

Ova Haney Elected President Of East Kentucky Teachers

Morgan County Superintendent And Former Student Heads E.K.E.A. OPPOSED BY FARLEY FOR FIRST POSITION

Henry Evans, Harry Davis Elected To Fill Vacancies On Board of Directors

Ova O. Haney, superintendent of Morgan county schools, and a graduate of the Morehead State Teachers College was elected president of the Eastern Kentucky Education Association in Ashland Saturday.

The balloting for the presidency was close. Mr. Haney was opposed by S. C. Farley, superintendent of Pike county schools. Mr. Farley, with almost 400 votes from his home county jumped into the lead, but when the balloting started from other counties, especially those west of Ashland, the Morgan county superintendent started gaining the won by 45 votes on the final tabulation.

The election was practically a "run-along" for the Morehead State Teachers College graduates. Henry Evans, Blaine, and Harry Davis of Carter county, were named to fill the two vacancies on the board of directors.

THE STORY OF AN ENGINE

For several years on a spur track located about a mile east of Morehead there has stood a locomotive engine. No smoke has issued from its stack, and the tracks on which it stands gradually rusted and became unusable.

Two weeks ago people who passed the spot saw this engine belching smoke and steam. The tracks were being put in shape. It was a rare sign of better business—a definite barometer that conditions in general are on the up-grade.

That engine belongs to the General Refractories Company at Olive Hill. This company is reopening the Christy Creek clay mines in Rowan county, from which this engine hauls clay to the Olive Hill plant. The engineer and the fireman of that train are not the only ones that will be given employment through this business increase, but many families will again be able to purchase the very necessities of life and be happy in the knowledge that there is employment instead of relief.

The story of this small locomotive is but an example of better business conditions which may be witnessed at nearly any place in the county. The Kentucky Fire Brick Company at Haldeman and the Lee Clay Products Company, located in Clearfield, are running at normal or better. These companies lost money during the depression and operated as much as possible simply to give their faithful employees an opportunity to earn a living. Today, they can operate at a profit.

Three times—probably four times as many trains are running through Morehead as there were several years ago. Merchants are doing a better business. More people have automobiles, telephones, electric refrigerators and the other so-called luxury necessities of life. Business has and is coming back. Depressions run in cycles, and it was only natural that one should come after the boom that followed the World War. It is gratifying to know, however, that the same cycle will not carry us back into the throes of a depression for several years to come.

THE FUTURE COMES WHILE MOREHEAD GOES

The comment is heard every day from strangers that Morehead is one of the best towns in eastern Kentucky. Have you ever stopped to consider why Morehead is considered as such by other Kentuckians?

In the first place Morehead boasts one of the greatest institutions of higher learning in the state. The Morehead State Teachers College represents the greatest institution in eastern Kentucky. This school not only lends cultural value to Morehead and this section of the state, but provides a steady flow of dollars into the town, helping it along towards the road of prosperity.

Another reason that has helped Morehead to become one of the best, if not the best small city in eastern Kentucky is the fact that new blood, so essential to the advancement of every city, is constantly coming into Morehead. This may also be partly attributed to the Morehead State Teachers College for many of its students come here, go into business, marry in Morehead families—in fact, become a part of Morehead. This is the cradle of the youth of eastern Kentucky, and we may feel proud of this type of citizenry.

Morehead has the churches, the forward-thinking and acting business leaders, two industrial plants nearby that bring in thousands of dollars annually, progressive city and county government and good roads and other systems of transportation and communication.

This is what makes a good town. Morehead is a wide-awake community. It is one of eastern Kentucky's fastest growing small cities. Through effort of the right type and county government and this place in the state of Kentucky, rising head and shoulders above practically any town in the state of Kentucky of its size.

Morehead will continue to thrive and grow. The opportunity is here, and it is safe to assume that these advantages will be realized by the citizenship of this city.

LOOK AT THE RECORD.

A metropolitan newspaper recently stated that railroads had to be virtually strong-armed into introducing air brakes, automatic couplers and devices to make their operation safer. In considering this statement it is interesting to look at the record:

In 1867, Congress empowered the Interstate Commerce Commission to order any carrier engaged in interstate traffic to install automatic train stop and control safety devices. The Safety Appliance Act of 1893 made it unlawful after January 1, 1898, to operate trains in interstate commerce without automatic couplers, air brakes and other safety devices.

But in 1870, some 17 years before the government passed train safety legislation, the Master Car Builders Association appointed a committee to study various types of automobile train brakes. Out of a thousand patented devices, none were found to be satisfactory. Improvements were being rapidly made, however, and by 1874 practical air brakes had been developed which would handle freight and passenger trains. Since then there has been continuous improvement.

From 1869 to 1874, a committee of the Master Car Builders Association pronounced tests of automatic couplers a failure. By 1885 there were 3,100 patents for car couplers in existence, but none of them satisfactory. Continued tests, however, had, by 1887, produced a coupler which was adopted as a standard by the railroads, and, with some modification, is the type in use today.

By 1890, three years after the Master Car Builders Association had approved a coupler, and three years before the Safety Appliance Act was passed, 25,551 out of the 26,820 passenger cars, and 75,485 out of the 818,491 freight cars were equipped with automatic couplers. Ten years later, out of 1,450,838 freight cars, 1,367,051 had them.

It is interesting to note that the railroads were working on these safety devices many years before legislation appeared on the subject, and that when a satisfactory device was found it was added to engines and cars almost as rapidly as it could be produced.

