Democrats To Select Delegates

Rowan County Democrats will gather Saturday at 2 p.m. in the courthouse at Morehead to elect delegates and attend to the state convention.

Rowan Democratic Chairman Glenn W. Lane issued the notice of Saturday's meeting, open to all registered Democrats.

Lane said that Rowan County is entitled to 10 delegate votes at the state convention which will choose Kentucky's official representatives to the national convention at which Lyndon B. Johnson is expected to be named the presidential nominee.

County have a delegate for each 250 votes, or major portion thereof, cast for John F. Kennedy in 1960 (Rowan gave Kennedy 2412 votes, but Democrats lost the county by 145 to Richard Nixon had 2,558).

Saturday's meeting will, if precedent is followed, elect 10 delegates and 10 alternates. It is expected to be harmonious.

Induction, Exams Set For Sixteen Rowan Co. Men

Fifteen Rowan Countians—all 18 years of age—will be given pre-induction physical examinations July 20, Ella Mae Evans, clerk of Local Board 88 said this week.

Examination of the 16-year-olds is in line with a change in national program announced earlier this year to begin early examination of this age group after a presidential task force study determined that large numbers of young men being found disqualified for military service were interested in obtaining educational, vocational and medical rehabilitation.

To be examined from Rowan County are: Gary Edward Crum, Billy Ray Thomas, Paul Edward Ramsey, Ronnie Darrel Lovely, Lawrence Preston Johnson, Roger Dale Wilson, Richard Leo Jenkins.

Also, Woodrow Sloan, Rutland.

Fugitives Who Disarmed Local Officers Captured Wednesday In House On Bull Fork Road

"DANGEROUS DUO"—That's the way local law enforcement officers described James Herbert Fultz, left, and Donald Ray Ferguson, who were captured Wednesday after they had disarmed two Morehead police officers Monday night.

A six-hour manhunt on Branton Tuesday failed to flush out the pair, but they were captured in a house on Bull Fork road Wednesday after they had fired seven or eight shots at officers.

Fugitives Who Disarmed Local Officers Captured Wednesday In House On Bull Fork Road

Law enforcement officers Wednesday captured two well-armed men who a day earlier had been the object of a six-hour manhunt after they had forcibly disarmed two Morehead police officers.

Taken into custody after they had fired some seven or eight shots at State Police Lt. L. C. Fyle and Detective Murvel Caudill were James Herbert Fultz, about 35, and Donald Ray Ferguson, about 30, both of Morehead.

The two were captured in a house on Bull Fork, about 13 miles northwest of Morehead. The home, formerly occupied by the family of Deores Markwell had been under surveillance since Tuesday when officers centered on that section of Rowan County in search of the pair.

Detective Caudill was fired on by the man as he stood by a State Police cruiser. Four shots fired from an upstairs charged the automobile. At the same time, shots were fired in the general direction of Fyle, who had gained entrance to the ground floor of the house. These ripped through the upstairs floor and through the ceiling of the downstairs section of the house.

Fyle "got the upper hand on the pair" according to Sergeant Dispatcher Robert L. Stamper of the Morehead State Police post and took them into custody.

Both Fultz and Ferguson waived their extradition before City Judge James E. Clay and were held without bond for the November grand jury on charges of armed robbery.

They were transferred to the Winchester jail for safekeeping. A six-hour manhunt in the rugged Branton Branch section of Rowan County Tuesday had failed to turn up any trace of the pair, who about midnight Monday took 38 caliber revolvers from Morehead Patrolmen Ed Hill and Carl Johnson after leveling a sawed-off shotgun on the officers.

The point was ordered on Branton Branch after officers received a tip early Tuesday that the pair had been seen there. State Police, city police and sheriff's department representatives combed the area thoroughly most of Tuesday without success.

Johnson and Hill had been called to the home of Ferguson's ex-wife just before midnight Monday to investigate a complaint that Ferguson was causing a disturbance. When they arrived at the home—just off the road on the west end of depot—Ferguson ran, dropping a Triplet-Crook and eluding the officers.

Shortly afterward Hill and Johnson, in a city cruiser, drove past Lexington Avenue in West Morehead, where upon Ferguson and Fultz walking down the street.

As they stopped, the cruiser, Police Chief Callis Coyle said, the two men whirled around, Fultz pointing a sawed-off shotgun at the two officers and Ferguson holding a pistol.

