

THOS. D. THEOBOLD NOMINATED JUDGE. REPUBLICANS IN MASS AND DELEGATE CONVENTIONS DECIDE IN FAVOR OF GRAYSON MAN.

In the Republican mass convention at Grayson last Saturday Thos. D. Theobold received a majority of the delegates present, having a majority of 68 over Judge H. E. Woods, the opposing candidate.

This gave him the Carter county representatives in the delegate convention which met at Grayson later.

The attendance was 772, the largest gathering ever assembled for this purpose in the county.

Hon. G. W. Castle was made chairman, and L. P. Clark, of this city, secretary of the convention assembled, in which reasonably good order prevailed.

The special train from this city was forced to carry two extra cars to accommodate the crowds, over 400 taking advantage of the means of attendance.

While defeated Judge Woods is not sulking, but smilingly says he will heartily support the successful candidate.

DELEGATE CONVENTION.

In the delegate convention, convening at Grayson Tuesday for the purpose of nominating republican candidates for the offices of Circuit Judge and Commonwealth Attorney, the convention was called to order by Hon. G. W. Castle.

M. S. Burns, of Louisa, was made chairman and W. J. Seitz, West Liberty, Secretary.

The committee on resolutions, rules and order of business recommended that the convention make no nominations for candidate for the office of Commonwealth Attorney, which recommendation was unanimously adopted.

Judge H. L. Woods then placed in nomination Thos. D. Theobold as the conventions candidate for Circuit Judge and further asked that it be made unanimous. This was accordingly done.

Speeches were made by Judge Woods, M. S. Burns, W. J. Seitz, Frank Prater and A. N. Cisko, after which adjournment.

WHITAKER FAMILY NEARLY EXTINCT.

LONDON, KY., Aug. 5.—Near Benastr, this county, J. W. Woodall had instantly killed Lum Whitaker Saturday evening at seven o'clock. The trouble came up over a game of cards in which Whitaker had won $12, a pistol, watch and gun from Woodall. Six tragedies have occurred in that neighborhood within the last few years and each one killed a member of the Whitaker family, and all were closely related.

Roy Whitaker was killed by Robert and James Barnes, Elisha Whitaker by James Mize, Henry Whitaker by John Farmer, William Whitaker by William Mize, and W. L. Whitaker by Fox Bolton.

Scarcely any other homicide has occurred in that location within the same period, and but few others in this county. No feud has existed and each killing has resulted from a distinct cause.

There is strong feeling against Woodall and a large posse is searching for him among the hills of Pulaski county, where he is seeking refuge. It is claimed by Whitaker friends that the killing was without provocation and that Whitaker offered to give back what he had won from his slayer.

EFFORT TO REOPEN THE HARGIS CASE.

WILL BE MADE BEFORE COURT OF APPEALS BY PROSECUTING ATTORNEYS IN SEPTEMBER

Attorneys for the prosecution in the Hargis case have found, they claim, decisions in other States which bear out their contention that Hargis was not placed in jeopardy before the court at Sandy Hook for the murder of Dr. Cox. The matter, it is expected, will be pressed before the Court of Appeals in Sept.

It is the contention of the Attorneys for the prosecution that Hargis was not in jeopardy at the time Judge Moody instructed the jury to find a verdict of acquittal, and that because of that he should have suspended the case until he could have appointed Commonwealth's Attorney pro tem. In the event the County Attorneys was absent from the scene of the trial or for any reason refused to participate in the prosecution. It is the contention of the Commonwealth in the Hargis case that Commonwealth's Attorney John M. Waugh withdrew from the case when he saw that Judge Moody was forcing him to trial without the necessary witnesses, and that his withdrawal was a last resort and the only hope he had of getting a continuance until a time when the witnesses for the prosecution could be present.

CHAS. SANDERS.

WOODS, THE MAN.

In the conventions our candidate, Judge H. L. Woods, was defeated.

While the count was close it was sufficient.

The editor, being a comparative stranger to all concerned, could find no better or more convincing proof of his sterling qualities and worth than the manner in which Mr. Woods has accepted defeat.

Politicians of another class had the count been so close and rumors of unfairness in the convention being circulated as are being circulated in this case, would have had an eternal roiling, and be sore at everything and everybody for the next six months.

The Judge, we are happy to say, is not this character of man. He accepts defeat as a man and has nothing but words of praise for the successful candidate and all others concerned.

Such a man cannot long remain in the background, and the people of the district will again place him in the limelight at the very first opportunity.

THE BRICK PLANT.

