Farm Weather Service Group Formed

An executive committee was named in a recent meeting in Frankfort to direct the work of a state group working toward agricultural weather service for Kentucky.

An agricultural weather service, State Agriculture Commissioner, Wendell P. Butler said, would make available up-to-date and detailed weather forecasts for every section of Kentucky. Tailored to current farm operations and including rainfall probability forecasts, these reports would be expressed in terms best understood by farmers.

Butler said that the executive committee includes Doyle Cook, agricultural meteorologist in the U. S. Weather Bureau at Louisville; A. B. Eiam, Jr., Weather Bureau state climatologist at Lexington; George Ferrell, Kentucky Livestock and Crop Reporting Service, Louisville; and Mancel J. Vinson, assistant agriculture commissioner, Frankfort.

Cook told those at the meeting here that weather problems in the caring of hantley tobacco alone cost Kentucky farmers an estimated $31 million a year.

Weather forecasts geared to farm operations would provide many other benefits such as things as planting, hay cutting, insecticide application, and winter transportation.

Such a weather service now is operating in parts of 18 other states. An appropriation of $184,200 for a Kentucky system was knocked out of the 1964-65 budget by a Congressional conference committee, Dr. Terrell L. Nuffinger said.

Nuffinger, a native of Muhlenberg County, now heads the U. S. Weather Bureau's Agriculture and Forestry Section in Washington. He said that appropriations for a Kentucky program will be requested in the fiscal 1966 budget.

State cost in the project was estimated at a maximum of $2,000 a year by agricultural leaders at the meeting. About 20 observation stations in the state would be manned part-time by unpaid persons. They would telephone observations to a forecasting station at Federal expense.

The Federal Government also would pay for leased telephone lines and newspapers and radio and television stations that subscribe would pay for machine rental at about $50 a month. Teletypewriters at these media would receive the information.

Cook is to explain the program to the Kentucky Broadcasters Association October 20 and to Governor Edward T. Breathitt's Agricultural Development Commission later. The state committee also publish an explanatory leaflet in its effort to get full support from Kentucky farmers for the Federal appropriation. Other promotional activities will be planned and conducted by the executive committee.

Named to the state committee were Cook and D. K. Anderson of the Louisville Weather Bureau; Ferrell, of the Reporting Service; Paul Everman, information director from the Kentucky Farm Bureau; Marshall Barrett, Kentucky and Feed Grain Association; and Tommy Marshall, Kyana Milk Producers Association, all of Louisville.

Dr. S. C. Bohanan, University of Kentucky Extension Service, Frankfort; Paul E. Stover, Jr., Burley Growers Advisory Council; W. L. Staton, Burley Tobacco Association; W. W. McGill, president of the Kentucky State Horticultural Society; Eiam, Weather Bureau climatologist; and Dr. Guy Insko,

Rains Bring Fire Status To Normal

Recent rains have brought fire conditions from a high point back to normal, but Kentucky's official fall fire season still begins Oct. 1.

State Natural Resources Commissioner D. M. Matlock said more than an inch of rain in Western and Southeastern Kentucky and a little under an inch in Eastern Kentucky had reduced the fire "burn-up index" from nearly 100 to almost zero.

"It would take either a heavy frost or continual sunshine from now until about October 4 to wipe out the help brought by the rain," he said.

Matlock said some of the observers in key fire towers, sent to their posts around the middle of September -- a month ahead of schedule -- are still maintaining their watch, but several have been brought back down.

"We will probably be able now to wait until Oct. 15, the normal starting date, to fill the rest of the towers," he added.

State Forestry Director Gene Butcher pointed out that several regulations in the Kentucky statutes are in force during the official fire season from October 1 through December.

The regulations prohibit setting fires near woodland or brushland during the fire season except between the hours of 4:30 p.m. and midnight or when the land is covered by snow. Setting any fires without taking proper precautions to prevent their spread is also prohibited.

New Kitchen Needs Advance Thought

If you're remodeling a new kitchen or building the one you already have, Mrs. Nancy Licker, "University of Kentucky Extension housing specialist," suggests that you learn these ABC's of kitchen planning.

A good kitchen is the result of good planning before you start to build or remodel.

Buying major appliances is expensive, so examine several makes and models before you decide.