They ordered the officers to turn to page 9.

Fire Rages Out Of Control Two Hours Monday Levels One Of Morehead's Oldest Buildings

Structure Total Loss; Contents Destroyed Too

A fire which raged out of control for more than two hours Monday destroyed a Morehead landmark.

Gutted by the blaze which started in the kitchen of a restaurant, was a two-story frame building at the corner of Main Street and Trumbo Avenue, known as "Hogge's Store building."

No definite estimate of the loss was available, but Bill Battson, a co-owner of the structure with Mrs. Vivian Hersey and Dr. J. K. Smith, said the trio purchased the property last August for $27,500 and that fire insurance coverage totaled $6,000.

Occupants of the building included a restaurant, Pasquale's Pizzeria, a tobacco shop, the law offices of James E. Clay, and several individuals who lived on the second floor.

No injuries were reported as a result of the fire, which was discovered about 1:20 p.m.

The structure apparently had been ablaze for several minutes before it was discovered. Firemen said the source appeared to be in the kitchen of the restaurant.

Only a short block from the Fire Department, the fire was burning out of control when

Spectators Are Interfering With Fire Department Work

Members of the Morehead Fire Department this week voiced what appear to be justified complaints that "harmful" spectators are hampering efforts to give residents of the city fire protection.

Fire Chief C. B. McCullough, acting as spokesman for the department following a fire which leveled a building on a busy downtown corner Monday, cited instances where persons following fire trucks have interfered with the movement of these vehicles, and also pointed out incidents of spectators moving in so closely on firemen that they hamper the normal operation of hoses and other equipment.

"It's illegal—a violation of state law—to follow any emergency vehicle so closely that it interferes with the carrying out of the mission with which that piece of equipment is charged," the fire chief said. "There have been a number of recent incidents in which lives and property have been endangered by these unthinking, uncaring people who apparently get some kind of 'kick' out of other people's misfortune and have interfered with fire department activities."

For example, the chief said a Sunday grass fire at Pine Hill Cemetery, caused the department to have to take its equipment up a narrow road to the cemetery. After the truck had gotten to the scene, this road became so clogged with traffic that additional emergency vehicles would have been blocked if it had been necessary to

NAME IS 'RAWCEL HEIGHTS'

Commission Adopts Rent Schedules

"Rawcel Heights" is the official name of Morehead's first low rent, federally financed housing project.

The name was chosen at a meeting of the Morehead Municipal Housing Commission Monday evening. It incorporates initials of the last name of all who have served on the commission. (See Publisher's Pen elsewhere in this issue.)

In other actions on Monday the Commission:

- Deferred installment of initial occupancy until July 20 because of construction delays.
- Voled for an open house before occupancy, but decided not to set the time until the contractor gives a firm date when the 30 units (15 duplexes of one, two, three and four bedrooms, plus the administration building) will be turned over to the Commission.
- Adopted a rent schedule, ranging from $22 to $55 a month. Rents are set based on space occupied but on family income. Rental gas is included in the rent, but tenants will pay for their own water, sewage and electricity. (Families making up to $4,400 may qualify.)
- Approved occupancy standards whereby one or two persons will be eligible for a one bedroom unit; four to six persons, a three bedroom unit; and six to eight persons, or more, a four bedroom unit. An infant is not counted if it shares the parents' bedroom.
- Advised for a maintenance man. Applications will be accepted by July 20, and preference will be given to those who qualify for one of the low rent housing units. They will be paid for this part-time job $1,300 a year and applications may be submitted, with interview, at 105 Popple Avenue, phone 794-4314.
- The Commission also requested further publicity that tenant applications are being accepted. Full details can be obtained by phoning 794-4314 or Mrs. Michael Keller, Secretary.
- Mayor Eldon T. Evans, as official member of the Commission, said that Center Street, entrance to Rawcel Heights, Commission Chairman W. E. Crutcher said: "Futz will be surprised how modern and nice these duplex apartments are. A single family should contact Mrs. Keller for details."

At 7 p.m., the newsmen, government officials and their wives will attend a buffet dinner at the governor's residence.

Amphitheatre At Jenny Wiley Opens Saturday

Dedication of the new 800-seat amphitheatre in Jenny Wiley State Park, near Prestonsburg, is planned for 8 p.m. on Saturday.

