MOREHEAD, Ky. --- An early morning fire damaged Morehead State University's Johnson Camden Library Tuesday but no one was injured.

MSU President Adron Doran said the blaze was confined to a ground floor workroom and lobby. However, other sections of the building sustained smoke, heat and water damage.

Dr. Doran said the loss, which has not been estimated, is covered by insurance and that the library is expected to remain open.

The fire was discovered shortly before 5 a.m. by a custodian reporting for work. The alarm was answered by the Morehead Fire Department.

Dr. Jack Ellis, MSU's director of libraries, said the building was unoccupied at the time of the fire and that the lost material can be replaced.

Dr. Doran credited the volunteer firemen with "a real professional job" in preventing the blaze from reaching upper floors of the library where more than 300,000 volumes are stored.

Morehead Fire Chief Joe Mauk said the cause of the fire has not been determined.

The library was built in 1931 and expanded in 1965.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- A budget request of $47.4 million for the 1976-78 biennium was approved here Friday by the Morehead State University Board of Regents.

The document, which now goes to the Council on Public Higher Education, seeks $33 million in state appropriations for the next two fiscal years.

MSU President Adron Doran said the University is seeking $4.4 million in "catch-up" funds to compensate for "inadequate and inequitable" state support during the past four years. Slightly more than half of that amount would be used for salary increases at the rate of 10 per cent each year.

Dr. Doran said no new academic programs are proposed and that additional faculty positions are being requested only for departments experiencing enrollment growth, primarily at the associate degree level.

In addition to its operating budget, MSU also is asking $8 million in capital construction funds to renovate and expand its library and academic-athletic complex.

The 1976-78 request calls for an increase of almost $11 million over the current biennial state appropriation of $22.3 million in a total outlay of $36.4 million.

Dr. Doran announced that MSU has enrolled a record 7,225 persons for the fall semester, an increase of nearly seven per cent over last fall's 6,765.

Of the 460 additional students, 407 are members of the freshman class, a situation Dr. Doran described as "highly encouraging." The enrollment is the largest in the school's 53-year history.

In other action, the board accepted a gift of 51.9 acres of woodland overlooking Cave Run Lake near Morehead. Donated by Mr. and Mrs. Ted Crosthwait of Frankfort and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Crosthwait of Crossville, Tenn., the property will be developed for recreation, teaching and research.

Dr. R. H. Playforth, dean of the School of Social Sciences, was granted a three-month leave of absence prior to his retirement next Aug. 30.

Attending were Dr. W. H. Cartmell of Maysville, board chairman, and members Lloyd Cassity and Sam Kibbey of Ashland, Cloyd McDowell of Harlan, Jerry Howell of Jackson, William Justice of Pikeville, B. F. Reed of Drift, James Richardson of Owingsville and Dr. Charles Pelfrey, faculty representative, and Deborah Poore, student representative.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Retirement usually means the end of a working career and the beginning of a leisure period.

But not for Mrs. Elizabeth Mayo, retired math professor at Morehead State University.

After a teaching career which included three years at the University of Alabama, 18 years at the University of Louisville and 13 years at MSU, she retired at age 70. However, instead of a rocking chair, she took a plane ride to Kenya, Africa, and spent 26 months as a Peace Corps volunteer.

Her job was teaching math and physics to youngsters from the age of high school juniors to college sophomores.

Why did she go?

"I went to Africa for the adventure," she said. "I felt I could still teach and I didn't want to sit down and do nothing."

From a wooded campus in Eastern Kentucky to a plateau 7,500 above sea level is quite a change. Combine the climate with a society and language which are totally new and the result is called "culture shock."

However, it didn't happen to Mrs. Mayo, she recalls. "I was never really hot or cold in Kenya. Although, if you stood in the direct light of the sun, it could become uncomfortable."

Kenya volunteer 2-2-2-2-2

The language was more difficult but she managed. Her most memorable experience was an auto accident in rural Kenya where she didn't speak the local tongue. But the apprehension eased when one of the natives looked at her car and said, "God must love you a whole lot."

Her home on U.S. 60 east of Morehead is filled with artifacts collected during her stay.

