Fourteen residents of Rowan county were among 80 persons recently initiated into the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi at Morehead State University.

Membership in Phi Kappa Phi is a mark of distinction unequaled by membership in any other scholarly group. To qualify for election, a junior student must achieve a grade point standing which places him in the upper five percent of his class. Senior and graduate students must be scholastically in the upper ten percent of their classes.

Phi Kappa Phi was installed on the MSU campus in May. Dr. Charles F. Ward is president of the MSU chapter.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---"Coordination and concentration are necessary to be a successful handbell ringer," said Glenn S. Daun, music chairman for the American Guild of English Handbell Ringers.

Daun, who has been a handbell choir director since 1960, traveled from Santa Barbara, Cal., to attend the group's 13th National Festival last week at Morehead State University.

He was among 1,700 persons representing almost 90 different handbell groups. The five-day festival was primarily for ringers from the Eastern United States.

The majority of the musicians were teenagers representing churches, schools and clubs. Daun estimated that more than 90 per cent of them were from churches.

"The type of music ranges from religious to classics to modern songs such as music from 'Fiddler on the Roof'," said Robert Ivey, president of the guild.

Ivey, who represents the First Presbyterian Church of Red Bank, N. J., busily rehearsed Wednesday and Thursday for Friday night's massed concert. He directed 16 selections during the free concert at the Laughlin Health Building.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- More than 1,700 new students and their parents are visiting Morehead State University next week for the annual Orientation and Pre-Registration Conference.

Dr. Morris K. Caudill, MSU's dean of undergraduate programs, said the purpose of the visits on Monday, Wednesday and Friday is to familiarize parents and students with the campus and the university's academic offerings.

In addition to campus tours and other programs, the new students will receive individual assistance in preparing class schedules and registering for the fall semester.

MSU President Adron Doran is welcoming each group and panel discussions of campus life will involve current students and faculty and staff members.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University will be honored next week in San Diego, Calif. at the national convention of the American College Public Relations Association.

MSU will receive a Certificate of Special Merit in the 1973 ACPRA National Honors Competition for its Golden Anniversary Celebration.

Dr. Ray Hornback, chairman of MSU's year-long observance, will accept the award during the ACPRA Awards Banquet on Wednesday.

James L. Sankovitz, chairman of the 1973 honors competition, described the MSU entry as "a notable achievement worthy of recognition by your colleagues in the higher education profession."

The 70-page entry catalogued the many aspects of MSU's 50-year celebration, including 40 special events, production of 20 special publications, voluntary services of more than 100 faculty and staff members and the expenditure of only $12,000.

"We had wonderful cooperation from many people," said Dr. Hornback, "and that fact that we were able to do all of these things on such a limited budget apparently impressed the judges."

Dr. Hornback added, "The special, 16-page supplement which was used in 26 daily and weekly newspapers with a circulation of more than 120,000 certainly was the most successful of the Golden Anniversary endeavors."

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Linda Lee Tackett, guest director of Summer Theatre's "She Stoops To Conquer," to be presented in Button Auditorium July 12-13; and instructor of the creative dramatics class, said, "Life is a continual learning process."

Born and raised in Virgie, she did her undergraduate work in speech and drama at MSU, at the same time as did Harlan Hamm, instructor in speech and dramatics at University Breckinridge School, and Dr. William Layne, coordinator of MSU theater. She received her MA in speech in 1972 at the University of Iowa.

Active in Players and forensic groups, Ms. Tackett has also worked with community theaters in New Mexico, Pennsylvania, Iowa and Illinois. She has directed and designed the set for "Night Must Fall," and directed "You Can't Take It With You."

She has acted in such roles as Laura in "The Glass Menagerie," Romaine in "Witness for the Prosecution," and the lead in the comedy "Luv."

Ms. Tackett worked with inter-city children in story-telling and reading dramatics in Waterloo, Iowa. She has also worked with minority groups, such as the self-contained class of Navajo children in New Mexico, where she taught English as a second language. She also taught remedial reading and communicative skills in the Job Corps in New Mexico and Pennsylvania.

Morehead's guest director expressed her love to travel, and her dream is to travel all over the world. "Traveling has helped both in education and my growth as a person," Ms. Tackett said. Perhaps it was this and her love for the fine arts, with her awareness of the need for good literature that led to her avocation of writing children's stories.

She describes summer theater as a way of putting theory into practice, a sharing of ideas where the students, working under pressure, must be flexible, and maintain a constant rapport within the group in order to remain well organized.

The Department of the Army has authorized institutions offering ROTC to open the program to coeds beginning this fall.

Women will be required to complete most of the existing basic program but will not be required to take marksmanship training, Dr. Doran said.

Women students currently attending MSU may enroll in the program by taking the basic ROTC course on an accelerated basis.

Current Army regulations state that women may participate in only the four-year program but a modified summer camp for women is planned for 1975.

Army ROTC has been offered at MSU since 1968 and has produced 102 second lieutenant commissions.

For several years, MSU's Department of Military Science has sponsored a coed drill team and a coed sponsor corps and women have participated as rifle team members.

"In our program, the name of the game is leadership," said Major Billy D. Williams, professor of military science. "It is a skill which will be of value to both male and female students in whatever vocation is chosen---military or civilian."

The 55-piece show, which will be shown through Aug. 10, features oils and acrylics. Many of the paintings are for sale.

Pross' works have exhibited regionally in Appalachian Corridors II Touring Exhibition, Faces of Kentucky I and II, the Louisville Art Center's Annuals and the Mid-States Exhibition.

Pross, who holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Oberlin College, has been a Fulbright lecturer in art at the University of Punjab in Pakistan and a visiting professor at Union College and the American University in Cairo, Egypt.

A member of the Kentucky Guild of Artists and Craftsmen, Pross is a past president of the Kentucky Art Association.