GUARD AGAINST FIRE THIS FALL AND WINTER

It is gratifying to note that the first cold days have brought no fires in Morehead. Herebefore November has been a perilous month for fires in the county, but this year weather came and people failed to examine their flues, stoves, pipes and other fire hazards.

The year of 1936 will be the best in Morehead's history on the basis of fewer fires provided the last of November and December do not bring a high casualty rate.

Citizens should not be lulled into a sense of security by the fact that the city has had no fires for several months. They should be equally as careful, for only in that manner can we hope to keep the rate down, and possibly bring decreased insurance rates in years to come.

One Year Ago This Week

Arthur Hicks of Haldeman was arrested and held in the county jail on a charge of slaying John Book and Bill Stewart, Catlettsburg cattle buyers. Hicks said that he shot and killed the men after they attempted to hold up the filling station at Easton where he was an employee.

Fowler Nickell was shot seriously, but not fatally by Manford Winkelman. The shooting was the culmination of a dispute over the ownership of some land, officers said.

Funeral services were conducted for Estill Stamper, son of Sam Stamper, Rowan county jailer and Mrs. Stamper. Young Stamper was killed when he fell into a clay bin of the Lee Clay Products Company where he was employed.

The Fish and Game Department reported that quail were plentiful in Rowan county. Both county reported a bumper crop of rabbits, but few bobwhite.

Approval on the Rowan county voting booth project is expected within a short time, County Judge Charles E. Jennings declared.

Students and faculty members of the Morehead State Teachers College were heard in broadcasts over station WLW, Cincinnati.

WHAT OTHER KENTUCKY EDITORS ARE SAYING

The National Human Barbecue

In the last 12 months, approximately 10,000 persons have been burned to death, one-third of them were children.

Two-thirds of all the victims perished in residences and apartment fires. Read that over again. If anything can awaken the American people to the gravity of the fire problem, that brief statement should. If you have a strong stomach think of those 10,000 roasted bodies. And then realize that at least 80 per cent of fires, big and little fires alike, could easily have been prevented.

It is a human frailty to read such a statement as this, reflect for a moment on the horror of it, and then forget it with the mentally-made observation that "Well my home is safe." Perhaps your home is, but there's better than an even chance it contains hazards that you don't know about.

An up-to-date house is not necessarily a safe house, from the standpoint of fire—many a $50,000 mansion has gone up in flames. Expensive furniture will burn as easily as cheap furniture—and the finest interior fabrics and woodwork will burn as easily as a piece of cotton cloth and a pine board.

Whether you live in a four-room bungalow or a 50-room country palace, inspect your property regularly, or have it inspected by some one who understands fire hazards and their prevention. Get the necessary reason on your fire department on a similar institution. Once hazards are found, do away with them and make sure they don't reappear.

Help reduce the national human barbecue—East Kentucky Journal.

THE MAN EATER

THIS WEEK IN MOREHEAD

ELECTED: Ova O. Haney, Morehead college graduate, who has had little success in the field of education during the last few years gained a grand slam for himself and the Morehead institution last week when he was elected president of the Eastern Kentucky Education Association, which held its annual meeting at Ashland.

The presidency was not obtained without opposition, and only after a hard fight on the part of Haney's friends, most of them former students or graduates of Morehead. The Morehead school was pulling for Haney for his election meant some honor to the institution. Practically every EKEA president has been identified with the Morehead State Teachers College.

ATTENDANCE: Although no accurate and absolute check is kept on the attendance at Morehead college football games because students are allowed to pass in on activity books, which are paid for upon registration and many high school coaches and players are admitted without charge, it has been estimated that 8,000 people, or more, saw the Eagles in action on their home field this year. This increased attendance is one of the best reasons why Morehead is planning further achievement.

Our Family Coat-of-Arms

Reginald Foster of the Foster family of Little Badow, County Essex, England, bore the above coat of arms. In 1638 he arrived at Ipswich, Massachusetts with his five sons and two daughters.

The arms here presented appear on the tombstone of Richard Foster, junior in the Old Burial Ground at Charlestown, Massachusetts. Richard was a grandson of William Foster, known to have been in Charlestown in 1638.

Another variation of the name Foster is that of 'Fosters', some of whom settled in Jamaica, N.Y. in the West Indies. In America today are various ancient silver articles carrying the Foster coat of arms.

Description of Arms: A moil of three black hawks and a green chevron on a shield of silver. Crest: An arm clad in armor, the hand clutching a broken spear. Motto: If broken, still strong!

ment in sports with years to come. It will go a long way to support an athletic fund that has not been overly big.

Coach Ellis Johnson is practically assured of an increase in salary this year, the wise boys say. Johnson came to Morehead with a comparatively small salary for a college coach, but with the understanding that it would be increased in proportion to the results. The record speaks for itself, and thereon is written success for Johnson.

COUNTY ELECTION: Word comes from reliable sources of the forming of a combine among Rowan county democrats who are seeking to minimize the factional feeling that has prevailed for a number of years. A date of candidates has already been tentatively drawn. They are taken from both factions as well as neutral people. The grand idea is to defeat the better organized Republicans, who are in a minority in registration, at next year's county elections.

If more harmony can be obtained the state may be revised. Leaders of the two sides of the Democratic party have declared a willingness to cooperate and support the democratic nominees regardless of who they are.