"I wanted to pick up as much art work as I could while avoiding objects with European influence," she said. "And I tried to get a carving of each animal I saw."

Animals in natural habitat were common sights during her residence in Eldoret, 50 miles south of the Equator, and Kericho, 50 miles north.

Teaching in Kenya was not a simple matter, according to Mrs. Mayo.

"The government nationalized the education system after the revolution and they were supposed to supply all of the needs of the schools," she said. "But I usually had to buy my supplies from personal funds."

The Peace Corps started her at $175 a month and later raised it to $200. "After all, I didn't go over there for the money," she said in the true spirit of a volunteer.

Would she return to Kenya?

"Of course, I'd like to go back for a visit. But I missed my family a great deal and I think I'll stay a little closer to home."

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- More than 400 public school educators were told here Friday that teachers are "America's best last chance" to avoid an "instant replay" of the fall of the Roman Empire.

Tommy Bell, Lexington attorney and a referee in the National Football League, challenged those attending the 52nd annual convention of the Eastern Kentucky Education Association to return to their schools and become salesmen for the free enterprise system, respect for authority, religious beliefs and truth and integrity in all matters.

Keynote speaker for EKEA's general session at Morehead State University, Bell urged the teachers to be models for young people who receive poor direction at home and from corrupt public officials.

"We must demand fiscal responsibility, respect for law and order and honesty from those in public life," he stated.

Bell said Kentucky should require that a course in free enterprise be offered by every high school. On the welfare system, he said:

In an earlier address, Dr. Lyman V. Ginger, state superintendent of public instruction, declared that the first dedication of every classroom teacher should be to fundamental learning skills.

He called for more support of vocational education, special education and opportunities for the gifted child.

Dr. Ginger also urged that standards of academic performance and discipline be maintained in all schools.

Eugene Blackburn, a teacher at Betsy Layne High School in Floyd County, assumed the presidency of the 18-county association. Frank Wells, a teacher in Johnson County, was named president-elect.

At its delegate assembly later Friday, the EKEA:

-- Passed a resolution calling on the KEA Board of Directors to reconsider its decision to pay a salary to Mrs. Billye Pope, KEA president.

-- Defeated to move to demand the recall of three KEA officers because of the Pope situation.

-- Voted to return its 1976 convention to Morehead State University.

-- Asked KEA to support revision of certain school laws pertaining to length of the work day and teacher responsibilities outside the classroom.

-- Requested a cost analysis of the KEA Unified Service (UNI-SERV) program which provides full-time consultants to local education groups in the state.

Other officers are Eileen Ramey of Johnson County, vice president; Frances Miller of Russell, KEA Legislative Commission member; Ruth Reeves of Ashland, KEA Board of Directors; and James McClave of Russell, KEA Committee on Teacher Retirement.

Chosen as members of the EKEA Board were Jane Wright of Maysville, John Jones of Russell, Arlene Franklin of Ashland and Philip Dingus of Floyd County. Charles Mullins Jr. of Greenup County was named to the KEA Human Relations Committee.

In the case of Elizabeth McBride and horses, that dream has become a promising career.

As a two-year old in her native Louisville, she saw her first horse and immediately wanted one. Now, at 23, she is an instructor of horsemanship at Morehead State University.

At the age of seven, Miss McBride got that first horse and went to school under Mrs. Crabtree and made her first competitive ride, winning at the Kentucky State Fair.

After being graduated from Louisville Collegiate School, she enrolled at William Woods College in Fulton, Mo., among the first schools in the United States to have a program in equitation.

"I picked up a major in physical education because I have always loved sports but what I really wanted to get qualified in was the horsemanship program," she stated. "Now that I'm at MSU, I feel it has all been worth it."

The horsemanship program at MSU is still developing but she feels it already is excellent.

horsemanship 2-2-2-2-2

"Our facilities include a modern stable, indoor arena and outdoor show ring and are among the best I have ever seen," Miss McBride said. "But the most important asset this program has is the people involved with it. The first thing I noticed after coming here was that the people are doers, not just talkers."

The horsemanship program itself consists of two basic courses, elementary and intermediate. Advanced courses include equitation and equitation teaching. A club has been formed for students who don't get enough horsemanship in classes.

