Water Carnival, SCUBA Diving Slated Friday

Sponsored by Morehead State College, a water carnival in which the Morehead Rowan County Recreation Association will take part is to be held Friday in the college pool. Set to run from 6:30 p. m. to 9 p. m., the event will include a SCUBA diving exhibition, prepared by Dr. Allen Lake and Gerry Wollard.

Other features will include water relay races and a watermelon scramble, Peter Verhoven, M-HCA director, said. Verhoven also said that all equipment to be used in this summer's playground program has been received and put into use. These include croquet sets, badminton, volleyball, softball, golf, playground balls, table tennis, jump ropes, and other indoor games, along with arts and crafts equipment.

Industrial arts, also offered under the program which is open to all Rowan Countians, has been changed to Friday from 8 p. m. to 10 p. m. Previously this class had been held on Tuesday evening.

Verhoven said the square dance held at the courthouse Monday was such a success that it will be repeated next Monday from 8 p. m. to 10 p. m. Charlie Thompson, an instructor at Morehead State College, is in charge of the affair.

Supervised play at the Rowan County High School playground is carried out from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. daily under Verhoven's direction. All children in the community are invited to take part.

Death Comes To Linda Flannery, 20

Linda Flannery, 20-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Flannery of Farmers, died Saturday in St. Joseph Hospital in Lexington.

She had been in the hospital for approximately a week. She was born in Gate City, Va., Nov. 3, 1943.

A member of the Pentecostal Church, she is survived by her parents, and three brothers and sisters: W. J. (Jube) Flannery, Morehead; Hubert Flannery, Mrs. Virginia Stacy, Barbara Flannery and Naomi Flannery, all of Farmers, and Mrs. Ruby Mate, Frenchburg.

The maternal grandfather, W. M. Welsh, Farmers, and the paternal grandmother, Mrs. Maggie Flannery, Miami, Fla., also survive.

Funeral services were held Monday in Calvary Pentecostal Church with Rev. James Vest and Rev. Lloyd Dean officiating.

Burial was in Siloam Cemetery under the direction of Lane Funeral Home.

pallbearers were Roger Flannery, David Flannery, Daniel Flannery, Matthews Jones, Mitchell Adams and Jim Hibbard.

FROM SEAL SALES—Richard Crager, 13, of Clearfield, is shown seated in the wheelchair which was presented to him Monday by the Kentucky Society of Crippled Children. With Richard, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Crager, are local officers of the Easter Seal campaign, Mr. Mrs. Marie Allen, co-chairman; Mrs. Frances Laughlin, chairman; and Mrs. Gail Ousley, treasurer. Funds raised from the sale of Easter Seals go to provide equipment, treatment and recreation to Kentucky's handicapped children.

New Procedure Expected To Aid State Purchasing

The State began purchasing materials July 1 under a new law designed to attract more bidders, increase bidding competition and get better quality and more favorable prices.

The law pinpoints authority and responsibility for State buying in the Division of Purchases of the Department of Finance. Purchases Director James O. King said he has written new regulations for State buying and has issued a purchasing manual for guidance of the various agencies.

With the aid of committees from State agencies, King is developing standards and written policies for products to be purchased, as required by the 1964 law. It also requires that this be done "so as to ensure competitive bidding."

The uniform specifications will be broad enough to attract most bidders, thus increasing competition, said King. The uniformity will simplify purchasing procedures, he added. With State agencies buying under these uniform requirements, the needs of several agencies can be combined in a larger order.

Clearfield Youth Benefits From Easter Seal Campaign

Thirteen-year-old Richard Crager, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Crager of Clearfield, has become the most recent beneficiary of the annual Easter Seal fund drive.

The youth, a cerebral palsy victim, Monday was given a wheelchair by the Kentucky Society of Crippled Children, the organization which annually sponsors a late-winter fund drive for the benefit of all of Kentucky's handicapped youngsters.

Richard—who has been a CP victim since birth—has also undergone therapy at Cardinal Hill—the society's hospital in Lexington several times, according to Mrs. Frances Laughlin, who headed the 1964 Easter Seal campaign in Rowan County.

Approximately $500 was raised in the drive from seal sales since Mrs. Marie Allen was co-chairman of the effort and Mrs. Gail Ousley served as treasurer.

In addition to supplying equipment to handicapped children, the Kentucky Society also operates Camp Kysoc near Carrolton, where crippled children from all over the state go for summer recreational activity.

Five youngsters from Rowan County will attend the facility for a summer period, starting early in July.