"The artist has abstracted the essence of the landscape by reducing it to flat geometric planes of color," said Dr. Bill Booth, head of the MSU Department of Art. "His canvases are sun-splashed with color and strong organic form."

"It is an exciting show visually and provides an opportunity for students and gallery goers to see how an artist interprets a single theme through numerous variations on that theme," Dr. Booth said.

Six students from Thailand will receive master's degrees in adult and continuing education during MSU's summer commencement.

The students, Yuth Dejjagarn, Miss Thongkum Dhadoongsook, Sthan Suwanraj, Kla Somtrakool, Sa-Nguan Ongsrikul and Manop Galadee, have been attending MSU the past year under sponsorship of the Agency for International Development (AID).

AID provides tuition, a book allowance and a stipend of approximately $200 per month. The students, who are adult education supervisors in their country, took instruction in English before coming to the United States.

Three of the educators are from Bangkok and the others are from rural provinces. Two are married and have children at home.

Yuth Dejjagarn, who is supervisor of adult education and elementary in Thailand's Region 8, has 14 years experience in the adult education field. "I found the geography of this region similar to that of Thailand," he said. "many of the educational practices we have learned here can be applied in our programs at home."

Miss Thongkum Dhadoongsook, who is principal of an adult school in Bangkok, said she is favorably impressed by the use of para-professionals, the encouragement of free discussion and the American community and middle schools.

The third came recently from his first alma mater, Freed-Hardeman College, a two-year college in Henderson, Tenn. It was the school's first "Distinguished Alumnus Award" and it cited Dr. Doran's "outstanding service to higher education" as president of Morehead State University since 1954.

Dr. Doran's collection of alumnus trophies began in 1965 when the University of Kentucky, site of his doctoral study, bestowed its "Distinguished Alumni Centennial Award."

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Donna Qualls, a Morehead State University graduate from Russell, will direct "Anastasia", MSU Summer Theatre's third play of the season. She is the youngest guest director to act in this capacity since Summer Theatre was established here three years ago.

Ms. Qualls, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Qualls, 89 Verna Dr. Russell, and a graduate of Fairview High School, received her bachelor's degree in speech and drama at MSU with emphasis on the technical aspects of play production.

She played the ingenue in "Mary, Mary" last summer and designed the set for the musical comedy. With the exception of in-class work, this is her first major directing effort.

During her senior year in high school, Ms. Qualls attended an eight-week workshop at MSU whose purpose was to promote interest in drama but it was not until later that she became actively interested in theater.

Ms. Qualls said she would like to do an experimental play, children's theater and some of the old classics. She completed a minor in history because it could help her with credibility in historical productions.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University will reach a milestone during summer commencement exercises on Thursday, Aug. 2.

With 469 persons scheduled to receive degrees at the 10 a.m. ceremony in Wetherby Gymnasium, MSU will pass the 15,000 mark in number of alumni.

From the first commencement in 1927 through last spring, MSU has graduated 14,727 persons. Nearly 88 per cent of the degrees -- 13,334 -- have been conferred by Dr. Adron Doran since he became president in 1954.

The university reached the 5,000 level in 1963 and the 10,000th graduate came out in 1970.

This summer's class includes 239 bachelor's degrees, 224 master's and six associate (two-year) degrees. In addition, the university will present five honorary doctorates.

Also receiving doctoral degrees will be Kentucky author Jesse Stuart, Freed-Hardeman College President Claude Gardner, Army Col. Arthur L. Kelly and Alonzo Williams, Western Kentucky teacher, attorney and minister.

The commencement ceremony closes the 1973 summer session which produced MSU's largest summer enrollment in history. More than 2,700 persons are attending classes on campus.

MSU is among 18 classroom locations for the emergency medical care program, now in its third year. Dates for the class at MSU will be Oct. 1 through Jan. 10.

Sponsored by the Kentucky Departments of Health and Public Safety, the EMT training program is made possible through a grant from the U.S. Department of Transportation.

The course is designed for ambulance attendants, emergency room personnel, firemen, policemen, nurses, safety engineers, rescue squad and life squad members, industrial health and public health personnel. Registration is limited to 30 students per class. All registrants must be at least 18 years old.

EMT classes meet Mondays and Thursdays from 7-10 p.m. for 12 and one-half consecutive weeks. The 25 lessons involve 71 hours of classroom training plus 10 hours of in-hospital observation.

The text, "Emergency Care and Transportation of the Sick and Injured," is supplemented with more than 20 hours of videotape instruction prepared by physicians from the University of Kentucky Medical Center.

MOREHEAD, KY.---The Morehead State University Marching Band is performing Nov. 18 at the Cincinnati Bengals-New York Jets football game in Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium.

Kentucky's largest university band, the MSU group features more than 200 musicians and 24 twirlers. It is directed by Dr. Robert Hawkins. Gene Norden and Robert Schietroma are associate conductors.

Selected last January as Kentucky's representative in President Nixon's Second Inaugural Parade, the band also performed during Gov. Wendell Ford's Inauguration in 1971.

A current national television commercial for Army ROTC features MSU's "Fight Song" played by the MSU Marching Band, nicknamed "The Big Band from Daniel Boone Land."

The appearance at the Bengals game will be the second for the MSU band. They also performed in 1968.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Morehead State University's football stadium was damaged by fire Wednesday afternoon when sparks from a welder's torch ignited bundles of foam rubber.

MSU President Adron Doran said the blaze erupted in a storage area used for track and field equipment. About 100 grandstand seats sustained heat damage and will have to be replaced.

No one was injured and damage estimates were not immediately available. The fire was extinguished by the Morehead Fire Department.

Dr. Doran said the loss is covered by insurance and that offices and locker rooms at the stadium were not affected by the fire.

