Men, happy in the knowledge that they can give something—men, appreciative because they have a job... women, who fought courageously through the battle of want... and children awaiting Christmas morning to find well-filled stockings and the restoration of the belief that there is a Santa Claus... that is Christmas of 1936.

THE PUBLISHERS EXTEND HOLIDAY GREETINGS

This is the first Christmas that the new owners and publishers of the Independent have to extend you a personal greeting from the columns of type which form this community newspaper.

Less than nine months ago Mr. Geo. M. Calvert and Mr. W. J. Sample purchased and assumed control of the Independent. Under their guidance the newspaper has shown a remarkable growth in circulation, advertising lineage and news coverage.

The new publishers realize that their accomplishments over this short period have been made possible through the support, kindness and friendship shown by the citizens of Rowan county.

To the people of Rowan county the publishers of this newspaper extend heart-felt thanks for your support and best wishes for a Merry Christmas to the people of Rowan county.

POLICE PROTECTION NEEDED AT NIGHT

The robberies that have occurred in Morehead during the last few days recalls the fact that Morehead is, and has been for several days without adequate police protection.

During most of the night Morehead has no active policeman. Coming at this time of the year when more robberies occur than at any other time and the hazards of fires are at their worst, it is lamentable that better police protection is not provided a city of the size of Morehead.

In many neighboring towns and cities merchants have gone together and for a small assessment to each a night patrolman has been employed.

Lawlessness flourishes under the cover of darkness. Police are needed as much or more after night than during the day time.

GUARD AGAINST FROZEN PIPES

Although a winter as hard as that of last year is not anticipated this season, property owners should take precautions against water pipes becoming frozen.

A packing of sawdust or some similar substance around pipes is one of the best safeguards.

Thousands of dollars damage was done last year through water pipes freezing and bursting.

WILL THERE BE AN OVER-PRODUCTION OF WOOD NEXT YEAR?

"Yes, sir, tobacco's coming back," that's the statement of the Kentucky farmer this year. With an average of over $50 on many floors and high baskets going for as much as $80, Kentucky tobacco growers are jubilant over the unexpected good prices.

The tobacco experts, who have watched the Kentucky market for many years, predicted an average of around $30 before the markets opened.

These boom tobacco years, however, recall what generally follows the next season. Farmers for some reason raise more tobacco, the market is stifled by over-production and there is the ultimate result of low prices.

ers would not cooperate—they refused to stick together. Apparently there is no way to solve over-production periods that ultimately follow years of good prices, until the tobacco farmer becomes better educated with marketing conditions and the economic laws of supply and demand upon which prices are based.

ROWAN COUNTY GETS THE BENEFITS

One of the best-behaved and organized groups of young men is that of the Citizens Conservation Corp located here. They have proved welcome neighbors and citizens, besides bring to Rowan county and vicinity better roads and preservation of forests.

The governing of a group of young men such as the CCC's are complete of must be a difficult task. These youths are from all walks of life and must adapt themselves to the camps. The government has wisely placed responsible and intelligent men at the head of these camps with desirable results.

Rowan county today has roads which possibly would not have been built for 25 years if it had not been for the CCC's. There is a blooming within our midst one of the beauty spots of the United States in the Cumberland National Forest and Park which is being cleared and preserved through this noteworthy and commendable CCC movement.

IS THERE A SANTA CLAUS?

The following interesting editorial was written many years ago by the editor of the New York Herald in answer to a query from a little girl:

"Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligent capable of grasping the whole truth and knowledge.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to our life its highest joy and joy. Alas! how dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance, to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

"Not believe in Santa Claus! You may as well not believe in fairies! You might get Papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not; but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can see or imagine all the wonderful things that are unseen and unseeable in the world.

"You may tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world, which not the strongest men that ever lived, can tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance, can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernatural beauty and glory beyond! It is all real! Ah, Virginia, in all the world there is nothing else real and abiding.

"No Santa Claus! Thank God! He lives, and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay—ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the hearts of childhood."

WHAT OTHER KENTUCKY EDITORS ARE SAYING

You Must Help Free the Toll Bridges

All Kentuckians, and especially those who live in the western counties, should heed the advice of the Kentucky Free Bridge Association and ask Governor Chandler and their senators and representatives to free Kentucky's toll bridges.

The association has been carrying on its campaign since last spring, and indications are that its efforts will bear fruit of some sort in the proposed forthcoming special session of the General Assembly.