It is all a pretty nice set-up, but whether it will function as intended is a matter of question. These county officers are hard fought and bitter affairs. Animosity develops between the best of friends. There are certain to be a large number of candidates on the democratic ticket for all offices, and the fact that a list of candidates is slated all the way through may result in some bitterness.

Anyway you take it the election is bound to be a knock-down and drag-out affair with both parties.

CITY PAYMENTS: There seems to be some sort of a mix-up in the payment for small materials and such on Morehead's new septic tank which is being built by the city and WPA. A number of small claims were brought before the last council for payment. After much debate the council finally passed an order to pay all claims then before them, but heretofore all of them must be approved by Councilman N. E. Kennard before the purchases are made.

'GRASS MEAL' FACTORY OPERATING IN NORWAY

Grass meal and fresh green hay are being produced in a factory which has just started operations near Trondheim, Norway, according to a report to the Louisville district office of the commerce department. This is said to be the only factory of its kind in the world. The method consists in cutting the grass when it is still in the leaf stage and drying it by electrically-heated air of pasteurizing temperature. In conjunction with the factory there is a mill for the grinding of the grass meal. This is done by beating the hay with a series of rotating hammer. Experiments have proved that while hay dried according to the old method loses approximately 20 per cent of its vitamin content, practically no loss is suffered when the method is employed. The grass meal is chiefly used for poultry and foxes, but it may also be used for the making of bread when mixed with a little flour.

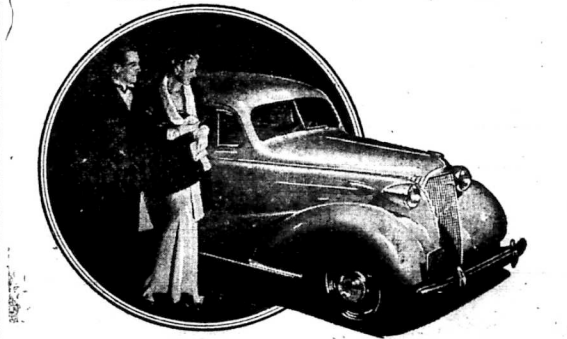

HUGE EXPANSION IN U. S. TUNG-OIL TREE PLANTINGS

A ninefold increase in tung-oil tree plantings in six southern states within five years reflects the great interest in the possibilities of this new crop as an additional source of income for southern agriculture, according to a report to the Louisville district office of the department of commerce. All living grove plantings at the beginning of 1935 approximated 3,652,000 trees as compared with about 351,000 trees in 1930. Data indicates that the total grove acreage of tung trees at the beginning of 1935 was 40,166 acres. Growth of tung trees was reported on 627 farms in 1935 and on 144 farms in 1930. The average size of groves in 1935 was about 64 acres. The tung-oil crop, a comparatively new introduction from foreign sources, bears a nut from which is expressed an oil used in the manufacture of paints, varnishes, and water proofing materials. Tung oil has quick drying action and imperviousness to water. U. S. importers paid approximately $10,000,000 for Chinese tung oil last year. Commercial plantings have been made in the northern half of Florida, in southern Georgia, and in an area just far inland from the Gulf of Mexico in the states of Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas.

TURKEY'S EXPORTS ARE UP

Increased exports and a decline in imports featured Turkey's foreign trade in the first seven months of this year compared with the corresponding period of 1935. Leaf tobacco and raw cotton are Turkey's two most important exports, accounting for approximately 20 per cent of the total, while cotton piece goods and machinery constitute the outstanding import items.

The Gorgeous Hussy
SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS
Dramatized from the
METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER Picture
by
HAILEY RAINES

What has happened so far? Peggy O'Neale Timberlake, whose beauty and independence of spirit are a by-word in the atmosphere, occupies a unique position: as adviser of President Jackson. She sacrifices her love for John Randolph because he is opposed to Jackson's policies, and instead marries Secretary of War Eaton. Randolph is shot by a cowardly advocate of civil war whom he has denounced.

Chapter Eleven
When Randolph was absent from his place in the Senate during the ensuing week, Peggy gave little thought of it. It was rumored that he was slightly indisposed, and she assumed this to be the case.

Wildly contradictory stories had begun to sweep Washington about the mounting opposition to Jackson. Some persons felt that the President was soon to lose control entirely, many went so far as to predict open national revolt. It was with a great deal of anxiety that Peggy accompanied her husband to the Jefferson Birthday celebration in the Senate. Tales were in the air that Jackson was to be challenged and there, as he delivered the address of welcome. The spoils of states' freedom were reported to have already established the nucleus of a new Southern government, feeling that Jackson would be discredited and overthrown.

The lobby of the Senate was crowded. The specialty of the souvenir vendors was a fifteen-cent handkerchief adorned with a reasonably good likeness of Jefferson.

Leaving her husband, Peggy took her place in the gallery. A wild confusion of voices surrounded all about her, and a sense of imminent crisis seemed to pervade the atmosphere. When a gavel was pounded from the rostrum the chatter did not altogether die out, and not all the people present rose in deferential tribute as Jackson was introduced.

"Gentlemen," began the President, "you are all aware of the significance of this great day, the birthday of that illustrious American, Thomas Jefferson."

"And a good States' Righter!" shouted a heckler from the upper tier.

A buzz of excited comment broke out. It appeared that at any moment a bomb might be set off by breaking up the gathering in disorder, and perhaps shattering the bonds of Union at the same time. But Jackson had never had a firmer grip on himself, never before had he felt it so vital to impress his will and personality on his listeners.