University workmen were renovating the stadium pressbox when the fire started. The pressbox was not damaged.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University becomes a statewide institution next month when a linguistics course for credit is beamed from the 19 towers of the Kentucky Educational Television Authority.

English 501, Semantics, a three-semester-hour course for graduate or undergraduate credit, will be telecast at 7 p.m. each Monday, Wednesday and Friday, starting Monday, Sept. 17.

The class is taught by Dr. Lewis Barnes, professor of English at MSU and a recognized authority in linguistics. The course consists of 45 half-hour lessons which were produced on the MSU campus.

"We are excited about the prospects of televising credit courses on a statewide basis," said MSU President Adron Doran, chairman of the committee of state university presidents which developed the proposal for college-level courses on KET.

"This effort marks the first significant step in our plans to share our resources with students and teachers in other regions of the state," Dr. Doran added.

He described the program's potential as "limitless." Eastern Kentucky University also has scheduled a class on KET this fall and others are expected to participate in the future, Dr. Doran said.

The MSU course is available to the public, including students enrolled at other state universities and colleges. Persons desiring to register for credit in the course should, as soon as possible, contact either the Dean of Graduate Programs or Dean of Undergraduate Programs at Morehead State University, Morehead, Ky. 40351.

Fees are $54 for undergraduates and $81 for graduate students. Course materials are $15 and may be ordered from the University Store at MSU.

Three other television courses by Dr. Barnes are being carried this fall on commercial stations in Lexington and Cincinnati.

Imagine what your life would be like if you couldn't read. You would have to do without newspapers, magazines and books, but that would not be the worst of it.

You would also have to get along without reading warnings, instructions, contracts---all the things you need to read to know how to take better care of yourself and your family. If you didn't read, you couldn't teach your child to read either.

An estimated 54 million adults in this country are functionally illiterate, meaning they can't read well enough to effectively cope with their adult responsibilities---like getting a job and taking care of a family.

That's why we think that helping adults learn to read well is a good way to break the poverty cycle. And so far, it seems to be working.

The National Right to Read program is an effort to eradicate illiteracy. The Right to Read program in Pike County offers free reading instruction to adults in their homes. And the teachers are people who were adult learners themselves.

September is International Literacy Month. If you know someone who needs to learn to read better, call 289-4033. That's the Adult Learning Center at Pike County High School, where they can sign up for home instruction or prepare for a high school equivalency diploma.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- There may be a surplus of teachers in some fields but jobs are plentiful for high school industrial arts teachers, according to Carol Holt, Morehead State University's placement director.

In fact, the MSU Placement Center has received more than 400 inquiries for industrial arts teachers this year.

The requests for teachers have come primarily from Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana and Florida. Also looking are Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and others.

The 17 persons who were graduated from MSU this year with industrial arts majors and teaching certificates have been employed, reported Dr. Norman Roberts, head of the Department of Industrial Education.

The scarcity of industrial education teachers is partly due to teachers taking higher paying jobs in industry or becoming school administrators, he added.

"An industrial arts graduate can get a job almost anywhere," Dr. Roberts said.

"It is advantageous for prospective teachers that there are so many openings but it is a disadvantage to high schools where expensive equipment is not being used," he added.

Some school districts are even willing to retrain candidates with teaching certificates in other fields in order to fill their vacancies, Mrs. Holt said.

"We wish we had qualified persons to meet the demand," she said. "This is a golden opportunity for persons interested in industrial education."

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Unity could be the greatest weapon in America's arsenal today, Air Force Lt. Gen. Daniel James, Jr. said Thursday at Morehead State University.

Addressing more than 300 persons at an MSU national security class, the Air Force's senior black officer urged all Americans to join together to build up the nation instead of letting bias and bigotry interfere with progress.

"We have another mile to run in the race for equality but we have a much better track surface to run on," General James said. "I'm not claiming that everything is all right but we are making progress quickly."

He stressed the importance of "the power of excellence, a staple that doesn't fade in value and has no color." He encouraged young people to work for change within the system instead of resorting to violence.

"People are shouting 'freedom now,' but we must have a place to be free in and ours is America," he said. Americans of all colors will prosper in accordance with acceptance of responsibility, he added.

General James, who is principal deputy assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1943. He was a fighter pilot in World War II, the Korean Conflict and Vietnam.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Miss Kentucky of 1973 and a professor who wrote a history of Morehead State University are appearing Sunday, Sept. 23, at a convocation in honor of MSU starting its second half century of service.

Lyda Lewis, a 1970 MSU graduate and the reigning Miss Kentucky, and Dr. Harry E. Rose, an education professor at Jacksonville State University, Jacksonville, Ala., will appear at the 2 p.m. program in Wetherby Gymnasium.

MSU President Adron Doran will preside at the convocation which will have as its theme, "Morehead State University In Retrospect And In Prospect." Custer Reynolds, a 1943 MSU alumnus and chairman of the Education-Psychology Division at Asbury College, will give the invocation.

Dr. Rose, whose doctoral dissertation dealt with MSU's history, will trace the development of MSU and Miss Lewis, now of Louisville, will sing.

Tom Hamilton, a 1962 MSU graduate and a Christian minister from Charlestown, Ind., will deliver the benediction. The organist is Larry Keenan, MSU assistant professor of music.

Following the convocation, a reception will be held in the Laughlin Health Building and open house is scheduled at the restored "Cora Wilson Stewart Moonlight Schoolhouse" on the MSU campus.

These activities will complete a two-day observance of the 50th anniversary of the opening of Morehead State Norma School on Sept. 23, 1923.

On Saturday, Sept. 22, all former MSU athletes, coaches and cheerleaders will be honored at four events on campus.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- With economic problems forcing more and more small Kentucky farmers off the land and into the cities, Morehead State University is seeking better farming methods to boost small farm incomes.

