is busily preparing for its biggest parade ever.

Morehead State University's Marching Band, conducted by Dr. Robert Hawkins, will march in Washington Saturday as Kentucky's official representative to President Nixon's inaugural parade.

Although MSU bands have appeared in the past three Kentucky gubernatorial inaugural parades, Morehead State has never sent a band to the Presidential ceremonies. Dr. Hawkins, a veteran band director who has been at MSU since 1967, said he has not conducted any marching performance to compare with this one. "Of course, we have been rehearsing daily but there are many other details which must be taken care of," Dr. Hawkins said.

He has written a medley of song arrangements based on the patriotic theme of "Spirit of '76" and emphasizing Kentucky as the land of Daniel Boone.

During its one-and-a-half mile march down Pennsylvania
Avenue, the 243 bandsmen will perform "My Old Kentucky Home,"
"God Bless America," "Daniel Boone Was a Man," "America the Beautiful" and "2001 Space Odyssey."

MSU Band--2-2-2-2-2

Dr. Hawkins has been coordinating arrangements for travel, food and lodging and attending to a variety of details. The band leaves Friday by chartered bus and returns Sunday.

"I just hope we haven't forgotten anything," said Mrs. Hawkins, who assists her husband.

Members of the band will carry banners marked "Morehead State University" and "The Band from Daniel Boone Land." The words "Morehead" and "Kentucky" are printed in blue felt letters on the Sousaphones.

Costumed as "Becky Boone," MSU's 25 majorettes will wear white coonskin caps and accessories, Rebecca's red hair, red tights and blue uniforms.

"The red, white and blue national colors signify the intense patriotism felt by all Kentuckians," Dr. Hawkins said. "Since we are located in the Daniel Boone National Forest and our band camp is named for it, we are glad Kentucky is emphasizing Daniel Boone."

"It is indeed a signal honor for the University's marching band to be invited to represent the Commonwealth," said MSU President Adron Doran. "The band is worthy of this recognition and will account for itself in an admirable fashion."

The band, which will march in the center of the parade, can be seen Saturday on national television between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. EST.

(Special to The Trail Blazer)

In an effort to provide improved medical services for students at Morehead State University, a personal services contract has been negotiated with the Morehead Clinic, President Adron Doran announced today.

The agreement calls for the daily services of a physician's assistant and periodic visits, when necessary, of the Morehead Clinic's full-time physicians to the University Infirmary at Fields Hall.

The physician's assistant is Milton L. Wright, a veteran of more than 20 years as an Air Force medical corpsman. His office hours will be from 8 a.m. until noon, Monday through Friday.

He interviews, examines and treats patients in consultation with the Morehead Clinic's medical staff. In addition, he also performs certain diagnostic laboratory tests.

Tests now available at the Infirmary include white blood count, hematocrit, urinalysis, urine culture, throat culture, gram stain and mononucleosis.

Dr. Doran said emergency cases will continue to be taken directly to St. Claire Medical Center and other area hospitals. Also, the 24-hour nursing service at the Infirmary will not be affected by the new arrangement.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---A faulty alarm clock and a missed bus ride didn't stop student musician Allen Hatton, Louisville freshman at Morehead State University, from playing in President Nixon's Inaugural Parade.

He was scheduled to leave Friday, Jan. 19, with the rest of MSU's "Big Band from Daniel Boone Land" but awoke at 9:15 a.m. and discovered the bus had left at 8 a.m.

"I was up late the night before and planned to stay up all night so I wouldn't miss the bus," he said. "As a precaution, I set the alarm. If it went off, I didn't hear it."

"I quickly got dressed and looked for the bus," Hatton said. "I called a bus station to try to catch another bus but they would arrive in Washington too late for the parade."

A friend took Hatton to Huntington, W. Va., and he caught a jet to Washington, D.C. With $6 in his pocket, he arrived in Washington four hours earlier than MSU's chartered buses.

"I paid a cab four dollars to take me to the hotel. I watched television until Dr. Robert Hawkins, the band director, arrived," he said.

Ironically, Hatton gained his position as a tuba player in the 1.5-mile parade when the regular tuba player overslept for a rehearsal. Hatton usually plays the trumpet.

Why did he decide to take a plane at his own expense?

"The band needed a tuba player, and I would never have heard the last of it for the next four years if I hadn't shown up," concluded the Atherton High School graduate.

Barker and James, freshmen at Morehead State University, joined the fire department during their senior year at Rowan County High School.

Both students are on call 24 hours per day and, when the fire alarm sounds, they rush to the fire department and on to the fire. They work as hose men and go to an average of two fires per week.

All volunteers go through extensive training on fire fighting techniques. This is one reason the Morehead Fire Department is rated as one of the best volunteer departments in the state.

Both Barker and James stated that they are proud to be members of such an important community service.

Both students are recipients of four-year Army ROTC scholarships. They are also members of the Army ROTC Raider Company.

Scott is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Barker of Clearfield. Tim James is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chenault James of Morehead.

Upon graduation and completion of the Army ROTC program, they will be commissioned second lieutenants in the U.S. Army and serve four years on active duty.

Dr. Benjamin Spock said Friday at Morehead State University that the prospect of President Nixon winning the Nobel Peace Prize is reason for him to "vomit."

The pediatrician-turned-politician said of Nixon's nomination for the award:

"How can you give a peace prize to a man who carpet bombed a nation at Christmastime? He is the least peace loving of all of our presidents."

Spock, whose visit was sponsored by MSU's Student Government Association, ran for President last year as a candidate of the Peoples Party. He said his appearances Thursday and Friday in Kentucky were "recruiting trips" for the new political party.

Spock, who was once convicted of counseling draft resisters, said current chances of a general amnesty are "zero" for persons who opposed induction because of the Vietnam fighting.

The author of the world's best selling baby book also attacked the late President Johnson for his role in Vietnam, alleging that the Gulf of Tonkin incident was deliberately provoked to justify the American buildup.

Dr. Spock -2-2-2-2

Spock told the predominantly student audience of about 700 persons that he had been radicalized by personal experiences which began with his opposition to nuclear testing in 1962.

In other references to Vietnam, Spock said "the only Vietnamese with guts and patriotism are fighting on the other side." He accused the United States of widespread violations of international law in the use of certain weapons and deaths of civilians.

Spock said the Peoples Party was trying to build a national organization between elections and that the party's major planks are elimination of all tax loopholes, a guaranteed annual income of $6,500 for a family of four, closing of all U. S. military bases abroad, limitation on personal income and inheritances, legalization of marijuana, amnesty for all war resisters, keeping business out of politics and replacing corporate boards of directors with consumers and workers.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---A cooperative venture involving Morehead State University and the Morehead Girls Center is helping nine young women bridge the education gap.

Started two months ago as a supplement to the institution's regular educational program, the General Education Development (GED) project consists of individualized instruction three times a week by four graduate assistants in MSU's Department of Adult and Continuing Education.

"The informal atmosphere has proved to be motivating for the girls and their response has been very encouraging," said Mrs. Pat Stivers, the center's education coordinator. "From these early results, the program appears to be quite successful."

The project consists primarily of helping prepare the nine selected residents to take the GED examination which, if passed, entitles them to a high school equivalency certificate.

Dr. Harold Rose, head of adult and continuing education at MSU, feels the enthusiasm of the four volunteer instructors is a "significant factor" in the acceptance of the GED training.

Graduate students working in the program are Marie Raines of Alamo, Tenn., Mike Curtis of Ashland, Rick Moss of Henderson and Charles Kennedy of Burnside, Pulaski County.

George Wilson, the center director, also is pleased with the project, calling it "a very welcome and worthwhile addition to our total educational effort."

The Morehead Girls Center is a detention facility for young females. It is operated by the Kentucky Department of Child Welfare.

MSU President Adron Doran announced this week that 6,205 persons have enrolled on campus for the spring term, nearly 300 more than the previous record of 5,922 in the spring of 1969.

Dr. Doran said the total enrollment figure does not include 613 persons enrolled in correspondence courses, 450 in extension classes at 17 locations and 553 at University Breckinridge School, the campus laboratory school.

More than 79 per cent of those on campus are Kentucky residents. The student body consists of 3,107 men and 3,098 women.