Special education and physical education counselor at the camp is Etna Jane Caudill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Caudill of Morehead.

Mrs. Laughlin has been chairman of Easter Seal work here for more than 10 years, and Mrs. Allen has been active for most of that same period.

Dr. Blair's Name Left Off List

The name of Dr. E. D. Blair of Morehead was inadvertently omitted from the list of staff members at St. Charles Medical Center last week.

Dr. Blair is a member of the honorary staff of that institution. Administrator Sister Mary Edwin said Tuesday that as a result his appointment is not subject to renewal each year. Rather, it is a continuing appointment.

The Baptist Student Union, sponsored by the Kentucky Baptist Convention, is placed on the college campus of Kentucky to promote religious growth and spiritual development in the lives of college students.

Pennington is a senior at Morehead and served as the Missions Chairman of B. S. U. last year.

Property Tax Receipts Set $9,000 Higher

The City of Morehead will spend about $18,000 more during Fiscal 1964-65 than it did in the previous fiscal period.

Most of the added income, according to the budget adopted last Tuesday by City Council, will come from increased receipts from city taxes. A total of $62,220 is anticipated from that source, compared with $53,475, which was expected for the 1963-64 budget.

Also, an increase of $3,000 is expected in police court revenues, and a $4,000 hike in parking meter revenues is also counted on.

Other minor adjustments, including $500 more from city licenses, account for the remainder.

Total of the 1964-65 budget is $128,773.13, contrasted with 1963-64's $110,278.79.

Highest expenditure, as usual, will be for the police department. A total of $36,438.00 will be spent for protection of the citizens with a salary of $15,000 and five patrolmen amounting to almost $25,000.

Fire Department expenses are estimated to run a total of $10,795.13, which will include some 800 feet of new hose, along with other equipment.

Street lights and electric utilities are expected to take $10,000 while the city truck up-keep and operation, including a trade-in, has been allocated $8,000.

Sanitation department and street workers are expected to draw $7,500 and diting of prisoners at the county jail will take some $4,500.

Income

With city taxes bringing in 50 percent of the total income, the municipality also expects to get $800 from its own bank shares, $5,000 from city licenses, $15,000 from police court, $6,000 in payments from Kentucky Utilities under the electricity franchise agreement, $12,000 from parking meters, $4,500 from the tax on fire insurance receipts, $100 from the automobile sticker ordinance, and $8,000 from Morehead State College for police protection.

The complete budget appears elsewhere in this issue of The Morehead News.

Next evening's club meeting highlighted a six-week membership campaign during which time the Morehead area was canvassed for club members who were not members of other civic organizations.

Sebastian, who spent several days in Morehead during the formation of the club, said, "The membership of the Morehead club is of the highest caliber and this group of outstanding men assures us of one of the top clubs in this district."

Bryant, who flew to Morehead from Optimist International headquarters in St. Louis, installed the new officers after speaking on the role of the Optimist Club in community affairs.

State Police To Be Out In Force Over Holiday

State police will be out in force this weekend, as Fourth of July holiday traffic is expected to be the year's heaviest.

A spokesman at the Morehead Post said regular units will be augmented by license examination units, who normally do not do road patrol duty, and that all units have been assigned long working hours in an attempt to insure that traffic on this area is safe over the holiday.

With full three-day weekend because Independence Day comes on Saturday, many motorists who reside in other states are expected to return home, clogging roads and making travel generally more hazardous than usual.

State Police ordinarily enforce traffic laws strictly during peak periods such as holiday weekends, in an effort to cut down on the possibility of fatalities or injuries.

Two automobile mishaps were investigated by troopers from the local post this week. Both were single-car accidents and neither resulted in injury.

A car driven by Kenneth Lee Henke, 21, of Cincinnati, skidded out of pavement on Ky. 26 Wednesday at 6:46 a. m. and ran off the highway on the wrong side, striking an embankment.

After hitting the bank the car turned around and went back across the highway, coming to a stop with the rear sticking out into the road.

Trooper Marvin Jennings investigated.

Winford Sennings, 21, of Morehead, escaped injury Sunday when his car overtook on the Poplar Grove Road, about 12 miles south of Morehead.

Trooper Carl S. Sluss reported said Sennings had been drinking and was angry when he left a house near the scene of the accident.

He reported that Sennings

New Image, Title, Assumed By School 'Truant Officers'

The "truant officer" of yesterday is the "director of pupil personnel" today. That's the change in title those responsible for keeping Kentucky's school-age children in school. Now there are 228 pupil personnel workers to keep nearly 764,000 children in school.