Miss McBride has six years of teaching experience and has successfully exhibited and trained hunters, jumpers, quarter horses and Arabians.

She hopes to help MSU build the best horsemanship program in the country.

"I know we can do it," said the state's youngest and tiniest college horsemanship instructor.

MOREHEAD, KY --- Morehead State University has become the second educational institution in Kentucky to gain national accreditation for its two-year program in radiologic technology.

MSU was notified of the approval by the Joint Review Committee of the American Society of Radiologic Technologists and American College of Radiology.

The committee's action places MSU's associate degree program on the approved list of the council on Medical Education of the American Medical Association (AMA).

National accreditation means that MSU graduates are eligible for the examination to become registered technologists.

"We are pleased with the news," said MSU President Adron Doran. "The Joint Committee was complimentary of our faculty and instructional facilities and of our affiliation with eight fine hospitals which provide clinical experience for students in radiologic technology."

The affiliated institutions include St. Claire Medical Center in Morehead, Hayswood Hospital in Maysville, Mary Chiles Hospital in Mount Sterling and Appalachian Regional Hospitals in McDowell, West Liberty, Whitesburg, Hazard, and Wise, Va.

The 24-month program at MSU includes 12 months as a radiologic technology intern at one of the hospitals under the supervision of a registered technologist.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Caryl Ann Kline is an attractive young woman who doesn't mind being seen with a dummy.

In fact, it occurs often for the Prospect, Ky. freshman at Morehead State University who happens to be a professional ventriloquist.

She saw her first example of that art while in the second grade and, for the ensuing 11 years, has had the goal of becoming a ventriloquist.

"My mom really inspired me," she said. "She really kept after me to practice." Caryl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kline of Prospect.

"Most of my work has been done for children and I have used religion as a theme," she said. "I had several opportunities to perform with the Motet Singers in Louisville. We did things on religious and non-religious topics."

"I change some of the material when I perform for adults but not all that much," she added. "The thing you have to avoid is using jokes too complicated for children."

(MORE)

Caryl Ann Kline 2-2-2-2-2

Each ventriloquist must have a partner in the act and many refer to her companion as a "dummy." However, in the terminology of the professional, the partner is a "figure" and, in the case of Caryl Kline, the figure is named "Scotty Grantt."

"I really don't know where I came up with the "Grantt" part of the name," she stated. "I guess I just like the sound of it."

I created a personality for Scotty which is a great deal like my own," she said. "That is why we never use funny insults as part of the act. It would ruin his personality for me."

It would appear easy to play tricks on people who don't know you have the ability to speak without moving your mouth. But Caryl says she has never done this.

"The only thing I've done is to sit in high school classes and talk to my friends and smile at the teacher the entire time," she recalled.

Another interest brought her to MSU. It is her love of animals, specifically horses.

"There was a time I didn't know if I wanted to go to college," she stated. "But veterinary technology and horsemanship program brought me here."

Caryl said she hopes to have a career with animals.

Or was that "Scotty Grantt" talking.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Eight young men, working in pairs, will attempt to carry a 140-pound load a distance of 75 miles this weekend to establish a world record and help another human being.

Members of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity at Morehead State University volunteered for the project in hopes of raising $2,000 to purchase a special electric wheelchair for 27-year-old Leonard Gibson, who is paralyzed from the neck down as the result of a 1972 auto accident.

"We heard about Leonard and started talking about doing something to help him," recalls Brett Wright, Frankfort graduate student and project co-chairman for SAE. "We visited him at the convalescent center in Morehead and decided the project was something we just had to do."

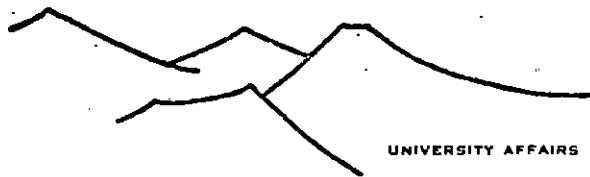

Seven other fraternity members will join Wright in the attempt to better the existing record of 62 miles for a "stretcher carry" of 140 pounds. They will depart Friday from the SAE fraternity house in Lexington with a destination of MSU's Jayne Stadium, a distance of 75 miles along U.S. 60.