Check your plans with your county Extension home demonstration agent. She can give you many helpful suggestions.

Don't try to cut costs with cheap floor coverings; use the best material you can afford. It will pay off in comfort, appearance and durability.

Each item should be placed as near as possible to the store it is first used. Keep this in mind when planning storage space.

Find extra storage space in your cabinets by using step-shelves.

Good lighting is important in the kitchen.

Have a lighting fixture over the sink and include under-cabinet lighting in your plans.

Include a cheerful view from your kitchen window in your plans.

Just a few electrical outlets is never enough in the kitchen; decide on where and how many outlets are needed when making your kitchen plans.

Kitchen doors should take traffic lanes out of the working triangle (the three major work centers -- food preparation, cooking and clean-up).

Include a cheerful view from your kitchen window in your plans.

Lighting fixtures that pull down are convenient and efficient in the dining area of a kitchen.

Measure between your three work centers -- the total should not be more than 22 feet.

Other representatives are to be named from the Kentucky Agricultural Council, the State Association of Farm Managers, the West Kentucky Tobacco Association, the Kentucky Tobacco Growers Association, the Kentucky Artificial Breeders Association, the Association of Soil Conservation Districts, and the Kentucky Bankers Association.

ing needs.

Rubber mats insulate and other noise reducers will contribute to a quieter, more pleasant kitchen.

Slid-down work areas, when possible, will save you energy when doing chores.

Thirty-six inches of counter space -- at least -- should be allowed next to your refrigerator.

Use the University of Kentucky bulletin "Arranging My Kitchen" Misc. 309 to gain kitchen planning know-how.

Ventilate your kitchen by using a ventilating fan or hood.

Within easy reach is the place for your shelves; reaching causes strain and fatigue.

X marks the spot on your kitchen plans for a business center -- don't forget to include it.

Your heavy utensils should be stored where little lifting will be necessary.

Zero degrees in your new refrigerator freezer will give you fast freezing of foods and added kitchen convenience.

Red Cross Activity Detailed

The Rowan County chapter of the American Red Cross continued its traditional role of service to the community in 1963-64 by:

- * contracting 122 service visits to five local families who lost everything in home fires;
- * furnishing personal belongings to five local families who lost everything in home fires;
- * training instructors in first aid and home nursing, both at Morehead State College and in other Rowan County locations;
- * continuing operation of the blood program through which most of the community's blood needs are met.

The local chapter, a United Fund agency, supports a and supplements activities that effect the health, welfare and recreation and morale of service personnel and their families.

Although no major disasters occurred in this section, the local chapter provided assistance in other regions, including the Alaskan earthquake and during floods and fires.

Graduates of the water safety, first aid and home nursing courses are now giving instruction in these fields throughout the county as adjuncts of their occupations.

A total of more than 300 pints of blood was used by Rowan County residents during the past year under the Red Cross program. Some 175 pints were used at St. Luke's Medical Center, while 125 pints were used in other hospitals by local residents.

This blood is "deposited" as a part of the Red Cross program and on call when needed by Rowan Countyans.

The Rowan County chapter pays for visits of the mobile blood collection unit here to collect the blood, through which Rowan County remains active in the plan.

ON REAPPORTIONMENT

New heat was added to the smoldering controversy that has tied up Congress by a drive for a constitutional amendment to block reapportionment of state legislatures. This effort as an amendment that would wipe out the Supreme Court's recent ruling that both houses of state legislatures must be apportioned on basis of population, was to cause further delay.

This love-struck young woman dropped the day's mail along with the daily receipts into our Night Depository. But then, what safer place for anything of value than the Night Depository? Use it to safeguard your cash and currency at the end of your business day.

Safety Code Will Cover Woodworking

The first safety code covering woodworking operations in Kentucky has been adopted by the State Industrial Safety Board headed by State Labor Commissioner Carl C. Galt.

Leonard Dunham, head of the Labor Department's Safety Division, said woodworking is the largest single industry in Kentucky in terms of the number of establishments. He added that the code will cover about 17 percent of cases reported to the Workmen's Compensation Board.

He said the new code will apply to furniture manufacturers, wood storage and barrel making establishments, and cabinet manufacturers among others.