"The title change is not only one in this area of responsibility," according to Dr. Harry M. Sparks, state superintendent of public instruction.

"The whole image has changed from the gun-toting fellow who could swear out warrants to keep a child in school and penalize the parents who didn't," Sparks said. "Today it's a leading person who gets to school or else imagine years ago."

"The result is that parents and the general public more and more are looking upon our pupil personnel workers as helpers instead of law-enforcement people. And their positions considered in the upper strata of school officialdom."

Sparks said that Kentucky's legislature has provided for the distribution of school funds on a per capita basis.

"Boys and girls from 7 to 16 years old are in the compulsory school age," Dr. Bean explained. "We consider those from 6 to 18 in the school age."

The latest school census disclosed 774,984 Kentucky youngsters of school age as of Sept. 1, 1963. That meant about 10,000 school-age not in classes.

Statistics show high school dropouts lead the list of school-ers not enrolled. Major reasons for leaving school are financial, marriage indifference of students, or parents or both physical and mental causes.

Dr. Bean said that the most trouble comes from broken homes.

The personnel officers get the list of absentees from school principals. The workers are concerned by State law, with three or four consecutive days without excuses.

Then they visit the home to determine the reason. If the cause is financial—lack of money for clothing, or shoes, or lunch, or all three—the personnel officer tries to work out a solution with some local organization.

"Many churches, civic clubs, and even parent-teacher associations have shoe and/or clothing funds or second-hand clothing," Dr. Bean said. "Some of these groups provide lunch money, too."

"There's no community now in Kentucky where a child should stay out of school for these reasons," he believes.

"In extreme cases, we go to the welfare agencies for help."

Some absenteeism results from students who have part-time jobs. If the youngster's financial help is needed urgently, but no excuses are valid for a regular job during school hours.

In all cases, the personnel officers counsel with parents and children. The value of education is stressed and all possible means of keeping the youngsters in school are explored.

With the personnel workers on 12-month contracts, more than 100,000 are on their summer-time visiting with dropouts.

The procedure with chronic absences is this: If the home visit and determination of the trouble shows no valid legal reason for the youngster's absence, a final notice is issued.

"Then, if no response is made within 24 hours," Dr. Bean said, "we must by State law issue a warrant for arrest of the father, as a last resort."

"The first day of absenteeism costs the father $10 fine and each day constitutes a separate offense, under our statutes. Parents can be jailed, if they don't pay."

Pupil personnel officers, unlike most of the old-time "truant officers," are professional educators. Of the 228 directors, full-time and part-time, 90, or 39.7 percent, now have master's degrees as compared to 51, or 22.1 percent in 1957-58.

Tackling the "Drop Out" Problem

CLOTHING, SHOES, AND LUNCH MONEY needed to keep many of Kentucky's needy youngsters in school are furnished by local clubs, churches, and other organizations. Here a Harrison County pupil is given a shirt by Mrs. W. J. Woodruff (center). Parent Teacher Association clothing chairman, Mrs. Dorothy McCauley, the county's pupil personnel director for 22 years, helps in the fitting. Mrs. McCreary, a typical of personnel directors in every school district in the state who work with local agencies to keep deserving youngsters in the classroom despite financial difficulties at home.

Archaeologists Studying Cave Run Reservoir Area

A large block of terrain in Eastern Kentucky is this summer's haunt of a team of University of Kentucky archaeologists.

The tract to cup the Cave Run Reservoir when a federal dam is built on the Licking River embraces parts of both Rowan, Menifee and Morgan counties.

It has never been probed on a large-scale basis to determine if it, like some other river basins in the state, was the home of early Indian tribes, according to Lee Hanson, UK Field Archaeologist.

"Working this project may cover the entire $10 million area in Kentucky's early history," he said.

This year's trek to the Cave Run site will center mainly on a general survey. Any clues as to where prehistoric man lived will be marked for intensive excavation before water covers the land. The UK party also will contact residents of the area to learn if they have found Indian artifacts or know of any such sites.

This is one of two projects currently occurring. UK archaeologists' expeditions made up of staff and students and being supported by additional funds from the National Park Service.

This year's grant of $130,000 also is permitting more excavations in the Fishtrap Reservoir site, located upstream from Pikeville on the upper fork of the Big Sandy River.