State Parks Commissioner Robert D. Bell said former governor Bert Combs will be the chief speaker. It was during the administration last year of Combs, a Prestonsburg native, that construction of the amphitheatre was started.

The dedication program is sponsored by the Jenny Wiley Drama Association. Chalmers H. Frazier, Prestonsburg civic leader, is president of the group.

Beginning next year, "The Jenny Wiley Story" is to be presented nightly during the summer. This outdoor drama will portray the life of Jenny Wiley, the courageous young pioneer woman for whom the park was named and who escaped from Indian custody after her family had been slaughtered.

The Jenny Wiley amphitheatre is the fifth to be completed in the State park system.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War In Kentucky

BY JOE JORDAN (Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week President Lincoln ordered Kentucky under martial law and suspended the writ of habeas corpus. Thus a person arrested for the killing of one Union citizen could not appeal to the courts. Often his family could not find out the nature of the charge against him, or where he was confined. And he might be one of four prisoners selected to die before a firing squad in retaliation for the killing of one Union citizen by unknown persons.

On Frank Wolford, former commander of the First Kentucky (Union) Cavalry, who in March had been dismissed dishonorably from the service for making a speech in which he criticized the President and in June had been arrested and sent under guard to Washington, returned to Kentucky unaccompanied. In this case, Kentucky congressmen had made an appeal to the President, who directed that Wolford be released from custody on condition he give his word to report for trial at Lexington. Reporters told Wolford's arrival, Lexington Journal said: "He is to remain here until he has his name on a list of examination, or some other kind of military court, for language said to have been used by him at Lebanon. He is to be under guard until he is to be tried under any law."

Gov. Thomas E. Bramlette said in a letter to Sen. Richard T. Jacob, "The very essence upon which he was arrested I had not been able to learn and you learned me that it was upon the charge of discouraging enlistments." The governor was astonished, for Wolford had just succeeded in enlisting an entire regiment of state troops at Bramlette's request.

The Lexington Observer and Reporter carried this story about two former residents of Lexington: "It is stated that the residence of Francis P. Blair at Silver Springs, Md., near Washington, was saved from destruction by the agency of John C. Breckinridge, who was no doubt influenced by his friendly relations previously existing between him and the late Breckinridge, who was major general in the Confederate army. Blair was a strong union man. One of his sons, Francis P. Blair, Jr., was a major general in the Union Army and another, Montgomery Blair, was postmaster general in President Lincoln's cabinet.

The Observer and Reporter said the first speeches in Lexington by supporters of the Union had been made to a "very meagre number" of voters, one speech "by ex-Gov. Wright of Indiana (an old Democrat who, after spending his life in fighting Abolitionism, had now been converted into a most excellent radical of the Lincoln school), the other by Charles Estlin of Winchester, the Lincoln elector for this district. Although it was county court day and the creators delivered themselves in the courthouse yard, yet the people did not seem inclined to be enlightened from such sources."

Forester Aids In Fire Probe In Missouri

By Joe J. Mauk: During recent weeks I have failed to get a column ready for the paper due to other pressing jobs. To start, Bruce Elder, editor of the Blackburg District of the Jefferson National Forest in Virginia and I were deputed by the Clark and Mack Twain National Forests in Missouri to give them a hand on investigating several forest fires in the northern Ozark region to determine the cause and person or persons responsible for the fires. While there we were able to bring a few cases to a successful conclusion.

During the last couple of weeks I have been busy getting a water line laid to the camping and picnic areas here at Rodburn. We wanted to get water to the area before the July 4th weekend. We got the water lines in and the water fountains and the newly constructed facilities are now in use. The weekend of the 6th gave the area a workout. On the total of 350 picnickers and campers used in addition to the normal number of picnickers Sunday.

Rangers Bob Reynolds and three week vacation in Maryland; Forester Roger Bucklew and family, and spending a week vacationing in West Virginia and Lookout East. Madix and his family loaded up their camper one day for an unknown (that is to the office) for a week of rest.

Tom Stratton, our electronic technician of the Forest Supervisor's office in Winchester, is in on the District this week servicing all of our radio equipment.

Claig Sprout... And His Friend, TIMOTHY TUGMUTTON

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

"Me and my old lady went to church Sunday mornin' and our preacher was in real good form. He told the congregation if we had many more he'd might be was coming to put the church and sleep. He said he'd be in the church at night on account of some of his congregation could even do it on Sunday mornin'.