By class, the breakdown is 1,467 freshmen, 1,179 sophomores, 1,129 juniors, 1,240 seniors and 1,190 graduate students.

"We are encouraged that the University is continuing to meet the challenge of providing higher education opportunities for more and more people in our region of the Commonwealth each year," President Doran said in releasing the figures.

"Cloyd McDowell, who is chairman of the Appalachian Coal Mining Institute Advisory Council, a member of the MSU Board of Regents and president of the Harlan County Coal Operators Association, has been instrumental in developing the Institute and in helping obtain such projects for it," Dr. Doran said.

Dr. Doran added, "B. F. Reed, treasurer of the Turner Elkhorn Mining Company and a member of the MSU Board of Regents, has also played a very significant role in the development of the Institute."

Hylbert will be studying unstable conditions in surface mines. He plans to examine patterns of rocks, map the areas to show lateral changes in the rocks and take core samples of mine roofs.

By using radiography, Hylbert will examine physical and structural features such as clay-mineral content. "I hope to pick up indexes that mining companies could use to determine unstable areas," he said.

Roof falls are the major cause of fatal and non-fatal injuries in underground coal mines, Hylbert said.

"Unfortunately, little of the on-going mining research directly relates to the analysis of roof rocks overlying coal seams from a geologic standpoint or provides for determining the affects of these factors on the overall strength or stability of these exposed rocks," Hylbert said.

The field study site will be selected from Harlan, Letcher, Leslie, Perry, Knott or Pike counties. Field research will begin this spring, Hylbert said.

The need for this study was identified by Hylbert through a field survey of the needs of the mining industry funded by the Coal Mining Institute in the summer of 1971.

Students will be assisting Hylbert on the projects. "The project can provide an excellent opportunity for independent study by advance geology students," he said.

The purpose of the Appalachian Coal Mining Institute is to develop a comprehensive program consisting of research, training and service relating to the coal industry.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Another chapter in the love affair between Morehead State University and the family of Mrs. Otela Smiley of Prestonsburg has unfolded.

Dr. James Smiley, who recently completed his doctoral studies at Ohio State University, has joined the faculty as an associate professor of business education.

A 1962 MSU graduate, Smiley was the first of 10 brothers and sisters to attend MSU. Five Smileys have graduated and two of the girls are presently enrolled at Morehead State.

Presently carrying the Smiley name at MSU are Martha, a junior business education major, and Dinah, a sophomore art major.

Being numbers 14 and 15 on the list of 16 living Smiley children, the current MSU Smileys were influenced by visits to the campus during family graduations and by advice from the older Smileys who graduated from MSU.

"Since he was the first to come here, James has been responsible for the rest of us choosing Morehead State," said Dinah.

The first in the family to earn an MSU degree, James Smiley also received a master's degree from MSU before teaching five years at Pikeville College.

Wayne, the second Smiley to graduate, works in Frankfort. Elizabeth Smiley Sinor is teaching in Germany, while Debby Smiley Sewell is living in Meridian, Miss. Veronica Smiley is a special education teacher at Cynthiana.

(MORE)

Smileys at MSU-2-2-2-2

Nick, Rick and Judy Smiley attended MSU but moved on to other colleges. Two other brothers also graduated from Kentucky universities.

It has not been easy for so many Smiley children to attend MSU. Mrs. Smiley is not able to pay all of the college expenses but the children have won scholarships, earned loans and worked to stay in school.

Older Smileys have helped the younger ones who, in turn, help the even younger.

The Smiley-MSU love affair may have yet another chapter. Phillip, a senior at Prestonsburg High School, is interested in Morehead State.

"When Phillip starts to college next fall, he will be the 15th in our family of 16 to attend college," James Smiley said.

Why did Dr. Smiley return to his alma mater?

"I wanted to be associated with a strong business education program and I have an opportunity to work on an accounting text," he said.

"Also, it's quite a homecoming," he concluded.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Likenesses of the seven first ladies of Morehead State University are being preserved in an exhibit of dolls at MSU's Johnson Camden Library.

The exhibit was sponsored by the University Younger Woman's Club to commemorate MSU's Golden Anniversary and the club's 10th birthday.

The club adopted the "First Ladies of Morehead State University" exhibit as a heritage project to help meet the state club's objective of historical preservation and to enter in the General Federation of Women's Clubs' Community Improvement Contest for 1971-73.

This project is patterned after the successful venture of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs honoring the wives of Kentucky governors.

"We felt preserving our history and heritage would be improving our community, since the community of our club is MSU," said Mrs. Kay Stephenson, who was club president when the project began.

"As women, we had noted the absence of historical evidence of the influence of the presidents' wives on the growth of the university and felt there was a definite need for historical preservation in this area," said Mrs. Doris Wells, project chairman and a charter member of the club.

"We are proud of the contributions of the first ladies and feel these should be noted," Mrs. Wells said.

Since there was very little information on file about MSU's first ladies, an extensive search was conducted by the club. Working with Mrs. Wells on the committee were Gaye Osborne, Joyce Saxon, Patsy Wright, Kay Stephenson, Trina Jewell and Nancy Henson.

"One of our best sources of information was Miss Anna Carter, who served as secretary to all seven presidents," Mrs. Wells said.

By using pictures and descriptions, Mrs. John Kelley made evening gowns for the dolls. Being a native Moreheadian, Mrs. Kelley is familiar with all the first ladies. Wigs for the dolls were styled by Betty Stucky, Nancy Fouch and Linda Sams, Morehead beauticians.

The gown worn by the doll representing the current MSU first lady, Mrs. Mignon Doran, is a facsimile of the gown she wore when Lady Bird Johnson spoke to the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs during Mrs. Doran's tenure as president of the state organization.

Mrs. Doran founded and federated the University Younger Woman's Club in 1963 during her term as KFWC president. The group has been selected each year since as an "honor club."

"To our knowledge, this club is unique in that it is the only federated woman's club associated with a university community," Mrs. Doran said.

"I am happy that the club is making this strong effort to preserve and document its history as it relates to Morehead State University," she added.

Special to The Morehead News

WASHINGTON, D.C.--Dr. Adron Doran, President of Morehead State University, was among a contingent of state college and university presidents who met with Congressional leaders in Washington, D.C. to urge their action on what is becoming an emergency student aid situation.

As a member of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities which arranged the legislative conference, President Doran and his fellow presidents represented 300 state colleges and universities in the nation in their talks with Congress on February 27-28.

President Doran contacted the Kentucky Congressional delegation, impressing upon them the adverse effects which the federal student aid programs could have upon students unless certain provisions are made. In a statement released by the Presidents during a press conference in the Capitol Building, they stressed the point that, "In the past, presidents have discussed with Congress the need for institutional aid, the construction and remodeling of facilities, and the funding of specific categorical programs. But today we are not here for our institutions--we are here for our students."

The presidents urged continued funding of the educational opportunity grants and low cost student loans at a realistic level in addition to the funding of the Basic Educational Opportunity Grants proposed by President Nixon. The presidents stressed the need for quick action on the FY 1973 supplemental appropriations bill which contains the student aid provisions. Without quick action, institutions will be unable to tell their students what kind of financial aid may be available for next fall.

In a scheduled meeting on the Hill, presidents were briefed by Speaker of the House Carl Albert (D-Okla.); House Minority Leader Gerald Ford (R-Mich); James O'Hara, chairman of the House Special Subcommittee on Education (D-Mich); John Dellenback, ranking minority member of the House Special Subcommittee on Education (R-Ore.); Albert Quie, ranking minority member of the House Committee on Education and Labor (R-Minn.); and Carl D. Perkins, chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor (D-Ken.). The Congressional leaders congratulated the Presidents on their purposefulness and their efforts to contact Congressmen, stressing the point that only through such personal contacts can Congress be made aware of the special needs of state colleges and universities and their students.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---The physical facilities of Morehead State University have grown almost magically since Morehead State Normal School began 50 years ago with four buildings, one of brick and three of wood construction.

Within three years, new buildings which reflected the new mission of the institution began to rise on the campus. In 1926, an administration building, now Radar Hall, was built. That same year, Allie Young Hall was opened. Two more dormitories, Thompson and Fields halls, were added in 1927. Button Auditorium was built in 1929.

