THINK AND THEN VOTE
 On November 3 the people of the United States will go to the polls to select the leader of a great nation. The race lies between Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic nominee and Alf M. Landon, who carries the banner for the more conservative Republican party.
 It is a test of the people whether they favor the New Deal which was inaugurated almost four years ago by President Roosevelt, or the conservative policies of the Republican party: it is not necessarily a battle between the two major parties for their strength is about equal.
 Think, before voting. This is a government of the people, and the citizens of the United States should think and then vote.
 The Republicans are hammering at the New Deal, the Democrats are pointing to the regime of Hoover as a poor administration that brought depression. Much of this political bating and propaganda should be ignored by the voter. He should consider the future, the past and the present before casting his ballot, and then vote for the man that he believes will be able to give us a better government and make a better President, regardless of party affiliation. This is not a time to vote along party lines, but a choice between the two candidates and what they are offering the people and their country.

COURT DOCKET LIGHTER
 The fact that circuit court dockets in Rowan county are becoming lighter and less congested is a sure indication that crime is on the decrease. It equally attests to the fact that people are becoming more civilized.
 The most pleasing part about the docket, however, is that there are few robberies and less murder trials. Robberies have decreased at least 75 per cent—possibly more. The biggest reduction is in Morehead, which has not had a major theft in three or four months, and only two during the past year.
 Officers are also to be credited with much for this. They have worked hard in bringing criminals before the bar of justice. Juries have likewise dealt less leniently with law breakers, and the majority of the habitual petty crooks and thieves that caused much of the robberies are custodians of the state of Kentucky at Frankfort. If Governor Chandler will continue to use his power of pardons and paroles stingingly we can enjoyably look forward to keeping them there longer than in the past.

WORTHY LAW ENFORCEMENT
 In an effort to eliminate accidents on the highways, the Rowan County Patrol, headed by C. B. McCullough, is making numerous arrests. The patrolmen are not going to any extremes, so as to incur the frown of automobile associations, but are arresting only the most flagrant violators.
 It seems that this is a worthy piece of law enforcement and one that the county has needed for many years. Speeding, parking on the highway and driving without lights are the worst kind of law violations, and the perpetrators should be punished.

$30,000,000,000 WORTH OF INDUSTRY
 "Organized industry has been an integral part of America for only a hundred years," said an outstanding economist recently. "And yet the evidences of industrial growth, with all its allied expansion of transportation and communication, as vested in securities upon the New York Stock Exchange alone, are now appraised at ninety billions of dollars."
 Many factors have entered into that astonishing growth—and one of the important factors has been the work of the security exchanges. Without them, it would have been extremely difficult to sell stocks and bonds—the potential purchaser, knowing that there was no central market place where security prices were quoted daily, would not have known the fair price for an issue, and naturally would have been hesitant to invest in it. Again, he would have been logically afraid that if he wished to dispose of his holding in the future, there would be no quick, simple and easy way to do it.
 This does not mean that when a person buys a listed security he is guaranteed against loss or devaluation. Supply and demand is the sole arbiter of the price offered on stock exchanges, and if you pay $100 a share for a stock and the price quoted on the exchange some time thereafter is only $10, you take it or don't sell. Obviously, it is impossible to guard against poor judgment, or to curb those with an over-speculative instinct. But the exchanges are going to great lengths to protect purchasers from misrepresentation in security issuance, from underwriter operations, and from any and all chicanery in stock manipulation. They are cooperating wholeheartedly with the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission to this end.

NATURAL GAS BY WINTER
 "Some rush work will evidently have to be done if natural gas is piped into all Morehead homes that signed for it by the coming of winter.
 Originally it was planned to have natural gas in the city by September 1. Unexpected difficulties made it impossible to get the fuel here by that time, and now it seems doubtful if many homes and businesses will get it this year.
 The sooner that natural gas is brought into the city the better. Morehead needs gas and if the rates are within reason, practically every home is expected to take advantage of this fuel.

CALL THE FIRE DEPARTMENT
 Writing in "Safeguarding America Against Fire," Chief Engineer George W. Both of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, calls attention to the great importance of calling the fire department promptly when a blaze breaks out.
 "Even in fireproof buildings serious loss may be expected when there is a delay in discovery of the fire," says Mr. Both, who then recommends interior local alarm systems, automatic alarms and sprinklers and similar equipment. "The first duty of everyone on discovery of a fire is to make sure that the alarm has been transmitted to the fire department."

