CARROLLTON MAN, 70, GETS INITIAL RECEIPT Only One In Awarded Maximum Of $15 Per Month; Amounts Vary From $4

Kentucky's old-age pension pay goes under way Monday with ceremonies at the State Capitol. Gov. A. B. Chandler presented the first checks to a group in the House of Representatives chamber before several hundred spectators.

The first check actually handed out went to James Harvey, 70. It was not check No. 1, however, that honor going to William Sebern Aera, Boone county, whose name came first on the alphabetical list of accepted applicants. Mr. Aera's check was for $10, the maximum allowance under the present set-up in Kentucky is $15. Only one applicant in the list has been approved for the full amount. She was Lucy McGowan, Louisville. The minimum check to date was for $4.50. Joe Henry Tyson, Versailles, received the second check handed to those who were present.

Forty men are now at work, excavating for the new septic tank and repairing the sewer line which was laid when the project was first started. The crew is in charge of Jim Lane.

Officials expect to complete the work this fall, and turn it over immediately to the city for use. It is expected to care for the sewage problem in a satisfactory manner, eliminating the present system of dumping it into Triplett creek on the outskirts of the city.

THE ADVANTAGES TO BE HAD IN MOREHEAD

The group that is attempting to interest a corporation or firm to build a factory in Morehead has many talking points. There are many forceful and accurate circumstances that makes Morehead an almost ideal place for a factory.

It is necessary that these points be put over by the local group which resembles a chamber of commerce. A pamphlet stressing these factors which exist in Morehead and vicinity, would be a good talking point, not only in interesting anyone or any group to build a factory here, but in inducing people to make Morehead their home and to bring other businesses to this locality.

These fine points in favor of Morehead might be briefly stressed as follows:

LOCATION: Morehead is in the center of a population radius, although there are no large cities within a radius of 60 miles.

TRANSPORTATION: The transportation facilities in Morehead are unlimited. Included in this would be the C. & O. railway, U. S. Highway 60, the Allie Young Highway and the Morehead-Sandy Hook road, all of which connect with other highways to two large part of the state or nation. Morehead has two large trunk lines and three bus companies.

EDUCATIONAL: Nowhere in Kentucky are the educational advantages greater than in Morehead. Four consolidated schools, one training school equal to any in the south and one of the largest colleges in Kentucky are in Morehead and its immediate vicinity.

NATURAL RESOURCES: A few of the natural resources that are found abundantly in this neighborhood are clay, natural gas, timber, limestone, bluestone and building stone.

SCENERY: Morehead is in the foothills of the Cumberland mountains offering unmatched scenery for the tourist. Here also is one of the virgin spots of the Cumberland national forest with its forest trails, towers, fishing and hunting spots.

CIVIC ADVANTAGES: Under this heading could be included the four fine churches, the numerous lodges, women's and men's clubs.

MUNICIPAL IMPROVEMENTS: Paved streets, electricity, abundant water supply, adequate supply of natural gas, mail service and the construction of a new sewage disposal plant, are all part of the municipal improvements that the city of Morehead has to offer.

GOVERNMENTAL: This heading includes the county and city government and its methods of functioning. A salient point as regarding a factory is the fact that the city has already made them tax-free.

PROGRESS: A comparison of the population over a period of 10 to 20 years is sufficient to show that Morehead is progressing. Another important point under this is the fact that Morehead has as many new homes and buildings as perhaps any town in the state. The progress in private business such as groceries, wholesalers, mercantile, banks, newspapers, etc., could be accurately and plainly outlined so as to show that Morehead is a progressive city.

INDUSTRIAL: Included in the industrial advancement of this county is included the Lee Clay Products Co., the Kentucky Fire Brick Company, quarrying and clay mining. The Lee Clay & Kentucky Fire Brick Company employ hundreds of men and provide a substantial payroll.

FARMING, DAIRYING AND ORCHARDING: This is self-explanatory and within itself explains the typical industry as carried on by the rural people of the county.

CITIZENRY: Rowan county people are descendants of the Anglo-Saxon race, a sturdy group of people who were among America's first settlers. Morehead and Rowan county is composed of high-type citizenry who are honest, industrious and righteous people. We have no rapid changes in population, but have enjoyed a steady growth.

The foregoing are only a few of the more-important items that Morehead should get over to the rest of the state. We should publicize ourselves, for nowhere in Kentucky are the advantages any greater than they are in Morehead.

KEEPING WITHIN BOUNDS

Who is the final authority on governmental matters in America? Is it the President, Congress or the Supreme Court? Who has the final authority in making laws? Who can change the Constitution? The answer to these questions will prove a surprise to most of us. The answers are contained in this week's bulletin of the Lee Clay Products Company headed, "Keeping within Bounds," which reads—

"We Americans are always in a hurry. We rush to work and we rush home. We go in for speed in all things.

"And now we are even told that the American form of government is not speedy enough and is therefore old-fashioned. Too much time is wasted in having a law passed in Congress, it is suggested, and then we wait a few years before the Supreme Court says whether it is constitutional or not.