The growing school was provided in 1930 with a home for its president. The new library was built in 1930. The next year, Jayne Memorial Stadium was built at the east end of the campus, and University Breckinridge School went up nearby. Senff Natatorium was built in 1932.

By 1937, with the extension of the campus to the west by Lappin Hall and to the east by the construction of Mays Hall, the campus had taken on the physical form it was to retain for most of the next two decades.

Construction got underway again in 1953 with the erection of Baird Music Hall. The campus rarely has been without major construction projects since that date.

A dozen residence halls have been built, beginning with Waterfield in 1960, Butler in 1961, Wilson in 1962, Mignon and Regents in 1963, West Mignon in 1964, East Mignon and Cooper in 1965, Mignon Tower and Alumni Tower in 1967 and Cartmell and Nunn Halls in 1969. Eleven structures have been added to provide 165 apartments for married students and 34 housing units have been built for faculty.

The Doran Student House was built in 1957 and expanded in 1969 and renamed the Adron Doran University Center. The Combs Classroom Building was constructed in 1961, and the Lloyd Cassity Building rose next to it the following year.

The Jerry Howell ~~Cloyd McDowell~~ Administration Building was constructed in 1963 and enlarged in 1966. Palmer House, a home-making laboratory, was acquired in 1964. The W. H. Rice Maintenance Service Building was constructed in 1965. This surge of campus expansion brought two additions to Baird Music Hall, and one each to Lappin, University Breckinridge, Button and Johnson Camden Library.

Wetherby Gymnasium was built in 1956 and in 1967 the Laughlin Health Building opened with facilities for teaching health, physical education and recreation and for intramural sports.

Breathitt Sports Center, which includes a 10,000-seat stadium, track, baseball and soccer fields, tennis courts, intramural fields and practice fields, was built in 1964. Downing Hall, the athletic dormitory, was built in 1967, the same year the University acquired a nine-hole golf course east of Morehead on U.S. 60.

Two new academic facilities were finished near the center of the campus in 1968--the Claypool-Young Art Building and Lyman V. Ginger Hall. The University acquired a 212-acre experimental farm the same year.

In 1970, the original Administration Building, by then named Rader Hall, was renovated to become the home of the School of Social Sciences.

Holbrook Manor was acquired in 1971 to provide 10 faculty apartments.

Construction continues at the western edge of the campus, where the $3.5-million Boyd F. Reed Hall is being built to house the Appalachian Technical Institute.

Now consisting of more than 50 major structures, the MSU campus is valued at over $75 million.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---For almost two decades the names of Dr. Adron Doran and Morehead State University have stood for excellence in public higher education.

As president of MSU since 1954, he has guided and prodded the growth of a tiny state teachers college into an innovative university reaching out to serve Eastern Kentucky and the nation.

Morehead State University stands today on a beautiful, 500-acre campus in the foothills of Daniel Boone National Forest, a campus renowned for its physical beauty, academic excellence and congenial spirit.

Statistically, the rise of MSU under Dr. Doran's farsighted leadership has been breathtaking. From the time of his inauguration as the University's seventh chief executive, enrollment has mushroomed more than 900 per cent from 698 students to nearly 6,400.

More than $60 million has been expended in capital construction and the faculty and staff today number nearly 750 persons, a far cry from the 91 of just 16 years ago. From a budget of $820,000 in 1954-55, the fiscal outlay has increased more than twentyfold to more than $17 million for the current term.

Physically, the university today consists of more than 50 major structures on the campus proper with a value of more than $70 million. Additionally, a 212-acre experimental farm is being developed north of Morehead in rural Rowan County..

In the last five years alone, Morehead State's imaginative yet practical building program has produced more than $25 million in new physical facilities and brought MSU a series of architectural awards.

Now under construction is a $3.5 million Appalachian Technical Institute, hailed as a "significant breakthrough" in technical education for Kentucky and the rest of Appalachia. A five-year development plan costing $750,000 has been launched at the MSU Farm.

Academically, the university has grown into six schools - Social Sciences, Business and Economics, Education, Applied Sciences and Technology, Humanities and Sciences and Mathematics - and the Graduate Programs Division and Morehead Community College. They combine to offer graduate, undergraduate and associate degrees. Nearly 40 per cent of the faculty holds earned doctorates.

Dr. Doran has won national attention for his role in promoting human dignity as MSU recorded more than 30 precedents in dealing with ethnic minority groups.

The MSU president received the honor of a lifetime in 1971 when he was presented the Horatio Alger Award in recognition of his struggle to overcome humble circumstances and attain unquestioned success. Dr. Doran was only the fourth Kentuckian so honored.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Historically, the general public has measured institutions of higher learning by a single criterion -- enrollment.

At Morehead State University, that unofficial yardstick was subject to sharp fluctuations until Dr. Adron Doran became president in 1954. Since then, the movement has been up...and up...and up.

MSU's first official enrollment figure of record was 21 for the 1923-24 school year. By the end of the first decade in 1931-32, the enrollment stood at 674.

The onset of World War II played havoc with the figures and the student population dropped to 432 by 1941-42 and then plummeted to a low of 166 in 1944-45.

Helped mainly by the return of veterans under the G. I. Bill, the enrollment began to recover but then dipped again in the late 1940's due to MSU's disaccredited status. The end of MSU's third decade in 1951-52 saw the figure back to 621.

At the time of Dr. Doran's appointment in April, 1954, the enrollment was 698. The fall semester of 1972 showed an on-campus student population of 6,460, an increase in 18 years of more than 900 per cent.

Achievement of university status in 1966 signaled a new era in graduate enrollment. The 1966-67 figure was 308. Within three years it had climbed to 561 and, three years later in the fall of 1972, the figure had almost doubled at 957. Graduate estimates for 1973 are expected to top 1,100.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---The history of Morehead State University dates to 1887 and the arrival in Morehead from Midway Junior College of Mrs. Phoebe Button and her son, Frank C. Button. They found a town with no surfaced streets, no sidewalks, no electric lights, no churches, and less than 1,000 people.

Mrs. Button and her son enrolled an orphan girl, Anna Page, as the first student in the Morehead Normal School, housed in their small home located where the Adron Doran University Center now stands on the MSU campus.

Three wooden structures and Burgess Hall, a brick and stone building, formed the nucleus of the campus.

On March 8, 1922, Gov. Edwin Morrow signed the act of the General Assembly providing for a special commission charged with the task of locating the two new normal schools.

Allie W. Young, who ably served as a state senator from the 31st District during the period from 1924 to 1935, contributed immeasurably to the decision to establish a new school in Eastern Kentucky and to locate it in Morehead.

The doors of the Morehead State Normal School opened on Sept. 23, 1923.

History 2-2-2-2-2

Dr. Frank C. Button was named the school's first president and the Morehead State Normal School began operations during the period of post-war prosperity. Using the buildings which had formerly housed the old normal school, Dr. Button began the 1923 year with eight faculty members.

By the end of the decade, the enrollment had grown to more than 350 college students representing 31 Kentucky counties and two states.

In 1927, Morehead State's first four degree graduates went out into the world with proudly-earned diplomas.

In 1926, Morehead Normal School became "Morehead State Normal School and Teachers College" and was admitted to membership in the Kentucky Association of Colleges.

John Howard Payne, superintendent of the Maysville City Schools, was named the college's second president on Aug. 1, 1929.

Morehead State Normal School and Teachers College became Morehead State Teachers College in 1930 and awarded 11 degrees that year. Earl K. Senff's "Fight, Fight, Fight for Morehead" caught on and became the official college fight song. Senff now resides in Frankfort.

Dr. William H. Vaughn served as acting president in 1935 from Sept. 13 to Oct. 7 prior to the naming of Harvey Babb as the institution's third president on Oct. 7. Morehead State Teachers College began the decade with a new president when Dr. William H. Vaughn took over the reins on April 30, 1940.

Many students and male faculty members joined the armed services and enrollment dropped to 255 in the fall of 1942. In the spring of 1943-44, only nine male students were enrolled and the enrollment hit a record low of 166 in the fall of 1944.