The location of the new brick plant is still an unsettled fact.

While the difference between the parties, we understand, is slight, it is yet sufficient in so much that an authoritative statement cannot be handed out as to whether or not we get it.

We must not let this opportunity for the betterment of this already thriving little city.

Residents of this section should bear in mind the fact that from enterprises of this character comes the bulk of the support of the populace.

Nature has endowed us with great quantities of mineral substances, and we must not be slow in taking advantage of an opportunity such as this to develop them for the benefit of ourselves and posterity.

Think of the many advantages to be derived by the establishment of this one enterprise, the securing of which will undoubtedly lead others to follow their example.

It means an increase in population of from 500 to 1000.

The building of from 100 to 200 residences.

Twenty or more store rooms to accommodate the increased business.

$5000 to $7000 weekly in additional wages, which will be spent with our local merchants.

A great advance in the value of real estate.

Farmers will have a ready market at good prices for all the garden truck they can produce.

Can we afford to pass this up? Let those in authority lay aside all prejudice and work in accord to secure this enterprise while we yet have a fighting chance.

OUR FARMERS.

In an article of interest to farmers the Big Sandy News says the farmers of this section are neglecting their opportunities to better their condition and further gives the hill farmers some good advice which in part is as follows:

"The day has passed when the farmer in this neighborhood who wants profits from his labor should raise corn. It is hard for many who have grown up with certain fixed ideas of what they must raise, to get out of the rut and change their entire plans. Farming is not different from other lines of business in that it will show good results from the use of brains. When the times and conditions change, meet the new order of things in a business like manner. Just as business men in other lines do. The last year or two has seen wonderful changes here changes that call for a revolution in the methods of farmers. Turn the corn fields into truck patches. Plant small fruits and orchards on the hills and then spray the orchards and give them the attention that successful growers in other sections use. You will make ten dollars where you now make one."

We know of one garden in Louisiana from which over $150 worth of green beans and potatoes have already been sold this year, after supplying the large family with what they could use of these products.

Truck farmers make more money from less land and with less help than any other class of farmers.

Five corn a back seat. You can make money enough from other products to buy more corn than you could raise, and have a good bank account besides."

The fine of $29,240.00 assessed against the Standard Oil Company by Judge Landis is seemingly a punishment to fit the crime, but when the immense capitalization of this giant corporation is taken into consideration the fine seems insignificant, and is so considered by the Standard people. What is a few paltry millions to the financial giants interested. They are fined, but who pays the fine? Certainly not the Standard. The poor cusses known as the common people will pay this fine and the last laugh will come from the Octopus. Give a few of them a heavy jail or pen. sentence and there will be a genuine scramble to be good.

A CARD.

TO THE CITIZENS OF OLIVE HILL AND VICINITY.

I wish to extend to you my sincere thanks for the noble efforts made and hearty support given me in my recent race for the nomination as Circuit Judge.

Your manly work and gentlemanly behavior is commendable in the highest degree and it shows too well that I made no mistake when I called my lot with the people of Olive Hill, and I shall never forget them.

I and to seal the friendship which they had so gallantly given me by their loyal support and as a further mark of esteem in which they still hold me after my defeat, I am presenting with a magnificent gold watch beautifully engraved with the carved inscription, "From the citizens of Olive Hill to H. L. Woods."

My family joins with me in expressing these thanks and no words can express the appreciation that we feel. The unanimous support you gave me and the token of your love and friendship is worth many times more to me than the nomination.

H. L. Woods.

Unnecessary Expense.

Acute attacks of Cholera and diarrhoea come on without warning and prompt relief must be obtained. There is no necessity of incurring the expense of a physician's services in such cases if Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is at hand. A dose of this remedy will relieve the patient in advance a doctor could arrive. It has never been known to fail, even in the most severe and dangerous cases and no family should be without it. For sale by C. B. Waring, Olive Hill.

Shoe Center Moves.

Only a few years ago the shoe of the west was manufactured in the East, and in many people who have not kept in touch with the progress made by Western Shoe Manufacturers will be surprised to learn that St. Louis now manufactures and distributes annually about $10,000,000 worth of shoes. It is now stated that one-sixth of all the shoes worn in the United States come from St. Louis. It simply proves that the big energetic and determined manufacturers can accomplish in the short period of ten years, for it is a fact that ten years ago St. Louis manufactured but very few shoes. Today some of the large manufacturers are operating several immense factories—modern brick and stone buildings, electrically equipped and many of these factories have an output of over five thousand pairs daily. Some of these shoe factories represent an investment of $250,000.

