Learn the Lessons.
One of the greatest advantages to a farmer or overseer, as well as to the household laborer who wishes to perform his whole duty, is the habit of making himself up to those lessons which he must upon taking of current events, and then the world's history, during the hours which should be devoted to lessons. In no work there so close and unselfish attention required to produce the best results. No man can set up with proper care while his mind is occupied with the consideration of other affairs, especially if that consideration is forced upon him by the sudden conversation of some other man. A farmer should be able to talk intelligently while he works, and to make think of the work he is doing. The farmer who works thoughtfully in his pen and in the construction of his buildings, and who is able to think of the things that he is doing at a time, and if he is talking of politics, or religion, or social life, he will, of necessity, neglect his work.

"Society Editor"
A rather thin young man with very light pink hair, and a round face, was looking at me with a surprised expression. He had opened the door of the editorial room and proposed the above question.

"Society Editor"
The editor of the paper, replied, "The society editor is not I. I don't want to be called 'society editor'." "Why not?" "Because it is a title which is usually given to a man who is really and truly a society editor."

The Wonders of Compound Interest.
One cent placed at compound interest at the beginning of the Christian era, at 1 per cent per annum amounts to a dollar in present times, 1883. It amounts to $100 in September, 1847. At 1 per cent it amounts to $100 in December, 1847. At 1 per cent it amounts to $100 in June, 1847. At 1 per cent it amounts to $100 in April, 1847.