This doctrine is as applicable to homes as it is to factories and places of business. Many a fire that could have been easily extinguished had the fire department been summoned at once, has been allowed to grow to serious proportions. Amateur "fire fighting" is apt to do more harm than good. A small fire that looks as if it could be easily extinguished with a garden hose can turn a home into an inferno while the household is getting ready in his attempt to put it out.
 Every year, people attempt to extinguish gasoline and oil fires with water—even though every school-boy knows that this simply spreads the flame, and that only chemical extinguishers will work effectively, and thousands of people, think it needless to call the fire department for a small fire, try to put it out themselves without proper knowledge or equipment. Sometimes they are successful—but when they fail, great and needless property loss, and perhaps loss of life, result.
 When fire starts, call the fire department—and call it at once. That's what it's for.

One Year Ago This Week
 The Citizens Ticket announced for City Council, opposing the present municipal set-up.
 Sheriff Mort May was fired on by snipers in the Haldeman strike sector, while he was delivering a summons.
 The mother of Prof. L. H. Horton, died at her home in Cleveland, Ohio.
 The October grand jury in its final report recommended that a considerable amount of work be done on Rowan county rural roads. The grand jury returned 55 true bills.
 Z. C. Fugate, Haldeman, withdrew from his race for Magistrate.
 Governor A. O. Stanley spoke in Morehead in behalf of the Democratic party.
 Circuit Judge D. B. Cassidly sentenced four to the penitentiary following the close of the October term.

WHAT OTHER KENTUCKY EDITORS ARE SAYING
 Classifying the News
 The Palm Beach Times, newspaper of which Harry Giovannoli, formerly of Lexington, is technical advisor, has instituted a novel method of presenting the news which has attracted nation-wide attention. This is the first daily newspaper in the United States to classify news, although many weekly news publications do so. On the front page appear the headings, "Foreign Affairs" and "Local News" and on the inside pages "Politics," "Society," "Markets," "Sports," and other classifications appear.
 A special heading is given to "Crime and Violence" which is a sad commentary upon the contents of the news reports of the day. This, however, appears on the inside pages and not overlapped as some newspapers display such news.
 In the weekly news magazines and Sunday editions of some newspapers classifications of news has been practiced effectively. There may be some question as to whether classification of the news in a daily newspaper in this manner will last. At least there are many who complain that they "can't find it" when mention is made of stories appearing in newspapers that do not classify the news. As an experiment this trial certainly has merit and it will be interesting to note how the reader interest response continues.—The Lexington Herald.
 In the first six months of 1936, out of total imports of tobacco and tobacco products into the Republic of Panama, the United States supplied 87 per cent of all manufactured tobacco.

GOING PLACES

Rowan county. We cannot easily forget the large number of people who have been taken to hospitals, when they were on the verge of death, through financial support of the Red Cross. We cannot help but remember the useful work that the Red Cross did in rehabilitation following the flood four years ago.

Army Has Many Vacancies In State
 The U. S. Army Recruiting Station at Lexington, now has vacancies for the 1st and 13th Cavalry, (Mechanized) stationed at Fort Knox, Ky. These organizations are equipped with the latest models of military tanks, armored cars, trucks and motorcycles; these in turn being furnished with the latest models of weapons. The 10th Infantry stationed at Fort Thomas, Ky., also has a few openings.
 To join these organizations you must be over 18 years of age, if under 21 must have your parents or guardian's consent, not less than five feet four inches in height and weigh not less than 115 pounds; must be of good moral character, in excellent health and be able to pass an intelligence test (any young man with an eighth grade education should be able to pass the intelligence test). All applicants must apply in person to this office.
 Experiments conducted by the Japanese Salt Monopoly Bureau with the view to producing salt directly from sea brine are said to have been successful but another year will be required to adapt the process to commercial use.

THIS WEEK IN MOREHEAD

REGISTRATION: Despite publication in newspapers, and every other effort to acquaint citizens with the new registration laws, many Rowan countyans failed to learn of the statute, and as a result will not be allowed to vote in the November 3 general election.
 The county clerk reports a number of people have come in to register during the week. They were refused, because the registration time limit expired October 15.
 Rowan county will have a local option election on December 5. Voters may register for this election November 15.
 Following the local option vote they can register any time during the spring and until the 15th of July to be eligible to vote in next year's primary.
GRAND JURY: The report, which was to have carried considerable criticism, expected of the grand jury did not materialize, the jurors bringing out a brief final statement that carried very little of any importance.
 We sometimes wonder if these grand-jury reports are worth the paper they are written on. Time and again different things have been condemned by the grand jury, but nothing is ever done about it.
PEACEFUL: Local law enforcement officers report that this year's homecoming was the most peaceful they could recall so far as breaking the law was concerned. Officers didn't have to enforce their usual style of overlooking many petty violations, in view of the occasion, this year as there were very few who overstepped the bounds.