The most striking example of growth is best illustrated by taking the results accomplished by one of these big St. Louis Manufacturers, viz., the Roberts, Johnson and Rand Shoe Co. Only nine years ago they began business. In this short period they have erected and equipped nine big shoe factories, and are building now one more which is necessary to take care of their growing business. They ship over Ten Million Dollars' worth of shoes annually, and have made a gain over last year of slightly over Two Million Dollars. They employ about 4000 people and pay out thousands of dollars daily for labor. Their slogan "Star Brand Shoes Are Better" must be widely and favorably known for it is figured that one person in every thirty-two is wearing Star Brand shoes.

Summer Diarrhoea in Children. During the hot weather of the summer months the first unnatural looseness in a child's bowels should have immediate attention, so as to check the disease before it becomes serious. All that is necessary is a few doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy followed by a dose of castor oil to cleanse the system. Rev. M. O. Stuedemann, Pastor of the First M. E. Church, Littlefield, Minn., writes: "We have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for several years and find it very valuable remedy especially for summer disorders in children."

HE CONSULTED BACON.

It was Andrew Jackson's habit to carry in his saddlebags when he attended court a copy of "Bacon's Abridgment" and make frequent appeals to it in his cases. This precious book was always carefully dogged up in coarse brown paper, and the unwrapping of the volume was a very solemn function as performed by Jackson, who was then only twenty-one years old. Colonel Avery during the trial and preceded the trial by unwrapping and substituted the bit of pork. At length Jackson had occasion to appeal to Lord Bacon. While still talking he raised the bear-skin flap of his saddlebags, drew out the brown paper package, carefully untied the string, unfolded the paper with decorum and then, without looking at what he held in his hand, exclaimed triumphantly, "What wonder does that Bacon says!" "What wonder does that Bacon says!" "What wonder does that Bacon says!" "What wonder does that Bacon says!"

DAIRY AND CREAMERY

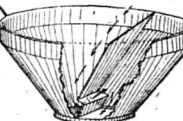

COTTON SEED MEAL AS FEED.

Fed to Cows Gives a Richer Milk and Produces a Hard Butter.

In view of the prevalent opinion among dairymen in the North that not over about 2 pounds of cotton seed meal per day should be fed to milk cows, some recent experiments reported by the Mississippi Station are at least interesting. The station herd was fed for two weeks on a ration composed of 10 pounds of cowpea vine hay, 20 pounds of corn silage, 4 pounds of wheat bran, and 5 pounds of cotton seed meal per head. The milk during the last two days was separated and made into butter. In the succeeding two weeks 6 pounds of whole cotton seed was substituted for the 5 pounds of cotton seed meal, the milk during the last two days being made into butter. In the two weeks following this the same ration was fed except that 6 pounds of corn cob meal was substituted for the cotton seed. The butter was sent to St. Louis where it was scored. On a scale of 100 points the butter from the cotton seed meal scored 83.6 points, and that from the corn and cob meal feeding 96 points.

It is the general experience that cotton seed meal produces a hard butter, and in some instances a small amount of this feed is given for that specific purpose. Grade cotton seed oil has been found to contain a quantity of so-called vegetable stearin, which is separated from the cotton oil of commerce in the process of refining.

Straining the Milk.—Milk pails and creamers used with tops are covered with tin, the center of which is replaced by a circular piece of wire gauze about 7 inches in diameter, through which the streams of milk pass. This form of pail is of advantage in keeping out hairs or large pieces of dirt. When the milk is emptied from these pails it should be passed through a cloth, and the pail and its strainer should be rinsed. The common strainer pail should not be used in the stable. It offers no special protection to the milk and may even collect dirt that would otherwise be avoided.

The common strainer used over cans has flaring sides and a concave bottom, the wire gauge being in the center of the bottom. It removes coarse materials, but holds them in the milk strainer, and the soft impurities which are broken up by agitation and soiling, may be forced through the small opening by the constant current of milk.

Care of Pigs.—Lice and vermin among the pig are killed readily by the use of Zenoleum, and it is the cheapest and best thing known for this purpose.

Stagnant water and filthy places should be drained off, so that they will not breed disease.

The young pigs should be given a thin stop of middlings and milk, care being taken not to overfeed them, as scours may result from too much sloppy food.

Some oil meal can be given to good advantage—about one-teenth part of the ration.

The boar should be kept in a cool pen, and given a yard to exercise in, says the Farm Journal.