"Thus far, the Pike county operation has been rewarding to the UK excavators. Unearthed there were remains of a full-scale Indian village, the first to be found in Eastern Kentucky."

"TWIN" U.S. AGENCIES PROTECT SAVERS IN S&L'S AND BANKS

Bank or savings and loan association—either a safer place for your money?

The fact is, experience has shown that if accounts in both are insured, you get the best of both worlds. Because a pair of "twin" federal agencies are ready to step in and protect you if anything goes wrong.

One of these agencies is the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, insures accounts in savings associations. The other, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, insures accounts in banks.

The FDIC is marking its 20th birthday this summer. Stephen Slipher, legislative director of the United States Savings and Loan Administration, said that both the FSILC and the FDIC have been outstanding over the years.

"Congress created both agencies during the Depression to help restore confidence in financial institutions," Slipher said.

"And after three decades, no saver has lost a single penny covered by either FSILC or FDIC insurance."

Slipher said "distress" cases among financial institutions covered by FSILC or FDIC insurance have been relatively rare.

"Managements of banks and savings and loan associations qualified to join the FSILC and FDIC systems must be of the highest caliber," Slipher explained. "And the institutions are required to maintain ample reserves and submit to periodic examinations."

"But if trouble does strike for any reason whatsoever, the record shows that savers in both types of institutions have been off and equal."

Slipher pointed out that the last minor differences between payout provisions of the FSILC and the FDIC were eliminated by the State Act of 1959.

Since then, settlement provisions of both agencies have been substantially identical even to the wording of the law.

The FSILC law says: "In the event of a default by any insured institution, payment of each insured account in such insured institution shall be made by the Corporation as soon as possible either (1) by cash or (2) by making available to each insured member a transferred account in a new insured institution in an amount equal to the insured account of such insured member."

The FDIC law says: "Whenever an insured bank shall have been declared an account of inability to meet the demands of its depositors, the insured bank's deposits in such bank shall be made by the Corporation as soon as possible, substantially in the same proportion (1) by cash or (2) by making available to each depositor a transferred deposit in a new bank in the same amount as the insured deposit of such depositor . . ."

Put more simply, if the insured bank or savings and loan association where you have placed your money must be liquidated, you'll be paid up to $10,000 either in cash, or in an account for your money in another insured institution. If you are given an account in another insured institution, you may then either leave your money there or draw part or all of it out.

Slipher emphasized that the FSILC, like the FDIC, will liquidate a distressed financial institution only as a last resort. More commonly, the insuring agency will merge the distressed institution into a stronger one, or will take steps to put the institution back on a normal and sound operating basis.

"From the saver's point of view, the record shows that the two types of insurance coverage are practically identical," Slipher pointed out. "Both the FSILC and the FDIC insure accounts up to $10,000. And when necessary, both have met their obligations with equal promptness. And both can back up their insurance with the substantial resources, plus authority to borrow from the United States Treasury in the event of national financial emergency."

Put your savings to work for you by earning the highest return. Deposit your savings at the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Morehead where we pay a full 6% compounded semi-annually on your savings. You may be conveniently withdrawn in the same manner as at any other financial institution. We pay a full month's earnings on deposits received by the 10th.

Early Inquiry Can Speed First Retirement Pay

Planning to retire soon? Thomas B. Thompson, district manager of Social Security in Ashland, says an early inquiry can speed delivery of the first Social Security check. Claims for benefits may be filed as much as three months before a person is due in order to support a claim, however, certain proofs will be required.

These include proof of age for the claimant and for any dependents who are eligible for benefits. While a birth certificate or baptismal certificate made at or near the time of birth is preferable, other types of evidence may be accepted.

A self-employed person should bring along a copy of his 1963 Federal Income Tax Return, when an employee should bring his withholding statement, Form W-2, showing 1963 wages. Filing should not be delayed because of the lack of some of these papers. The Social Security office can suggest other

The Daniel Boone Festival at Barboursville will be the scene of the second annual long-rifle match between Kentucky and Pennsylvania marksmen. The shoot-out will be on Oct. 10, last day of the three-day festival.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War In Kentucky

BY JOE JORAAN

Kentucky Civil War Commission has announced that 100 years ago this week, on July 2, 1864, the U. S. Congress passed a resolution which would authorize the President to propose a cessation of arms and an amnesty to the authorities of the Confederate States of America, with a view to holding a convention of all the States to reconstruct the Union, and that cannot be effected, the convention agree upon the terms of a separation of the States without further shedding of blood, and of a lasting peace among them.