Another comprehensive safety code covering construction hazards is being prepared.

Referendum Suggested On Water

Your Section 1 issue states that Morehead's water supply has been officially certified as "provisional" and that it is so inadequate as to require continuous rationing in the near future.

With rapid expansion of both city and college population and the fact that your coverage indicates that only a rapid solution of the water problem can prevent a dangerous crisis. It is obvious that the whole question is being aggravated by the controversy which now only divides our citizens but also substantially delays getting started on any solution.

Usually, the elements of time and expense are the most fundamental in any civic undertaking. On these elements, The Morehead News has published the following approximate views:

Morehead State College is capable of providing three times the present quantity of pure water within twelve months.

As quoted a Councilman as saying that getting water from the Licking River would take "at least three years and that is a conservative estimate."

The College can be pressurized to provide ample water at 30¢ per 1,000 gallons instead of the present 21¢. (At the present rate, Morehead's 1963 water bill would have been about $41,500 instead of the actual $29,000.) You calculate the annual interest charge on the Licking River project as $50,000-$70,000, exclusive of operating and maintenance costs and, of course, reduction of principal, and always provided that the cost does not rise above the presently estimated $1,500,000. You can imply doubts that Federal money would be forthcoming to help with the project.

It is hard to believe that our Mayor and his Council decided on a slower and apparently more expensive solution to the water problem without sound reasons. There must be other elements in this decision which have not been given as thorough publicity as the opposition viewpoint you so ably represent. It would seem to be for the Council's viewpoint to be systematically set forth in print so that Morehead citizens can compare the worth of the two views.

With the public thus informed on both sides of the question, theonus of the decision might be lifted from the shoulders of our city fathers and placed in the hands of the citizens by means of a referendum. This democratic process would not only furnish the definite mandate now lacking but would also place the responsibility in the hands of the people where it ultimately belongs.

Ned Brethitt Sports Center Is Another MSC Progress Step

Saturday will be another memorable day for Morehead as administration of growth and progress at Morehead State College.

The new athletic center will be played at the new 50,000-seat Ned Brethitt Sports Center - a far cry from outdoor and out-of-town Jayne Memorial Stadium.

Many of us downtown building expert who watched construction on the sports arena with pride had apprehensions that it would not be completed for the opening football game Oct. 3 against the powerful Tennessee Tech. College authorities, and the same contractors were adamant that Saturday's game would be played in what we used to know as Charlie Robinson's parking lot.

They were right, although some facilities are not complete. The shower and dressing rooms, under the stadium office, etc. About a month ago the contractor told us his program (work was having the playing field ready with good footing and object was to have the stadium every blade of grass through the project) would be completed in about 10 days. It is now 10 days past the deadline, and many football fans in Kentucky today, try to see the stadium.

The 50,000 seats remind us that 10 years ago when the Fairgrounds was under construction some critics and cynics said it 50,000 seats were too many and would never be filled. Well, the student body at MSC is almost that big and we will have outgrown the stadium arena in two, or three, more years.

We can anticipate 10,000 for Saturday's game, although it is a 10,000 Ohio Valley Conference test. The undefeated Eagles have come a long way in football and probably have one of their best teams in years but, it takes time in a community, and area, with as small a population as ours, to attract 10,000.

Let us get the record straight on the floor, or five, football games to be played each fall represent only a small part of the sports activity planned for the sports center. Almost all other down activities will be transferred to the 10-acre spot where we used to park apples, including tennis and basketball.

We had a number of inquiries about plans of the MSC President and Board of Regents for use of the land at Jayne Stadium which will be torn down. After examining the 10-year master plan released about two years ago, and printed in supplement form in this newspaper, we conjecture that two 12-story dormitories might also occupy this valuable plot at College Boulevard and East Main (U.S. 60).

Many of the spectators at Saturday's Morehead-Tech knock-tennis and dog-eat-dog football game also attended matches played in Morehead's first football game when the playing field ran east-west along U.S. 60 and spectators stood along the side. We believe that was in 1952 or 1953. They also witnessed the first game at Jayne Stadium. We thought Jayne Stadium was really something back in those depressive days when you could buy a good parking lot in Morehead for $50 or $100.