THE EDITOR: Since the editors do not write this column, it appears that it will be all right to discuss one of them briefly. Mr. W. J. Sample, who says he is and is a product of Morehead, was given a signal honor last Friday when the 'M' club, composed of lettermen of the Morehead State Teachers College elected him president. Perhaps you didn't know it, but Mr. Sample performed at right field for the Morehead Teachers baseball club, when Morehead really had baseball team—without doubt the champion scholastic nine in the state for many years.
 It is needless to say that Editor Sample feels honored— for if anyone is wrapped up in sports, although he no longer participates it is Editor Sample.
RED LIGHTS: Motorists continue to ignore the red lights at the corners of Main street and College boulevard and Main and Fairbanks avenue. A citizen, whose word is irrefutable, says he counted 20 cars one day last week out of 62 that ignored the light. Sometimes "one of these consistent red light-runners will land up with a wrecked car and a heavy damage suit.
 The city council has made numerous efforts to enforce these stop lights. For a time strict enforcement was worked, but that seems to be a thing of the past. Further steps are in order.
RED CROSS: The Red Cross membership drive with its goal of 300, has officially been launched in Rowan county. It is the duty of every civic-minded citizen to enroll in this organization. The fee is one dollar, which, you may rest assured, will be well spent.

FARMING BY IMPROVED METHODS

Written by the Staff of the University of Kentucky Agricultural Extension Work, College of Agriculture

Thousands of Calves on Feed

For Annual Show at Louisville. A total of 1,011 calves are being finished by 4-H club boys and girls in 39 counties for the 15th annual fat cattle show to be held at the Bourbon Stock Yards in Louisville November 11-13.

This is 300 more calves than ever were fattened for any previous show, according to M. S. Garstide of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

A total of $2,854, appropriated by the state of Kentucky, will be divided among the 4-H club winners. Rings include carloads, less than carloads, five head, individual.

ual calves, economic production, record books, calves raised by owners, and calves finished by Utopia club members.

Owners of the best Hereford, Shorthorn and Angus calves will each receive a trip to the International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago, as will the boy or girl writing the best composition on the subject, "The Marketing of Livestock." The essay writing class is new this year.

Mr. Garstide pointed out that 150 calves on feed were raised by their owners, the largest number ever entered in this class. The College of Agriculture encourages 4-H club members to own cows and raise calves, instead of buying them.

Counties in which 50 or more calves are on feed include Garrard, Pulaski, Hart, Harrison, Henderson and Wayne.

Frontier Service Women to College

A representative of Kentucky's Frontier Nursing Service is studying at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture this year, in order to learn about judging, feeding, disease control and general care of horses and other livestock. Miss Jean Hollins, assistant in the care of 30 to 50 horses at Wendover, Ky., and has registered for work in genetics, anatomy and physiology, market, classes and grades of livestock, and special problems in animal husbandry.

From Long Island, N. Y., and educated at the Sorbonne in Paris, France, Miss Hollins has spent three years in social service work. Miss Elizabeth O. Rogers, of Shelbyville, has also registered in the agricultural college for the primary purpose of learning to judge and care for horses. Her father, Noble Rogers, is a well-known Shelby county farmer and stockman.

High Laying Hens on Exhibit

At Meeting. A hen that laid 287 eggs in 51 weeks was one of the sights at the recent annual meeting of poultry raisers at the farm of W. E. Pyles in Mason county. The pen of hens that ranked eighth in the Michigan laying contest also were on display. Sixteen Kentucky counties and West Virginia were represented among the primary purpose of learning to judge and care for horses.

Practical for Home Economics Graduates. Making use of their home economics training to assist homemakers in learning better methods of cooking, clothing, home improvement, child care, etc., five young women who were graduated from the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture in 1935 are employed in home demonstration work in the state.

Anna Evans, Lexington, is assistant home agent in Jefferson county. During her senior year she was president of the Home Economics club of the university and also an officer in Pitt Upland Omicron, national professional home economics fraternity. Alice Penn, of Georgetown, is working in Franklin county. While in college she specialized in home economics education. Ruth Hunter, assistant home agent in Fayette county, and Vivian Muter in Warren county, both belonged to Pitt Upland Omicron and the Home Economics club. Miss Hunter was formerly of Somerset, and Miss Muter of New Haven, Ky. Mary Lou Jackson, formerly of Hickman, is home demonstration agent in Ballard county.