Whey alone is just about as good to fatten pigs on as so much moonshine. Put in some wheat middlings. Nothing better.

Don't be afraid to give the pigs a little salt. The old idea that it would kill them has gone with a lot of other notions that have done us harm.

Don't be afraid to turn the hogs and sheep into the old orchard; it will be mutually beneficial.

Teach pigs to eat corn as early as possible, but let them wean themselves. Be sure to prevent them from eating sourd foods.

At the Minstrels.—"WVVAL," asked Mr. Griffiths, the eminent end-man; "what is the difference between a phenologist and a man who runs into a door in the dark?"

"I give it up," said Mr. Goldstein, the other eminent end-man; for they were cutting the show short that evening in order to catch an early train to the next one-night stand.

Jerry's Splendid System

Jerry came home from school full of a new idea.

"The superintendent came in our room to-day," he told his mother, "and was talking about memorize, and he said some one a long time ago invented having pieces to put things in, kind of like pigeon holes in father's desk; then, when you have anything out of them, you look in, and there you are."

"Very good idea," said mother, "and you need something of the sort. Did you order the sugar and spice on the way home this noon, as I told you to this morning?"

"No," said Jerry blushing. "I forgot. You see, mother, the system hasn't started up yet."

"Well, you must back now and get them," said his mother.

"Before dinner!" asked Jerry ruefully.

"It will help you remember next time," said his mother.

So Jerry stopping only to get Solomon, his pet lead tortoise, ran back.

He stopped for the mail though, and there he found a catalogue of football supplies for himself, and he studied that so long that the first school bell rang before he started home.

Then he went flying. On the way he met Mr. Nelson.

"Tell your father, Jerry, to come and see the baby this afternoon," she said. "It's very sick."

"All right, I will," said Jerry.

There was only time for a very little dinner, and Jerry put Solomon, the tortoise down in the library, that lead into his father's office. This was strictly forbidden, for Jerry's father was a specialist in nerve diseases, and Solomon's was suddenly and quietly appearing on the floor, or of trying to climb on a patient's lap, did not assist the owner of disordered nerves toward recovery.

But Jerry intended to get the tortoise after luncheon. Only, he forgot. He also forgot about Mrs. Nelson and the mail for his father, which was in his overcoat pocket.

He dashed off to school with his precious catalogue (which he remembered to take) in his hand, and was almost late.

Something, just as he was about to sit down, caused him to remember all three things at once, and he stood up in his seat frantically signaling to the teacher.

"All right, Jerry," she asked, "hardly waited for permission, but rushed home."

A piercing shriek came from the library just as he opened the door. A very little old woman was standing in her chair, her eyes shut and with her skirts gathered tightly around her, while Solomon paused in mild wonder in his act of climbing up to the chair whereon she stood.

"What's all this about?" asked his father sternly.

"Oh, father," said Jerry, bringing the mail out of his pocket. "Here's the mail, and I forgot Solomon, and Mrs. Nelson's baby—and great-aunt Susana was scared at Solomon."

"Solomon, indeed!" said great-aunt Susana, opening one eye. "The critter came walking up me in a way to scare the wits out of a graven image!"

"The system isn't working yet, evidently," said his mother gently, and trying not to laugh.

Great-aunt Susana sat down and asked for explanation.

"Rumph!" she said at its conclusion. "The best system I know of is to think of something and some one, besides your own name."

And Jerry, after he had put Solomon in his room, as he dejectedly walked back to school, was bound to admit that she was right.

Queer Customs in Norway.

In Norway on pay day saloons are closed and servants bank open until midnight. Serving girls hire for half a year at a time by contract at public registry offices. There is a telephone box on every street car. One writes the message, puts on the right number of stamps, and drops it in the box. Farmers can borrow money from the government at three per cent. There are practically no illiterates. The average wage earner is $88 a year. There are more reindeer than horses, more sheep than cows.

The Pagan Penny-in-the-Slot.

The "put-a-penny-in-the-slot" machine was used by Pagan priests in a way which can be fairly compared with the penny-in-the-slot gas meters. The public who came to the temples required consecrated water and the priests had to live, so to apply both needs these machines were used, which saved the priests the trouble of collecting the money. When the devotee placed a coin of sufficient weight in the slot, it pressed down a lever, which opened a valve and so allowed the water to flow.—Grand Magazine.

Huskey—He met with an accident while hunting.

McQueery—Why, he looks more as if he had run into something.

Huskey—He did. He ran into me by accident. It was trouble he was hunting.—Catholic Standard and Times.