MSU's contribution to the war effort included the training of United States Navy personnel as the college facilities were made available for an electrical training school.

On Aug. 6, 1946, William Jesse Baird became Morehead State's fifth president. Dr. Warren C. Lappin served as acting president from July 1 to Aug. 6 of the same year.

In December, 1946, charges were filed with the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools against Morehead State because of political interference in the administration of its affairs. The college was removed from the association's list of accredited schools.

Gov. Earle C. Clements named a new Board of Regents composed of outstanding business and professional men from the region and the association was convinced that the days of political interference had ended. Thus, the college was re-accredited in 1948 on a retroactive basis.

Morehead State Teachers College became Morehead State College in 1948 and, by the end of the decade, the enrollment was hovering at the 600 mark.

Dr. Baird died on Feb. 19, 1951, and Dr. Charles Spain was named the college's sixth president on May 28, 1951.

Dr. Spain officially resigned the presidency on April 6, 1954, and Dr. Adron Doran was named on the same day as the seventh president of Morehead State and is currently serving his 19th year as president, three times longer than any of his predecessors.

The mid-50's saw Morehead State truly break through in a dramatic fashion. An enrollment at the beginning of the period of just over 600 doubled, then tripled, then quadrupled--until the enrollment was eight times larger than 10 years earlier.

This decade saw MSU become one of the first institutions in the South to fully integrate the races and become the first state-supported college or university in Kentucky to have integrated dormitories.

During the decade, the faculty increased to 160. A director of graduate studies was named for the first time in 1957, an alumni director was named and the administrative organization of the college was modernized in 1960 with the creation of seven academic divisions as the result of a comprehensive self-study.

The sound philosophy of service to the region was greatly strengthened by an action program during this period and Morehead State College became the center of regional activities for many varied and diverse groups and organizations.

(MORE)

During this period Morehead State College received recognition as a major college in basketball by the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA).

Baird Music Hall, dedicated in 1954, became the first major structure to be built on the campus in 17 years.

As spectacular as the growth at MSU was during the decade from 1953-1963, it was overshadowed by the tremendous expansion yet to come.

The school's crowning achievement came in 1966 when the Kentucky General Assembly granted university status. Five academic schools and graduate and undergraduate divisions were formed.

Construction began in 1970 on Boyd F. Reed Hall, which will house the Appalachian Technical Institute, and the Student Council became the MSU Student Government Association.

Rader Hall was reopened in 1971 after an extensive remodeling project which transformed the oldest campus building into an ultra-modern classroom and office structure. WMKY increased its power to 50,000 watts and moved to an 18-hour-a-day broadcasting schedule.

The most notable recognition of Dr. Doran's career came in May, 1971, when he received the Horatio Alger Award in New York City, becoming only one of 200 Americans to be so honored.

MSU's sixth academic school, Business and Economics, was created in 1971.

Public school officials from five states are expected to testify here Friday during a public hearing of the Education Subcommittee of the Education and Labor Committee of the U. S. House of Representatives.

U. S. Rep. Carl D. Perkins, D-Ky., committee chairman, announced this week that Kentucky, Ohio, South Carolina, North Carolina and West Virginia will be represented at the 9 a.m. hearing in the UN Room of Morehead State University's Adron Doran University Center.

State School Supt. Lyman V. Ginger is expected to be Kentucky's chief witness.

Rep. Perkins said the hearing will be concerned primarily with the effect of President Nixon's education revenue-sharing proposal on elementary, secondary and adult education funding.

Other committee members attending will be Rep. Albert Quie, R-Minn., and Rep. Romano Mazzoli, D-Ky.

The subcommittee moves to Louisville on Saturday for another hearing on the same topic.

Commissioned last fall as part of the University's Golden Anniversary Celebration, the scenes were painted by Douglas G. Adams, a native of Letcher County and an assistant professor of art at MSU.

Adams, an MSU graduate, unveiled the paintings this week and the first prints were sold to MSU President Adron Doran who described the work as "beautiful and genuine mementos of this University."

"It is because of Doug's love of nature and his interest in the University and the Alumni Association that these fine works of art are available to help deserving students," Dr. Doran added.

Depicted in seasonal settings, the prints include the Adron Doran University Center, Button Auditorium and Johnson Camden Library with University Breckinridge School and the Mignon Complex in the same scene.

A set of four prints is priced at $15 with a mailing charge of $2. Orders should be directed to the Office of Alumni Affairs, Morehead State University, Morehead, Ky. 40351.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Mass transit is a major part of the answer in breaking America's fuel-eating dependency on the automobile, high school student leaders were told Tuesday at Morehead State University.

Stewart L. Udall, former Secretary of the Interior under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, was the principal speaker at a high school leadership conference involving persons from more than 50 schools across the state.

Calling himself "a full-time environmentalist," Udall covered a wide range of issues related to ecology and the energy crisis.

He described the automobile as "the most wasteful invention ever devised by man" and called for diversion of federal highway funds to expand public transportation systems.

The former Arizona congressman said he would favor a doubling of the federal gasoline tax if the additional revenue would go to mass transit.

Udall predicted gasoline rationing in the U.S. this summer and said a national policy of conservation is needed to prolong the country's oil reserves.

He said Congress would be forced within five years to limit the size of automobile engines and that anti-pollution standards for exhaust systems would become tougher than those now planned for 1975.

In other related areas, Udall forecast that more stringent strip mine laws would make producers increase deep mining, that economic pressures would continue the decline in the U.S. birth rate and that the traditional American philosophy of "bigger and better" technology would be redirected to find answers to ecological problems.

Udall, who writes a syndicated newspaper column from Washington, was interrupted by applause when he criticized the U.S. Corps of Engineers for building dams at "second-rate and third-rate sites" and without regard to ecological and scenic factors.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Honorary doctoral degrees for 10 prominent Kentuckians and a 1973-74 budget of $17,925,938 have been approved by the Morehead State University Board of Regents.

Eight of the doctorates will be awarded during the spring commencement on May 13. Recipients will include Lt. Gov. Julian Carroll, U.S. Rep. Carl D. Perkins, former Gov. Louie B. Nunn, former Gov. Earle C. Clements, Murray State University President Harry Sparks, Cornelius Hubbuch of Louisville, Rexford Blazer of Ashland and Gordon Hood of Fort Mitchell. Carroll also will be the commencement speaker.

Hubbuch is chairman of the board of Hubbuch in Kentucky, interior decorating firm. Blazer is chairman of the executive committee of Ashland Oil, Inc. and Hood is chairman of the Kentucky Council on Public Higher Education.

Receiving doctorates at the summer commencement on Aug. 2 will be Gov. Wendell Ford, who will deliver the main address, and author Jesse Stuart of Greenup County. This year marks the first time MSU has conferred honorary degrees on the doctoral level.

The new budget reflects an increase of $788,000 over the 1972-73 figure. Of the total for 1973-74, slightly more than $10 million will come from the state general fund appropriation and $3.3 million from student fees.

SPECIAL TO THE MOREHEAD NEWS

Morehead State University was host recently to seven top policy makers from the Louisville Courier-Journal who spent the day with MSU President Adron Doran and his vice presidents discussing topics of mutual concern.

The visit to the Morehead State University campus by Barry Bingham, Jr., Editor and Publisher of the Courier-Journal, and his key executives was a continuation of the Courier-Journal's policy of visiting Kentucky's institutions of higher learning as well as various businesses and industries.

The group flew into Morehead and, after a tour of the campus, spent more than an hour talking before lunch. Following the luncheon, Mrs. Adron Doran hosted the group at the Personal Development Institute.

President Doran called the day "a very interesting experience which we sincerely hope was mutually beneficial."

MOREHEAD, Ky.---In an effort to help students become more aware of the relationship between man and nature, Morehead State University has established a multi-disciplinary program in environmental science.

A 22-semester-hour minor in environmental science was approved recently by the MSU Board of Regents. The minor incorporates courses in geoscience, biology, science, political science, philosophy, mathematics, agriculture, and geography.

"The program is designed to increase students' overall knowledge of the world around them," said Dr. Jerry Howell, MSU's director of environmental studies.