MSU President Adron Doran feels the University can add much to the farm economy of the Eastern Kentucky region.

"Government officials, academic leaders and agricultural economists alike have, for some time now, been concerned with the problem of the small farmer in Kentucky," Dr. Doran said. "He is the man with a few acres who often gives up the ghost and goes to Detroit or Dayton, depleting the agricultural economy as well as the regional population charts."

With this thought in mind, and also realizing that many trained agricultural students leave Kentucky for employment elsewhere, Dr. Doran and MSU agriculture staffers are making the university a focal point in the future of Eastern Kentucky agriculture.

Determined to meet the needs of MSU agriculture students and farmers in the region as well, the university, in 1968, purchased a 200-acre farm in the rolling hillside country of Rowan County.

Agriculture students help operate the farm and they live in a modern duplex facility, daily commuting five miles to classes on the Morehead campus.

Eckstein and his family live in the farm's colonial home, restored and redecorated by Mrs. Doran and Dr. Derrickson.

"The total farm operation consists of many components which have been planned to illustrate the type of buildings and programs Eastern Kentucky farmers can construct or apply on their own farms," Dr. Doran explained.

"We want to keep the young people in this region by encouraging them to apply known agricultural facts to the land back home," he said. "With the tobacco program looking rather bleak, we are trying to use our outdoor laboratory to develop programs which can replace tobacco income, should it vanish from the scene."

"The farm's poultry, beef cattle and swine projects are just a few examples of what our students and local farmers can do with a small farm like this back home," Dr. Derrickson added.

He said the university's feeder pig operation, for instance, is most suitable for Eastern Kentucky because of the minimal land required. The university also operates a model poultry operation with 20,000 laying hens.

The farm's rough pasture land is sufficient for the beef cattle operation. Presently the MSU herd consists of registered polled Herefords and registered Angus cows, most of which were donated to the school by various breeding associations.

MSU Farm 3-3-3-3-3

The goal of the beef program is to provide high-quality animals which can be sold to Eastern Kentucky farmers at a reasonable price as "seed stock."

Another phase of the beef program is the experience gained by students in grooming the animals for show. A modern show arena on the farm is used by FFA and 4-H members and for horse shows, including the MSU Horse Show, which attracted 132 entries in 26 classes this year.

Two experimental fiberglas greenhouses give students experience in many phases of horticulture. The houses are used to produce out-of-season vegetables and all types of flowering plants. MSU offers a two-year program in ornamental horticulture.

The tobacco operation consists of an 8,400-pound allotment with proper attention to poundage, quality, housing and curing. Dr. Derrickson said MSU is taking advantage of the latest research and experimentation by tobacco specialists and is demonstrating to the small farmer how these methods can be applied in Eastern Kentucky.

Growth of the horse industry has prompted the university to offer classes in horsemanship. The Department of Agriculture now has a minor in animal science with emphasis in horsemanship.

In addition to scientific courses in the feeding, care and production of horses, the program includes riding skills for recreation.

Laboratory sessions are being conducted on the farm where a modern 30-stall stable houses 15 university-owned horses and others belonging to students.

Most of the university's horses were provided by horsemen in Central and Eastern Kentucky who have cooperated in establishing the program.

President Doran has been promoting the horsemanship program by showing a two-year-old walking horse in regional horse shows. He won a blue ribbon at the recent Powell County Lions Club Horse Show.

Basically, the MSU Farm is an all-around ideal Eastern Kentucky farm operation. The main objective, Dr. Doran and Dr. Derrickson both emphasize, is to train students in a realistic situation, find answers to regional farm problems and present a practical, efficient family farm operation as an example for farmers in the region.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University starts its second half century this month and a two-day program will mark the occasion.

In addition to saluting MSU's 50 years as a state institution, the observance on Sept. 22 and 23 also will pay tribute to the Morehead Christian Normal School and the work of Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, founder of Rowan County's famed "Moonlight Schools."

MSU President Adron Doran announced that the University has acquired a one-room school building which is being restored as a "Moonlight Schoolhouse" to honor Mrs. Stewart's fight against adult illiteracy and MSU's international reputation in adult education research.

Sunday, Sept. 23, will be the 50th anniversary of MSU's opening. The school was founded in 1922 but did not officially open its doors until 1923. The campus was used by the Christian Normal School from 1887 until 1922.

Theme of the observance is "Morehead State University In Retrospect and In Prospect." Activities have been arranged to emphasize MSU's athletic heritage on Saturday, Sept. 22, and the past, present and future of the total university on Sunday, Sept. 23.

Dr. Rose, a professor of education at Jacksonville State University in Alabama, traced the historical development of MSU at a convocation observing the start of MSU's second 50 years as a state institution.

"The regional university should address its attention to the strengths and weaknesses of the region it serves," said Dr. Rose, whose 1965 doctoral dissertation dealt with MSU's history.

He praised Dr. Adron Doran, MSU's seventh president, for leading the school from "the throes of obscurity to greatness." He said the MSU chief executive has a "great concern for the lives and welfare of the young people of Kentucky."

Lyda Lewis, the 1973 Miss Kentucky and a 1970 MSU alumna, said she was "academically, socially and spiritually" educated at MSU and that Morehead State is unique because of its "personal touch."

Following the convocation, an open house was held at the one-room "Cora Wilson Stewart Moonlight Schoolhouse" on the MSU campus. The restored building honors the late Mrs. Stewart, who started a fight against illiteracy in 1911 as superintendent of the Rowan County schools.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---A little white schoolhouse has materialized among the high-rise buildings on the campus of Morehead State University.

It is the restored Little Brushy School, originally located eight miles north of Morehead in Rowan County. Donated to MSU by William Dailey of Morehead, the frame building is being refurbished for use as a museum and has been renamed the "Cora Wilson Stewart Moonlight Schoolhouse."