The Kind of Pig The Farmer Wants

Pigs may be just pigs but there is a kind that fattens best and sells best. In a talk during the College of Agriculture radio program from 12 to 12:15 October 26, Grady Sellaris will discuss "The Hog That Is Profitable." He will have interesting things to say about making more money from hogs.

The College of Agriculture's noon hour radio program over WHAS is attracting wide attention in Kentucky and adjoining states. Often talks the week of October 26 include soil improvement, sheep raising, dairying, 4-H club work, community meetings, county planning, and the care of the orchard. Each Friday, I. C. Brewer answers farmers' questions.

Animal Pictures Free For Asking

Here's a tip for 4-H club members and other boys and girls interested in animal pictures. Send to the Bureau of Animal Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for a free set of 10 livestock pictures. Each one is about 10 by 8 1/2 inches, and has a mat and frame photographed with it so it is complete and ready to hang up, if desired, or it may be mounted on a cardboard or framed. Boys who are interested in livestock judging will find models to study of cattle, sheep, pigs, horses, mules, goats and poultry.

Fall Treatment For Worms Urged

Treating sheep for stomach worms in late October or November is one of the reasons of keeping worms from being carried over to reinfect pastures the following spring. Free from worms, ewes make better use of food and reach lambing time in better condition than do infested sheep. In horses, the combined blue-stone and nicotine and sulfate treatment or tetrachlorethylene capsules are recommended by Richard C. Miller of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. So-called worm remedies administered in the feed or salt are not satisfactory. Farmers without experience in treating sheep for worms should consult their county agricultural agent.

The Farm and Home

Mothes are numerous in the house during the fall months, and may fly about and lay eggs most in the wintler. Woolen coats and blankets, therefore, should be brushed, beaten and sunned frequently to dislodge eggs that may have been laid in them.

In substituting honey for sugar in recipes it is necessary to reduce the amount of liquid used. If medium-thick honey is used in cakes or quick-bread, reduce the liquid a fourth. If honey is substituted for all the sugar, reduce the liquid one-half.

Sulfate of ammonia or nitrate of soda is used on lawns in the fall at the rate of a pound per square rod. It is best to make the application just before rain, so its use in dry weather may burn the grass. Mixing with sand or dry soil makes for even distribution.

If no other form of animal protein is fed, laying hens should consume skim milk or butter milk at the rate of a gallon daily per 25 of the general purpose breeds or 30 leghorns. Omit water when feeding this amount of milk.

Black locust is one of the fastest growing hardwood trees. Under favorable conditions, it yields valuable posts in 10 or 12 years. Seedlings may be planted in the fall, although spring is considered the best time to plant locust.

The value of mulching is generally not appreciated. It prevents leaching, preserves moisture, suppresses the growth of grass and weeds, and supplies nitrogen and other nutrients. It is especially beneficial to flower gardens and vegetable gardens. A heavy winter mulch helps to make a mellow, rich soil in the spring.

Demonstration Work For More Counties

The organization of homemakers' associations in several western Kentucky counties is reported by Miss Zelma Monroe, assistant state agent in home demonstration work.

An organization meeting was recently held in Caldwell county, where an appropriation for home demonstration work was made July 1. Miss Nancy B. Scrugham, who has done preliminary work in the county since February, is the home demonstration agent. There are 10 local homemakers' clubs in the county with a total membership of 230 women. They are studying "Feeding the Family from the Farm." Officers of the county association are Miss Grace Adamson, president; Mrs. Fred J. Blackburn, vice-president, and Mrs. Malcolm Dunn, secretary-treasurer.

Trigg county homemakers held their organization meeting on October 1. Miss Eleanor Whittinghill is home demonstration agent. She was assistant agent in Christian county last year, when an appropriation was made. Ten homemakers' clubs in Caldwell county have 206 members. Mrs. J. B. Alexander is president and Mrs. Anna P. Wade is vice-president.

'Nine Days a Queen,' Title Of Film To Be Shown At College Theatre Friday

Cedric Hardwicke And Nova Pilbeam Starred In Cinema Giving Story Of Lady Jane Grey

The College Theatre announces that its next production Friday, October 23, will be 'Nine Days a Queen' the story of Lady Jane Grey, co-starring Cedric Hardwicke and Nova Pilbeam. This is the first production that has been hailed from London to Hollywood as thrilling entertainment and a great picture.