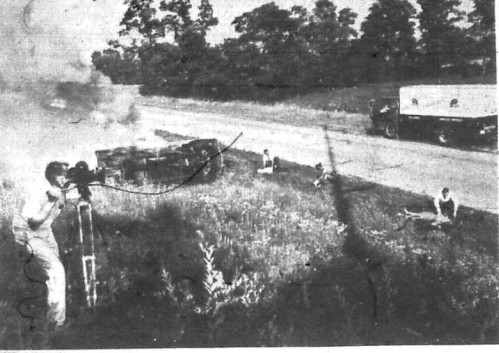

During the week under review the Democratic Party held its state convention at Louisville and selected delegates to the Democratic national convention to be held at Chicago. The party planned to join another delegation, from the "Union Democratic Party," in supporting Maj. Gen. George B. McClellan for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Col. C. S. Hanson, commander of a Union Army brigade, arrived in Lexington and announced that he and his men had pursued about 500 of Morgan's Confederate raiders from the vicinity of Frankfort into the mountains of Eastern Kentucky and almost to the Virginia line before giving up the chase. During the raid, two horses shot under him, he said, and a bullet passed through his cap.

Union Brig. Gen. Barbridge ordered all Federal soldiers who had been taken prisoner by Morgan and then paroled to return to their regiments. He said the paroles were void because the War Department had forbidden the giving of paroles.

EASILY FORGOTTEN

Even when summers is severe enough to leave scars on the skin, the impression it makes on the memory usually fades out by next summer.

Looks Real—But It's Not

NOT FOR REAL—This scene of highway carnage on U. S. 60 west of Frankfort was staged recently by the State Department of Public Safety for the benefit of cameramen filming a 15-minute sound and color film on traffic safety. Produced by Traffic Safety Films of Dallas, Texas, the movie will be entitled "4:28" and is scheduled to be premiered at the Governor's Safety Conference in Louisville this fall. It depicts driving safety infractions contributing to a fatal traffic accident at 4:28 p.m. which takes the lives of five persons and leaves a sixth crippled. Governor Edward T. Breathitt and State Safety Commissioner Glenn Lovern will take part in the narration. Prints of the film will be distributed and shown by the Department of Public Safety.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Pallet Industry Not 'Cheap, Unskilled'

EDITOR, THE NEWS

In your Publisher's Pen column on June 25, you stated that the heart of the wood pallet industry was "cheap, unskilled and unutilized labor." In our opinion this was very misleading to your readers. Misleading in the fact that it would lead your readers to believe the pallet industry to be cheap. Therefore I would like to state a few facts and figures of our company so there will be a better understanding of this industry.

For the fiscal year ending September 30, 1963, we purchased in logs and lumber $194,362.40. Of this total $36,204.25 was lumber purchased from out of state. This left a total of $158,158.15 which was spent in Rowan and adjoining counties. This is not very cheap lumber.

Concerning the "unskilled labor" it takes a good deal of skill to do hard work, and quite a bit of skill to operate the many different kinds of wood-working machinery you must have to build pallets. It takes approximately one year to train a man to cut lumber to dimensions with a minimum of waste. I might also mention that we paid these thirty-five to forty "unskilled laborers" $35.15 in 1963, which is not very cheap.

Of course this is just one pallet company. You would have to multiply these five or six times to get a complete picture of the pallet industry in and around Morehead. You might also keep in mind that the money the pallet industry spends in Morehead and the surrounding area is brought in from out of state, mostly from the big cities in the north. It may not be much, but it certainly helps a so called "depressed area."

Eggs Need More Care During Hot Summer Months

The special care will preserve interior quality and prevent breakage, he says.

More thin-shelled eggs are produced in the hot months, especially if the flock has been in production seven months or more. As the laying period lengthens, more calcium should be provided. Some research indicates a calcium level of 3.94 percent may be used.

Some ways to maintain egg quality:

- Give flocks good feed with sufficient calcium to maintain quality. See that nesting material is kept clean, and gather eggs four to five times a day.
- Cool eggs in wire baskets, or hold them in filter flats to save labor and extra handling. Keep eggs refrigerated until ready for market and then put them in clean, cool cases, small end down. Market at least twice a week.
- Eggs should be picked up at the farm two or three times a week and handled carefully. Processors should keep eggs refrigerated until delivered to merchants, and encourage merchants to hold eggs under refrigeration until picked up by consumers.