Now situated adjacent to University Breckinridge School near the center of the MSU campus, it houses artifacts of the one-room school era and displays of the "Moonlight School" movement in adult education.

The school was constructed in 1910 during the administration of Mrs. Stewart as Rowan County school superintendent. She started the "Moonlight Schools" where volunteer teachers taught reading and writing by night to adults. The schools were named because classes were conducted only on moonlit nights.

The "Moonlight School" movement spread rapidly and Mrs. Stewart became head of the Kentucky Illiteracy Commission and later the World Illiteracy Commission. A Kentucky historical marker has been moved to the school site to commemorate Mrs. Stewart's work.

Used for 53 years, the school was abandoned in 1963 when a new consolidated school opened. Little Brushy was among the schools used for the "Moonlight" classes.

MSU President Adron Doran presided at the program, which had as its theme "MSU--In Retrospect and Prospect."

"The regional university should address its attention to the strengths and weaknesses of the region it serves," said Dr. Rose, whose 1965 doctoral dissertation dealt with MSU's history.

He praised Dr. Doran, MSU's seventh president, for leading the school from "the throes of obscurity to greatness." He said the MSU chief executive has a "great concern for the lives and welfare of the young people of Kentucky."

Lyda Lewis, Miss Kentucky of 1973 and a 1970 MSU alumna, said she was "academically, socially and spiritually" educated at MSU and that Morehead State is unique because of its "personal touch."

A portrait of Gov. W. J. Fields, who became governor shortly after the Morehead State Normal School opened in 1923, was presented to the University by his son, Frank Fields of Frankfort.

Other platform guests included:

Henry Haggan and Mrs. Emma Shader Sample, original faculty members; Miss Anna Carter, who served as secretary to each of MSU's seven presidents; Boone Logan of Ashland, president of the Morehead Normal School Club; Grace Crosthwaite of Morehead, secretary of the MNS Club.

Sherman Goodpaster Jr. of Owingsville, whose father was on the commission which decided to locate the school at Morehead; Dr. Warren Lappin, retired MSU vice president who served on the faculty from 1924 through 1971; Russell Williamson of Inez, first graduate of the Morehead State Normal School.

Clella Porter and Bethel Hall, who taught in the "Moonlight School" of Rowan County; Dr. Robert Martin, president of Eastern Kentucky University; William Dailey, who donated the "Cora Wilson Stewart Moonlight Schoolhouse" to MSU; Morehead Mayor William Layne; Tom Hamilton, a 1962 alumnus who delivered the invocation and benediction.

Dr. Harry Mayhew, chairman of the Observance Committee; Dennie Warford, student member of the Board of Regents; Dr. Madison Pryor, faculty member of the Board of Regents; B. F. Reed, Sam Kibbey and Cloyd McDowell, citizen members of the Board of Regents.

Following the convocation, an open house was held at the one-room "Cora Wilson Stewart Moonlight Schoolhouse" on the MSU campus. The restored building honors the late Mrs. Stewart, who started the fight against illiteracy in 1911 while superintendent of the Rowan County schools.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- The Appalachian Adult Education Center at Morehead State University has received a $80,000 grant from the Right to Read office in Washington, D. C.

The funding allows the center to continue three Right to Read projects started last year and to set up two new projects in Kentucky. The three existing projects in Rowan and Montgomery counties in Kentucky and Pike County, Ohio, have been nationally recognized for their unique use of successful adult learners as instructors and for the delivery of adult basic education instruction in the learners' homes.

Right to Read is a department of Health, Education, and Welfare effort to reduce the nation's illiteracy rate. The Right to Read funding is the fourth grant award the AAEC has received this fiscal year. Others have come from the Adult Education Act and from the Bureau of Libraries and Learning Resources.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University is seeking documents, letters, newspaper clippings, campaign materials and personal possessions of former Kentucky Gov. William J. Fields, who served from 1923 through 1927.

Frank Fields of Frankfort, son of the late governor, has donated a portrait of his father to the University for use in a Fields display being established at MSU's Johnson Camden Library.

A Democrat, Gov. Fields took office in December after Morehead State Normal School opened for classes in September, 1923. A native of Carter County, he spent 14 years in the U.S. House of Representatives and became known as "Honest Bill from Olive Hill."

MSU President Adron Doran said of the project:

"It is appropriate that the Fields papers and other possessions be housed in the University library since this is the largest major library near his home town and in view of the school's long association with the Fields family."

Mrs. W. J. Fields, the governor's wife, served as a member of the first Morehead State Normal School Board of Regents. Fields Hall, a women's residence hall on the MSU campus, was named in her honor.

A schoolmaster's desk used in the Fields home has been purchased by Mrs. Adron Doran.

Persons desiring to donate or loan material should contact Mr. Huffman at MSU. The telephone is 606-783-3325.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---"Annual sessions of the Kentucky General Assembly will make the legislature more responsive to the needs of education in Kentucky," U.S. Rep. Carl D. Perkins said Friday at the 50th annual convention of the Eastern Kentucky Education Association (EKEA).

The Hindman Democrat, who heads the House Committee on Education and Labor, strongly endorsed the proposed state constitutional amendment in a speech to more than 800 persons attending the EKEA's main session at Morehead State University.

Perkins, who served in the Kentucky legislature before being elected to Congress in 1948, described the present constitutional limitation of a legislative session every two years as "a deterrent to educational progress."

Perkins encouraged the educators to work for passage of the annual sessions amendment in the November election.

Support of another amendment was sought by Dr. Lyman Ginger, state superintendent of public instruction. He urged the EKEA membership "to take the state superintendent out of partisan politics" by voting for the amendment which will make the superintendent's position appointive.