"A good States' Righter is a devoted servant of Democracy," he went on. "From the depth of my heart I support these great words by great American, Daniel Webster." He motioned toward Webster, who was seated nearby.

"This is what he said: 'When my eyes shall be turned for the last time toward the meridian sun, I hope I may see him shining on my united, free and happy country. I hope I shall not live to see his beams falling upon the dispersed structure of this glorious Union. I hope to see spread all over my country's flag, blazoned in letters of light and proudly floating above land and sea: 'Union and Liberty, now and forever, one and inseparable!'"

An applause broke forth that almost shook the rafters! Peggy, her fears vanished, felt her eyes fill with tears. She took the corsage from her dress and threw it on the platform before Jackson, as the entire assemblage joined in spontaneous and patriotic rendition of "Hail, Columbia!"

When Peggy rested at home that afternoon, happy beyond words at Jackson's victory, Cuthbert, the old retainer at Franklin Inn, was ushered inside. He was obviously ill at ease.

"It's about Mr. Randolph's Roanoke, ma'am," he said. "They say he's dangerously ill. I thought I should let you know."

"Where is he?" cried Peggy. Cuthbert drew out a slip of paper that he had already prepared. Peggy pressed his hand in gratitude. With an apprehensive

Crossing to the desk, Peggy hurriedly penned a note to the one person she felt she could call on in that emergency. Rowdy Dow "Rowdy dear: You must help me. Ask no questions. Meet me at five before nine tonight."

Fortunately, it was an overcast evening, and there were no obstructions outside. Gladly when Peggy arrived at the appointed time, Rowdy had a carriage ready, and asked scarcely any questions as they drove towards the house that Randolph was occupying.

In Randolph's bedroom the sole attendant was an old family servant. He watched every motion from the wounded man, and moved to his side at the slightest change of expression.

"What did the doctor say today?" asked Randolph. "The doctor say yo' all goin' to git well, sah," was the answer. "B'raxon, you're the best friend and the worst liar who's ever served me," murmured Randolph, faintly smiling.

There was a scraping of wheels outside. The sick man turned slightly. His eyes went to the window, then remained at the doorknob. As she silently tried to enter the room Peggy saw that Randolph knew in advance of her presence, although he was too weak to make a gesture of welcome.

"Margaret," his voice issued ever so faintly, as she took a place beside him and smoothed his hair back.

"You couldn't keep r'ie away, darling," whispered Peggy. He nodded his head as Peggy dropped to her knees and put her arms protectively about him.

"Perhaps," he said, gaining strength to speak, "if I hadn't been a fool all those years, this wonderful moment would never have been so perfect."

Peggy could say nothing, but her hands gently caressed him, and she pulled back a wisp of hair that had slipped over his forehead.

"I've loved you, darling," he continued. "Only because of you I have suffered an otherwise painful life. Now it's finished, but with a beautiful ending... you with me at the end, to know that I love you."

Tenderly he kissed Randolph, tried to raise his head, so that he might look directly into Peggy's eyes. "Smile for me," he said. She tried her best. "Now please go." "It was his wish, she obeyed. As she went through the doorway it was hard for her to keep control of herself, but on John Randolph's pallid face was a smile of new and utter contentment.

Peggy was still unable to speak when she came up to Rowdy in the driveway outside. (Continued on Page Six)

An Open Letter To the Voters of Rowan County

On December 5 you, Citizens of Rowan County, will vote on local option. A vote 'yes' means to bring enforcement to Rowan County of a dangerous method that furnishes loopholes for shyders and racketeers. A vote 'no' means to keep conditions as they are today.

It is up to you to study the issue, the situation as it now exists and the situation as it would be under local option. All that we ask is that you study the evidence, analyze the local option law, figure for yourself what local option means to your community, yourself, your neighbors, your county and your city. We feel that if you analyze the situation fairly and squarely that on December 5 you will vote 'no' for it will be for your best interests.

For 15 years you saw the effects of prohibition in the United States. Two years ago you saw the nation rebuke it, and last year the state of Kentucky turned it down. It was a failure — not only in the United States — in Kentucky but in Rowan County, as well.

STUDY THESE FACTS OVER —

DO YOU BELIEVE THAT CONDITIONS ARE BETTER NOW THAN THEY WERE 3 YEARS AGO? If you do vote 'No' for a 'No' vote means to keep them exactly as they are today. A vote otherwise is a ballot for the enforcement of local option. It is a vote to bring a law to Rowan County that provides "that all the lands, stock and holdings of a person found guilty of violating the local option law may be confiscated and the proceeds of its sale turned over to the jury fund. If the confiscation is the result of INFORMATION FURNISHED THE AUTHORITIES BY A NEIGHBOR OR OTHER CITIZEN, THE INFORMER GETS 10 PERCENT OF THE PROCEEDS AS A REWARD. IF A PUBLIC OFFICIAL FAILS TO ACT ON INFORMATION FROM AN INFORMER HE IS SUBJECT TO INDICTMENT FOR MALFEASANCE." Place yourself under these conditions. What if someone should desire to get all your property, your home, your business, your automobile your life's saving taken away from you. All they would have to do is place a small quantity of liquor on your premises and then notify the officers. EVEN IF YOU COULD PROVE THAT THE WHISKEY WAS NOT YOURS YOU WOULD STILL BE GUILTY FOR THE LAW EXPLICITLY STATES THAT POSSESSION IS PRIMA FACIE EVIDENCE OF GUILT. The next time that anyone asks you to vote for local option, ask them about this unfair, unjust law. We'll guarantee you that THEY CANNOT DISPUTE IT FOR IT IS ON THE STATUTES. LOOK FOR YOURSELF AT THE COURTHOUSE.