"And it is said that state lines interfere with legislation, particularly social legislation. Forty-eight states have to pass identical laws in many instances before we can have any uniformity.

"All this is true. Democracy is slow and it is confusing. The voice of the people does not speak as quickly or as positively as the voice of a dictator. "But we do not want dictators. We want to retain the freedom of democracy even if that involves some slowness. The very speed that dictators can employ to produce high efficiency, they can and do also employ to destroy the human rights of the individual, no matter whether he is an employer or an employee, rich man or a poor man.

"From the very beginning of our country we were afraid of the expanding power of government. Even before Washington became our first President, at the Constitutional Convention, this question of the power of government was uppermost in the minds of all the delegates. Where shall the center of power be?"

"And it was decided that the center of power should be the individual American. Not the President, not Congress, not the Supreme Court, not John Q. Citizen and Mr. X. Mary Q. Citizen and their children are the final authorities. They can make or break any official. They can change the laws. They can even change the Constitution.

"To make sure that no official and no group of officials ever forget that the real power is with the individual citizen, a machine was set up in the Constitution to keep officials within bounds.

"No man can be a dictator in the United States as long as that machine continues to work, and state governments are supreme in their own lines.

"Of course the division of the country into states does at times complicate our problems. But the states again serve to keep our federal officials within bounds. For when the Federal Government tries to expand its authority, it comes into conflict with the basic fact that our government is a union among states and that the Constitution is a contract by which all must stand.

"Here then is a system of government especially planned to prevent dictatorship. It is a system which protects the individual in his rights. No one can take those rights from him, because the plan is such that all power goes right back to the people and they have ample opportunity to exercise that power.

One Year Ago This Week

The Rowan County Board of Education was sued for $25,000 and interest on bonds issued in 1928, which allegedly were unpaid.

W. H. Rice, superintendent of buildings and grounds, Morehead College, said no political preference was given in the jobs on the new power plant now under construction by the school.

Tom Rhea opened his campaign of the second primary in Morehead, scoring Chandler. Sam Milam, Elam Huddleston and C. P. Caudill spoke at the same occasion.

The Board of Education announced that Consolidated schools would open September 9.

Officers for the September 7 primary were picked by the election commission.

Rhoda Elam and Ruford Hardin were sentenced to the reform school on conviction of a charge of attempting to rob J. B. Mauk.

WHAT OTHER KENTUCKY EDITORS ARE SAYING

Food For Thought

The Industrial Review points out, very truthfully, too, that the value of the railroad industry to this country can hardly be exaggerated.

Continuing, it is stated that the railroads are prompt taxpayers, which may be one of the specific reasons why some of the companies are unable to earn sufficient revenue to meet all fixed charges and pay a dividend on outstanding stock.

Railroads not only employ large numbers of men who would doubtless find it hard to get permanent positions in other industries but furnish an outlet for steel, lumber, coal, oil, copper, cement and other commodities which, in turn, furnish employment to another large group of labor. In addition, most every section in the United States receives a revenue from the railroads which make possible better schools, better roads, improved streets and better cities and towns, hence their value is, as above stated, hard to exaggerate.

Railroads play a great part in the economic life of our country and we can ill afford to jeopardize their existence. What was Springfield like without railroad facilities? And, lest we forget, the L. & N. not only builds its own road but maintains it and pays tax on it as well.

A movement has been launched to have passenger service restored to the Springfield-Louisville branch, and it should be done at an early date. The so-called mixed service now on this line is a mere makeshift. Express shipments and mail deliveries are delayed and uncertain; passenger traffic is nil. If a regular passenger and express service were afforded The Sun believes sufficient patronage would be given to justify its continuance. Even if it merely paid its way, the L. & N. would have ingratiated itself with an appreciative public by having given better service.—The Springfield Sun.

BIG VINE, LITTLE FRUIT.

THIS WEEK IN MOREHEAD

REGISTRATION: Registration of voters since the August 1 primary in Rowan county are about evenly divided between Democrats and Republicans.

On August 1, Democrats out-registered Republicans by about 500 in Rowan. The county is generally considered to be about half and half, with the Democrats possible holding a slight edge if there is any.

Unless the G. O. P. secures 400 to 500 more registration between now and the middle of October, Rowan appears almost sure to go into President Roosevelt and the Democratic column.

Democratic leaders say a check shows there are many persons affiliated with their party who have not registered. They plan to bring them in to entitle them to a vote in November. The Republicans are expected to make a concentrated effort to get their full strength registered and eligible to participate in the final election.

BUSINESS: Many business houses report that sales during July and August are better than they have been here for many years.

The period from July 15 until September 15, has always been one of the slowest in Morehead since the Morehead State Teachers College is closed at this time and hundreds of local people take their vacations. Heretofore this period has represented one of bare existence for local merchants. Most of them were fortunate if they could make over-head during these two months.

The fact that business has improved in Morehead during these slow months indicates a definite upturn in the standard of living within Rowan county. It indicates more industry—more money and a local permanent buying public.

LAW ENFORCEMENT: Chief of Police John Adams points with pride in the decrease in robberies and general lawlessness in Morehead during the last year.

