was named for the lick and painted sym­bols. Belles Sta. was c. ½ mi. from the creek at a cave-like spring, over 100 ft. deep.... P.L. was settled by Wm. Miller from Va. in 1775. (His dates=1717-1811) He settled P.L. in 1776, acc. to inscription on his burial marker on a hill "overlooking the creek." He was a Rev. War. vet. who acquired grant of 3000 acres on Paint Lick Creek....(Annie Burnside Brown, article in the KY. PROGRESS MAG. 4/1931, KHS Garrard Co. Vert. Files); Acc. to his own deposition (1801) Wm. Miller lived on Paint Lick Creek since 1781;
PAINT LICK (Garrard Co.): Fanciful, certainly unsubstantiated acct. of name offered by Clay Sutton of Lancaster, Ky. in the LEX. HE repro. in LOU. TIMES, 6/14/1927 and summarized in LCJ, 6/16/1927, to wit: a hunter whose name has been lost ambushed a squaw on the upper reaches of this creek nr. the Mad. Co. line. Soon captured by Ind. warriors, hung by his heels from a tree branch and his throat cut. His blood was splashed on the white trunks of nearby sycamore trees and body left hanging as warning to other whitemen. This had occurred nr. a noted deer lick. Stream and later vil. named for this.