If Rowan County adopts a local option law it will mean tourists in large numbers will take another route to evade this county. This means a loss in business for every merchant and worse times for every individual. Tourists will not take a chance of being arrested when they can take another route.

Local Option means that thousands of dollars that Rowan County, the City of Morehead and the State of Kentucky now receives will be lost in taxes. These taxes must be met and it means that ultimately your taxes will be increased to care for the deficit. It has to come from some place and you are the taxpayer that must meet the bill.

The adoption of local option in Rowan County would please no one greater than the counties that surround Rowan. They would secure the most benefits for it would mean thousands of dollars worth of business from this county coming to their county. It is their rhyme of reason to voting legal beer and whiskey out of Rowan County when it can be purchased just over the county line?

We know that the sheriff of Rowan County and the chief of police of the City of Morehead will tell you that conditions are better now than they were before, because we know without a doubt THAT THEY ARE BETTER. A vote 'no' means to keep them better.

The court docket in Rowan County today is only one-fourth of that of 3 years ago. What does this mean? It means that the youth of our county are not being educated to dodge the law, to become law breakers. The records don't lie. Check the court docket yourself and you will see that the decline is not only in liquor cases, but in robberies, murders, reckless driving, and every other form of law enforcement. Under prohibition the boys and girls of this county were led into breaking the laws.

Now we come to one of the most important phases of local option and the prohibition situation — that is the bootlegger and the moonshiner. They will vote for local option for they wish to resume operations. Three years ago it was unsafe for any man, woman or child to walk upon Railroad Street in Morehead. Today it is safe. Three years ago the street was infested with bootleggers and riff-raff. Ask any merchant on Railroad Street if conditions are not better today. The same situation exists in the rural section of the county. Have you noticed that it is safe to hold church in the rural parts of the county. How does this compare with 3 years ago when lawlessness was continually disrupted.

For 15 years the moonshiner and the bootlegger flourished in Rowan County making criminals of our boys and girls. They poisoned the minds and bodies of people with a cheap whiskey that caused men to go crazy. You do not see that today. The people in the rural sections can best appreciate the effects of the new law and we believe that any unbiased person living in the rural sections of Rowan County must admit that conditions are better today.

Business is better. Money is now being placed in our banks that formerly went to the bootlegger and the moonshiner.

The entire question in this election is whether conditions are better now than they were during prohibition. If you believe they are than it is to your best interests and the best interests of your community and friends to vote "NO".

- VOTE "NO" - December 5th

- AND YOU ARE CASTING YOUR BALLOT - -
- AGAINST THE BOOTLEGGER AND THE MOONSHINER
- AGAINST TAKING ROWAN COUNTY MONEY INTO ADJOINING COUNTIES
- AGAINST MAKING LAW-VIOLATORS OF THE YOUTH
- AGAINST INCREASED COURT DOCKETS
- AGAINST INCREASED TAXES
- AGAINST A LOCAL OPTION LAW THAT IS SO DRASTIC AND UN-AMERICAN THAT NONE, BUT A FANATIC COULD HAVE WRITTEN IT.

A VOTE "NO" MEANS TO KEEP ROWAN COUNTY AS IT IS TO-DAY!

Nino Martini Has Leading Play Role

"The Gay Desperado," At College Theatre Friday Evening

Something decidedly different in pictures with music comes to the College Theatre Friday when Pickford-Lasky's "The Gay Desperado," begins a one-day engagement with Nino Martini, the great singing star of radio, opera and films (with little role, and Ida Lupino and Leo Carillo in supporting parts.

A gay, colorful romance laid below the Rio Grande, this second offering of the newly formed Mary Pickford-Jesse L. Lasky producing company completely discards the usual backstage plot formula for pictures featuring famous song birds and presents a thrill-packed, action-filled, "fast-moving" film story.

The handsome Martini is said to give a great performance as the gay, swashbuckling Chivo, whose glorious voice causes him to be kidnapped by a Mexican bandit chieftain (Carillo), who adopts American gangster methods, but is really a sentimental, music-loving fellow at heart.

Carillo also kidnaps an American millionaire's winking son, played by James Blakely, and his sweetheart, Ida Lupino. Determined to do the thing right, Carillo calls in his idol of the American underworld, Public Enemy 3, to handle the ransom negotiations.

Martini and Ida Lupino fall in love and he manages to escape and effect the release of Blakely through a radio plea directed straight at the heart of the sentimental Carillo.

 The music written especially for the film includes "The World Is Mine Tonight," written by Hail Marvet and George Postford, and "Adios Mi Tierra," by Miguel Sandoval.

V-8
 60 HORSEPOWER
 Good Performance with Maximum Economy
 Base, 2.8 in. Stroke, 3.2 in. Displacement, 138 cu. in.