He also reported that chaos was at the bottom of all our troubles around the world. I don't like to argue with my preacher but he is dead wrong about that one. Chaos came to the top a long time ago.

And speaking of the church, my old lady is in a state of shock from losing her Claret's cash money. She says she knows the Lord will believe her and forgive her, but the members of the club never will—either believe it or forgive it. She allows as how she aims to replace the money if she has to sell one of my cows to do it. I don't know how we and my cow got mixed up in this thing but it just goes to show you, Mister Editor, how a fellow can be wrong for his old lady's mistakes. If they was willing to walk my cow money, I'm going to ask for membership in the Circle. That's all 'em!

Ed Donahue came by the house Sunday night to set for a spell and Ed is mighty disturbed over the way them Congressmen covered up the Bobby Baker case. Natural, he blames it on the Democrats. But I think, Mister Editor, it's gittin' harder and harder for politicians to cover up their dirt. The newspaper uses too many stovels on 'em. They was a old saying tiber a scolded covers up his mistakes with ivy, the doctor covers his with a cement slab and a fellow's wife covers her with mayonaisse but them politicians was having less luck all the time in the covering business.

Ed was also of the opinion that some of them young fellows all the time for politicians to be in the Congress was talking too loud for their age. He allowed us how they got that way they was calling a "Young Turk" group in the Congress that was telling the people it was a "Youth ver-

Furthermore, said Ed, he didn't aim to go ridin' around on a topic he don't know nothin' about, but he was of the opinion one of the great troubles in Washington is they ain't got a dirt farmer in the whole bunch. He said the U. S. Commissioner of Agriculture claimed to be a farmer but Ed doubted if he would qualify as a Judge in a Hog Show. Ed was down in the dumps Sunday night. Mister Editor.

Council Studies, Condemns Medicare 'Irregularities'

The Advisory Council on Medical Assistance has received reports from four technical advisory committees, giving the results of their investigations on reported irregularities in the State's medical care program. The reports were made at the last meeting, were held in the T. Toll, South Port Mitchell, chairman of the Pharmacy Committee; Dr. C. C. Sparks, Ashland, chairman of the Kentucky State Medical Association's Technical Advisory Committee; Dr. Vincent Barr, Frankfort, chairman of Dental Committee; and Miss Mae Frazier, Frankfort, chairman of the Committee on Nursing Services. Louisville, Council member representing the Kentucky Hospital Association, said that members of the Hospital Advisory Committee expressed an need for more study of hospital usage and would report at the Council's next meeting.

The reports listed these findings and recommendations: PHARMACY—Toll said his Pharmacy Committee had studied allegations that some drug-gets in the medical care program have been billing the State for more drugs than were dispensed, false advertising, signing physicians' names to prescriptions and substituting drugs on prescriptions.

The bas erroneously prescribed a substitute prescription would be in order; and that no one should sign prescription forms for physicians in the program except in cases of incapacitating illness and death.

DENTAL—Dr. Barr reported that his group had sent a letter to all members of the State Dental Association cautioning them against such practices as overcharging patients, billing for services to hospital patients under the guise of home or office visits. Such practices, he said, "are acts of dishonesty and thus we obviously do not condone."

NURSING SERVICES—Miss Frazier reported "there is some evidence that in some instances nursing consultants are being employed on paper only." Her committee recommended that the desirability of requiring nursing consultants in nursing home regulations be re-evaluated.

Toll said his committee had reviewed reported practices of billing for services not rendered and billing for services to hospital patients under the guise of home or office visits. Such practices, he said, "are acts of dishonesty and thus we obviously do not condone."

Sparks said his committee also recommended that patients be given the choice of pharmacist when a prescription is telephoned in by a doctor, and suggested that the Council make it clear to vendors of services that the program is a "service contract" rather than an "indemnity" one, that acceptance of a patient is on a "date" basis rather than on an "illness" basis, that nothing binds any vendor to accept any patient and that provisions are available for returning the State's payment in the event a vendor or his relatives wish to pay the vendor's regular charge themselves.

Other allegations, Sparks' committee reported, if a physician substitutes drugs (for those on the official drug list) for his own gain, he should be severely censured; if he bills

Task Force To Investigate 'Poor Man-Court' Relations

Gov. Edward T. Breathitt has created a special Task Force on Criminal Justice to investigate the entire relationship of the poor man and the courts in Kentucky.