See page 10 Saturday at the Ned Brethitt Sports Arena. We'll predict the outcome of the game except that some controversy our district has the time of death. Of course, these bloom and dog-eat-dog over-overs that our betting average, under the Kentucky Derby, is about 90 percent correct and we put it down in print which can't be erased while them out are gone with the wind.

Their Predictions About Work

We have, in our files, a two-year-old forecast of MSC officials on projected enrollment through 1970.

They predicted a 13 percent increase this fall over the same time (second semester) of 1962.

Figures last Monday show registrations have hit 2,800. This is a 15 percent increase. Which is more accurate forecasting than the weatherman's come to earth. It would probably have hit the 15 percent with more accuracy.

Back in the early '60s this country publisher was in charge of the President's always contained - nearly forgotten - other. Comptroller Bill Hogan recalled in a conversation the other day. "At that time, we were one of the '10 clover students'."

The President always contained - nearly forgotten - other. Comptroller Bill Hogan recalled in a conversation the other day. "At that time, we were one of the '10 clover students'."

While St. Louis could capture all the marbles.

Work Is Being Speeded

For the past two years we have intermittently written perhaps complained, that the State of Ohio is making work on U.S. 60 from Huntington to Cincinnati. This highway is in direct competition for industry, tourism etc. with Interstate 45 which passes near Morehead.

Although I-64 is being built into nine-for-one money and Ohio's U.S. 60 is probably 50-50 matching funds, it is now evident that the road has been abandoned for some time.

Further, the State of Ohio is not pursuing this highway near Morehead. They're pumping sand and silt from the Ohio River into the river (expensive) operation.

The new U.S. 60 route - the river almost all the way and runs already going up towards "The Scenic Route". And, we wonder that it is the beautiful Ohio state high dams were put in operation. The water is no longer muddy, and is held at an even, and higher, level, except in case of floods.

It is obvious that the State of Ohio is not only seeking industry for this almost 100 mile stretch, but also permeate tourists to leave I-64 at Huntington in favor of the path.

JABOO - One book we won't read - that being compiled by a gossip writer for Marina Oswald. The reports are in a history will be read that the human born wife of Lee Harvey Oswald was a naive, wife and a Jew. It is our thinking, after reading a volume of the Warren report, that she indirectly contributed to the assassination of President Kennedy.

Conservation Congress To Hear TV Actor

Robert Bray, new master of laws in the U.S. television series, will be a featured speaker at the fourth annual Conservation Congress at the Kentucky Hotel, Louisville, Oct. 15-16.

Bray, who plays a U.S. forest ranger in the program, will speak at the Awards Banquet on Oct. 15 at 7 p.m.

J. O. Madlock, State Natural Resources Commissioner and chairman of the natural resource development committee, which sponsors the Congress, said Bray's television role and real-life background make him an excellent choice to address the Congress participants - many of whom will be vying interested in forestry.

Bray was born on Forest Ranger ranch in Montana and grew up in the Western region. He is presently lives at a site in the San Bernardino National Forest in California and has been working with forest ranger between his film and television roles.

The first full news story in the Forest Ranger format began Sept. 17 and will continue for the 1964-65 season. Filming of the program will take place primarily on the 186 million acres of National Forest land. Nearly 1,000 people are expected to attend the two-day Congress, which is open to the public. Madlock said, and many other well-known speakers will be present.

Gov. Edward T. Breathitt will address the first day's luncheon and will introduce Bray at the banquet.

The college had a rule for sanitation reasons, against stocking the food or cooking (on a hot plate) in dormitory rooms. Henry Hahn, our secretary, was one of the violators, who spent his time in the kitchen, who was not to overlook this violation, because dormitory food caches came from the AdP Store, and operated by the late Tyler Tabor Holbrook who was a college dropout for most students went home (many hard-earned) over the weekend and came back with clean laundries and a basket of food that mother prepared.

The Road Is Alive

An advisor who is paid-up (we checked) subscriber says he's "kissed it dead". He joyfully confides that every body else, who spends their spare time writing for the Cincinnati newspaper, thought the same thing with the Road 7-12. Games behind and less than 15 games to play.

The miracle game - as this is written Tuesday the Reds are in first place in the Phillies led the biggest score since in all base-ball history, Benjamin Franklin's bones probably rattled in cemetery.