Ginger spoke in favor of legislation allowing Kentucky teachers to retire after 30 years of service and a lump sum payment to benefit teachers already retired.

Dr. Andrew Holt, president emeritus of the University of Tennessee and EKEA's keynote speaker, urged the teachers and administrators to be professionals. "A professional is one who goes above and beyond what is expected of others," he said.

Morehead State University fullback Frank Jones, who led the Eagles in rushing last season with a total of 498 yards, is back with even greater performance this fall.

Jones averaged five yards per carry in his first two seasons of college football. Before last Saturday, he was averaging 6.6 yards per carry each game with an average of 58 yards rushing each game.

In the recent Murray game, Jones got 80 yards in rushing with five carries. In the Middle Tennessee game, he carried 15 times for 101 yards.

Saturday's Homecoming game against Austin Peay was the best ever for Jones. His talent as a football player was widened when he rushed 161 yards in 30 carries--nearly half the Eagles total offensive yards.

He scored a touchdown in the third quarter and received the most valuable player award of the game for his outstanding performance.

Jones is a graduate of Bath County High School, where he began playing on the football team when he was in the eighth grade. He was most successful in his senior year, earning the All-State and All-American titles.

Jones, a football scholarship recipient, earned his first letter last season. Starting out as tailback, he was moved to fullback position after Bill Cason graduated.

Last season in the second quarter of the MSU vs. Murray game tailback Jimmy Johnson was injured. Jones replaced Johnson and rushed 78 yards and gained a touchdown for the Eagles.

When asked which position he would rather play, Jones replied "I would rather play tailback, but I'm satisfied playing fullback." He said that he "thoroughly enjoys playing football."

"The only drawback," he said, "is that it is very time consuming."

MSU Head Football Coach Roy Terry said that, "Jones is an excellent blocker, has good speed and strength and is a hard worker."

"He is graded highly in the films each week," Coach Terry said.

"He needs to work on catching but is also improving in that area."

Coach Terry concluded that, "He stands a good chance of playing pro football with his valuable blocking ability. This is one of the main assets pro coaches look for when signing on a player."

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Recalling his personal experiences as a state legislator, Morehead State University President Adron Doran has urged public support of a constitutional amendment calling for annual sessions of the Kentucky General Assembly.

Dr. Doran, Co-chairman of the nonpartisan Committee for Legislative Reform, served 10 years in the legislature, including two terms as Speaker of the House, before accepting the MSU presidency in 1954.

If approved by voters next month, the amendment will provide for annual 45-day sessions of the General Assembly instead of the present 60-day session every two years.

"There is a discrepancy between the will of the people and the vested interests of lobbyists," Dr. Doran said in a speech to the MSU faculty. "The special interest groups oppose annual sessions because they fear it will be more difficult to influence individual legislators."

He described as "impractical" the use of a constitution written in 1891 to operate a state in 1973.

Dr. Doran pointed out that 40 states have annual legislative sessions and that Kentucky ranks 41st in the nation in the amount spent on legislative operations. He noted that $130 million in federal revenue sharing money has been held in escrow for 18 months because the General Assembly has been out of session.

Legislative Reform 2-2-2-2-2

"There is an imbalance in the workload caused by the current provision that legislative days be consecutive." The MSU president said, "This results in a logjam at the end of each session. The annual sessions of 45 non-consecutive days would give a member sufficient time to study legislation."

Dr. Doran said nearly 60 per cent of the legislation passed by the 1972 General Assembly was approved on the final day and more than 90 per cent of the bills were passed during the final 10 days of the session.

"It is time to give the legislature back to the people," Dr. Doran added. "Under the provisions of this amendment, the General Assembly would convene in March following the inauguration of a governor which would give the governor and legislators time to prepare and consider budgets."

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- "Annual sessions of the Kentucky General Assembly will make the legislature more responsive to the needs of education in Kentucky," U.S. Rep. Carl D. Perkins said Friday at the 50th annual convention of the Eastern Kentucky Education Association (EKEA).

The Hindman Democrat, who heads the House Committee on Education and Labor, strongly endorsed the proposed state constitutional amendment in a speech to more than 800 persons attending the EKEA's main session at Morehead State University.

Perkins, who served in the Kentucky legislature before being elected to Congress in 1948, described the present constitutional limitation of a legislative session every two years as "a deterrent to educational progress."

Perkins encouraged the educators to work for passage of the annual sessions amendment in the November election.

Support of another amendment was sought by Dr. Lyman Ginger, state superintendent of public instruction. He urged the EKEA membership "to take the state superintendent out of partisan politics" by voting for the amendment which will make the superintendent's position appointive.

Dr. Andrew Holt, president emeritus of the University of Tennessee and EKEA's keynote speaker, urged the teachers and administrators to be professionals. "A professional is one who goes above and beyond what is expected of others," he said.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---U. S. Rep. Carl D. Perkins has strongly endorsed a proposed state constitutional amendment calling for annual sessions of the Kentucky General Assembly. His remarks were made during the 50th annual convention of the Eastern Kentucky Education (EKEA) meeting at Morehead State University.

"Annual sessions would make the legislature more responsive to the needs of education in Kentucky," the Hindman Democrat said at the group's main session last Friday. He encouraged EKEA members to work for passage of the amendment in the November election.

Dr. Lyman Ginger, state superintendent of public instruction, asked the EKEA membership to "take the state superintendent out of partisan politics" by voting for another amendment which will make the state superintendent's position appointive.

Dr. Andrew Holt, president emeritus of the University of Tennessee and the EKEA's keynote speaker, urged the teachers and administrators to be professionals.

Mrs. Frances Miller, an elementary teacher in Ashland's Fairview School District, was nominated without opposition as the new president-elect of EKEA. Nominated without opposition for vice-president was Marvin Moore, an elementary teacher in Rowan County.