Named chairman of the 15-member group is M. B. "Mike" Mills, Madisonville, Commonwealth attorney for Hopkins, Caldwell and Crittenden counties.

Mills, 38, was chairman of former Gov. Bert Combs' Task Force on Corrections which made a study of Kentucky's penal system and recommended legislative and administrative action for the program.

Breathitt asked the force to recommend to him, legislative and administrative action on bail-bond procedures. State-funded counsel for the needy, and capital punishment.

The Governor said he decided to begin the program to eliminate distinctions between poor and rich criminal defendants "because it is right."

"We must see to it that the legal scales in Kentucky weigh justice and not the weight of a man's billfold," he said.

Breathitt said the bail-bond system should be "looked into because low income persons often unable to make bail when accused of crime, are forced to spend the interval between arrest and trial in jail.

"They lose their jobs and their families' lives are disrupted. They cannot locate witnesses and attorneys in their behalf and because of this their chances for acquittal are lowered," he said.

"They are often treated like already-convicted criminals, despite our treasured principle that people are presumed innocent until proven guilty."

An accused person's pre-trial release, Breathitt said, should be determined by the defendant's background and the nature of the crime, not by bail money.

Kentucky judges have power to release without bail defendants who give their word they will appear for trial, Breathitt said he was hopeful a plan could be formulated that would give a judge accurate information on a defendant's background so judges could at times grant a defendant's release without bail.

A study of capital punishment, declared the Governor, would probably reveal that the underprivileged and those too poor to employ counsel, most often receive the death sentence.

He gave the task force Nov. 1, 1965, to complete its final study. Interim reports and recommendations to the Governor or may be submitted as required.

Fescue Proven Top Cover Crop On Most Land

By Donald B. Nelson
Fescue of the last cultivation of your corn or tobacco has proven to be one of the best cover crops for your cropland.

These are some of the advantages of using fescue for a cover crop:

• Fescue is able to get a good growth before cold weather.

• Produces nine times more organic matter for your soil than small grain.

• Develops organic matter freely in roots and not as much top growth and this will be an advantage in case there is a wet spring and you are unable to turn your cover crop.

• Gives extra time in the spring to spread manure on cropland.

• You can wait longer to turn fescue under in the spring and can keep a cover on land longer to prevent erosion.

• You can use it for pasture the following year due to seedling fescue early in the fall.

All these are reasons why you should consider using fescue for a cover crop on your tobacco and corn. I will be glad to assist you in planning and providing information on using fescue as a cover crop.

Foreign Language Program Starts

A foreign language laboratory workshop is being held on the Morehead State College campus July 6 through July 17.

Bernard Hamilton, assistant professor of modern languages, Morehead State College, is director of the workshop.

"The program is designed to be both versatile and practical," said Hamilton. "We will deal with three major aspects of teaching foreign languages: the mechanical, the use of materials and texts in the class and how to instruct through the use of these teaching aids."

Two hours of undergraduate or graduate credit may be earned for the workshop, which is designed to give foreign language teachers a better comprehension of modern language methods of instruction.

"This workshop is not for training in the languages of Spanish, German, French, the three languages primarily taught in Kentucky," said Hamilton, "but will place emphasis on adapting and using texts in the state list for classroom use."

Boonesborough Park Revamping Is Taking Shape

Improved facilities are taking shape at Boonesborough State park, newest unit in Kentucky's famed State park system. Park Commissioner Robert D. Bell has reported.

The 85-acre day use State park, just off U. S. Highway 27 on the Kentucky River between Richmond and Winchester in Madison and Clark counties, is near the site where Daniel Boone and his companions in 1775 established one of the earliest settlements in Kentucky.

A new, paved parking area accommodating 200 cars is under construction and a remodeled bath house is now open at this largest natural river sand beach in Kentucky.

The beach area has been graded, and a new walkway has been constructed to the beach, which has been cleaned and on which the bank has been sodded.

Picnicking facilities also are available, Bell said.

There is no admission charge for swimming, only for clothes basket rental, Bell added.

Starting In Here
The SOURCE—Fire Department officials said the blaze which destroyed the building apparently started in the kitchen of a restaurant which occupied part of the ground floor. Firemen are shown here attempting to stifle the flames in that part of the structure.