The Governor's legislative advisory council recently made it known it has under consideration a proposal to relieve the bridge bond law, which is so to reduce the tolls, or possibly abolish them.

Such a step by the Governor and the legislature would be of immeasurable benefit to every section of the state. The western counties and cities have five of the eight interstate bridges as against three in the central part of the state, and for them we are thankful, but we believe the present toll rates too high to encourage use of them.

Reduction or outright abolishment of the bridge tolls, we believe, result in a great increase in the use of them, which would mean a greater consumption of gasoline and a consequent gain in revenues from the state gasoline tax.

Kentuckians interested in seeing the tolls cut or eliminated should get busy now and let Governor Chandler and their senators and representatives know their wishes. Ten thousand letters from western Kentucky will let Frankfort know our desires, and Frankfort will welcome them.—Paducah Sun.

That old bogey, "The cost of living," is again in the headlines. Some industries are considering plans which their wishes. The cost of living index will be used as a basis for wage increases and decreases. An advance in the index is forecast for the near future.

THE BIGGEST AND BEST IN YEARS.

THIS WEEK IN MOREHEAD

ALARM: Executives of the Morehead State Teachers College are viewing the next regular session of the legislature, which is more than a year off, with alarm.

REPRESENTATIVE: The state administration, eyeing the legislative races of next year as a possible boomerang, will start their powerful political machine the rolling within a short time.

Two groups in Rowan county who supported Governor Chandler, are attempting to find favor in the administration's eyes and draw support for the representative's race.

There seems to be no question but that the anti's, fortified with some of the best political leaders in the state, will attempt to make in-roads into the senate and house. They know that the shortest cut to demoralize and strip the administration of power is by gaining control of either house and blocking administration legislation and forcing compromise.

Your Family Coat-of-Arms

The Johnes family of County Shropshire, England, was granted the above coat of arms in 1610. Another branch of the family, who settled in County Berks, also used the same arms.

Edward Johnes sailed from Yarmouth, England, with Winthrop's fleet in 1629, and settled at Charlestown, Mass. the following year. His father also came to America several years later and settled in the same town.

Another member of the Johnes family, Sir Francis Johnes, Lord Mayor of London, in 1620.

Edward Johnes held many posts of political importance in his adopted country, and in records is described as a man of letters and several times a member of parliament.

While the spelling of this name was originally Johnes, the American descendants usually spell it Johns. Description of Arms: The upper portion of the shield shows a lion passant guard with three gold crosses and a lion rampant. Crest: A lion supporting an orb. Motto: Conquer evil with good.

James A. Diakin of Newport, chairman of the Inaugural Committee in charge of arrangements for the Kentucky Official train, announces that, for the convenience of Kentuckians who will attend the second inaugural ceremonies of Pres. Franklin D. Roosevelt on January 20, arrangements have again been made with the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway to operate special train service to Washington.

These trains will leave Covington at 8:45 p. m., and Louisville at 5:55 p. m., on Monday, January 18, consolidating at Ashland. The party will arrive in Washington at noon on Tuesday, January 19, and the train will be parked in the railroad yards so that passengers may sleep in their

Old and New Stars On Parade In Story

Cozy Theatre Features "Hollywood Boulevard" Sunday and Monday

"Hollywood Boulevard," a Paramount production featuring John Halliday, is a colorful story of the come-back of a fallen screen idol and has in it a big parade of famous names of the silent film days and current players of prominence. It will open next Sunday at the Cozy Theatre.

Halliday, who plays John Blackford, the egotistic fallen star, is supported by pretty Marsha Hunt, of the Paramount starlet staff, and young Robert Cummings who supply the love-interest; Esther Ralston is the blonde temptress; Frieda Inescort, of the New York stage, the unhappy wife, and C. Henry Gordon, the ruthless fan magazine publisher. Supporting these players of today is a host of former screen stars. There's French & Bushman, handsome star of Vitaphone days; Maurice Costello, first matinee idol of the screen; Charles Ray, who made lovable country-boy parts famous; Mae Marsh, of the famous "Birth of a Nation" cast; dashing Betty Compson, who made her first hit in "The Miracle Man"; William Desmond, among the first of the western stars; Roy Myers, Bryant Washburn, Jack Mullaney, Frank Mayo, Creighton Hale, Pat O'Malley, Jack Mower and a score of others.