"Since today's society is placing more emphasis on ecology and the environment, the minor can benefit students from any major field," Dr. Howell added.

"The environment science minor is not a typical one because it unifies several departments into one program," he said. "Students are exposed to various aspects besides the sciences."

Dr. Howell said that interest in the program has been "excellent." The program already has 30 minors and Dr. Howell expects the number to increase rapidly.

Students obtaining the minor must take courses concerning oceans, environmental biology, environmental geology, the politics of ecology, a seminar in environmental science and population, resources and environment. They may choose six hours from a group of five other courses.

A native of Breathitt County, Dr. Howell joined the MSU faculty in January, 1972. He received a doctoral degree in ecology from the University of Tennessee, bachelor's degrees in forestry and wildlife management from North Carolina State University and a master's degree in biology from Eastern Kentucky University.

Dr. Howell, who worked with the U.S. Forest Service for three years in the Black Hills of South Dakota, is working on a grant from the Office of Environmental Education to distribute inexpensive and free materials about the environment throughout Eastern Kentucky.

He coordinated a recent MSU high school leadership conference on ecology and the energy crisis.

"I feel we have an interesting and unique environmental science program," Dr. Howell said. "To our knowledge, it is the only one of its type in the state."

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Marsha Griffith, a 20-year-old junior from Greenup, has been crowned Miss Morehead State University of 1973.

She was selected from 30 coeds in the sixth annual scholarship pageant and will represent MSU this summer in the Miss Kentucky Pageant at Louisville.

The new titlist is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Griffith of Greenup. She is studying music education and hopes to become a professional musician.

Miss Griffith was crowned by last year's Miss MSU, the former Nancye Chandler of Pineville.

Named first runner-up in the two nights of competition was Rhonda Cooper, a junior from Cynthiana and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Cooper. The second runner-up was Dyan Kellogg, a junior from Gates Mills, Ohio.

Third runner-up was Debbie Criswell, a junior from Columbus, Ohio, and the fourth runner-up was Linda Kabage, a junior from Ashland. Debbie Sellmeyer, a senior from Cincinnati, was named Miss Congeniality.

In addition to the trip to Louisville, the new Miss MSU won a $600 scholarship, a $300 wardrobe, a trophy and the official crown and charm bracelet. The first runner-up received a $400 scholarship and a trophy.

The pageant was sponsored by MSU's Interfraternity and Panhellenic Councils. It is an official preliminary of the Miss America Pageant.

In the new position, which he assumes in June, Kelly will have eight states under his jurisdiction. The Ft. Knox headquarters is among four ROTC regional headquarters recently established by the Department of the Army.

A native of Springfield, he joined the MSU staff in August, 1969. Among 90 schools in the First Army Area, MSU's voluntary Army ROTC program ranks first in cadets in the third year of study, second in rate of enrollment and third in overall enrollment.

Kelly, who holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Nebraska at Omaha and a master's degree from MSU, helped develop Morehead State's innovative national security course which was adopted by the U.S. Army.

A graduate of the U.S. Marine Corps Command and General Staff College, he was commissioned in 1951 as a second lieutenant in the Kentucky National Guard. He is a veteran of World War II, the Korean Conflict and Vietnam, where he served as an artillery battalion commander with the 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile).

Kelly has received numerous decorations and awards, including the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star Medal for Valor, and 15 campaign and service medals.

He told the first of four Kentucky Youth Symposiums that additional federal aid, especially direct help for students, is a "critical" need in in vocational programs.

Dr. Ginger said he favors aid similar to that now available to college students.

The state superintendent of public instruction was questioned for two hours by about 20 selected high school students representing districts in Northeastern Kentucky.

He opened the half-day session with a pitch for voter support this fall of a proposed state constitutional amendment to make the State Board of Education elective rather than appointive. His position, now elective, would be filled by appointment of the elected board.

Dr. Ginger described the amendment as "a means of taking public education policy out of partisan politics so that needs of the people will always be the first consideration."

The symposiums, sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Education, also are scheduled Thursday at Western Kentucky University, May 1 at Murray State University and May 3 at Eastern Kentucky University.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---A winning percentage of 72.6, nearly 200 victories, 15 championships and 51 different awards.

Sound like the record of a famous basketball coach?

Well, it's not. These are the figures compiled by the team of Kathy Crusie of Lyndon, Ohio, and Ron Mather of Hodgenville during four years of intercollegiate debating at Morehead State University.

After posting identical 35-5 records as freshmen, Miss Crusie and Mather joined forces during their sophomore year.

Together they have won 194 debates, 51 individual trophies, 15 first place trophies and 26 speaker awards, including 12 "top speaker" awards.

"We have debated on 31 different campuses in 17 states and have visited some schools three or four times," Miss Crusie said. "One of our biggest thrills was finishing third among 84 teams in the tough Mardi Gras Invitational in 1972 in New Orleans."

The Mather-Crusie team placed first among 87 teams in preliminary competition at the University of Iowa and defeated many top-rated teams in winning other tournaments. They were named top debaters last summer at a workshop at the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

As part of MSU's Golden Anniversary Celebration last fall, they participated in an exhibition debate with the famed Oxford Debaters.

(MORE)

"During our debating career here, we have become familiar with every nook in the library," said Miss Crusie, an English major.

"Each debater spends a minimum of 12 hours researching each week."

"We usually practiced every afternoon and evening during the week before a tournament and two or three times weekly when we weren't in a trounament," she added.

"We owe our success to the inspiration and motivation of our coach, Mrs. Julia Webb," Mather said. "She has devoted her life to debate. She sacrificed her time and money to make our team a success. When we lost, we felt we were disappointing her."

"A few years ago, we called our teams Webb's Raiders because out-of-state travel funds were limited and we had to leave early and return late with our trophies," said Mather, a history and political science major.

Although their schedules have been crowded, both students have found time to be active members of the University Senate and campus groups. Both maintain high academic averages and were selected for the 1972 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

"Our four years have been enjoyable and we have complimented each other as a team," Mather said.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Roommates will be vying for the same crown this summer in the annual Miss Kentucky Scholarship Pageant in Louisville.

Marsha Griffith, who recently was crowned "Miss Morehead State University," and Sally McClure, the reigning "Miss Ashland," are roommates at MSU.

"I still find it hard to believe that it's happening," said Miss Griffith, a Greenup junior. "One of us has always been in the audience while the other is competing on stage but we have never been in the same pageant."

"Ever since I crowned Marsha as 'Miss Heart of Kentucky' in 1971, I have felt that we some day would be in the same pageant," said Miss McClure, an Ashland senior.

Miss McClure's first title was the "Miss Heart of Kentucky" of 1970 after finishing as runner-up the year before. She was one of 10 finalists in that year's Miss Kentucky competition.

"Marsha and I got to know each other while I was preparing for the Miss Kentucky pageant," Miss McClure said. "Her high school band director wrote the arrangement for my talent presentation and Marsha played trumpet in the band. We often performed together."

"She attended the Miss Kentucky pageant that year as a spectator and the next year made the trip as an entrant," Miss McClure continued. "For the past two pageants, I have been in the audience rooting for Marsha."

(MORE)

Because the 1972 Miss Heart of Kentucky Pageant was cancelled, Miss Griffith participated in the Miss Kentucky Pageant again last year, finishing as fourth runner-up.

Following the 1972 Miss Kentucky Pageant, Miss McClure won the "Miss Ashland" title. Naturally, Miss Griffith was in the audience when the winner was announced.

The similarity between the two girls does not end with their being roommates. They both kept basketball statistics for their high schools--Marsha at Greenup High and Sally at Wurtland High. They also belonged to the same clubs and were majorettes, band members and homecoming queens as seniors.

When Miss Griffith came to MSU, she pledged Chi Omega sorority and Miss McClure was her "big sister." They have been roommates for two years.

Will it be an advantage or disadvantage to be going after the same crown?

"We talk about the pageant almost every day," said Miss McClure, "and we feel it will be an advantage for us to be together. During the pageant, the contestants are pretty much isolated from non-participants."

"We can work together, encouraging and assisting each other," Miss Griffith added. "It will be nice to have my best friend there."