Dense Smoke
WHERE THERE'S SMOKE — Huge clouds of brown smoke engulfed the eastern section of Morehead Monday as one of the community's oldest buildings was destroyed by fire. Shortly after the alarm was sounded Morehead News Photographer Bill Svec shot this picture of firemen wetting down the east end of the structure.

The Aftermath
UNDER CONTROL—Firemen confined to the blaze was brought under control. It was poor water on the building at the corner of Main and Trumbo Streets here Monday after the most spectacular fire here in years.

Conference To Assess Bias Law

Governor Edwared T. Breathitt will meet in Frankfort with State lawmakers the week of July 26 to assess likelihood of passing a State public accommodations law.

If response is favorable, the Governor said he will immediately call a special session of the 1964 General Assembly to consider a bill similar to one introduced during the regular session earlier this year.

In summoning State senators and representatives to Frankfort, Breathitt is following through on earlier statements that he would ascertain chances of passing a State public accommodations bill as soon as possible after passage of the Federal civil rights bill.

A State law would provide state-level enforcement and conciliatory machinery to expedite the Federal Law, and would apply equally to all places of public accommodations, except bona fide private clubs and certain types of businesses which State lawmakers might exempt.

MNS Club Moves To initiate 'Cora Wilson Stewart Room'

Members of the Morehead Normal School Club, meeting Sunday in Doran Student House, moved to honor a former Rowan County educator—Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart.

By agreement with Morehead State College President Dr. Adron Doran, the group will collect Mrs. Stewart's mementoes and they will be displayed in a special section of the College library.

The MNS club—made up of persons who attended the school prior to its becoming a state college—actually formalized a previously informal movement being conducted by Mrs. Otis Nickell, who for some time has spearheaded a drive to honor the founder of the international- ly-known "Moonlight School" movement which led to acquisition of reading and writing skills by thousands of persons who previously had been classified as illiterates.

At the same meeting, MNS club members issued an appeal to persons who may have items which belonged to Mrs. Stewart to donate them to the MNS club for inclusion in the collection which will be permanently displayed. Books, newspaper clippings, and personal effects of the former Rowan County school superintendent are particularly needed, Mrs. John Will Holbrook of Morehead said this week.

Mrs. Stewart's "Moonlight School" movement was instituted in 1911, during her second term as head of Rowan County schools. It received its name from the fact that sessions were held only on moonlight nights.

Classes originated in Rowan County, but soon spread into surrounding counties and after three years were being conducted not only in Kentucky, but in sections of Tennessee, Alabama and South Carolina.

Mrs. Stewart's fight to stamp out the blight of illiteracy soon brought an appropriation from the Kentucky Legislature, establishment of the Kentucky Literacy Commission, which she headed, and many years later brought about a grant of $200.

1000 from the Rosenwald Fund) in Chicago to study progress of the movement and its future needs.

A native of Rowan County, Mrs. Stewart received her early education at the Morehead Normal School.

Mrs. Holbrook said persons with contributions to make to the collection could contact her.

In other action taken at Sunday's meeting, Mrs. Mahalia Shaggs of Portsmouth, O., was named president for a one-year term, Miss Grace Crosswhite was elected vice president, Mrs. Ruby Wood, treasurer and Mrs. Ida Caudill Hillman, Olive Hill, secretary.

The group also voted to give three scholarships rather than the previous total of two, next semester. These are the Frank C. Batten scholarships, which carry stipends of $50 each.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Goodman of Phoenix, Ariz., traveled the greatest distance to attend Sunday's session.

The 1963 meeting will be held on the last Sunday in June.

Structure -

 members of the volunteer unit arrived.

Fire Chief C. B. McCullough said the building had been ransacked by a fire hazard for many years because of its age and its frame construction.

All of the equipment in the restaurant, operated by Francis Stahl of Mayville, was lost. Much of the inventory of the tobacco shop had been sold in bulk and moved out last week, but fixtures used in the business were destroyed. Law books and other equipment in Clay's office was saved.

McCullough said the fire was brought under control shortly after 3:30 p.m., but it continues.

Supply Adequate
 Morehead's water supply proved more than adequate to care for Monday's fire emergency, according to Utility Plant Board Superintendent Clark Johnson.

He said the reservoir behind Johnson Camden Library carried its full complement of water at the time the fire broke out and that shortly after the blaze was pronounced under control, measurements showed seven feet of water remaining in the storage tanks.

ed to smolder throughout Monday night. A second alarm was sounded "at mid-morning Tuesday when burning embers suddenly blazed up but quick work by the department prevented a further flare-up.