LARGEST SMOKELESS FUEL PLANT BEGINS OPERATIONS
What is said to be the world's largest smokeless fuel plant has recently begun operations at Chesterfield, England, according to a report in the Commerce Department. For the time being it will process approximately 500 tons of coal per day. Four plants will be able to carbonize 1,600 tons of coal daily which will give an annual out-put of 300,000 tons of smokeless fuel.

75 Counties Enter State Spelling Bee

County Superintendents Are Mail Second Invitations In 44 School Systems

Second invitations were mailed to the superintendents of 44 county school systems, as enrollments for The Courier-Journal thirteenth annual state spelling bee pointed to an all-time record.

Copies of The Spelling Bee News, a four page tabloid of rules and suggestions for holding a match, and lithographed certificates of merit were distributed among 76 county school superintendents for use in their matches. Several systems are enrolled in the match for the first time in history.

County representatives will meet in Louisville during the Kentucky Education Association convention in April to spell for the state championship. The winner and his teacher will receive a trip to Washington for the National Spelling Bee late in May. Other spellers will share $500 in cash prizes and copies of Webster's New Ideal Dictionary. Counties to which second invitations have been sent include Hickman, Livingston, Caldwell, Hopkins, Henderson, Hancock, Butler, Logan, Simpson, Edmonson, Barren, Monroe, Meade, Nelson, Washington, Mercer, Woodford, Franklin, Owen, Carroll, Oldham, Campbell, Bracken, Mason, Robertson, Fleming, Nicholas, Bourbon, Menifee, Elliott, Lawrence, Johnson, Magoffin, Knott, Madison, Rockcastle, Pulaski, Jackson, Owsley, Clay, Leslie, Bell, Whitley.

ARGENTINA MAY BUY PLANES FOR DOCTORS
Airlines may be utilized by Argentina to transport doctors and medical supplies in territories where transportation is inadequate, according to a report to the Louisville District office of the Commerce department. A bill has just been presented in the Chamber of Deputies calling for the purchase of six planes to be used for such purposes. The sponsor of the project pointed out in introducing his bill that many residents in certain remote national territories are for considerable lengths of time without medical facilities of any type, and that proper and competent supervision is necessary to prevent among other things, the outbreak of epidemics. The solution of this particular problem, the report states, will presume that doctors using the planes which it is proposed will be purchased would periodically visit all outlying areas in an advisory capacity.

LIBELED LADY

ADAPTED BY LEBBUS MITCHELL
from the METRO GOLDWYN MAYER Picture.

Synopsis—The New York Evening Star has drawn a $5,000,000 libel suit for a story (suppressed after 50 copies of the paper had got out) and Warren Haggerty, the managing editor, called to the office just as he was starting for his wedding, hires the Star's former libel man, Bill Chandler, whom he had fired to doctor up a case against Connie Allenbury, the libeled woman, similar to the erroneous story which the paper had printed. He is to entice Connie into a seeming husband-snatching episode when Chandler's wife will bring a suit of alienation of affections. Haggerty persuades Gladys Benton the girl to whom he is engaged to marry Chandler for a few weeks, to bring the suit, and then divorce him, Chandler leaves for London an hour after the marriage.

Chapter Four
A QUICK THINKER AT SEA
A bevy of photographers and reporters swarmed about Connie Allenbury as, nearing the gang-plank at Southampton, her father was called away to settle some mix-up about their baggage. They beseeched her for photographs, for a statement about her damage suit against the New York Evening Star.

"No! No! I've nothing to say," said Connie, backing away from them and casting helpless looks about. Graham, her father's secretary, had gone with Mr. Allenbury.

"Come on, give us a break! Just one shot, Miss Allenbury," they pleaded.

"Skirt's too long, Palmer," said a photographer, the reporter standing by Connie. "How about taking a tuck in it?"

"Sure," said Palmer, and deftly lifted her skirt above her knees. She was trying to liberate her dress from Palmer's hands, when a young man rushed into the short consultation with a private detective who was making the voyage to New York as his assistant, and busied himself reading up the magazine and newspaper articles about Mr. Allenbury with which he had supplied himself. "A number of them had to do with fishing, for angling was Allenbury's one passion."

"Half an hour," he answered a knock at the door to find Graham standing there.

"Mr. Allenbury's compliments and will Mr. Chandler join him for cocktails before dinner?"