THE New Ford V-8 for 1937 is the most beautiful Ford car ever offered. It is built in only one size—one standard of roomy comfort and modern appearance. But you may have either the improved 85-horsepower V-8 engine for maximum performance—or the new 60-horsepower V-8 engine for maximum economy. The smaller engine makes possible a lighter car—lower operating costs—and a lower price. When you drive the 1937 Ford with the 85-horsepower V-8 engine, you are master of a power plant that gives everything you can possibly demand in speed and acceleration. Today, improved carburetion enables it to deliver its thrilling performance with unusually low gasoline consumption. The new 60-horsepower V-type 8-cylinder engine delivers V-8 smoothness and quietness—even at speeds up to 70 miles an hour—with gasoline mileage so high that it creates an entirely new standard of economy in modern motor car operation.

We invite you to see this new Ford car, and arrange to drive one equipped with the engine that fits your needs.

FARMING BY IMPROVED METHODS

Written by the Staff of the University of Kentucky Agricultural Extension Work, College of Agriculture

Considers the Farm Outlook Optimistic

Returning from Washington, where they assisted the department of agriculture in writing an outlook report, E. A. Johnson and Miss Ida C. Hagman of the Kentucky College of Agriculture were optimistic regarding farm prospects for 1937.

The anticipated 10 per cent increase in the national income for 1937, as compared to 1936, following about a 13 per cent increase in 1936 over 1935, offers encouragement, Mr. Johnson said. This is the basis for the strong market situation which is expected to continue through the coming year.

He went on to say that improved demand and short supplies of most farm products will serve to hold prices up during the first half of next year. He expects an advance in livestock prices.

In the latter half of next year, prices will be readjusted in line with supplies from the new crops, but Mr. Johnson believed the desire to rebuild depleted stocks of feed supplies will tend to hold livestock prices, he said, well above a high level longer than feed prices.

30 Kentucky 4-H Club Members Win Trips to Chicago

Thirty Kentucky farm boys and girls will attend the National 4-H Club Congress and International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago as a reward for outstanding 4-H club work. Among them will be winners of championships in various projects, owners of champion livestock, state stock judging team, outstanding producers of crops, state health champions and other boys and girls who excelled in the application of improved farm and home practices.

The stock judging team to compete in a national contest in Chicago includes Randall Burke, Pascual Ballard, Robert Harmon and Charles Beaven of Marion county, trained by County Agent G. H. Karnes.

Other boys and girls to go are: Kayette Wallis, Ballard county; Mattigene Falmore, Hart county; Ira Wash, Jr., Woodford county; Harold L. Ogden, Boone county; Gladys Noland, Madison county; Mabel Raymer, Butler county; Alma Seaton, McCracken county; Margaret Cromwell, Union county; Charles Patterson, Grayson county; Carl Chester, Marshall county; Sara Moore, Rockcastle county; Helen Hettlinger, Martha Bryant, and Charles Stutzenberger, all of Jefferson county, and Frances Monson, Woodrow W. Baxter and Lorraine Harris, all of Fayette county.

Commercial concerns giving trips include the Illinois Central railroad, The Courier Journal, Montgomery Ward & Co. Service, Inc., Kaufman-Struss Co., Ballard & Ballard, Hazlett-Glass Co., the Lexington Tobacco Glass of Trade, the Kenton Lease Leaf Tobacco Co., the national associations of Shorthorn, Hereford and Angus cattle breeders, the Louisville Stock Yards Bank, Thomas E. Wilson, Chicago, and Swift & Co.

Kentucky Farm News

Half of the cultivated land in Webster county is growing a cover crop, said to be the largest acreage in the history of the county. J. D. Pinkston and J. W. Nail sold 3,500 bushels of wheat for fall seeding. A bee census in Letcher county showed that 98 farmers own 994 stands. Ned Isom has 100 profitable enterprises in his county for many years, although little money was made this year.

With 291 acres of Korean lespedeza growing on his Powell county farm, James Hall expects to thresh 15,000 pounds of seed from 100 acres, despite the drought. Winter cover crops seeded in the county include crimson clover, wheat, rye, barley and oats.

Grayson county farmers ordered 59,700 locust seedlings for use in the soil conservation program. With 291 acres of Korean lespedeza growing on his Powell county farm, James Hall expects to thresh 15,000 pounds of seed from 100 acres, despite the drought.

S. D. Broadbent, Trig county master farmer, has spread 720 tons of limestone this year. He plans a five-year rotation of corn and tobacco, wheat and clover, with an application of limestone during each turn of the rotation.

The Ballard county lespedeza seed crop is estimated at 200,000 pounds, considerably more than anticipated early in the season. J. P. Page threshed 11,000 pounds from 25 acres, and G. L. Small threshed 1,200 pounds from two acres.

Federal Agency Gives Feed Supply Location

Farmers unable to find feeds locally to purchase can obtain them from the Federal Livestock Feed Agency, 755 Livestock Exchange Building, Kansas City, Mo. Lists of supplies available in nearby states, according to notice sent to the College of Agriculture at Lexington.

This government agency knows the locations of 150,000 carloads of hays and other roughages and concentrates, and is in a position to advise farmers of their nearest sources of feeds.

For the most part, Kentucky farmers will be referred to feed sources in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan according to a statement of the agency. Farmers should see county agents for further details.

Home Demonstration Work in Four Counties

Todd, Logan, Hart and Ohio are among the counties which this year adopted full-time home demonstration work. Todd county employed an agent the first of the year, selecting Miss Carolyn Graham for the position. Ohio county took up the work after two years without an agent. Miss Sarah Brown is agent there. Logan county and Miss Elizabeth Ward in Hart county.