An adjacent building which houses a grocery escaped damage, although McCullough said the roof of the structure caught fire, briefly, McCullough said. Tobacco service in a nearby area was interrupted for a short time after flames burned through a number of lines at the front of the building. However, service was quickly restored.

The building property was best known as "Hogge's Store." A pioneer resident of the community, J. W. Hogge operated a grocery and dry goods establishment on the corner for many years. The Hogge family also maintained living quarters there.

Pasquale's Pizzeria had been in business in that location for approximately five years.

The building was believed to have been one of Morehead's oldest. According to senior citizen Norman Wells, it was constructed in 1902 by Kelsey Alderson, at that time one of Rowan County's most affluent citizens.

Without significant alteration, it had stood on the Main Street corner 62 years.

Traffic was backed up on Main Street for a short time as firemen got into position to combat the blaze. However, only a slight traffic tie-up resulted, although the activity was at one of the city's busiest intersections. The entrance to College Boulevard lies directly across Main Street from the scene.

Many members of the fire department—including Chief and Assistant Chief Walter Calvert—McCullough were on duty from the time the alarm sounded until shortly after 8 p.m., or a total of about seven hours.

Two minor fires also claimed the department's attention this week.

Children playing with firecrackers caused a grass fire in Fine Hill Cemetery Sunday. About 10 minutes were required to control the flames.

Wiring was burned off an automobile engine last Thursday when the car backfired, causing the vehicle to catch fire on Carey Avenue. Firemen rapidly extinguished the blaze.

Four Shots -

 hand over their guns and then directed them to drive away.

Thus armed—with the shotgun and at least three pistols—the fire fled, and according to police reports, their next information on the pair came from an unidentified neighbor, who said the two had been seen on Bratton Branch.

Ferguson, who reportedly is separated from his wife, has been living on Bull Fork, which is adjacent to Bratton Branch.

Officers descended on that section in force shortly after 9:30 a.m. Tuesday and conducted the fruitless search.

Pointed out that the section is heavily wooded and foliage exceptionally dense.

"They could very well have been in the area which we searched," one police source said, "and we could have been very close to them without discovering them because of the nature of the terrain."

Source of the shotgun and pistol with which the officers were disarmed was believed to have been the home of C. W. Bailey on Bull Fork. Bailey reported to officers Tuesday that his home was burglarized Monday night and these two items were missing.

Fultz, according to the records was convicted of killing Curtis Kegler in 1956 and was sent to the State Reformatory at LaGrange. He reportedly was paroled in March of this year. Parole authorities have placed a detainer against him.

Other charges undoubtedly will be placed against both men, authorities indicated.

Taking part in Tuesday's search were these officers: Lt. Pyle Sgt. J. O. Cox, Detective Jennings and Troopers Marvin J. J. and Robert Morrison of the Morehead Post of the State Police; Sgt. L. T. Owen and Trooper James D. Boyle of the Ashland State Police Post; Rowan County Sheriff Curt Lewis, and Morehead Police Chief Callis Coyle.

Spectators -

 call them.

Difficulty was slight at the Monday fire which destroyed downtown buildings, but McCullough said spectators caused some problems by moving in too close to firemen who were battling the blazing structure.

A plan of enforcement of the law in this respect is expected to be worked out shortly, and violators can expect to be subject to legal action in the future, according to the fire chief.

Apparently the department will ask the Police Department to begin issuing citations for violations of this type.

Several years ago, 14 tickets were issued for "following too closely" in connection with one fire, and the practice was temporarily slowed down.

However, according to the fire chief, the custom has been resumed in recent months, with the possibility that a real tragedy can occur as a result.

McCullough cited city ordinance No. 84, which provides a penalty of $5-$15 for following a fire truck; No. 107, which sets out a fine of $5-$15 for parking which interferes with fire equipment; and No. 124, which provides a fine of $10-$50 for hindering the work of a fire department.

Inductions -

 Edward Pennington, Elbert Pennington, Ronnie Edmon Thompson, Joseph Medford Caudill, Eddie Ray Hickie, Bobby Joe McClurg and James Logan Blizant.

To be inducted into the armed forces July 20th is Leland Harold Hovett.

Col. Everett S. Stephenson, state director of Selective Service, emphasized that examination of the 18-year-olds does not mean that they face induction in the immediate future.