"Allenbury" said Chandler as though the name were new to him.

"Mr. J. B. Allenbury. The young lady you rescued from those reporters is Mr. Allenbury's daughter."

"Oh, that was nothing, but I'll be delighted to have cocktails with Mr. Allenbury."

"At 7:30—the grill room bar." When Graham had departed, Chandler rang for the steward and asked him to bring to his room all the books on angling in the ship's library, and put in the time familiarizing himself with the fisherman's lingo.

He dressed carefully for dinner before going to the grill room. There he found Graham who looked up from checking a mass of letters, cables and radiograms.

"Just a minute," said Bill, apparently the young lady doesn't wish to be photographed."

Some dropped his bag and faced Palmer coolly.

"Just a minute! Apparently the young lady doesn't wish to be photographed."

He clipped the reporter on the jaw, sending him sprawling, tripping a photographer who approached him, and held the others back until Connie, escaping towards the gangplank, was joined by her father and his secretary.

"This is an outrage!" asserted Mr. Allenbury to a ship's official. "You should have guards."

In the confusion, the man who had been to Connie's aid, had picked up his bag and walked quickly up the gangplank.

"I am deeply regretful, Miss Allenbury," said the official. "Are you all right?"

"Oh yes—quite."

"Where did the young man go?" inquired her father. "We must thank him."

One of the reporters burst into loud speech, addressing his fellow newspaper man. "We'll fix that guy, all right! That was William Chandler, the author. We'll show him he can't push the press around!"

"Remember that name," said Mr. Allenbury to his secretary as they started for the gang-plank.

Palmer, the man who had been knocked down, went up to the man who had named Chandler, "If I'd known Chandler was going to clip me like that, I'd have charged him fifty bucks instead of twenty!"

With such an introduction to Connie Allenbury, Chandler went to his cabin, after any response to the skillful introduction of his hobby, his eyes still turned away. Bill followed the direction of his gaze and saw Connie Allenbury, beautiful in a pure white dinner gown, coming towards them.

"Mr. Chandler, who saved your life! My daughter, Mr. Chandler." "Oh, yes, indeed," said Connie barely glancing at him as she slid into a seat beside her father.

"Thanks so much. Oh, father, guess who's with us? Mrs. Van Arsdale and that dreadful daughter! We eluded them all over Europe and here they are on the same boat!"

"We're in for it," replied her father resignedly. "They'll be asking us to dinner."

"They'll have to find us first!" responded Connie. "I've been ducking them all day." She turned to Chandler vaguely. "Are you having fun, Mr.?"

"Chandler, I'm simply in stitches." "How lovely. Father, did you cable about my plane?"

"No, I'm chartering one. Leave it in storage."

"Tell Graham to send a radiogram. I'm dying to feel the radio in my hands again. Do you fly, Mr.?"

"Chandler, I crossed with Lindbergh a couple of times. But flying is really my sport."

Graham arrived to tell his employer it was 7:30 and Allenbury and his daughter, arose to leave and nothing at all had happened, when Babs Van Arsdale, a buxom blonde, and her thin mother bore delightedly down upon them.

"Thanks for joining us," said Mr. Allenbury, offering Chandler a hand. "Nice to have seen you. If we ever need help again I hope you are around."

Babs Van Arsdale came gushing forward. "Hello, Connie. We've been looking all over the boat for you!"

"My dear, it's so nice to see you again!" gushed her mother. "I missed you in London. Bert will be so pleased we are crossing together. And you're joining me for dinner. I won't take no!"

"We'd love to, but—" said Mr. Allenbury seeking an excuse. "Bill, who had been a few steps away and had not even been noticed, stepped forward."

"Sorry, if I'm late, J. B. I had to get an important wire off."

"High! What!" said the bewildered great man.

"Shall we go on to dinner now?" "Oh, yes, of course," said Connie, after a moment, having got the drift of his remark. "Sorry, but we're having dinner with Mr. Chalmers. She introduced Babs and her mother negligently."

"Excuse me a moment, won't you? It was Mulvaney, Graham. Gates has asked for a postponement, but I instructed them to go ahead. Cable Archibald. Anything important in those messages?"

"The bank, partridge, Dr. McKenzie. And Jennings—shall he meet you in Washington?"

"No, he'd better come to New York and sit down with me. Be sure the plane's ready."

"It's ordered for noon." With a nod Allenbury dismissed his secretary and turned his attention to Chandler.