Sunday's final game with Philadelphia at Cincinnati could decide the pennant.

A salesman said he stopped in Philadelphia over the weekend and all he could see was beer and soda. Things are so mounded in that town. They immediately stopped over on additional seats and the management has over 50,000 applications, with the rest for World Series tickets. However, we hasten to append that in today's, the Phillies still have a dying quail chance.

COLLEGE IS GENERALLY GOOD NEWS - The publisher has everything was serene and orderly except for the stadium that the Morehead Tech, has a desirable rooming place. These birds are known because it is warmer with the streets and sidewalks greening off heat during the cool nights - the solid building-Kentucky's biggest news. One Man Saturday will go down as perhaps the biggest news of the year in the Bluegrass State. Kentucky's Western bid the dust on the same day the Ohio Valley Conference championship seems to be wide open with only Eastern appearances. Get Bob Martin in chewing his finger nails - we'd like to have a telephone call with conversation with Coach Roy Kidd, who used to be an assistant at Morehead. It may surprise you to know that the most modern race track in Kentucky is not Kentucky's Churchill Downs - it's Latonia. Population of Lawrence Heights, Morehead's new low cost housing center, has been increased by one, a new born Morehead film area can be cleared for a new development, but there is some question whether the regional PHA office at Atlanta will approve because it's in the flood zone. Another view about the U.S. Corps of Engineers and that Congress is securing funds for this flood control project at that Congress appropriated only 50 million more and hundreds of communities, in California and has been working with applications on file for 10 or 20 years - give generously to the United Fund, if you wish to eliminate all other charity drives and also have a pointer right here at home.

Morgan County Camp Gets Clock Funds

Recreation equipment will be purchased for Kentucky's newest boys' camp at Woodend in Morgan County with costs taken from the Floral Clock fund.

Mrs. Robert Callen, Frankfort, custodian of the clock fund, has reported that $200 from the clock fund is being presented to the State Department of Child Welfare for use at the new camp.

Mrs. Callen said that costs taken from the clock pool since its delivery to the new camp ago totaled $5,000 by mid-September. The funds have been distributed to State child-care institutions and used for a college scholarship provided annually by the Garden Club of Kentucky, Inc., which sponsors the clock.

PERCENTAGE

There is very little competition in the labor in the crop section and the other crops on the farm. If there is enough interest the company will send a representative here to talk to owners in the very near future.

Final Accounting Show United Fund Raised 55 Percent Of Goal; New Quota $15,246

A complete accounting of funds received in the 1963 Morehead-Rowan County United fund drive was released this week by Russell Jackson, treasurer of the organization. Pointing out that of the suggested goal of $13,997, only about 55 percent was raised, officials of the group said that United Fund in Morehead and Rowan County will raise or fall on the results of this year's campaign, which seeks a greater total than was asked in 1963. Inclusion of Health Services and Hospital Charity Services in this year's total has raised the amount for which United Fund will have to raise $15,246. "Another failure to reach our goal," an official United Fund statement said, "will mean that (participating) agencies will not join the drive another year and they will make plans to conduct individual efforts in the community. It means that at least 11 agencies will be spacing their requests for aid during the year."

PHS Team Begins Examinations In Schools Monday

Monday marks the beginning of Rowan County's three-day multiple-screening program for all first grade children. These physical and dental examinations will be performed in the Rowan County Health Department in Morehead by a public health team of physicians, dentists, nurses, and laboratory technicians. Local Health Department workers and local volunteer workers will assist with the screening procedures. Each child to be examined must be accompanied by one parent. About three hours will be required for each child to complete the screening tests. Parents should arrange to bring lunches for themselves and their child since the screening tests will continue during the lunch hour. Milk and fruit drinks are being donated for this occasion by the Johnson and the Spring Grove Dairies.

At the completion of the examinations of each child, the public health nurse will go over the results with the parent and will make a referral to the family physician. There will be no charge for these examinations.

Why folks want to sing in the bathtub!

The simple answer is because they're happy. And they should be! What's more relaxing after a hard day's work than a long, warm soaking in the bathtub. In a few minutes, you feel like a new man (or woman)! This is only one of the big advantages of having a modern, electric water heater and water system. You'll find that many of your household chores are so much easier... and require a lot less time... when you have all the hot water you want... when you need it. An electric water heater and system is inexpensive yet it means so much to your family's comfort and happiness.