During that time there has not been a major robbery in the city, and very few in the county.

Adams says that law enforcement is under better control locally than it has been at any time since he has been an officer here.

STOP LIGHTS: Motorists failing to heed stop lights situated at the corner of Main Street and College Boulevard and Main Street and Fairbanks-Wilson avenues, have been the result of many minor wrecks during the last month.

Officers report that these lights are being "run" mostly by local people. Tourists are heeding them fairly well.

There is no question but that these stop lights are a help in enforcing traffic regulations and keeping down accidents if they are observed. Non-observance means that the danger is greater than if the lights were not there.

Your Family Coat of Arms

Sands

Henry Sands, the emigrant, or Sand as the name was later known, here are the first of his name presented above. He was believed to be the second youngest son of Edward Sands, who died when Archbishop of York in the time of Elizabeth George, one of his brothers, held the post of President-Treasurer of the Virginia Company, and a second brother, Sir Edwin, held the office of London Treasurer.

A son of Henry Sands's was Captain James Sands, one of a number of sons who sought Black Island in 1680.

Records indicate that the line of descent of the Sands family is from the Sands family of Ousebury Park, County Worcester, England. The American branch of the family made use of the above armorial bearings which came to them through their English ancestors.

Description of Arms: On a shield of gold a cushion or bar with three crimson crosses.

Crest: A griffin with claws extended.

Short Legislative Session Predicted

Plan For Re-financing State Debt Will Come Before Legislators

Whether Governor Chandler will call a special session of the Kentucky general assembly to consider a plan for refinancing the state debt still is the principal topic of conversation in state political circles.

It is reported that he is conducting a canvass of legislators in an effort to have them agree to adjourn at the expiration of 15 days. If this agreement is reached, it is claimed, the special session will be called.

Apparently the governor harbors the fear that unless such an understanding is reached, the legislators might go to Frankfort and remain indefinitely, thus running the costs of the session well over the appropriation made for the general assembly in the Chandler budget.

However, discovery of a conflict between the state and federal law regarding the meeting of Kentucky's presidential electors may make it necessary for the governor to call a special session, regardless of whether the legislators agree to adjourn sine die at the end of 15 days.

It has been found that if Kentucky's vote is to be counted next January in the electoral college, it will be necessary to amend the state law advancing the date of the Kentucky presidential electors.

An old state statute provides for the meeting of the state electors in Frankfort the second Monday in January, and certifying that vote to Washington authorities.

The "lame duck" amendment to the federal Constitution advanced the date of the inauguration of the President to the third Wednesday in January. A federal statute provides that the vote of all the states must be canvassed the Wednesday following the first Monday in January. This, of course, would come before the meeting of the Kentucky electors.

Thus, to conform with the new federal statute, it will be necessary to change the state law so that the vote of Kentucky electors will be in the hands of Washington officials by the time the vote of other states is officially canvassed.

During the past week a meeting of legislators of the first congressional district was conducted, and all those attending the meeting signed an agreement to the effect that should the governor call a special session, they would vote for adjournment at the expiration of 15 days.

BRINGING SUNSHINE INDOORS

Groups of windows at the corner of the room, fresh slip-covers and plants bring summer into the house.

WARM weather, sunshine and gardens in full bloom make all want to move out-of-doors for the season. For a number of practical reasons, however, the majority of us go on living in our houses, trying in whatever ways we can to bring summer inside.

The next step should be to firmly remove all heavy and unnecessary decorative objects. This means not only window draperies, but heavy or sombre pictures. You can look at the family portraits all winter, but put them away for the summer. Try a mirror over the sofa or fireplace instead. You will be pleasantly surprised at the way the room opens up. And at the same time, remove the Pittsburgh Glass Institute, mirrors increase the light in the room.

EAGLES' CHANCES ARE 'PERKED' UP AS DATE FOR PRACTICE APPROACHES

NOTE: This is the third of a series of articles dealing with the sports picture at the Morehead State Teachers College.

Ellis Johnson, Eagles' New Deal coach, moved into Morehead this week, and is spending his time prior to September 1 in getting acquainted and making as many personal contacts with his prospective players as possible. Accompanying the Morehead coach was Mrs. Johnson, a petite lady who may be of a greater help than we suspect in getting Morehead's football team started with winning ways.

The Johnsons are making their home on Wilson avenue. The latch key is out for you to visit them. Last week the schedule of the Morehead team was carried. However, the possibility of Morehead scoring victories on the gridiron this fall was not gone into very deeply. At this time it seems appropriate that we should delve deeper into the power that Morehead will be forced to contend with.

This is the toughest schedule that the Eagles have ever attempted; at the same time it must be admitted that the "seed" is no more ancient than Morehead should play every year considered ing the size of the local institution and the territory it has from which to attract talent.

Johnson and his boys will get their first baptism of actual fire September 25 when they travel down in Tennessee to meet Wesleyan. The nod naturally goes to a Wesleyan victory, since the Tennessee team had better than a fair record last year, and should be able to cope with a Morehead eleven which is only in the first stages of grasping the Johnson-Miller system.