'Nine Days a Queen' brings to life the dramatic incidents in history immediately following the death of King Henry VIII—a period full of pathos and tragedy, which has too long been neglected by writers and film-makers. It tells of the dramatic events in the lives of the young girl, Lady Jane Grey, who became the queen for nine days.

Nova Pilbeam, who plays Lady Jane Grey was delighted with her assignment. The innocent young girl who became the pawn of ruthless statesmen was one of Nova's favorite historical characters. "When I first learned about Lady Jane at school," said Nova, "I thought hers was the saddest and most beautiful story I had ever heard. What's so amazing about it is that she was only nine days queen."

Shirley Temple In Cozy Feature Role There seems to be no limit to the accomplishments of Shirley Temple. Now the little star is the international "square" champion, annexing the title in a thrilling three game series with Margarita Gomez, daughter of the Cuban president.

During production of 'The Poor Little Rich Girl,' Shirley's new hit coming Friday to the Cozy Theatre, President Gomez and his family visited the Twentieth Century-Fox studio. Shirley was just emerging victorious from a tilt with Director Irving Cummings when the Gomez party arrived on the stage and tiny Margarita immediately offered to play Shirley. After dropping the first game, Shirley came back to win in a spirited rally. The sting of defeat was removed when Producer Dorothy F. Zanuck revealed that Shirley has beaten practically everybody in Hollywood at the game.

Kentucky Needs ROOSEVELT

Kentuckians.... and the citizens of other States should be grateful to Franklin D. Roosevelt not only because of humane and progressive social security legislation but because of the conversion of deep despair and economic chaos into confidence and orderly PROSPERITY.

IN 1932 — UNDER HOOVER

Frantic home-owners and farmers could not pay their mortgage interest—sometimes 8 or even 12 per cent.

Banks were staggering under a weight of “frozen” loans, loaded with unsaleable real estate.

Banks were failing at the rate of 100 a month. Bank deposits were not protected.

Business, unable to get credit, piled up 25,000 bankruptcies in 1932.

Kentucky factories were closing and cutting off men periodically.

Educators were conferring about plans to save the educational system from collapse as revenues shrank.

Wheat was 48 cents a bushel, corn 24 cents. It cost more to raise stock than it brought at market.

The family automobile rusted in the barn—no money for gas.

Some 900,000 farms were sold by foreclosure or for unpaid taxes.

Farm Cash income dropped under 4½ billion 1932

IN 1935 — UNDER ROOSEVELT

- Home Owners' Loan Corporation restored 1,000,749 homes to their owners, F. C. A. saved a half million more.
- In June, 1933, mortgages were foreclosed at the rate of 1,000 a day; in March, 1936, foreclosures were lowest in 5 years.
- By paying $225,000,000 in back taxes, Home Owners' Loan Corporation enabled towns and counties to continue schools and other public services.
- Home Owners' Loan Corporation advances of $75,000,000 for home repair benefited workmen, contractors and dealers.
- Farmers have saved over 20 million in annual interest charges on loans refinanced by F. C. A.
- The exchange of liquid government-guaranteed bonds for frozen mortgages has protected the savings of 50,000,000 people invested in real estate by banks, insurance and loan companies.
- Dollar wheat is back and corn tripled in price.
- New automobiles carry the farmer to a market where his stock sells at a profitable figure.
- Not a single bank failure in the entire Nation in 1936, for the first time in 55 years. Bank savings are protected by Federal deposit insurance.
- Educators are teaching in better equipped, modern buildings than any time in history.
- As the farmer's income has increased, the business of every merchant, large or small, has grown.
- Fear has been banished; hope has returned and the feet of the Nation set definitely on the road to abundant prosperity.

Farm Cash Income Rose 2½ Billion in 1935

We urge all Kentuckians, men and women, Democrats and Republicans, to vote for President Roosevelt and those who will help him—Senator M. M. Logan and the State's Democratic Congressmen.