Miss McClure, the daughter of Mrs. Jack McClure of 1312 Ashland Ave., Ashland, will be performing a song and dance routine at the pageant. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Griffith of Greenup, Miss Griffith, a music major who has studied music since the fifth grade, will play the trumpet at the pageant.

MSU President Adron Doran will award diplomas to 1,015 degree candidates during the 3 p.m. ceremony at Wetherby Gymnasium. The list includes 104 master's degrees, 854 bachelor's degrees and 57 associate degrees.

Carroll will receive one of the first eight honorary doctoral degrees awarded by MSU.

Other recipients will include U.S. Rep. Carl D. Perkins, former Gov. Louie B. Nunn, former Gov. Earle C. Clements, Murray State University President Harry Sparks, Cornelius Hubbuch of Louisville, Rexford Blazer of Ashland and Gordon Hood of Ft. Mitchell.

MSU will graduate 21 persons from its two-year nursing program and 11 persons will receive associate degrees in mental health technology. The university also will award the first four bachelor of university studies degrees and will graduate the first six students with majors in journalism.

The Rev. C. Gerald Egelston, pastor of the Church of God in Morehead, will deliver the invocation and benediction.

A native of McCracken County, Carroll served four terms in the Kentucky House of Representatives, including two terms as Speaker of the House. He was inaugurated as lieutenant governor in December, 1971.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University has established a two-year coal mining technology program which will accept its first students next fall.

The program is designed to prepare technicians for entry-level management positions with competencies in surveying, mine hydraulics, safety and accident prevention, roof and rib control, ventilation, electricity, safety codes, use of mine machinery and the handling of explosives.

It will be housed in the $3.4-million Appalachian Technical Institute now under construction.

According to a recent MSU survey, employment opportunities for technicians in the mining industry are plentiful. More than 200 technicians could be employed within the next five years.

Students in the mining technology program may select an emphasis on drafting and design, power and fluids, electronics or other areas.

Scholarships and study grants will be available on a limited basis. Students will also have an opportunity to combine work and study during summer sessions.

Upon successful completion of the two-year program, students will receive an Associate of Applied Science Degree in Mining Technology. It is anticipated that beginning salaries for mining technicians should range from $8,000 to $10,000.

Drug Arrests

Seven Morehead State University students were arrested early Wednesday and charged with trafficking in a controlled substance.

Arrested were James Michael Brown, 20, a junior from South Shore; Scott Dennis Horton, 20, a sophomore from Sandy Hook; Kenneth Edward Setters, 23, a graduate student from Rt. 2, Lexington; Chris Duane Smith, 18, a freshman from Crestwood; David Allan Thompson, 19, a freshman from 4716 Nottingham Ct., Ashland; Daniel Wilson Thompson, 21, a junior from Halifax, Va.; and Raymond Allen Lowery, 20, a freshman from 415 Merino Ave., Lexington.

The arrests were made on warrants issued by Rowan County Judge Ottis Caldwell on the basis of evidence presented by the Kentucky State Police Narcotics Squad. The warrants were served by Kentucky State Police, Morehead City Police and MSU Security Officers.

Four of the arrests were made on campus.

"Warrants were served and arrests made on the basis of evidence and information presented by the state police narcotics squad," said Roger L. Wilson, Vice President for Student Affairs at MSU. "Because these were arrest warrants, no searches were conducted and the arrests were made without incident."

He added:

"The University cannot condone illegal drug activities and will continue to cooperate fully with local, state and federal agencies through due process in which the rights of all concerned are protected."

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- A history professor, a state cabinet member, an orthopedic surgeon and a newspaper columnist received the top honors Saturday night during the Annual Awards Banquet of the Morehead State University Alumni Association.

The association's "distinguished faculty member" award went to Dr. Victor B. Howard, professor of history at MSU since 1966. Winner of the "governmental service award" was Elijah M. Hogge, state secretary of transportation.

Dr. Robert W. Lowe of Huntington, W. Va., was named the "outstanding alumnus" of 1973 and the "public service" award went to Joe Creason of The Louisville Courier-Journal.

State Rep. W. Terry McBrayer of Greenup was installed as the new president of the Alumni Association and Custer B. Reynolds of Wilmore took office as president-elect. In addition, 18 persons began new terms on the association's executive council.

Dr. Howard, who has been nationally recognized for his research into the early political career of Abraham Lincoln, has published dozens of articles and papers. His award was presented by Mrs. Julia Webb, last year's recipient.

Hogge, a 1937 graduate of MSU, was originally named to Gov. Wendell Ford's cabinet as commissioner of motor transportation. He later was appointed to head the new Department of Transportation. The Morehead resident previously served as county attorney and as commonwealth's attorney. His award was presented by the 1972 winner, Deputy State Highway Commissioner Otto Ingram.

Dr. Lowe, a 1959 alumnus of MSU, also is a graduate of the Vanderbilt University School of Medicine. Now engaged in private orthopedic practice in Huntington, he is active in cerebral palsy treatment and is associated with five health care agencies. His award was presented by last year's recipient, Custer Reynolds, academic vice president at Asbury College.

Creason, a daily columnist for The Courier-Journal since 1963 and a staff member since 1941, has traveled more than 600,000 miles in Kentucky. Active in several charitable organizations, he has published a volume of his most popular columns. His award was given by B. F. Reed, last year's winner and a member of the MSU Board of Regents.

Earlier Saturday, MSU President Adron Doran and five other dignitaries broke ground for the University's new $75,000 Alumni House which is being financed with alumni contributions.

Saturday night's banquet attracted nearly 800 persons.

He was an instructor for MSU's innovative course in national security which has been adopted by several other ROTC program. MSU President Adron Doran has commended Waller for his work with students, particularly in promoting race relations.

In critiques from students, he has received rave reviews. For example, an anonymous student in the national security class wrote: "He was exceptionally interesting to me. Good speaker. Easy to take notes from. He should be a teacher."

An honor graduate from the Army's instructor training program, Waller said he owes much of his success in teaching to the advice of Dr. Doran and Col. Arthur Kelly, MSU's professor of military science.

"I have some outstanding leaders here to set the example for me," Waller said. "The success of our voluntary ROTC program and national security course are a result of Dr. Doran's farsighted leadership."

Among 90 programs in the First Army Area, MSU ranks first in the number of cadets in the third year, second in rate of enrollment and third in overall enrollment.

Dunaway, 35, was struck and killed by a pickup truck Saturday, about six miles west of Owingsville on Interstate 64. Bath County Deputy Coroner Richie Hunt said he sustained massive injuries and was dragged a short distance from his car.

The driver of the truck, William A. Bruce, 63, of Ironton, Ohio, was charged with involuntary manslaughter.

Dunaway reportedly was returning from Lexington to Morehead at the time. Kentucky State Police said Dunaway apparently had car trouble and stepped out of his car and that Bruce apparently swerved off the road and struck him.

The minister had been working for the past five years on the MSU campus under the auspices of the Wesleyan Foundation. Prior to his work here, he pastored churches in Ashland and Greenup. Dunaway was president of the MSU Campus Ministers Association.

Born April 27, 1938, in Trimble County, he was the son of Robert Dunaway of Milton and the late Mary Aldridge Dunaway. He was a graduate of Trimble County High School and Asbury College and Asbury Seminary. He was an ordained minister.

Surviving in addition to his father are two brothers, Charles Dunaway of Madison, Ind., and Richard Dunaway of Milton.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---An Army ROTC instructor who considers students and their concerns "important" has been named "most outstanding Army ROTC instructor of the year."

Major Benjamin F. Waller, Jr., associate professor of military science at Morehead State University, has been awarded the Col. Leo A. Codd Memorial Award by the American Ordnance Association, a military-civilian organization interested in military affairs.

"I was counseling a few seniors," Waller said in an apology to a waiting reporter who interviewed him two hours before MSU's commencement exercises.

"They're graduating today and this was the last chance I had to pass on a few bits of wisdom, and I got carried away," he said. "I'm sorry I'm late, but it was rather important."

Waller, who joined the MSU Department of Military Science in 1970, coordinates and supervises the instruction of 132 first-year cadets and advises the Raider Company which placed highly in several orienteering matches.