Perhaps the season's highlight will come with the second game when the almost invincible Murray Thoroughbreds invade Jayne Stadium. A Murray victory is apparently certain, judging from the present status of the Morehead team. However, it is a pretty safe bet that Morehead will be fighting hard against Murray and with the slight advantage of the home field should hold the score down to something like reasonable proportions.

The first chance for an Eagle victory comes in the Georgetown game. The Bengals subdued the Teachers last year by three touchdowns, and were formidable in state S.I.A.A. circles. Georgetown is not expected to be quite as strong as in 1935 while the Morehead team is expected to be better. Morehead is given a chance—something better than an outside shot.

Union—the little Barbourville school—which has been turning the Cardinals won by three touchdowns in 1935 will go out on a limb again and dope this one a Morehead victory. Louisville, attempting to build its athletic program and may be a formidable foe. However, Louisville is the only state team over which Morehead holds the edge in past years, and another Eagle win is very probable.

The foregoing indicates two Morehead victories, five defeats with the Georgetown game a toss-up. If the Eagles can win two games and hold the oppositions victory margin down to respectable limits, Johnson's first year at this school will be considered a success.

The years that Eagle fans are looking forward to are 1937, 1938 and so on down the list. The effects of the building program in athletics now being launched should be felt at that time.

VOTE NO -ON LOCAL OPTION- September 29

And you will be casting your ballot for the best interests of Rowan County and Rowan County People

KEEP ROWAN COUNTY MONEY IN ROWAN COUNTY . . .

There is no rhyme or reason to voting liquor and beer out of this county when it can be bought in every adjoining county -- a few minutes drive from Morehead. Why give them the revenue when our own county is on the verge of bankruptcy.

Don't Send Our Dollars Away!

Here's the difference in Rowan County during the past two years as compared with the ten preceding years of prohibition

MORALLY

Those who favor local option have one campaign plank. They say it is a moral issue. Let's look further in the matter and see just what the morals were before and after prohibition.

While prohibition was in effect there were more law-breakers in Rowan County in one day than there are now in a week. Prohibition made law-breakers of the youth of this county. Since prohibition was voted out they have turned to fields of honest endeavor instead of peddling cheap moonshine whiskey, making it or transporting it. This is so apparent that it cannot be denied.

The repeal of prohibition has made one particular street of Morehead safe for honest men and women to walk on. Ask any officer of the law if this is not true.

Automobile accidents, taken from an actual survey of reports in local newspapers have decreased 60 per cent during the past two years. Think back yourself when every weekend brought maimed bodies and death. Ask any doctor what his record on this is. The moonshine liquor formerly sold in dives and by the slinking bootlegger on the street corner contained so much potash that it ran people crazy, and resulted in wholesale automobile wrecks. There are few deaths and permanent illness now as compared to then.

Robberies in Morehead during the past two years have decreased by more than 75 per cent. Other lawlessness, including murders, stabbings and shooting have materially decreased.

Court dockets are little more than half as large as they were during prohibition.

There is gradually being created a respect for the law, which did not exist during prohibition.

DON'T VOTE FOR THE BOOTLEGGERS. DON'T VOTE TO SEND OUR MONEY AWAY. DON'T VOTE FOR THE RETURN OF LAWLESSNESS.

FINANCIALLY

THERE IS LITTLE DOUBT IN ANYONE'S MIND BUT THAT THE REPEAL OF PROHIBITION HAS BEEN A GREAT FINANCIAL ASSET IN EVERY PART OF THE UNITED STATES. IT HAS PUT HOARDED MONEY IN CIRCULATION.

IN THIS COUNTY IT HAS MEANT A LIVABLE WAGE FOR TOURIST HOMES, AND RESTAURANTS WHERE BEER IS SOLD.

IT HAS PROVIDED EMPLOYMENT FOR MANY PEOPLE.

IT HAS MEANT THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS IN TAX MONEY TO THE STATE AND THE COUNTY.

IT HAS MEANT BETTER BUSINESS IN GENERAL THROUGHOUT THE COUNTY.

PROHIBITION HAS PROVED A FAILURE EVERY PLACE, INCLUDING ROWAN OR ANY OTHER COUNTY. NO NATION HAS FOUND IT SUCCESSFUL, BUT UNDER THE LOCAL OPTION PLAN OF A FEW SCATTERED BRY COUNTIES, IT WILL PROVE A GREATER FAILURE THAN IT DID BEFORE.

THINK — — — STUDY THE FACTS — — — THEN VOTE FOR YOUR INTERESTS.

Vote Against The Bootlegger!

Landon Studies Farm Problem

TOPEKA, Kas.—Visitation is over for Gov. Alf M. Landon, who has settled down to a heavy routine of office and preparing his major campaign addresses. He is shown here with George N. Peek with whom he discussed agricultural policies. Mr. Peek, former AAA administrator for the New Deal, says "Agriculture has definitely lost ground under the New Deal."