REST, RELAX

Another excuse many seize upon... "Statistics show that people who hard work are more likely than others to have arthritis."

UK Dairy Research Unit Dedication Set Tuesday

The University of Kentucky's dairy research center, a $240,000 complex on the Coldstream research farm near Lexington will be dedicated Tuesday.

Gov. Edward T. Breathitt will be the principal guest at the dedication ceremony, set for 11:15 a.m. It is part of the University of Kentucky dairy department's annual day. The farm is off Georgetown Pike.

Breathitt will present the building to the University from the commonwealth. It will be accepted for the University by A. D. Albright, vice president of the institution, and William A. Geary, dean of the U. K. College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Officials hope the faculty will be in operation this fall.

It incorporates several new wrinkles in research installations, including the new dairy barn system of disposing of waste material in a lagoon. Wastes will be hoisted into lagoons rather than scraped up and hauled out.

Dr. D. M. Seath, chairman of the U. K. College of Agriculture dairy science department, says that while the unit is not the largest of its type among research centers, it incorporated many new ideas in animal and milk-handling. It will replace some of the activities now carried on at the main University farm on Nicholasville Pike.

One more structure is planned. It is a laboratory-office-student center building.

Reorganization Of Parks Department Effective

Two deputy commissioners, six division directors, and a head auditor have been named by Parks Commissioner Robert D. Bell in the administrative reorganization of the Kentucky Department of Parks.

The deputy commissioners, effective July 1, are Edward V. Fox, for administrative services and operators, and Thomas J. Nelson for planning. Both are veteran Parks department employees.

Bell also named James R. Camp as head of the internal audit section "to conduct a continuous review of all administrative and management procedures and practices throughout the department."

The reorganization, Bell said, is in compliance with an executive order issued May 6 by Governor Edward T. Breathitt. Its objective is to tighten operation of the nation's Number One State park system which already has $40 million in physical improvements and still is growing.

Under Deputy Commissioner Fox are division directors Edward R. Rogers, administration; Charles R. Spears, operations; Mrs. Mary Lusse Nicoll, museums and shrines; one for recreation yet to be named.

Under Deputy Commissioner Nelson are Donald F. Penegar as director of the Division of Planning and Perry L. Britt as director of the Division of Maintenance and also as acting director of the Division of Construction.

"We are not fully activating this Division of Construction until enough capital funds are available," Bell said. "We will, however, in those funds become available.

"I am extremely pleased to appoint such people as these well-trained and well-prepared both by education and past work experience to take these positions of management in the Department of Parks.

The reorganization carries out his views on improving the management of our State Park system. And it conforms generally with recommendations made in recent surveys."

The surveys were completed by Boor, Allen, and Hamilton, a Chicago management-consultant firm, and by Yeager, Ford and Warren, a Louisville certified public accountant agency.

Fox, 46, native of Guthrie, has 10 years of service with the department, including the position of commissioner in the administration of Governor Bert Combs. He also has been an assistant commissioner, deputy commissioner and superintendent of operations for the system, after field experience as business manager of Kentucky Dam Village Park, near Gilbertsville.

Fox also was for four years a budget officer for the U. S. Department of Defense, Washington, and has other experience in accounting and payroll work for a B. S. degree in accounting from the University of Kentucky and in addition completed a course in Business College, Nashville.

Nelson, 57, has been with the State Parks for 15 years and before that had eight years of experience with the National Park Service from 1944-42. He also has six years of experience in private industry and in his own landscape and site business.

Nelson, a graduate of Wittenberg College in Springfield, Ohio, has a master's degree in landscape architecture from Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., and did other graduate study at Harvard and at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

Auditor Camp, who will be in the Commissioner's office and independent of the others, is a 40-year-old native of Guthrie. He had seven years of experience there as an office manager and credit manager before joining the Department in May, 1960, as an auditor. He attended the University of Kentucky and majored in accounting.

Director Penegar of the Planning Division has a B. S. degree in landscape architecture from Michigan State University, East Lansing. He joined the Parks Department in 1961. Previously, he had been a park and playground planner for the City of Cleveland and planning consultant for a private firm in

Conservation Department Has New Name, Added Duty

The Kentucky Department of Conservation is now the Department of Natural Resources by a law passed by the 1964 General Assembly which took effect in mid-June.

The new name points up the expanded scope of the department's programs and emphasizes its plans to play a major role in the development of our natural resources rather than merely the strict conservation of them."

The new name, said Commissioner of the newly-named agency, explained.