"Now, young man, I want to thank you for your kindness this morning, both for myself and my daughter. I'm sorry she couldn't be with us, but some friends on the boat..." He broke off as the steward brought cocktails. "Quick thought on your part. I trust you're none the worse..."

"Not at all," interjected Chandler. "In fact, I enjoyed it! Newspapers and I aren't the best of friends. Once in Chicago, I sent a reporter to the hospital, personal questions. My publishers never forgave me."

"Publishers?" said Allenbury, his eyes wandering vaguely.

"I'm a writer," explained Chandler quickly. "Right now I'm doing some fishing yarns."

"Really?" said his host, without

"Can't we all have dinner together?" asked Babs, gazing at Chandler.

"They're going to talk business," said Connie quickly. "Yes, you see, I'm a writer and Mr. Allenbury and I are doing a book together," explained Bill.

"But too lovely!" exclaimed Mrs. Van Arsdale. "You must tell me about it tomorrow. I'm always up for lunch!" She and her daughter, reluctantly, passed on, and Mr. Allenbury, not very enthusiastically, said:

"That was quick thinking. We're indebted to you again."

Connie gave Chandler a look that was none to friendly, but said sweetly: "Well, shall we keep our dinner engagement?"

Bill bowed formally and offered him arm. She barely touched it as the three started for the dining room.

Arnzen and Carter Van Eagles In Win

Morehead's two high-scoring ace moved into top honors Wednesday evening as the Eagles rolled over Morris-Harvey College of Charleston, W. Va., 54 to 37. It was a Morris-Harvey game that did not appear to be organized and scored spasmodically that still carried enough power to win easily.

Stanley Arnzen, of Newport, and Lawrence Carter who comes from Hazlen led the point-making attack that brought the Teachers' second victory. Arnzen accounted for 20 points, most of them by breaking away from the man for a long pass under the basket. Carter used his pet shot, which has never been successfully halted, for 17 points.

Coch Ellis Johnson used 12 men in achieving the victory. The Morehead varsity had moved into a 23-7 lead when he beat the second stringers in five minutes of the first half left. Those five baskets were his. Morehead's ace, the West Virginians scored nine points on four field goals and a free throw while the Eagle seconds were accounting for two points to make the count 24-17 at the intermission.

Morris-Harvey showed its best form at the start of the first half, playing the Kentuckians first team even during the first four minutes. With the count reading 34-26 the winners started turning on and rapidly increased the lead. A West Virginia spurt near the end narrowed the Morehead victory margin.

The visitors excelled in one department—that was on long shots. Of the 14 field goals that Morris-Harvey made nine were on tosses from outside the foul circle. Pender, Morris-Harvey forward was not far behind the scoring pace set by the two Morehead leaders. Adeptness at hitting long baskets netted him four field goals, which combined with two free tosses, gave him a total of 14. Cottrill, visiting center made 8.

The worry that Cox Johnson has had over his guards was partially erased as Red Smith came through in something like his old-time form, but Buck Horton was farther off than he was against Holbrook. Mr. Sterling's other contribution to the Morehead club—Ismael—was not anywhere near his best, missing 11 shots, many of them set-ups, and finally connecting for one field basket.

Cassidy, substitute guard, came through in far better style than expected, and gave indications that he will have to be contended with for a first team berth.

Morehead won without exertion, but the team appeared to be considerably disorganized at times bearing out Ellis Johnson's pretensions that something is missing that will have to be repaired before the Teachers start tackling conference competition. Morehead broke away from a four point lead on two deceptive baskets from Carter's fingers. Starrett and Cottrill combined a field goal and foul point to make it 4-3. Carter and Arnzen each

SPORT SPOTS

You'd think a basketball coach and his supporters would be satisfied with 110 points in two games! Such is not the case at the Morehead State Teachers College, where the Eagle netters are preparing themselves for strenuous K.I.A.C. competition and a chance at the state title.

Ellis Johnson is very much perturbed over this basketball situation, although his team has won its two games handsly. The phrase "considering the competition" has entered very much in Coach Johnson's vocabulary. True, the opposition has not been tough, and the Morehead players should have and did have little difficulty in going through the defense set up by Holbrook and Morris-Harvey with the greatest of ease—at times.

Here's what's wrong with the Morehead team, as seen by your writer and the coaching staff—high school careers. They still like to shoot, which is not a bad thing. But—they're missing badly. The percentage of shots that the Eagles have made is far below average.