Foreign Meat Is on U. S. Tables

Chicago, Ill.—Meat of 100 world now is helping to supply the American dinner table with meat at the expense of the American grower, data on meat imports from New York committee by the National Provisions, a trade publication of the meat packing and allied industries, show.

During the week ending August 13, 1936, the following meat shipments arrived:

- From Argentina, 509,416 pounds of canned beef.
- From Brazil, 558,000 pounds of canned beef.
- From Canada, 4,899 pounds of bacon, 128,300 pounds of pork, 5,627 pounds of frozen beef.
- From Denmark, 16,724 pounds of cooked hams.
- From Finland, 21,396 pounds of smoked hams, 7,356 pounds of salt pork.
- From Hungary, 41,843 pounds of cooked hams.
- From Irish Free State, 2,974 pounds of bacon.
- From Italy, 7,516 pounds of salami.
- From Lithuania, 47,623 pounds of fresh frozen hams, 16,249 pounds of frozen hams.
- From Poland, 27,683 pounds of smoked hams, 21,887 pounds of cooked hams, 11,932 pounds of luncheon meat.
- From Uruguay, 283,108 pounds of smoked cured beef.

For the nine months ending April 30, 1936, there has been imported into the United States, from all countries, 1,000,000 pounds of cottonseed oil, 100,000 pounds of molasses, 100,000 pounds of other products.

These products come into direct competition in the United States with American farmers, and in the case of pork and cotton, drastic reductions have been made in American production under the New Deal agricultural policies.

New York Women Shun Tammany Democracy

Chicago.—"Women are beginning to understand that under the New Deal this is a government for the people, of the people and BUY the people," said Mrs. Henry R. Caraway of New York, president of the Women's National Republican club. She added that New York women "are seething with zeal over the Republican nomination."

EDISON PIONEER EXAMINES SAFE TYPE OF FLEXIBLE CORD

Frederick A. Scheller, associate of Edison in early days, congratulates electrical industry on trend toward safety.

DOES your memory go back as far as the early '80s when everyone was talking about a new mysterious force, electricity, which promised to supply light throughout the world?

Frederick A. Scheller remembers those days very well because at that time he was working with Thomas A. Edison in designing machines and building dynamos for private lighting plants, before central power houses were in existence. He installed electric lights in the J. P. Morgan and Vanderbilt residences in New York in 1882, when the rest of the city was burning gas and candles. He also installed dynamos and lamps in such well-known places as the old Bijou Theatre in Boston, the Eden Musee, the famous wax works in New York, and on the Fall River Steamship Pilgrimage, one of the first boats to have electric lights. At present he is Vice-President and Director of the Thos. Alva Edison Foundation, an organization which offers technical

Roosevelt Visits West's Dust Bowl

President Roosevelt turned Westward Tuesday for his long planned drought inspection tour after a series of Governmental and political conferences, high-spoored by a renewed pledge of support from Senator Carter Glass.

A long air-cooled special train waited to take him to Bismarck, N. D., where on Thursday he will hold the first of a series of individual and group conferences with Federal officials and sixteen State Governors.

His Republican opponent for the Presidency, Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, will attend one of the conferences to be held September 1 at 2:30 p. m., at the State House in Des Moines. It will be attended also by the Governors of Iowa, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Missouri.

White House officials said the President's train would make only operating stops between Washington and Bismarck, his first official stop.

After the North Dakota conference, to be attended by Acting Governor Holt of Montana and Governor Wetford of North Dakota, the Presidential itinerary called for various drought conferences, including one at Indianapolis, September 4, with Governors McNutt of Indiana, Chandler of Kentucky, Davey of Ohio and Frazier of Michigan.

The President will make a brief speech at a bridge dedication at Hannibal, Mo., September 2, and a radio address from his special train giving his impressions of his drought tour. The place and time for the latter has not been decided.

One of the first Presidential callers during the day, Senator Glass came out of an official announcement political conference at the White House with a statement he was going to vote for the re-election of Mr. Roosevelt. The Virginian was invited to the conference by the President.

He also indicated he might make a speech or two for the President, despite doctors' orders that he refrain from such active campaigning.

FARMING BY IMPROVED METHODS

Written by the Staff of the University of Kentucky Agricultural Extension Work, College of Agriculture

College Appeals to Farmers to Save Stock Feed

An appeal to farmers to save all stock feed possible, is made in a statement from the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky. Because of the extensive drought, feed will be scarce and high in price. It will, therefore, be to the advantage of farmers to save all corn, fodder and other materials that can be used for stock feed.

It is suggested that all corn be cut, so the entire stalk can be saved and fed. Topping and pasturing corn in the field are considered wasteful. The trench silo, as advanced as an economical method of making corn and other roughage into ensilage. Many farmers have tried trench silos in the last few years and have found them satisfactory. They are easy to construct and do not require expensive machinery in filling. It is pointed out that corn fodder will have extra feeding value this year, due to the fact that the topping of corn is not only considered wasteful, but when done early it tends to stop further development of both stalk and ear. Where corn is shocked standing in the field, and the field then pastured, it is estimated that 30 per cent of the value of the fodder is lost. Leaves and blades blow away, and rain damages the stalks. Rag weeds, foxgall, crabgrass and other grasses and weeds may be made into hay, in many instances, it is declared. They often make satisfactory feed, especially when supplemented with fodder or hay.