"And we are ready to move into a greater range of programs," Matlick declared. "The new name serves to symbolize that the department and its attitude are changed—that it plays a leading role in developing Kentucky's four basic natural resources—land, water, forests and minerals."

The commissioner pointed out that the department is expanding its scope in all areas of resource development, in most cases by the authority of other laws passed by the 1964 General Assembly.

"These are all in line with Gov. Edward T. Breathitt's campaign pledge to conserve, develop and promote the use of Kentucky's natural resources," Matlick said.

The new department of Natural Resources, equipped with the legislative-granted authority to expand its scope will be able to carry out strengthened programs in such areas as forestry, strip-mining reclamation, and flood control.

The commissioner pointed out these programs within the department that have been or will be affected by new changes or planned expansion.

"Flood Control"—The 1964 Legislature made this activity a division of the Department of Natural Resources. The Flood Control and Water Resources Development Board was abolished.

(However, a new 7-man board, created by the Legislature will serve in an advisory capacity to the commissioner and department on all phases of natural resources development, including flood control. Matlick said the board members, to be appointed by the Governor upon recommendation of the commissioner, but named within the next few weeks.)

Another law passed by the Legislature in the area of flood control, allows the department more authority to prevent dumping into and filling up streams and rivers by providing that one may deposit or cause to be deposited any matter or debris in the bed of the flow of water in the channel or floodway of any stream.

"Forestry"—The 1964 Legislature provided funds to expand the State's organized forest fire protection beginning next January into some counties not included in the program. In addition, some other expansions are planned in law enforcement and safety, rural fire defense and improvement marketing and utilization of Kentucky's forest products.

"Soil and Water Resources"—The Legislature authorized the Watershed Conservation Act to allow local landowners to vote a special assessment on themselves to provide additional revenues to help secure and maintain local flood control structures. The maximum tax rate had been five mills per $100 assessed property value.

"Strip Mining and Reclamation"—Perhaps the most important new law passed by the Legislature, Matlick said, was that tightening up the regulations governing strip and surface mining. The law contains nearly a dozen points covering the mines, the geographical areas they are to be mined, and plans for reclamation, and the department's responsibilities in administering the law.

The State Strip Mining and Reclamation Commission has adopted two sets of regulations spelling out in detail the major points of the law. The first set, already in effect, covers such matters as the topography to which the land must be returned by the operator, the slope allowed in grading overburden on strip-mining "benches," and the amount of topsoil to be replaced.

The second group of regulations goes into effect July 11 and sets fourth details for re-

Drivers Should Pay Attention To Their Mail

In an effort to rectify complaints by some circuit court clerks that many new applicants who have qualified are not receiving their driver's licenses, the Kentucky Department of Public Safety suggests the applicants pay stricter attention to their mail—both out going and incoming.

"Postal authorities are returning approximately 15 licenses per day to our office," said Don C. Sullivan, director of driver's licenses, "and the most common reasons are 'moved,' 'left no address' and 'unknown.'"

Sullivan advised that when the application for a license is completed before the circuit court clerk, the applicant should make certain the information given is correct. He added a driver's license also is used for hours of non-remembrance to the old black-and-white type license formerly used.

"Whatever the cause," said Commissioner Glenn Lovest, "we're doing our best to find out and if it's an error we'll soon correct it, but right now it looks as if some of the license applicants are just a little careless in opening their mail."

"Information and Education"—The new Department of Natural Resources will have a greatly expanded information program. Matlick said, spearheaded by a new quarterly magazine which will begin publication in the near future. The magazine—"Kentucky's Heritage"—will have a wide distribution among groups interested in Kentucky's natural resources.

And His Friend, TIMOTHY TUGMUTTON

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The fellows at the country store Saturday night was making some big decision for a number of important items.

First off, Ed Doolittle ask for the floor to make a few remarks about the kind of mail service we was now getting from them folks in Washington. He reported he had went to town Saturday mornin to buy a stamp and the dad-burned window was closed. Ed is mighty touchy about these matters when the Democrats was in power Under the Republicans he would call it real economy.

Anyhow, he allowed as how any Government business that would cut back the service and raise rates at the same time was in mighty poor shape. He was of the opinion that with the volume of mail getting bigger and bigger they had ought to go on a 24-hour base instead of shutting down more and more.

Clem Webster agreed with Ed, claimed if the public couldn't make a phone call on Sundays or after midnight the Congress would meet in special session and take over the telephone business. Clem figured if private enterprise could run the railroads and telephone business under Government regulations, it could run the mail business the same way.