Charter Review Group Begins Tying Up Recommendations

Tentative recommendations by a committee and sub-committees of the Kentucky Constitution Revision Assembly were tied together in a comprehensive progress report at the fourth meeting in Frankfort.

The meeting of the next assembly will be in the State senate chamber at 10 a.m., November 19.

Chairman Earl C. Clements said in an eight-page report that the committee and sub-committees had taken "some action" on 152 of the 174 recommendations of the 75-year-old constitution to revise and modernize it.

Clements emphasized and reiterated throughout the report that all the recommendations by all the committees were only tentative and "subject to further review and change." He reminded delegates they already had voted not to act on recommendations until they finally had been tied together in the proposed new document.

The purpose of a Constitution, Clements said, "should be to limit reasonably and fix the outer boundaries of the legislative body and the other coordinate branches of our government, but not to legislate in detail and spell out by words of circumscription the procedures of government."

"It behooves us," he declared, "to improve our present Constitution and not to fall into previous error by becoming mired down in a stream of legislative words...let us be cautious and watchful and exercise restraint if we are tempted to sit as legislators in the upholstery of our most far-reaching law."

Clements noted that "while many people think we have taken a long time, the assembly held its first meeting in February—"a hastily signed document will get no approval at the polls." He added that when the draft of a new, revised constitution finally is put to a vote of the people he believed it would be the finest ever offered.

Among tentative recommendations made by the general committee are the restriction of removal of the restriction of the election of local officials at the same time commission are elected. Lengthen the terms of State senators to six years and State representatives to four years. Require the General Assembly to convene in March instead of January after election of a new governor.

Authorize the General Assembly by a two-thirds vote to extend its present 60-day session an additional 30 days.

That the governor, lieutenant governor, and other elected officials may succeed themselves for one-term.

That the governor and lieutenant governor not vacate their offices when they are absent from the state.

That only the governor, the lieutenant-governor, attorney general and auditor be required to file elections.

Creation of an intermediate court of appeals and of district courts to handle the present load of cases below circuit courts.

Require all judges to be lawyers who would run for office on a non-partisan ballot.

Change the process of revising the Constitution by allowing the people to vote on as many as five amendments at one time.

"I reiterate so there may be no misunderstanding," Clements said at this point. "These tentative proposals are not final and are subject to reconsideration."

"In our work," he said, "it must not be overlooked that perhaps the most important continuation of our date and in the process liberalize the manner of its future revision, we will indeed have accomplished much."

Between now and the next meeting of the full assembly there will be a number of committee and sub-committee meetings. One is a meeting here at 10 a.m., Oct. 12 of the coordinating committee to take up the questions of public hearings and the appointment of groups to review committee recommendations before they are reported to the assembly.

Welcome Rain Relieves Fire Threat Locally

By Joe J. Mauk

We of the Forest Service here on the Morehead District of Cumberland National Forest welcomed the slow steady rain which began Sunday. As a result we can turn our attention from fire control work to timber management and other resource work. Speaking of fire control work we received word at home Sunday that our son Jerry, of whom many of you have heard, was released last Wednesday from the Stanislaus National Forest in east central California, where he is employed as a forester, to help with control work on the large fire which is the Lost Padres National Forest near Barbara, Calif. which has been in the news the last ten days or so.

Starting today, Tuesday, we are conducting training foresters, who are here to attend a three-day tree and grading training school. During the training session the men will be instructed in ways and means of grading sawlogs in the standing tree. Research has determined from previous checks of loss after grading, which were run through the sawmill and cut into boards, the percentage of select, No. 1, 2, or 3 grade, etc., that will be lost out. This type of information is useful in determining the appraisal price which the government should receive for timber from national forest timber sales.

Those attending the session from other places are: Stanton District - Daniel Kierman and Marvin Brunson; Berea District - Robert Brooks and Burton Floyd; Donon District - Alan Henson and Donald O'Brien; Somerset District - Joseph Hedrick and Richard Pellis; Stearns District - Robert Wilson and Earl Vaughn; Williamsburg District - Donald Inks and Howard Lent and Al Lawson of the 64th Division of Forestry here in Morehead. In addition to the visiting foresters, Ranger Bob Reynolds, Foresters Ronald Hevener and Roger Buckley and Forestry Aid Earl Leach of this district are in attendance.