All straw from threshed grain should be carefully saved, the college suggests. The same applies to chaffs left from threshing, livestock, red clover and sorghum crops. It is pointed out that there will be extra room in barns this year, due to the small hay crop and also to a possible short tobacco crop. Many farmers are planning to fill their barns with hay and fodder. In some instances they will shed the corn fodder before putting it in barns.

In some sections of Kentucky rain came in time to produce a fair corn crop and also considerable alfalfa, lespedeza and other feeds. Also considerable Sudan grass, soybeans and other hay and crops.

pasture crops were seeded in same regions. It is urged that these crops be carefully preserved.

Where farmers have crops, they may find it advisable to sell grain and hay, because of good prices, and save for their own feed corn fodder and cheaper hay. Or, are fairly good, most satisfactory in some instances, where crops may be purchased for carrying through the winter. Indications point to good livestock prices another year.

Following the cutting of corn and tobacco, the college urges that small grains be seeded for fall and winter pasture. Not only do feed, wheat, winter oats and barley provide an abundance of feed, but they prevent erosion and leaching of the soil and are among the best cover crops.

Use Tattoo to Thwart Thieves As a part of their anti-wide drive against the stealing of farm property, chickens are being tattooed in Fleming, Madison, Pulaski and Hart counties in Kentucky, and the work soon will be extended to all northern and central parts of the state.

In the case of chickens, the tattoo is used in the web of a wing. Other livestock, a brand is used. Methods also have been devised to protect grain and farm equipment. Sheriffs and other law-enforcing officers in Kentucky and surrounding states are furnished with each farmer's brand, should it be possible to trace stolen property.

The tattoo method of protecting poultry was endorsed at the annual summer meeting of the Kentucky Poultry Improvement Association at the Agricultural Experiment Station, Lexington, Ky. The service is being used by farmers in several states, and is said to be highly effective.

Thousands of dollars worth of poultry, sheep and other livestock are stolen in Kentucky annually. With the rapid development of the poultry industry, losses have been heavy among farmers raising the bird.

Suggests Combining Meat and Other Food

Mrs. Pearl J. Haak, Kentucky College of Agriculture. When food is scarce and there is only a limited amount of money to spend, care should be taken not to buy too much meat or spend the allowance for expensive cuts.

Each farm family should have a plan to supply some things which may be substituted for meat. Cream cheese is a meat substitute which is easily digested and inexpensive. Plans should be made to have a cheap cut of fresh, lean meat occasionally. The flavor can be stretched by combining with other foods, as:

Farmer's Cabbage—Use a cupful each of cold cooked meat, cabbage, cooked tomatoes, and bread crumbs, with salt and pepper for seasoning.

Chop the meat into small pieces, also the cabbage. Put a layer of meat in the bottom of the baking dish, then a layer of cabbage, then a layer of tomatoes. Continue until the entire quantity has been used. Season each layer as it is put on. Cover all with bread crumbs and bake in a moderate oven until brown. A serving of either liver, heart, kidney, brain, tripe, tongue or sweet breads once a week will help to prevent diseases among children as well as adults.

Braised Liver with Vegetables—Use 2 pounds of liver, 8 medium of a pound of salt pork, 6 medium of small potatoes, 1 onion, 2 cupfuls of tomatoes, a teaspoonful of salt, and flour.

Wipe the liver and rub with flour and sear in hot fat. Place in a baking dish, cut the salt pork in thin strips and place on top. Arrange potatoes and carrots around the liver, add the tomatoes and seasoning. Bake in a hot oven until done, or about an hour and a half.

Salmon is an inexpensive substitute for fish and should be served at least once a week. Salmon also combines well with tomatoes and onions.

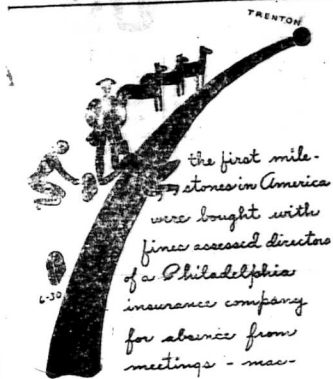

Tomato Salmon—Use 2 cupfuls of cooked tomatoes, a can of salmon, 4 medium-sized onions, 4 tablespoonfuls of sugar and a teaspoonful of salt.

Cook the onions in bacon fat or butter, and flake the salmon. Add all ingredients to the onions and let simmer for about 30 minutes. A cupful of rice or spaghetti may also be added.

Though cuts of meat may be made tender by cooking a long time at a low temperature in a covered vessel.