Should Use Care in Taking Soil Samples

During the course of a year, many soil samples are sent to the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington for analysis without sufficient information being given about how the samples were taken.

Unless a sample is properly taken, points out Prof. George Roberts, it may not fairly represent the land, and the analysis may be misleading, by being either better or poorer than the land it was intended to represent. No sample should be sent without first obtaining from the Experiment Station directions for taking samples. These directions are given in Extension Circular 272. Analyses are not particularly helpful in making recommendations for fertilizing tobacco, according to Professor Roberts. It is better to tell how the land has been managed for the last five years, including cropping and the use of manure, lime and fertilizers, and give an estimate of its productivity in terms of how much corn it will produce in an average season.

The chief value of the test is to show the need of the soil for lime and phosphorus, to be used as a basis for improving the soil through the proper use of legumes, grasses, and farm manure. Extension Circular 272 gives a discussion of these practices.

Many county agents have experience for making lime and phosphorus tests, and their local experience gives added value to their tests.

The Farm and Home (Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)

Dairy farmers know that the lack of protein in clean, bright non-legume hay can be compensated for by adding a little cottonseed meal or soybean meal to the ration. Protein is said to be relatively cheap in these concentrates at present prices.

Fats are the most concentrated body fuels and contain more energy than sweets and starches. For this reason, children need butter every day, in addition to a pint to a quart of milk. Both can be used in soups or other dishes.

Erosion and leaching are said to account for two-fifths of the annual loss of humus from the soil, crops accounting for little more than a fourth. Nature requires 400 to 1,000 years to make an inch of topsoil which may be lost in a year on steep, cultivated land.

No milk is available, a dry mash containing animal protein, necessary for high egg production, especially in winter, when egg prices are high. Many farmers make a fifth of the mash a good grade of tankage, by weight.

Baked squash recipe: use six medium sized pieces of winter squash, a teaspoonful of salt and a tablespoonful of butter. Bake in a hot oven until tender, add seasoning and serve. Cheese sprinkled over the top as soon as taken from the oven gives a delightful flavor.

Warm, dry quarters and plenty of drinking water help to reduce the feed for any kind of livestock. Careful feeding in clean troughs and other extra attention pay big dividends, especially when feeds are high priced.

Have Guests Eat Turkey Day Haul Suggests Expert

As soon as Thanksgiving is over, the homemaker has a problem as to what to do with left-overs, commonly made into hash. Miss Laura Deshpouse of the University of Kentucky home economics department suggests that guests be invited and that among other things broiled tomatoes and scalloped oysters and a turkey loaf be served them.

Cut tomatoes in three-fourth inch slices, saute' in butter and top with scalloped oysters. Arrange on a large tray on curly endive and garnish with stuffed olives. To make scalloped oysters, first clean them by allowing cold water to run over them and removing any particles of shell. Place a layer of coarse cracker crumbs in a buttered casserole, then a layer of oysters, until there are two or three layers. Season each layer with butter, salt and pepper. Cover with milk so that all dry crumbs are absorbed, and bake in a moderate oven about 30 minutes. The top should be a golden brown.

The turkey loaf ingredients are as follows: 3 cups cold chopped left-over turkey, 1/2 cup fine bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup milk or stock, 1 teaspoon chopped parsley, 1/2 teaspoon onion juice, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 2 eggs.

Mix seasonings and crumbs with turkey. Mix thoroughly with the heated milk and butter. Place in a well-oiled mold; set in a pan of hot water and bake about 45 minutes. Turn out on a chop plate and garnish with parsley. The outer edge may be surrounded with sliced whole carrots and buttered peas, if desired.

Rowdy's subconscious mind told him that the man before him was a murderer by prior act. At any rate, he fired point blank, and Sunderland fell.

Neighbors had already been attracted by the cries, and with the shot people came pouring from all directions. There was just time for one thought.

Pulling Peggy to the carriage, Rowdy gave a peremptory command to the negro driver. As two constables came up, the vehicle sped away.

It had been so many years since she had seen La Roy Sunderland that she had completely banished him from her thoughts. Her school girl absorption in him and his mystic divinations had gone as the wind. In fact, ever since the terrible night when he had striven up the mob to advance on Franklin Inn and demand the surrender of Cree his very name had been half-legendary to her.

Had she realized that he had been the medium to take from her the man she had always loved... but that was an incredibility that could not occur to her. Randolph had chosen to let no detail of his "accident" become public, and Sunderland was fully aware of this.

"What are you doing here?" asked Rowdy, stopping up to him. Sunderland disregarded this question, and turned to face Peggy.

"You're a woman of means, Mrs. Secretary Eaton," he said cunningly. "I am poor. Surely your reputation in Washington will be worth a trivial consideration."

"Sunderland tore himself free, and, squirming to his feet, whipped out a pistol. Rowdy, seized his wrist, and when the weapon fell to the ground, retrieved it for himself.

Sunderland had one last resource. He brought a knife from an inner pocket and with a sudden charge rushed on the other. Perhaps it was purely self-defense, or perhaps something in

CHINESE BUY LOTS MORE U. S. LEAF TOBACCO

The position of American leaf tobacco in the Chinese market has appreciably improved during the current year, as compared with 1935, according to a report to the Louisville district office of the commerce department. During the 1936 period the United States supplied 14,269,000 pounds or 81.8 per cent of the total imports against 75.5 per cent in 1935.