Forester Maurice Pease of the Forest Supervisor's office in Winchester and Robert Van Alken of the Regional Office in Upper Darby, Penna., are conducting the session with assistance from the Morehead District personnel.

Filing Delay Causes Loss Of $5 Money

By Joe J. Mauk

Delay in filing a disability claim under the Social Security program can cause loss of benefit payments. Thomas E. Thompson, social security manager in Ashland, said today.

Many people with serious illness of injuries fail to inquire about disability benefits because they rely on information from friends and neighbors which may be incorrect or out of date, or think their condition is "serious enough" will improve. These people risk possible loss of their Social Security benefits.

Thompson suggested that people who have impairments that keep them from working should check with their Social Security office within four months from the date they had to stop working. This will help speed up any claim for benefits and mean a prompt payment of the first check. He stressed that under no circumstances should a disabled person wait more than 18 months before inquiring. There is a six-month waiting period before benefits can be paid. But back benefits can be paid for only 12 months. So, after 18 months, people will be losing money," Thompson said.

For more information about the Social Security disability program, Thompson suggested that people get in touch with their social security office and ask for Pamphlets 29 and 871. The Ashland social security office is located at 1816 Carter Avenue.

Henry N. Sutherland, Social Security representative for this area, will be in Morehead each Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. in the Public Assistance Office.

Beauty, Boone At Rifle Festival

Miss America of 1963-64, Daniel Boone, and the Kentucky and Pennsylvania long-rifle teams will be featured at the annual Daniel Boone Festival in Barbourville, Oct. 8-10.

Miss Donna Axum, last year's reigning beauty and presently a senior at the University of Arkansas, will be featured in the parade scheduled for October 10. There will be a dinner in her honor that evening and she will help in the selection of "Miss Kentucky Long Rifle" Oct. 9.

The 22-year-old singing artist will be the house guest of President and Mrs. Maldon A. Miller of Union College during her two-day visit at Barbourville.

The Daniel Boone coming to the festival is a great-great-great nephew of the famous pioneer frontiersman whose name he bears. A judge of the general session court in Nashville, Tenn., and a lover of hunting and fishing, he owns an squirrel rifle once the possession of his forebear.

The two rifle teams will be on hand October 10 to participate in the final round of the second annual long-rifle match between Kentucky and Pennsylvania.

The Kentucky team recently scored a 970 to 850 victory over the Pennsylvanians in the first round, held at the Daniel Boone homestead near Leading, Pennsylvania. The sharpshooters also defeated Pennsylvania in the two matches held last year at Barbourville and the Boone Homestead.

The shoot-out will be held at Lay Field in Barbourville, beginning at 9:30 a.m. with the first shot to be fired by Daniel Boone. The marksmen from both teams will be dressed in authentic pioneer garb and plan to offer some trick shooting for the crowd, in addition to the ir match shoot.

An estimated 12,000 people are expected to attend the three-day festival, said Aubrey Chestnut and Adrian Dunnaway, Barbourville, co-chairman of the celebration.

The festival will begin the evening of Oct. 8 with a historic pageant presented by the Daughters of the American Revolution in the Knox Central

New Deputy Director For KSP Appointed

William O. Newman, 40, a native of Covington, has been appointed deputy director of the Kentucky State Police by State Safety Commissioner Glenn Lovren.

Lieutenant Colonel Newman succeeds James W. Hughes who is being assigned to a new State Police Bureau of Research and Planning in his permanent rank of captain.

Newman attended the University of Cincinnati. He is a graduate of the Southern Police Institute in Louisville, the Northwestern University Traffic Institute and the Federal Bureau of Investigation national police academy.

Industry Confab Slated Oct. 22 In Louisville

Ways in which Kentucky industries can get a bigger share of some $50 million of Defense and other Federal Government procurements will be explained at an all-day Louisville conference, Oct. 22, Kentucky Commissioner of Commerce Katherine Peden has announced.