The Farm and Home To remove fruit stains from cottons and linens, spread cloth over bucket and pour boiling water through the stain. If the material has been washed, it may be necessary to use a brush, or soak in water to which has been added ammonia or peroxide of hydrogen. Soap sets stains. Unless a pressure canner is available, it is better to dry corn than to attempt to can it. Dip ears in hot water for 8 to 12 minutes, drain, cool and cut off the grains, spread on trays half to three-quarters of inch deep, and stir frequently during drying process. THE GARDEN

Vegetables for the Winter

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

The weather records kept at the Kentucky Experiment Station place the first frost date for the latitude of Lexington at October 10. Nobody knows whether 1936 is to be a normal year in this respect, but this much is certain, that sometime this fall will come frosty nights to put an end to gardening for the year. After that the vegetable diet of Kentuckians will consist of those garden products which have been possible to can or dry or those that were saved by storing in their fresh state.

All three of these methods should be employed, but because canning and drying entail certain amounts of labor and precise technique, and fuel, to say nothing of investment in equipment and the fragile containers, storing should be the method utilized when the nature of the vegetable permits, and space is easily used to save these products that can be saved in no other way. There is this additional reason for the selection of vegetables in the condition they come from the garden, that vegetables that have been canned or dried have lost a certain degree of their flavor, perhaps some of their food value, and more or less, too, their content of vitamin content, elements whose importance to human well-being is so much emphasized these days.

To delve into the technique of canning and drying the vegetables is beyond the scope of this discussion, but those persons who wish, may have detailed information concerning both these matters by asking for Kentucky Extension Circular 220, the canning circular, and a special leaflet on "Drying Vegetables." Inquiries should be addressed to the Kentucky College of Agriculture, at Lexington; both publications are free.

Returning to the storing of vegetables, the list includes sweet potatoes, the tubers, the melons, tomatoes, peppers, eggplant, potatoes, cabbage and the root crops comprising turnip, parsnip, salsify, beets and carrots. This list divides itself as to the storage requirements of the vegetables, whether a dry and relatively warm structure is needed, or whether merely protection against freezing suffices. The first group, the first-named six, are called the "warm" crops; the rest, the "cool" crops.

Beginning next week, and continuing for four weeks, discussion of storage structures and storage procedure will appear, to aid any gardener who wishes, as he ought, to save for winter use his surplus vegetables, through storage.

This orchard is carrying a splendid crop of clean apples estimated at 5,000 bushels, mostly of Rose Beauty, York Imperial and Stayman varieties. The orchard is equipped with a modern, stationary outfit which makes it possible to cover the entire 40 acres in three days spraying, which formerly took from seven to eight days to spray the orchard with a portable spray outfit.

Visitors will be interested in seeing a simple, modern, economical cool storage of 7,000 bushel capacity.

A short program, as follows, will be given: "Recovery of Apple and Peach Orchards Following a Severe Cold Winter and the Drouth of 1936." W. W. Magill, fruit specialist, College of Agriculture, Lexington.

"Diversifying Our Orchard Program." Ben F. Niles, Secretary of State Horticultural Society, Henderson, Ky.

"Desirable Grape Varieties for Roadside Market," Dr. H. Van Antwerp, Farmers, Ky.

"Demonstration in Operating a Stationary Spray Outfit." I. C. Nisbet, manager of the Van Antwerp orchards.

A tour will be made of the orchard and vineyard, followed by the above program. All fruit growers, with their families, interested in seeing a modern orchard and vineyard will be welcome at this meeting and all will be invited to take part in the discussions.

MANY CHANGES MADE IN HIGH SCHOOL COACHING STAFFS IN EASTERN SECTION OF STATE

Not only will the Morehead State Teachers College have new faces in the coaching regime this fall, but practically every high school in which Morehead people have a friendly interest will see new faces with an almost complete turnover in the coaching staffs.

Judging from the changes made the last year was an open season on coaches, and Boards of Education and the higher-up went hunting.

Roy Holbrook, a grand old man of high school and football in this section for many years, who brought the Morehead High School Vikings into the limelight of eastern Kentucky sports, represents a change at the Morehead High school. Holbrook has not been coaching at the Viking institution for sometime, but his is, by no means a new face, but rather a return to the old guard.

Holbrook replaces Paul Combs, who had taken the place of Austin Middle, when the latter resigned during last year's basketball season.

The material that Roy will have to work with at Morehead High is, by no means, as promising as it could be. However, Holbrook's knack of developing something from nothing, with the net result that Morehead High fans are looking forward to a few victories on the gridiron and basketball court this year.

It is fairly well known that Holbrook is allowing no grass to grow under his feet. Since he was employed last spring as the coach of the Green and White, he has been sounding out his prospects—looking for new talent, and devising in his own mind, the pro's and con's of the 1936 Vikings.

The year's have been lean at Morehead High, but the future holds considerable promise.

The coach for the Breckinridge High team has not been selected. During the past year, Bobby Laughlin directed the destinies of the "Little Eagles" with marked success in basketball. The football team did not register a victory, and the chances are that Breckinridge will be weak on the gridiron this year.

Fundamentally speaking, Breckinridge is unbeatatable. The boys know football and how it should be played. However, they have been, from indications, will continue to be handicapped by size. Every game they played found the Breckinridge team outwitted around 20 pounds to the man.

A list of the beating they took on the football field were avenged with basketball victories.