"We are asking individuals to pledge on a per-mile basis," said Kevin Barney, Cincinnati junior and the other co-chairman. "We walk for one who can't" is the motto and the SAE volunteers are confident the goal will be reached.

Donations should be directed to the Leonard Gibson Fund, UPO 1265, Morehead State University, Morehead, Ky. 40351.

And Leonard Gibson, who is paralyzed from the neck down, will get a sophisticated electric wheelchair as a result of that record.

Cold weather and leg cramps stopped SAE's eight stretcher bearers short of their goal of 75 miles but when they quit Saturday morning west of Farmers in Rowan County, they had traveled exactly 63 miles with the 140-pound stretcher from their Lexington starting point. They bettered the existing record of 62 miles recognized by the Guinness Book of Records.

"The cold weather kept us from reaching Morehead but we exceeded our money goal and that was the most important objective," said Kevin Barney, Cincinnati junior and SAE's project co-chairman.

Gibson, a former Elliott County resident, was injured in a 1972 auto accident.

The stretcher bearers included Barney; Brett Wright, Frankfort graduate student; Wayne Hood, Ashland senior; Mike Miller, Cincinnati junior; Kirk Hudson, Christney, Ind. junior; Robbie McGrath, Louisville sophomore; Harry Hall, Findlay, Ohio, junior; and Rich Gunterman, New Albany, Ind., junior.

MOREHEAD, KY --- Art, it is said, requires talent and inspiration. Susan Tarter, Wytheville, Va. sophomore at Morehead State University, apparently has plenty of both.

Her subjects are usually the most handsome, noble and intelligent of their breed. In short, she loves to draw horses.

"I can draw horses from a photograph but I prefer to take time to study them closely," she says. "Every horse is different. Each has a distinct personality and that is what I try to show in my work."

As a contributing artist for "Quarter Horse World" magazine, this 19-year-old coed has become one of the most promising horse artists in the Eastern U.S.

"I'm going to work with horses in some manner," she said. "I spent the summer as an assistant to a saddle horse trainer and feel I have a good background with show horses."

"I usually work in pastels but will use anything; just so the subject is a horse," she says. "I have painted other things and I love animals. But my best work is with horses."

In fact, her love of horses brought her to MSU. She transferred from a private school in Virginia because of MSU's horsemanship program and Kentucky's fame in the horse industry.

She is torn between painting horses or riding them. "The only thing keeping me from doing more painting at horse shows is that I am trying to compete in as many as possible," she said. "Riding show horses is very enjoyable for me. Drawing them is fun, too, but not as much as riding and training."

"Until that one high school class, nobody really recognized I had a talent for drawing horses," she recalls. Susan did a mural of horses which hangs in her high school cafeteria.

As for her art career, she plans to concentrate in the "horse art" market.

"There is almost unlimited opportunity for artists and photographers who want to spend time on horses," she stated.

(Special To The Jackson Times)

MOREHEAD, KY --- Success to some means you are responsible for a large organization or have something significant named for you.

To others, it may be the satisfaction of knowing you have achieved something lasting.

All three definitions fit Dr. Charles M. Derrickson, dean of the School of Applied Sciences and Technology at Morehead State University.

The Breathitt County native came to MSU in 1965 as the second of two faculty members comprising the Department of Agriculture. He arrived with the determination to build something worthwhile. Today, his success is unquestioned.

From 20 students in 1965, the department has grown to 300 majors this year with more enrolled for minor areas of study.

"At first, I really wasn't interested in coming to Morehead," Dr. Derrickson recalls. "But when I came down for the interview, President Doran convinced me he wanted to build a strong agriculture program. And, since that time, we have averaged a 20 percent increase in students each year."

Dr. Derrickson cites two reasons for the growth. The first is facilities.

(MORE)

Dr. Derrickson

"We have added a 200-acre farm to give students practical experience, also several laboratories and classrooms have been built on campus to help in teaching," he noted.

Secondly, he cites a change in attitude of people in Eastern Kentucky .