However, he is leaving this summer for an assignment with a regional ROTC headquarters at Fort Riley, Kan.

(MORE)

Major Waller 2-2-2-2-2

Waller, 33, a Chicago native, joined ROTC while a student at the University of Illinois and received his second lieutenant commission in 1963.

"ROTC was important to me when I was in college primarily because I was married. We had a child, and ROTC paid me $27.80 a month during my junior and senior years," he said. "After I was on active duty, I saw the significance of ROTC and of being commissioned an officer."

Waller, who received his Regular Army commission in 1971, has served two tours in Vietnam and also in Japan, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Australia.

His combat actions in Vietnam are described in "Beyond Combat," a book by Army Chaplain James M. Hutchens. He has received numerous decorations including the Silver Star.

"I'm trying to relate my experiences to these kids.....so they'll take maximum advantage of their opportunities," he said. Waller stresses personal contact with students and emphasizes the benefits of ROTC training even for those planning civilian careers.

He was an instructor for MSU's innovative course in national security which has been adopted by several other ROTC programs. MSU President Adron Doran has commended Waller for his work with students, particularly in promoting race relations.

Major Waller 3-3-3-3-3

In critiques from students, he has received rave reviews. For example, an anonymous student in the national security class wrote: "He was exceptionally interesting to me. Good speaker. Easy to take notes from. He should be a teacher."

An honor graduate from the Army's instructor training program, Waller said he owes much of his success in teaching to the advice of Dr. Doran and Col. Arthur Kelly, MSU's professor of military science.

"I have some outstanding leaders here to set the example for me," Waller said. "The success of our voluntary ROTC program and national security course are a result of Dr. Doran's farsighted leadership."

Among 90 programs in the First Army Area, MSU ranks first in the number of cadets in the third year, second in rate of enrollment and third in overall enrollment.

"I have enjoyed working with MSU students and I feel that the honor I have received is a tribute to the University's fine military science program," Waller said.

Waller said he will leave MSU with a feeling of pride in the growth of the voluntary ROTC program. He noted that 21 senior cadets were commissioned this year from the program, while there are 60 members of the junior class, the first he handled.

"Next year they're going to fill up Baird Hall (where the commissioning exercises are held)," he said. "I'm quite proud of that."

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Students in a Morehead State University class this spring have been shooting the rapids and getting all wet but enjoying it.

The group of eight coeds and 20 men are members of a unique two-week canoeing and campcraft class taught by Dr. David Beaver and Ray Mullins of MSU's Division of Health, Physical Education and Recreation. The class is being offered during Intersession, a short term between spring semester and summer session.

The first week of the class was spent acquiring camping and canoeing skills. The schedule, which began at 8:30 a.m. and ended at 11 p.m., included firebuilding, campsite selection, identification of edible plants and animals, axemanship, rope work, tent pitching, compass and map reading, camp cooking and menu planning.

The class also received instruction on orienteering, map reading and rapelling from Major Billy Williams and Major Benjamin Waller of MSU's Department of Military Science.

The second week or "practicum week" was spent on the Licking River in Rowan and Morgan counties. That's when the fun began.

"We had only been in the water about 10 minutes when my canoe swamped or tipped over," said John Specker, Dayton, Ohio, senior at MSU. Specker said that he became an expert in turning the canoe upright since he tipped over three times during the five-day camping trip which covered almost 40 miles on the water.

"It could have been more fun if it hadn't rained so much," said Jeff Perkins, Somerset senior. "But otherwise we all had a great time and found it to be a good experience."

"The course is fantastic and I just loved it," said Candy Barbee, Portsmouth, Ohio, senior. "People were working together and helping each other." An art major, she is a veteran of such camping trips, having participated in an environmental art workshop last spring.

Bonnie Beall, Annandale, Va., senior, called the menu "fantastic." "We are now outdoor gourmet cooks," she said.

"Shooting the rapids was really groovy," said Louise Venettozzi, Morehead sophomore who has worked with Girl Scouts the past three summers. "I needed to renew my campcraft skills and this course was a great opportunity."

"All of the students really enjoyed the trip and learned a lot in the practical situation," Dr. Beaver said. "The group was as close as one big family at the end of the course."

The students receive three hours of undergraduate or graduate credit and earn the American Red Cross certification in canoeing and the American Camping Association certification in campcraft skills.

Effective this fall, MSU's Department of Agriculture will offer a minor in animal science with emphasis in horsemanship.

In addition to scientific courses in the feeding, care and production of horses, the program includes riding skills for recreation.

Dr. Charles Derrickson, MSU's agriculture chairman, describes horsemanship as "a very promising field of study."

"Our program is being started after considerable investigation and in response to requests from students and horsemen," he said. "The horse industry is a seven billion dollar proposition in this country with a growing demand for trained personnel in all areas.

Dr. Derrickson noted that the horse population of the United States has doubled in the past 10 years.

Laboratory sessions will be conducted at the University Farm north of Morehead where a modern stable with 30 box stalls is being constructed. Scheduled for completion this summer, the building will house 15 university-owned horses and 15 belonging to students who will be assessed a monthly boarding fee.

Special to The Morehead News

The Morehead State University campus became a mythical state this week as more than 300 high school coeds assembled for the 27th annual Kentucky Girls State.

Elections were scheduled late Wednesday to pick the 1973 Girls State governor and other officials. The group moves to Frankfort on Friday for tours of the Capitol, an address by Lt. Gov. Julian Carroll and sessions of the Girl State General Assembly.

The high school seniors arrived on campus Monday to begin their week-long exercise in democracy under the sponsorship of the American Legion Auxiliary of Kentucky.

State Auditor Mary Louise Foust addressed the delegates Tuesday afternoon after MSU President Adron Doran had welcomed them the night before.

Mrs. Dillard Williams of Bowling Green is director of the 1973 Kentucky Girls State. Mrs. H. W. Richardson of Louisville is board chairman and Mrs. R. T. Barrett of Ashland is educational director.

This is the third consecutive year that MSU has hosted the statewide gathering.

Dr. Ray R. Hornback, who was born in Muhlenberg County 39 years ago this July 19, has been named Vice President for University Relations at the University of Kentucky.

Dr. Hornback, whose mother is the former Daisy Nell Rice of Depoy, grew up in Louisville where she taught until her retirement several years ago. She and her husband, Raymond C. Hornback, now spend the winter months in Florida and return to Kentucky during the spring.

Dr. Hornback, who has been at Morehead State University for the past 17 years and currently is Vice President for University Affairs, calls the new appointment "a wonderful opportunity to serve the people of Kentucky."

He added, "I look forward to this challenging position and hope I will have the opportunity to return frequently to Muhlenberg County in my new capacity. While I did not live here, I know many of the fine residents here and consider Mary Morgan and Agnes Harralson two of the finest people I have ever known."

Dr. Hornback went to Morehead State University in 1956 after graduating from the University of Kentucky. He was first named Director of Publicity and Publications and in 1959 was named Director of Public Relations. He became Assistant to the President for Public Affairs in 1962 and was named Vice President for University Affairs in 1968.

(MORE)

He earned the MA from UK in 1963 and the EdD degree from Indiana University in 1968 and is credited with developing one of the finest small news bureaus at any college in the nation. MSU was recently honored nationally when it was announced that the University's Golden Anniversary Celebration which Dr. Hornback headed will receive an Award of Special Merit at the national convention of the American College Public Relations Association in San Diego this summer.

While at Indiana University, he was named an IU Fellow and currently is serving as new club building chairman of the Kentucky-West Virginia district of Optimist International.

Dr. Hornback is married to the former Betty Collins of Maysville and they have two children--Kit (4) and RR (2).

The 13th National Festival of the American Guild of English Handbell Ringers is scheduled June 26-30 on the MSU campus.

MSU President Adron Doran will welcome the musicians Tuesday night.

About 80 separate handbell choirs representing churches, schools and colleges from across the country will perform during the five-day convention.

Free concerts are scheduled at MSU's Wetherby Gymnasium, including a massed ensemble concert Friday night.

Most of the handbell enthusiasts are students who have spent a year raising the funds to attend the festival.

Handbell ringing is an old musical art but its popularity is relatively new in the present music world, according to Robert Ivey, of Red Bank, N. J., festival director.