The Eagles have five high scoring players. They are all used to making plenty of points in their Substitutes—Morehead, Reynolds. Sandy Hook—Duvall. Referee—Riddle.

Lawrence Carter is setting the scoring pace with 35 closely followed by Arnzen who has 33. Carter should have accounted for about as many points as he desired "considering the opposition." However, it is an established fact that Carter does his best basket-making when the guarding is close—when they are hanging close to his belt—to speak. Carter will undoubtedly come through for high honors in state scoring circles this season.

Arnzen has played perhaps the best ball of any member of the club. He is fast and has been using that fitness to get away from his man, take the pass and drop it through for two points. Arnzen will undoubtedly run into guards who are much faster and smarter than those that opposed him in the two opening games, but Coach Johnson likewise has little worries with Arnzen—except Arnzen has not played the best team-work in the world.

Mr. Sterling's contribution to Morehead's team—Ismael and Horton—have been far off form. They have not only missed the basket consistently, but have not come through with as good a defensive performance as they should. Red Smith, regular guard, did turn in some fairly good rebound work in the Morris-Harvey scrap, but his playing has likewise been below normal.

Ed Kiser doesn't look as good as he should. Cassidy, a substitute, has brought a lot of light to the crafty eyes of the coaching staff, for he has shown more than expected.

Morehead is not an organized club. They miss numerous passes. They pass scoring opportunities by with abandon and apparent carelessness.

Yet, they made 110 points in two games. The reason—by spurts Morehead rained the baskets in. They broke so fast that the opposition didn't realize that a dangerous scoring thrust was on until the ball had gone through the hoop. Then they stopped to allow the other side to make a few.

To many fans the team looked good. To those who really know basketball—who don't look altogether at the points but the future possibilities, the Eagles were not the team expected.

But—the prospects and possibilities are there. Morehead fans are not crossing their fingers and hoping, for they know that Ellis Johnson will get everything he can out of the club.

one of the most feared in the Commonwealth.

Ewing Tops Breck High By 31 to 12

Coach Bobby Laughlin could not find a combination that would click Thursday and the Breckridge Training school went down under a barrage of Ewing High baskets by 31-12. The size of the score was surprising.

Helphingstine who scored 12 points led the Ewing team. Tatum made five for Breck high-point honors. Ewing used a good offense as the best defense and the Morehead club was never able to get started.

The lineup:

(31) Ewing Tatum, 5. (12) Breck B. Fraley, 2. F. 10. Helphingstine Allen, 2. C. 3. Durnell Pritchard, 2. G. 6. Dorsey Crosthwaite, G. 5. Dorjan Substitutes: Breck—Jackson, Brown, Caudill. Ewing—Granma, Stockdale 4. Referee—Riddle.

Vikings Win From Sandy Hook 16-13

Morehead Team Builds Up First Half Lead To Take Fourth Victory In Row

Morehead High school changed tactics some Saturday evening in a basketball game at Sandy Hook. Heretofore the Vikings, who have lost but one game in five have surged at the end for the victories.

Saturday, Morehead built up a substantial first half advantage, didn't do much scoring, but held off Sandy Hook's offense sufficiently to take a 16-13 victory. The Vikings jumped into a 5-2 first quarter lead, made it 14-4 at the half and then scored a free throw in the third and fourth quarters.

Obviously neither team showed much because they were both playing a tight defensive battle. Oddly, 14 of Morehead's 16 points were made by two men, Lloyd Brown accounted for eight and Hayes six. Butcher and Wilson tossed in a foul apiece.

Sandy Hook did not score a field goal during the first half. Their record account for four of the two-point variety in the last half. D. Conn made five points to van the losers. R. Patrick, Sandy Hook guard, went out on personals.

The lineup: Morehead (16) Pos. (13) B. Hook Butcher, 1. F. 3. D. Hunter Tackett, F. 2. Patrick Hayes, 6. C. 2. Oliver E. Brown, 8. G. 5. Conn Wilson, 1. G. 5. Crisp

A smooth playing machine that can get a lead and knows how to protect it—that is what Morehead ought to be before the season is over, and if you take it from a Morehead fan who knows and appreciates what Ellis Johnson and Len Miller have brought to this mountain school, that is what they will be for Morehead has the men that can weed the flaws out and develop a club that will be