What has happened to Peggy O'Neale is not sure whether Senator John Randolph is in love with her and...
 I always said she's the most dangerous woman in Washington!"
 "Yes," agreed Louisa. "And widowhood is such a useful weapon."
 "Birds of a feather," added Mrs. Beall, nodding toward Peggy and Rachel Jackson. "As a daughter and a backwoods wife."
 "Mrs. Jackson seems to have left her pipe at home," tutted Louisa. "Looks like she's a girl of the other members of the group, as she saw Peggy handing her field glasses to Senator Eaton. "The busy" Practicing her wiles on that charming Mr. Eaton!"
 As the horses were brought out by their handlers, prior to the running of the main event, General Jackson rose.
 "Like to go down and put a little bet on your namesake for good luck," he asked Peggy. She smilingly assented.
 As Jackson was placing the water Peggy noticed a tall, familiar figure standing beside the rail. She gave a start, heated a moment, then stepped forward. "John!" she called out lightly.
 Senator Randolph turned, caught sight of her, and held out his hand in greeting, curiously non-committal expression on his face.
 "It's been a long time since I've seen you," said Peggy.
 "Yes," returned Randolph in a constrained manner. "I've taken a house near the Senate. I find it convenient."
 "Is that the reason?" asked Peggy. He did not reply, and she raised her hand with intense earnestness. "John, what's happened to you? You've never come to the note—after Bow—"
 "Time passed very quickly for me," Randolph hastened to say. "I worked a great deal, and I was busy on my farm."
 "In case you haven't noticed," returned Peggy, a playful gleam coming into her eyes, "I've quite grown up."
 "Margaret," rapped Randolph, his voice changing. "I'm dining the new British Minister and his wife next Friday. Won't you please come."
 "I'd love it. John," said Peggy impulsively. Then a sudden recollection dashed into her mind, and her face fell. "I forgot. I promised Senator Eaton, and a little while ago, to dine with him on Friday. Couldn't you—"
 But Randolph's habitually reserved expression had returned, and, besides, there was no time for further discussion. Jackson came up, and the two men dressed into politics.
 In a few minutes the race was on. "Peggy O'Neale got a bad start and was trailing the field at the first lap. Then, while the crowd roared at such a spectacular demonstration, Jackson's entry pulled up into fourth, third, second place. It was neck and neck for the finish. The favorite had it. No. Peggy O'Neale, by an unbelievable spurt, plunged over the finish line a nose ahead!"
 The trainer brought forward a large floral wreath, and presented it to Mrs. Jackson, who declared that Peggy should have the honor of decorating the racer named after her.
 "Come along then, darlin'," said Jackson, taking Peggy's arm.
 "But you hear that?" hissed Mrs. Beall, leaning forward breathlessly. "He called her 'darlin'."
 "And right before his wretched ignorant wife!" put in Louisa Abbott.
 Never had an election been marked by more bitterness and tenacity of feeling. The contrast between the two nominees was so striking that one could not fail to take sides. John Quincy Adams, on the one hand, was a polished intellectual from Massachusetts. Andrew Jackson although even his enemies granted he was a friend of the common people, was pictured as an illiterate upstart from South Carolina.

 When the picture of ex-acting had been reached and the voting had taken place, Peggy sat anxiously in her room at the Franklin Inn. Indecisive bulletins had been posted, but final word was expected very soon. "Immersed in a reverie of mixed emotions, Peggy was startled when a servant brought word that Mrs. Bomfret Beall was waiting below. She was the last person from whom she would have expected a social call.
 "Why, how do you do?" beamed Mrs. Beall. "You know, I've been saying to myself for a long time: I must drop in and pay my respects to that charming Mrs. Timberlake."
 "It must have taken courage," said Peggy, "to jeopardize your reputation in this way."
 "It is I who have always admired you," rejoined Mrs. Beall. "Yes, I might even say, defended you."
 There was a wild shout outside, and howdy Dow, had disheveled and coat torn open, burst into the room.
 "God bless Andrew Jackson!" said Peggy. "Seventh President of the United States of America!"
 Peggy, her heart pounding with joy rushed to throw her arms about the bringer of such good news. Then she turned just in time to catch Mrs. Beall's ailyly appraising look.