"For a long time, students who wanted to major in agriculture received a lot of negative family pressure," he stated. "People didn't feel agriculture had a future in this area. But that has changed now."

For his work at MSU, Dr. Derrickson was named last spring as the University's "Distinguished Faculty Member of 1975." At the same time, he was informed that the University Farm was being renamed The Charles M. Derrickson Agricultural Complex. A few weeks later, he was promoted to the deanship.

The son of Mrs. Algin Derrickson of Jackson, Dr. Derrickson has been actively involved in agriculture all of his life. He holds a doctorate from Michigan State University and master's and bachelor's degrees from the University of Kentucky.

Married to the former Lena Noble of Breathitt County, they have three children, Ralph, 23, Ada Ruth, 19, and Charlene, 17. Ralph is a second-year student in veterinary science at Auburn University.

Despite the success of agriculture at MSU, Dr. Derrickson is still not finished. A small dairy and a meat processing laboratory are on the drawing boards.

Dr. Derrickson

As one of those responsible for the initiation of a horsemanship program at MSU, he has seen that foresight and luck go hand-in-hand..

"At the outset of the program, we were told that the program would never get off the ground," he stated. "Now we have as many students as we can possibly handle and more are on the way."

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Mention of Northern Ireland and Israel creates visions of violence and strife. But members of the singing group "God's Looking Glass" have other ideas after visiting both countries recently.

Rhonda Cooper, Morehead State University graduate student and spokesman for the group, described her visit to the strife-torn nations as "too wonderful for words."

Her group participated in a 10-day tour of Northern Ireland and Israel sponsored by the Methodist Hour Crusade of Orlando, Fla.

Originated on the MSU campus in October of 1970, the original purpose of the group was to assist the late Bob Dunaway, Methodist campus minister in evangelistic work. The group consisted of three MSU students, Steve Engelhardt, Suzie Campbell and Miss Cooper.

Since that time, 13 people have sung under the name of "God's Looking Glass," with six being the largest at any one time. As the size changed, so did the goals.

"We try to express God's love for people," said Miss Cooper. "We try to convey inner peace and assurance of Christ in a world filled with confusion," she added.

Currently numbering four members, the group has traveled in 13 states and two foreign countries attempting to achieve that goal.

"God's Looking Glass" 2-2-2-2-2

Members include Miss Cooper and her brother, Chuck, an MSU junior. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Cooper of Cynthiana. Others are Donna Clark, MSU graduate student, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe A. Clark of Allen and Mike Courtney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Courtney of Ashland City, Tenn.

In addition to a personal appearance schedule, the group has recorded one album and is in the process of making another. The first record entitled "The Greatest is Love," is dedicated to the memory of Dunaway. In the works at present is "Jesus, I Love You" which will be ready after Christmas.

The work isn't always easy. "While we were in Northern Ireland, the guys in the group stayed in a castle with no running water and no heat," stated Miss Cooper. "But I think that made it more fun for them," she added.

"Right now, our schedule until next November is booked up solid," she added. "We do have an opportunity to make a trip to South Africa this summer. But we also have an idea about touring the west. We can't do both and it will be a hard decision to make."

For a group based on Christian beliefs, the trip to Israel was a dream come true. "Visiting the historic spots in Israel was a moving experience," she stated. "All of the places were beautiful but the most moving for me personally was the empty tomb."

(MORE)

Even though the countries visited were in a state of unrest, the group felt no fear whatever.

"Our hotel in Belfast, Northern Ireland, has been bombed 28 times," Miss Cooper said. "But, we never felt uneasy at any time."

"Our purpose in going to these countries was to spread love and the word of Christ," she stated. "But the people we met gave us even more love in return."

Mrs. Mignon Doran, wife of Morehead State President Adron Doran, was honored last Thursday evening on the occasion of her birthday. Nearly 300 festively-dressed University faculty and staff members attended the party.

Mrs. Doran, founder and director of MSU's unique and nationally-recognized Personal Development Institute, told the partygoers it was one of the few parties in her 22 years at Morehead State University that she had not been instrumental in planning. This, she added, made the party doubly enjoyable.