Renamed to the EKEA Board of Directors were Jack Webb of Greenup County, Velma Wilcox of Ashland and Jane Wright of Maysville. Also named was Ralph O'Quinn of Floyd County.

EKEA's delegates adopted a resolution urging the Kentucky Education Association to "live within its current income" and not to fill the proposed new position of assistant executive secretary while faced with $50,000 in unpaid bills.

EKEA asked the Kentucky High School Athletic Association to consider banning spring football practice in a move to "upgrade" spring sports.

The delegates also adopted a resolution requesting that the EKEA Board of Directors return the convention to the MSU campus in 1974.

Now a freshman at Morehead State University, the Lexington coed was among 12 Senior Girl Scouts selected to spend more than a month in Jamaica on an International Opportunity Literacy Project.

Working with the Jamaican Girl Guides, the American Girl Scouts spent two weeks teaching adult basic education to persons between 16 and 75 years old. Classes included reading, writing, and mathematics.

Another two weeks were spent in camps. "We were advisors and observers," Julie said.

Miss Ramsey, who has been in scouting for 10 years, said Jamaica's scouting program is "behind the times." "Adults don't allow the girls enough voice in the program and the discipline is too strict," she said.

"Their program is developing and the leaders realize that scouting builds citizens for tomorrow but the girls need to be more involved," she added.

Julie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Ramsey of 344 Holly Hill Dr., Lexington. She joined the Girl Scouts as a Brownie and attained the First Class Scout rating at the age of 14. She is co-advisor of the newly-organized Rowan County Senior Girl Scout Troop.

It's because they are enrolled in the flight training program sponsored by Army ROTC and have been learning to fly this semester.

The future pilots are John Hinton of Falmouth, Robert Justice of Miamisburg, Ohio, Steve Kinney of Lexington, Allen May of Kimper, Joe Ramey of Grayson, Steve Tabor of Louisville and Allen Taylor of Alexandria.

"The purpose of the program is to identify cadets who could successfully pass the Army's flight program," said Major John Vititoe, MSU's flight program coordinator.

He explained that each cadet receives nearly 37 hours of pilot training valued at about $900. The Army pays travel expenses to the Montgomery County Airport, where the training is conducted.

During the week before fall semester began, the cadets attended ground school for seven hours a day for five days where they learned about weather, principles of flight and cloud formations.

When the term began, each cadet started traveling to Mt. Sterling to log air miles. The program is strictly extracurricular and no academic credit is awarded.

The men are trained in a two-seat, single-engine plane, which Major Vititoe described as "a VW with wings." The instructor spends eight to ten hours teaching the students the basics of flight and emergency procedures. Each solos at his own pace.

Justice, Kinney, Ramey and Tabor already have completed their solo flights. After completing the program, the seven cadets can apply for private pilot's licenses.

"I was always interested in flying and I felt this program provided the ideal opportunity," said Ramey. "Flying is really an experience. Remaining calm and having confidence have helped me in the training."

In return for the flight training, the men must agree to apply for the Army aviation program and, if offered a slot within six months, must accept it. Persons enrolled in the program also agree to serve four years of active duty.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- The "joy of singing" is taking the Black Gospel Ensemble from Morehead State University to Atlanta, Ga. this weekend for the National Black College Choir Festival.

The choir, which was organized in 1969, is leaving Thanksgiving Day. The festival is sponsored by the Southeastern Regional Association of the United Campus Ministry.

Composed of 66 members, the choir will be represented by 52 of its members.

"This is a great honor to be invited to a festival of such magnitude," said Jerry Gore, the choir's advisor.

"I remember when we started with only 28 members who were looking for a spiritual outlet," Gore said. "We felt that by singing the gospel we were worshiping in our own form."

The choir's original name was the MOBU Choir and it was part of the Morehead Organization of Blacks for Unity. In 1970 the group's name was changed to the Black Gospel Ensemble.

"We were inspired by the Edwin Hawkins Singers' 'Oh, Happy Day'," Gore said. The Ensemble concentrates on modern songs and sings very few spirituals.

Some of the songs performed by the group are "Step to Jesus," "Precious Lord," "How I Got Over," "The 23rd Psalm" and "Reach Out and Touch Somebody's Hand."

The group rehearses twice a week for two hours and appears at regional churches almost every Sunday.

"We have more men interested in singing than women and we generally aren't music majors," Gore said. The group of 40 men and 26 women includes two men from Nigeria, one woman from Ripley, Ohio, and 63 Kentuckians.

The Black Ensemble's performance last year at a United Methodist Youth Convention in Huntington, W. Va., earned the choir its invitation to Atlanta.

"The festival is a means of carrying on our heritage," Gore said, "and we hope to sing there again next year."

Morehead State University will offer a program leading to a master's degree in business administration for persons employed in business and industry in the Maysville area, starting in January.

An organizational meeting is scheduled Wednesday, Dec. 5, at 7:30 p.m. at Maysville Community College. Coming from MSU to explain the program will be Dr. John R. Duncan, dean of graduate programs, and Dr. Richard Baxter, dean of the School of Business and Economics.

Classes will be offered during evening hours for the convenience of persons who are employed during the daytime.

Details of the program, ranging from admission requirements to costs, will be covered at the organizational session.

"We are excited about the prospects of providing opportunity for persons in the Maysville area to complete the requirements for master's degree in business administration," said MSU President Adron Doran. "It places the University in a position to better serve the people of this region."

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University President Adron Doran said Friday that MSU is making a "serious attempt" to conserve energy in the face of a national energy shortage.

A six-member Energy Conservation Committee, headed by Dr. Jerry Howell, MSU's director of environmental studies, has instituted 25 energy-saving measures on the campus.