 "I suppose you had no idea of this," she exclaimed, "when you gushed in here like a tidal wave."
 son's victory was held the next night at Franklin Inn. All those who were closest to "Old Hickory" had gathered to voice their happiness at his triumph. Across one bearing twenty-four stars. Peggy sat between Senator John Eaton and Martin Van Buren.
 As Jackson rose at one end of the long dining table, a confused crescendo of voices came from outside. In a moment definite phrases were audible.
 "Jackson! Murderer! Shot his own men at New Orleans! Who wants Jackson? We don't!"
 The General shot a quick fiery glance toward the window, but for the moment refused to recognize the raucous demonstration below.
 "My friends," he said, to those gathered around the table. "I earnestly hope that if there are some of you that don't entirely approve the way I do things, that some of you may have reason to disapprove of the final results. Maybe my manner is rough, but my heart is warmed by the constant desire to insure the happiness of the people of this country."
 "Of Hickory Sours! Of Pizen Oak! He don't dare to show his face! Hangman! Murderer!" The crowd was getting noisy.
 Jackson stepped to the balcony, and a derisive clamor resounded across the court.
 "Gentlemen," said the General, raising his hand. "Whatever I have done in the past, I have done because I considered it just and right. I shall continue to do so for the rest of my livin' days."
 There was a moment's silence, then a hecker's shrill voice came from the semi-darkness.
 "How's your wife fixed for pipe tobacco, hangman? Kin she spare some?"
 This was the type of insult that no man could ignore. Without a word the President's feet swung over the balcony and into the crowd below, as a wild yell greeted his act.
 "Quick!" cried Peggy, turning in frantic haste to the men beside her. "He'll be killed!"
 (Next week: The battle of those who are trying to save the life of Andrew Jackson has far-reaching consequences and Peggy is subsequently faced with one of the most serious decisions of her life.)

Chapter Seven
 It was a gay day at the National Hotel. Course in the outskirts of Washington, a perfect early autumn afternoon in 1828. Three national celebrities, Daniel Webster, Henry Clay and Andrew Jackson, had entered horses in the annual event of the meet, the Capital Trotting Stakes. Particular interest was centered on this race by reason of the fact that General Jackson, whose presidential candidacy would soon be determined if the polls was present in person.
 His horse, which for sentimental reasons he had named "Peggy O'Neale" was a distinct long shot. Odds of thirty to one were being freely offered, with few takers.
 Peggy herself, matured from girlhood into enchanting womanhood, sat in a front box with General and Mrs. Jackson, their niece, Emily Donelson, a pinch-faced, neurotic type. Senator John Eaton and Anne Royall, publisher of an independent newspaper espousing the Jackson cause.
 An adjacent box was manned with a battery of jealous, catlike eyes. A small group of self-appointed society arbiters were carving up Peggy and the Jacksons in venomous, low whispers. Mrs. Bomfret Beall sat, forbidding woman of fifty, leaned forward to speak to Louisa Abbott, a relatively young but hopeless-looking spinster.
 "My dear," she purred "haven't

HOME COMER SEE EAGLES-UNION TIE 6-6

Wyant Scores In Minutes of Game

Morehead rallied in the last two minutes of Saturday's game to tie the Union College Bulldogs before 2,800 homecomers Saturday afternoon to get a 6-6 tie, after the battle was apparently lost.

As in the Georgetown and Murray games Morehead had the advantage of first downs—making the Union College Bulldogs before 2,800 homecomers Saturday afternoon to get a 6-6 tie, after the battle was apparently lost.

Union had halted an Eagle drive on their own 20 and Sullivan kicked to Wyant on Morehead's 35, and he returned three yards. Stafura was called for unnecessary roughness and banished from the game. Union was penalized to their own 32-yard line. Vinson gained two; Reynolds 2, Wyant 5 and Vinson 3 for first down on Union 18. Wyant then recited off eight through the line to the 10. On the next play Wyant went off tackle, shook off two tacklers and carried another over with him for the touchdown.

Vinson's kick looked good from the stands, but referee Gilb said it was wide by a yard, so suddenly stifle a joyous Morehead rooting section that thought the Eagles had snatched victory on the very brink of defeat, the game ended two minutes later.

Wyant was injured on the play in which he went over for the touchdown and was carried off the field.

Saturday's game was a battle between two hard-fighting line backs and they came off about even. Wyant's playing, although he was in only 15 minutes of the game, was Morehead's serious offensive threat, while Stafura and Sullivan carried almost the entire burden for the visitor's backfield. Union looked better than either Murray or Georgetown, two previous opponents of Morehead.

Eagles May Be Revamped Saturday In Game Against Transylvania Pioneers

Johnston Dissatisfied With Club's Showing In Georgetown Union Games; Large Crowd, Band To Accompany Morehead Team To Lexington

Dissatisfied with the performance of the Morehead team in the Georgetown and Union games, Coach Ellis Johnston began experimenting this week attempting to find the spot or spots where the weaknesses exist. It is probable that a changed backfield may take the field against Transylvania at Lexington Saturday afternoon.

Johnston is convinced that his line will be able to hold the Pioneers but he is not so sure about his backfield stopping a good passing attack or being able to generate enough steam to do much scoring.

Transylvania lost to St. Xavier by two touchdowns, Centre by the same margin and Randolph Hanover. The odds in Saturday's game rests with the Pioneers, and unless Morehead shows greater class than they did against Union the decision is almost sure to go to the Lexington club.