It was quite evident the party planners had received previous training by Mrs. Doran. The graciousness of style and good taste were reminiscent of the Christmas parties which were given for several years by the Dorans for their faculty and staff. Harlan Hamm chaired the party committee.

Rather than a banquet-style head table, the Dorans and the Russell McClures occupied a facsimile dining room, complete with a fireplace and a white revolving Christmas tree festooned with fans. This motif was a symbol of the party's theme, "Fanfare."

The Ballroom of the Adron Doran University Center was appropriately decorated and each table had centerpieces of fans and candles.

Dinner music was provided by Larry Keenan, assistant professor of music who has won international piano and organ acclaim, and vocalist Randy Wells, associate professor of education.

Dr. Don Flatt, associate professor of history, offered the invocation. The group was served a turkey dinner.

The master of ceremonies was Russell McClure, chief executive assistant to Kentucky's commissioner of finance and an MSU vice president on leave. He provided humor with his reading of several tongue-in-cheek "pooperies," a take-off on the tidbits of helpful information compiled and distributed by Mrs. Doran to students in PDI.

A group of employees from the Citizens Bank of Morehead made a surprise visit to sing "Happy Birthday" to Mrs. Doran. Individuals representing various groups whose lives have been influenced by Mrs. Doran gave tributes and birthday greetings.

Laura Duncan, a sixth grade student at University Breckinridge School, read excerpts from letters written to Mrs. Doran by elementary students.

Sterling Gardner, a PDI student, read "Butch's Poem," written by a student enrolled in a class Mrs. Doran taught inmates at the Federal Youth Center in Ashland, Ky.

A poem entitled, "The Valiant Woman," was paraphrased by Ann Mayhew, representing alumni of Morehead State University.

Mrs. Doran was presented with a handmade walnut table and an old organ which had been electrified for her as birthday gifts from the faculty and staff. Mike Keller, director of communication services, provided the craftsmanship.

A Bell Choir from the Morehead Christian Church performed Christmas carols. The children, under the direction of the Rev. Roy Roberson, won the hearts of all who heard them.

As the party drew to a close, the group was led in the traditional singing of "White Christmas" by Dr. Doran, accompanied by Mrs. Doran at the organ.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Wayne Chapman, defensive coordinator at Youngstown State University, will be named head football coach at Morehead State University, it was announced Monday by MSU President Adron Doran.

Dr. Doran said he had accepted the unanimous recommendation of Athletic Director Sonny Moran and the school's Athletic Committee that the 38-year-old Chapman be appointed, effective Jan. 1, to succeed Roy M. Terry.

"We are pleased to have one of our distinguished alumni return to the campus as head football coach," Dr. Doran stated. "It is a compliment to our football program to find a young man with superior coaching qualifications who is a product of the University. Wayne was successful as a player and assistant coach at Morehead State University and we look forward to his return."

Dr. R. H. Playforth, athletic committee chairman, said Chapman's selection was the result of an "exhaustive search" which involved nearly 70 applicants, ranging from high school coaches to the National Football League. Ten persons were interviewed.

"We are confident of Coach Chapman's football knowledge, his ability to recruit and his dedication to building a sound football program," Dr. Playforth said.

The appointment will be submitted to the MSU Board of Regents in the "very near future," according to President Doran.

Chapman, a native of Barboursville, W. Va., earned All-Ohio Valley Conference and All-America honorable mention honors as a tackle at MSU and later served three years on the staff of former Head Coach Jake Hallum.

He compiled a record of 30-6-2 in four seasons as head coach at Auburndale (Fla.) High School. His other experience includes two years as linebacker coach at Colorado State, two years as defensive coordinator at the University of Tampa and one season at Youngstown. He holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Morehead State.

"This is the greatest opportunity of my life," Chapman said. "Coaching at my alma mater has been my goal for many years and I am grateful for the chance to prove myself as a college head coach."

The new Eagle mentor is married to the former Hildreth McBrayer of Morehead. They have four children.

"We are certain that Wayne's familiarity with this region and his contacts with our other alumni and high school coaches will prove to be very helpful," said Athletic Director Moran.

"He has a fine coaching background and is well prepared for this new challenge."

Terms of the contract were not disclosed.