Halideman, another Rowan county school, that has been having teen sport picking for the last 2 or 3 years, will have a change in its coaching staff. Lawrence Pralry, former Morehead College star, was not re-employed at Halideman and the coach has not been selected. It is probable, however, that Pralry will continue to be coaching. Laughlin enjoyed a bountiful overflowing cup of victories in basketball when he was the coach's several years ago, but he won't have the turn-out of good material that he had. Laughlin has some A-1 girls teams when he was coaching at Halideman, but if he is the coach this year, he will concentrate on the boys' team, since girls basketball has been stricken from the list of sports in this state. Halideman does not have a football team, since the school is small.

A loss to Soldier this year represents a gain at Grayson. Allie

Holbrook, the Morehead College product, who has brought the Little Carter county brick settlement out of the sports mire, will change location for the first time. He goes to a bigger school—Prichard High of Grayson.

Allie leaves the makings of another good basketball team at Prichard, and his successor should make merry with some of the Panther's opponents.

The prospects are fair at Grayson, with a strong likelihood that the Prichard boys, with Allie steering the ship, will prove one of the toughest high school combinations in this section of the state.

Scattered showers fell in the community, affording some relief from the blistering weather. Frankfort was the state's hot spot today, reporting a maximum temperature of 108 degrees.

No relief was in sight, the weather bureau said, the forecast being fair and warmer and generally fair all week.

Warmed weather is outlook for week

Five men died from the effects of the heat in Kentucky Sunday as the second deadly wave to strike the state this summer continued unchecked.

Scattered showers fell in the community, affording some relief from the blistering weather. Frankfort was the state's hot spot today, reporting a maximum temperature of 108 degrees.

It was 102 at Louisville, setting another all-time daily record. 103 at Lexington and 102 at Bowling Green and Ashland.

Penalty for Violation by School Teacher or Teacher: Any principal or teacher, or other school officer who shall willfully fail to comply with the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars ($25) nor more than fifty dollars ($50) and in addition thereto shall be removed from office and have his certificate revoked.

Penalty for Violation by Attendance Officer: Any attendance officer or assistant attendance officer who willfully fails to comply with the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars ($25) nor more than fifty dollars ($50) and in addition thereto shall be removed from office and have his certificate revoked.

After reading these regulations you can see that the Attendance Officer, Employer, Teacher and Parent are placed in a very unpleasant position. They are all subject to being fined if they fail to comply with the law. The teacher must report these absences or else she is subject to a fine. You will help her in explaining the absence if there must be one by writing a letter explaining the cause of the illness. If a child dies in the family, then the case will be dealt with justly, if not the case will have to be investigated.

Let's make it a year of perfect attendance and then you can watch the progress of your child, the progress of all schools in your county. Let's make our county top the list in attendance this year, by having the co-operation of every citizen in the county.

CCC Recruit Effects Second Rescue in Less Than One Year

Bob Brown, member of the Clearfield CCC camp, took first laurels this week in saving lives, by rescuing an aged man who was drowning in the Kentucky river at Boonesboro. Last year the same Brown rescued a small boy in Triplett creek and brought him to life with artificial respiration.

Brown's latest exploit is described in the "Quill," camp publication as follows:

"Sunday morning Bob Brown and Clifford Getz left with some friends from Morehead for the beach at Boonesboro, Ky., to enjoy the day.

"Doning their beach wear Bob and Clifford decided to swim across the river to get a hike to eat. Finding that the Inn was out of food at the time they purchased a cold drink and, returning, dived in behind several aged men.

Bob asked Clifford to stay close and in case either got a cramp to aid him to shore. Due to the splashing of the aged men they pulled before them and swam for shore.

"Taking a few steps up on the beach they heard a cry for help. Looking back they saw a young lad calling for help and pointing to one of the aged men that had been left behind. Without a hat of rest both Bob and Clifford swam in to be of any help if possible. As the pair drew nearer to the aged man Clifford saw the young lad swimming toward the drowning man and knowing that he would not have a chance warned him to stay away.

"Meanwhile, Bob pulled up beside the drowning man and grabbed him under the chin. As his last ray of hope the drowning man grabbed Bob's arm and pulled him under. Through quick thinking Bob's arm broke his grip, grabbed him by the hair and rescued him from drowning."

GOOD NIGHT MY BELOVED

The stars are lit above
The fire flies light their lamps below.

The jasmine's scent floats on the breeze,
And swings its blossoms to and fro.

I sit alone, a night bird's song
Comes to my ears with strange unrest

Soft notes, as if an ill hid woe
Were trembling in the singer's breast.

It's just the same this summer night,
As 'twas ten years ago, dear heart.

The scented dusk, the stars o'head
The night bird with its hidden heart.

The same? No no the same with me
This night, and that are worlds apart.

In joy for you were with me then,
Your words of cheer were sweet,
Dear heart.

I know not where you now may be,
You may be near, you may be far.

In this or other God's worlds,
May be beyond the farthest star.
I can not tell; but this I know,
I love you still, your memory's bright.

The stars grow dim, the night bird's gone,
The fire flies rest dear heart good night.