Kentucky Democrats Lead GOP's By 192,516, Registration Figures Show

Thirty-five Of State's 120 Counties Reveal Republican Lead; Jefferson County Democratic By 15,000

Democrats in Kentucky have a registrations lead of 192,516 over Republicans on the face of complete and official tabulations from each of the 120 counties.

Republicans have a majority in 35 counties, the Democrats 85 counties. In the 35 counties which they lead the GOP has a majority of 67,455, while the Democrats lead 259,711 lead in the 85 counties in which they are ahead.

INDIANA FACTORIES IN BIG BUSINESS GAIN
Manufacturing activity in the state of Indiana in 1935 recorded a substantial increase over 1934, according to preliminary figures of the current Biennial Census of Manufactures, just received by the Louisville District Office of the Department of Commerce. The combined number of full-time and part-time wage earners employed (average for the year), 252,734, exceeded the corresponding 1933 figure by 27 per cent, and their wages in 1935, $263,943,000, represented an increase of 53.3 per cent over 1933. For value of products an increase of 59.4 per cent is recorded—from $1,040,148,315 to $1,657,792,000.

Vikings Defeated After Hard Battle

Playing without the services of the Brown brothers—two of the mainstays on the team—the Morehead Vikings nevertheless put up a stubborn, although losing fight at Olive Hill Friday afternoon. The Comets won the Ekay conference struggle on a muddy and wet field by 14-0 after a hard struggle.

McClave led the attack that netted Olive Hill the victory. The Comets had a 7-0 lead going into the last minutes of the game but scored again to increase it, and saw up victory.

Practically all of the game was played in Morehead's territory because the Vikings did not have a punter that could boot the slippery ball out of danger. Many times Morehead staved off Olive Hill threats inside the 20-yard line.

Coach Holbrook's team has an open date this week, and play next week. They have two good throwers, but so far neither has been able to pick his target with any accuracy or consistency.

A number of Morehead fans will make the Lexington trip, while the team will be accompanied by the band.

106 STORE SALES INCREASE IN MONTH OF SEPTEMBER

Daily average sales of variety stores for September were about 12 per cent higher than for September of last year and were about 15 per cent above the same month of 1934, according to estimates just received by the Louisville District Office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, department of commerce. Sales increased about 13 1/2 per cent from August to September or more than the usual increase at this season of the year. The aggregate value of sales for the first nine months of the year was 7 per cent above that for the same period of 1935.

EGYPTIANS LIKE U.S. APPLES
American apples and pears are very popular in Egypt among the better class Egyptians and the foreign population. Formerly, apples from the United States held a dominant position in Egypt but in recent years Canada has become an important competitor, while Turkey and Greece now supply a substantial proportion of the low-priced grades.

I think all of Dr. Miles' medicines are wonderful, but Anti-Pain Pills are my favorite.
Mrs. Doc Blankenship, Stamford, Texas
I have used your Anti-Pain Pills and they did for me in a week more than any other medicine I had taken for a year.
Mrs. S. Milwaukee, Wisconsin
I am never without Anti-Pain Pills. I think they are much better than anything else I have ever used. Sometimes when I am tired and nervous, the feel like I want to under. I like two Anti-Pain Pills and in a short time I feel like a different person.
Mrs. E. Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania
Your Anti-Pain Pills have been used in my home with wonderful results. I recommend them.
Maggie Belle Dudley, Vanhook, N. C.
Your Anti-Pain Pills have helped me in every way where in my purse and always keep them in my pocket. They have saved me a great many sick days.

BALLADE OF WANDERING WIT

When toward joyance rules supreme
And rithed revelers are prone
To bubble burble, blow of steam,
And Wit is king, and Wit alone—
Ah, then it is I can depone
To feeling joy in sorrow fade,
On thinking up when chance flows
The wisetracks that I might have made

When as one silly chump will deem
No feeling funny but his own,
Another uses any rhyme,
As his keen humor's passed gone—
A third though we are tired grown,
Still flashes forth his sharpened pen,
As drowned in sadness, I become
The wisetracks that I might have made

And if I wake or if I dream,
I weigh me like a wadded stone—
So obvious it comes to seem,
So patent to the dullest dream,
But ah, the little bad is shown,
My brilliance languishes in shade,
And this poor world has never
The wisetracks that I might have made

The Place Beneath, it hath been shown,
Is paved with good intentions,
Laid
Like heads of block and each doth groan;

"The wisetracks that I might have made!"