It was vote unanimous, Mister Editor, to put the U. S. Post Office up for sale.

Josh Goodpoper was was reading where a farmer in South Carolina had wrote to President Johnson asking to get put on the poverty handout. He said he was $12,456 in debt and things was getting worse all the time. The fellows was agreed that anybody with that kind of farming and get into the banking business.

Zakie Grubb reported he had saw by the papers where deaths on U. S. highways hit a all-time high in May. He said he could recollect back 20 year ago when horses was afraid of automobiles and folks was laughing at the horses. He said now that was more proof they ain't no substitute for horse sense.

It was agreed that just as soon as we get the Post Office sold add get poverty abolished we ought to put on a campaign again. I thought I'd laugh. Big Howard, for instance, said he saw where a fellow give a talk on traffic safety and showed the crowd a bottle of ketchup. He was 'footing' enoat alike. They was 321 pills in the bottle and all was harmless except one, and it would kill you dead. When he ask how many in the audience was willing to take a chance and swallow one of the pills, set a hand went up. Then he said many of them was tak-

New Procedure

 In price advantages.
 The law requires the Purchases Director establish standard specifications for items of regular and invitation to bidders. King said the State has entered into contract for the University of Louisville's School of Industrial Research to test purchased materials to ensure compliance with standards. To insure a program of inspection of quality control required by the law, the Purchases Division has employed Lawrence Ward formerly of Montgomery Ward's service department, Lexington.

State departments receiving bids are required by the law to report all deviations from standard specifications and delivery contracts. The Purchases Division also will spot-check deliveries and will conduct training courses for State employees responsible for receiving goods.
 The law requires that the purchasing director obtain from agencies an estimate of needs throughout a fiscal year so that schedules for purchasing and large volumes can be made, combining requests of agencies. This means further price advantages to the State, King said.

 Under the law, the Purchases Division will determine the qualifications of prospective bidders for inclusion on bidding lists. The law states that a list of qualified bidders on a particular commodity contains at least 10 names, invitations for competitive bidding must be sent to at least 10 bidders. King said he has increased this requirement to 15 by a new regulation.
 The invitations must be mailed at least 14 days before bid opening date. In addition the Purchases Division must edit bids in two newspapers of statewide circulation at least two weeks before bid opening.
 The Purchases Division will maintain records of all purchases and sales and report summaries of all transactions periodically to the governor, the finance commissioner and the General Assembly. The Division will also report trends in costs and prices and savings realized through improved practices.
 With few exceptions, all purchases of which the gross is $300 or more require the formal invitation of sealed bids. Purchases of less than $25 may be made by departments from petty cash accounts.
 The new law provides that any budget unit within State Government, when provided for by appropriation or authorized by the Finance Department, may establish one or more special cash funds for purchases requiring prompt delivery and prompt payment. These are items which it is not feasible to purchase on a centralized basis.

 The Purchases Division is adopting regulations that require agencies to maintain inventories of plant equipment. The Division will conduct regular physical audits of inventories.
 The law empowers the Purchases Division to "attempt in every practicable way to insure the State's supplying its real needs at the lowest possible cost." One way of doing this, King feels, is to simplify purchasing procedures. As a step toward simplicity, the Division has revised all its purchase forms except one, initiated scheduled buying in large quantities consisting of the requisitions of several agencies, and has revised procedures to hasten speed in processing orders.
 King said the State recently saved more than $15,000 in the purchase of paint by using standard specifications and combining the needs of several agencies into one large order. The State also has realized substantial savings in the purchase of automobiles and furniture in this manner, King added.
 The Purchases Division has held three general seminars to instruct agencies in the new procedures, has given instruction to several individual agencies, and is ready to advise any agency on its purchasing, as part of an overall training program, King said.
 To prevent visits from vendors infringing the administrative duties of buyers, the Division has established visiting hours during which vendors may call, King said. They are 1-3 p.m., Mondays; 9 a.m.-3 p.m., Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, and 9 a.m.-Noon, Fridays.

Picture This!
 A good picture is worth more than a thousand words, so reads an old expression. A good picture or pictures may not only lessen the beauty and effect of your walls, too, depending on the way you hang them.
 • Place a picture no higher than needed for full enjoyment. (Along this line, too, pictures in a child's room should be low enough for the child to enjoy.)
 • Set a picture off from patterned wallpaper by using a wide mat.
 • In grouping pictures, choose a common subject or color technique.