The controls include lowering of room and building thermostats to 68 degrees, reduction of indoor and outdoor lighting wherever feasible, consolidation of night classes into as few classroom buildings as possible, enforcement of a 50-mile-per-hour speed limit for university vehicles, creation of car pools for faculty and staff travel and a ban on all portable electric heating and cooling devices.

"Our students and faculty and staff members are vitally concerned about the prospects of an energy crisis," Dr. Doran said. "These conservation measures have been greeted with a splendid spirit of cooperation."

The MSU president said the energy committee would order additional actions if necessary. "All of us regard this as a serious attempt to avoid wasting energy in any form," he added.

Dr. Adron Doran, president of Morehead State University, and Dr. Robert Cope, president of Pikeville College, have announced an agreement to offer courses on the Pikeville campus which will lead to a master's degree from MSU.

Starting in January, 1974, graduate classes will be taught at Pikeville each semester by faculty members from both institutions.

A joint statement issued by Dr. Doran and Dr. Cope described the agreement as "an historic step for graduate education in Eastern Kentucky."

"We are delighted to have been able to enter into this agreement which will utilize the resources of a public university and a private college to make advanced study available to more citizens of the Big Sandy Region," the two presidents said.

The program starts with the spring semester and registration is scheduled Jan. 9 and 10 from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. on the Pikeville campus. Regular graduate fees will be in effect and enrollment will be limited during the spring semester to Kentucky residents.

He is Dr. Lewis Barnes, a professor of English and an expert in linguistics. He will be featured in four televised courses during the spring semester.

Dr. Barnes, with 28 years of college teaching experience, started on live television but in recent years has videotaped courses for replay.

Beginning Jan. 14, four MSU linguistics courses taught by Dr. Barnes will be televised for credit. One of them--Reading and Linguistics--will be shown on the Kentucky Educational Television network each Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 7 p.m.

The other three are for early morning viewers. "Linguistic Composition" will be offered by WAVE-TV in Louisville each Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 6:15 a.m. "Folk Literature" will be aired by WSAZ-TV in Huntington, W. Va. at the same time. WKRC-TV in Cincinnati will show "Semantics" on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at 6:30 a.m.

The courses are open to juniors, seniors and graduate students and each carries three semester hours of credit. Each program is 30 minutes long.

Dr. Barnes 2-2-2-2-2

Dr. Barnes' taping schedule has been demanding--at least three lessons weekly. Most of the advance work is production of visual materials, the 25 to 30 charts, drawings and photographs used in each lesson.

Taping sessions require about two hours to put one 30-minute lesson "in the can" but Dr. Barnes says he finds it almost easy to teach his invisible students. "It's almost second nature to me after all these years in the classroom," he said.

His wife, Dr. Ruth Barnes, helps write the scripts. "It takes about a semester to finish an entire course," Mrs. Barnes said. "We type scripts for around 45 presentations which last 29 minutes each, then prepare a syllabus."

Once the "television professor" moves into camera range in MSU's main studio, he becomes the center of attention for the director, three cameramen, two floor men and three control room engineers. "It's a team effort and they make me look good," Dr. Barnes said.

"No other university in this area even begins to offer nearly as many televised credit courses," said Dr. Barnes, "Nearly 1,000 teachers have received graduate credit and another 250 students have earned undergraduate credit from our television classes."

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Being an Army commander on a college campus is nothing new for Col. Eff W. Birdsong, professor of military science at Morehead State University.

The 27-year Army veteran, who joined the MSU faculty in July, also served four years at another MSU--Murray State University.

During his tenure at Murray State from July, 1967, through July, 1971, the school's ROTC program became the third largest in the nation. Twice Murray State won the award for the outstanding unit at summer camp and four times his rifle and pistol teams won national championships.

He is hoping that the success he enjoyed at Murray has transferred to the eastern part of Kentucky with him. "I have several steps in mind to enhance the ROTC program here. We are placing more emphasis on the rifle team and we plan to offer more adventure-type training to the cadets," he said.

"Presently some of our cadets are involved in rappelling," the tall (6-4) colonel said. Rappelling is the art of descending from mountainous terrain by use of ropes. A skilled climber can cover a distance of 100 feet in less than six seconds.

"We're going to introduce an orienteering course," Col. Birdsong said. "This will involve students in problems of land navigation with an emphasis on map and compass work and physical ability."

The colonel has been supervising an ROTC Scholarship Assistance Program to inform high school seniors about opportunities offered by the Army's scholarship program. The scholarship pays all fees, books and tuition plus an allowance of $100 per month. There are currently 39 such recipients at Morehead State, he said.

His military service has taken him to a variety of places and assignments, including three tours in Korea. "I always find myself working with young people," he said. "Most of my work has been in the field of counseling and advising and I really enjoy working with the students here."

When he is not working with students, Col. Birdsong likes to hunt, fish, water ski and golf. A native of Lawton, Okla., he has a bachelor's degree from the University of Maryland and a master's degree from Murray State.

He and his wife, Ona, have a son and a daughter.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Five college credit courses, including one produced by Morehead State University, will be offered statewide beginning Jan. 14 on Kentucky Educational Television (KET).

The Higher Education Consortium, formed in late summer to promote televised credit courses on KET, lists courses in education, linguistics, law enforcement administration, black history and culture and contemporary world history.

MSU will award credit for each of the courses except law enforcement.

To earn credit by television, a student enrolls at Morehead State or another of the institutions giving credit for the course. Registration takes place by mail. The student then views the televised lessons, completes reading and other assignments, may attend discussion or "help" sessions and takes a final examination--usually on campus.

Dr. Lewis Barnes, professor of English at MSU, is the television instructor for "Reading and Linguistics." The course is intended for teachers and others interested in the elements of language pertinent to reading and the teaching of reading.