It is estimated in some quarters, the report states, that during the next 12 months Chinese imports of raw tobacco will reach approximately 45,000,000 pounds. Of this volume, the share of the United States might be expected to total approximately 40,000,000 pounds. This estimate is based upon an estimated 5 per cent increase in China's cigarette consumption during the next 12 months.

Over 90 per cent of all the fires occurring on national forests, state and private land in the United States are man-caused.

Morehead Defeats Louisville By 14-7

Ellis Johnson and his band of Blue and Gold gridders representing Morehead college stood today at the top of the standings of all Kentucky colleges as the result of their 14-7 victory over the Cardinals of the University of Louisville at Jayne stadium Saturday afternoon.

The Louisville game climaxed the most successful season that Morehead has ever enjoyed on the gridiron. The Eagles' victory coupled with the defeat of Eastern by Western enabled Morehead to get first place last day of their campaign. Regardless of how other teams in Kentucky do during the remainder of the season Morehead will retain its position. The Eagles are the only club that has finished its campaign.

Morehead struck three times Saturday afternoon. They scored on two of these thrusts while the other might have resulted in a touchdown if there had been sufficient playing time. The game ended with the ball in the Eagles possession on the Louisville 10-yard stripe.

The first part of the opening quarter was listless, with Louisville gaining an edge in ground gained. One time the Cardinals went down to Morehead's 25-yard line where the drive was successfully halted.

In the second quarter the Eagles started turning on the heat and superior kicking coupled with

Morehead Freshmen Lose To Transy, 6-0

The Morehead freshmen closed their football season Friday afternoon, losing to the Transylvania yearlings 6-0. Transy outplayed the Morehead team and deserved to win by about the margin that they did.

Led by Collins Morehead drove into Transy's 10-yard line once but could not cross the pay stripes. Transy, on the other hand, had four good scoring chances and cashed in on one of them.

During the season the Morehead freshmen lost to the University of Kentucky Kittens 6-0, tied Centre 6-6 and lost to Transy.

Around and about Jayne stadium, setting between state hills, the cheer of the bands... the playing and desire to win—the spirit—all that which surrounds a football game on the green... Jayne stadium as desolate as the grave yard that joins it.

On the sod of that field this year two coaches... of them starting out to win—their spurs started what may be colorful and successful careers.

The first week in September a group of some 30 athletes turned out to get the tutoring that these two men had to offer, and almost a month later to open a gridiron campaign for the Morehead State Teachers Colleges that was designed to go down as the greatest single achievement in 1936 football history in the Bluegrass state.

We have seen Morehead come from cellar in Kentucky to the top-most pinnacle, besting the name of Eagles under which the Blue and Gold gridders perform. We have seen these Eagles become a band of warriors that were feared by every opponent.

Hunting Laws Are Explained

Fifty thousand or more sportsmen of Kentucky will take to the fields Tuesday in elusive search of quail and rabbit. The open season on both opens at that time.

The following are laws of the Kentucky Game and Fish Commission:

1. Residence hunting licenses are $1. Non-resident $10.

2. Residents of the state, tenants and members of their families may hunt on their own land or leasehold without a license.

3. Trappers must have hunting license.

4. Open season on rabbit and quail is from November 24 to January 9.

5. There is no bag limit on rabbits. The bag limit on quail is daily limit 12, possession limit 24, season limit 75.

6. It is unlawful to sell quail or doves.

7. License does not convey a right to hunt or fish without landowner's permission. Landowner's permission does not convey a right to hunt without license.

Vikings Scoring Record Is Unique

A check of the Elsay conference standings shows that the Morehead High school Vikings did not finish in last place, but third from the bottom. The Vikings did not defeat a conference foe in combat, but they had a game scheduled with Greenup which was forfeited.

During the season Morehead had a unique scoring record. They tallied four touchdowns, and not one of them was made by a backfield man. Lloyd Brown accounted for everyone of the Morehead markers. Three were made on end plays and the other on a pass to him. The backfield did account for two points after touchdowns.

Coach Johnson said that the team would probably play three games during December. The K.I.A.C. campaign will officially get underway after the Christmas holidays.

To purchase everything I see.
But was the mortal ever known
Who gathered all he wishes to own?

Life spreads its joys upon display
And some we purchase when we may.

NEW 1937 Oldsmobile
The 1937 Oldsmobiles, two new, distinctive and entirely different automobiles are now being displayed at the MOREHEAD GARAGE, east Main street, at Boulevard, who has returned from Cincinnati where he attended a meeting of Oldsmobile dealers.

"Oldsmobile again sets the pace in 1937," he said. "Not only are both the six and eight different from anything else on the road, but they are entirely different from each other and again set the styles for the coming year."

"The design advance is but one of the many improvements. The cars are bigger in every way, with longer wheelbase, bigger engines and roomier bodies. Many new safety features have been added. Comfort has been increased in a dozen ways. Economy of operation has been gained by improvements in carburetion and slower engine speeds.

"The engines themselves, although based on the fundamental engineering principle which has resulted in such great owner satisfaction, are larger than ever before and give greater performance and economy as well as insuring longer life and increased dependability.

"From factory representatives we learned that capacity at the Lansing plant has been increased as a result of an expansion program that saw the expenditure of $6,500,000 during the changeover period. "It is no exaggeration to say that the public may look to Oldsmobile to set the pace again in 1937."