The tuned handbell is English in origin and has its clapper rigidly mounted and hinged so that striking is possible in only two directions, a downstroke or upstroke.

The American Guild of English Handbell Ringers was organized in 1954 and is the only organization in the world specifically promoting the art of handbell ringing.

Addressing more than 700 students and educators at the eighth annual MSU Linguistics Conference, Carroll discussed "The Language of Politics."

"Many people believe our language and our politics are both in a bad way and that there is precious little we can do about it," he said. "Of course, the question this raises is whether our language fails because our politics is poor or our politics fails because our language is feeble."

"I have a feeling we need to improve both," he added.

Carroll said that "our images are too stale and our thought lacks precision. Too often we write and speak without anything concrete in mind and too easily melt into empty abstraction."

He said the corruption and decay of political language can be cured and suggested several rules to improve the language of politics.

MOREHEAD, Ky.----An exhibit of prints by Brazilian artist Rachael Strosberg is on display through July 4 in Morehead State University's Claypool-Young Gallery.

The 30-piece show includes etchings, woodblocks and serigraphs. Some of the works are for sale.

Rachael Strosberg, originally from Rio de Janeiro, has received numerous international awards for her work. Her prints are included in collections in Latin America, Europe and the United States.

She received a cultural affairs grant from the U.S. State Department in 1964 to study art in the United States.

"She is a most distinguished artist whose work has received international acclaim and we are indeed fortunate to have this exhibit," said Dr. Bill R. Booth, head of MSU's Department of Art.

Summer gallery hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University will award honorary doctoral degrees to five outstanding men at the 46th summer commencement on Thursday, Aug. 2.

One of the honorees, Dr. Robert R. Martin, president of Eastern Kentucky University, will deliver the commencement address at the 10 a.m. ceremony in Wetherby Gymnasium.

Also receiving honorary doctorates are Jesse Stuart, widely-read Kentucky author; Alonzo Williams, Western Kentucky minister, teacher and attorney; Dr. Claude Gardner, president of Freed-Hardeman College, Henderson, Tenn.; and Col. Arthur L. Kelly, deputy commander of the Army ROTC Headquarters at Fort Knox.

Dr. Martin, who will receive the Doctor of Laws degree, was named the sixth president of ECU in 1960. Immediately preceding his appointment, he served as state finance commissioner and as state superintendent of public instruction. Dr. Martin is a past president of the American Association of Colleges and Universities.

Stuart, the author of more than three dozen books and countless articles and short stories, is Kentucky's most widely read novelist and short story writer. Many of the Greenup County native's relatives are graduates of Morehead State University. He will be awarded the Doctor of Letters degree.

Williams, a native of Graves County, will be presented the Doctor of Humanities degree. He served as a classroom teacher and high school principal for 20 years and holds the bachelor of arts degree from Abilene Christian College, the masters' degree from Vanderbilt and a law degree from Cumberland University School of Law. He served as principal and basketball coach at Cuba High School while MSU President Adron Doran was a student there.

Dr. Gardner, who has been president of Freed-Hardeman since 1969, will be awarded the Doctor of Humanities degree. He has been associated with the college since 1949 and has served as chairman of the Department of Education and Psychology, registrar, dean of the college and vice president.

Col. Kelly, a native of Springfield, Ky., will be presented the Doctor of Laws degree. A highly decorated veteran of three wars, he served as professor of military science and head of the Army ROTC program at Morehead State University during the time military science programs were being challenged throughout the nation.

"We are extremely proud to honor each of these outstanding men with honorary doctorates," said Dr. Doran, "They all are dedicated individuals who have made great contributions in their chosen fields of endeavor."

A luncheon for the honorees will follow the commencement exercises.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---More than 1,000 bells are ringing this week on the Morehead State University campus.

The 13th National Festival of the American Guild of English Handbell Ringers opened Tuesday and runs through Saturday.

About 80 separate handbell choirs representing churches, schools and colleges from across the country will perform during the convention.

Free concerts are scheduled Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 9 a.m., 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. All of the concerts will be in Button Auditorium except the final concert Friday night in the Laughlin Health Building.

Most of the handbell enthusiasts are students who have spent a year raising the funds to attend the festival.

Handbell ringing is an old musical art but its popularity is relatively new in the present music world, according to Robert Ivey, of Red Bank, N. J., festival director.

The tuned handbell is English in origin and has its clapper rigidly mounted and hinged so that striking is possible in only two directions, a downstroke or upstroke.

The American Guild of English Handbell Ringers was organized in 1954 and is the only organization in the world specifically promoting the art of handbell ringing.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---"Coordination and concentration are necessary to be a successful handbell ringer," says Glenn S. Daun, music chairman for the American Guild of English Handbell Ringers.

Daun, who has been a handbell choir director since 1960, traveled from Santa Barbara, Cal., to attend the group's 13th National Festival this week at Morehead State University.

He is among 1,700 persons representing almost 90 different handbell groups. The five-day festival is primarily for ringers from the Eastern United States.

The majority of the musicians are teenagers representing churches, schools and clubs. Daun estimated that more than 90 per cent of them are from churches.

"The type of music ranges from religious to classics to modern songs such as music from 'Fiddler on the Roof'," said Robert Ivey, president of the guild.

Ivey, who represents the First Presbyterian Church of Red Bank, N. J., busily rehearsed Wednesday and Thursday for Friday night's massed concert. He will direct the "Tins and Coppers" in 11 works and the combined ensembles performing five selections in the free 8 p.m. concert at the Laughlin Health Building.

Handbell Ringers 2-2-2-2-2-2

It takes a minimum of three months to prepare a handbell choir for its first performance and much longer to perfect it, Ivey said.

The average choir consists of from 10 to 15 members, Daun said. "Some members perform with the group about six years," he said.

Most handbell choirs have a set of about 25 bells with each member ringing two bells, Daun said. The largest set of bells consists of 61 bells costing about $3,000.

Daun said that his group practices twice each week and performs for churches, clubs or other organizations about once every two weeks. He said the demand for their performances increases around Christmas time.

The bells, which are cast in England, Holland or Sellersville, Pa., range in weight from a small seven-ounce bell to a low-octave 10-pound bell. Each bell's clapper is rigidly mounted so that striking is possible in only two directions, and each bell has only one note.

The art of bell-ringing became popular in the U.S. following World War II. The American Guild of English Handbell Ringers, the only society specifically promoting handbell ringing, was formed in 1954.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Six Morehead State University students are conducting a summer research project funded by a grant from the National Science Foundation's Student-Originated Studies (SOS) program.

The $8,800 grant for the 10-week project was the only NSF grant awarded to a Kentucky institution. The program is designed to support student-initiated, student-planned and student-directed research projects aimed at problems of environment and society.

Connie Harris, Olive Hill senior, is the student director of MSU's project, entitled "Detecting Aflatoxin Producing Strains of Aspergillus flavus in Soil and Corn Samples."

"Since these aflatoxin-producing fungi have been discovered in corn and are harmful to livestock, this study is being conducted in an effort to determine distribution in the main corn producing areas of Kentucky and to make the farmer more aware of the potential problem of aflatoxin-contaminated corn," Miss Harris said.

(MORE)

The research team has been conducting a survey to detect the presence of aflatoxin-producing strains of the fungi in soil and corn samples gathered from selected counties in Western and Eastern Kentucky.

Soil and grain samples were collected from corn fields and storage areas in the Kentucky counties. County agents were consulted in helping select farms for sampling.

The group's findings will be included in a research paper to be presented in December to the National Science Foundation in Washington, D.C.

"Even though our results to date have been promising, this project has introduced us to the time-consuming tasks involved in the initiation and the fulfillment of research work," Miss Harris said.

"This project has led us to realize that the glory and rewards of research are the results of many tedious hours of work of which the public knows little about," she added.

"I feel that the objectives of the SOS Program have been achieved by the research team," Dr. Pass said. The students have shown that aflatoxin-producing strains of Aspergillus flavus are present in soil; silage and crib corn, thus demonstrating at least the possibility of domestic animals feeding on aflatoxin contaminated corn without the farmer's knowledge."