The first Kentucky Industrial Procurement Conference will be held at the Kentucky Hotel and will be sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Commerce, the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce and associated industries of Kentucky.

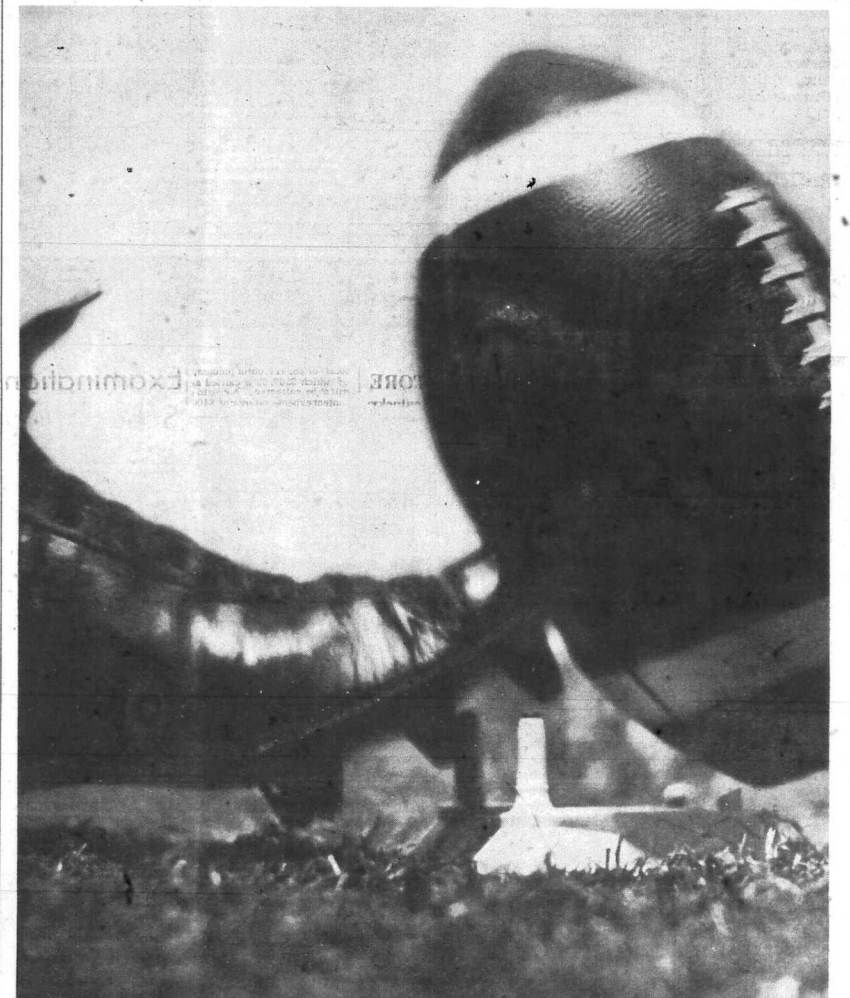

The Department of Defense purchases some one-million items through the procurement process and Kentucky-made products that could be included range from mops to electronics components.

Officials of the Department of Defense and the U.S. Department of Commerce estimate that Federal procurement agencies will have about $50 million in current procurements in the form of bids and proposals that Kentucky industries can benefit from.

Miss Peden said.

Albert C. Lazure, Washington, director of economic utilization for the Defense Department, said that defense and procurement agencies will have exhibits at the conference on the types of items purchased. Kentucky firms may submit bids and proposals within a few days after the conference with awards to be made within the following days.

The conference will save time and money for Kentucky industries interested in government procurement business. Officials of the Department of Defense and the U.S. Department of Commerce point out that an industry usually would have to send representatives to Washington or other cities where procurement officials are located to contact officials who will be present at the conference to explain procurement procedures.

Hire The Handicapped Week Being Observed

Special "Employ the Handicapped" week will be observed here, as well as throughout the nation next week, with attention of employers being directed to the advantages inherent in employment of handicapped persons.

Headlining the local observance is the Kentucky Employment Office, headed by Paul Thompson, manager of the local office.

Even though the employment office works year round with a handicapped project, Thompson said, "during this week special emphasis is directed to our employers and to local citizens to make them aware that this job segment and cooperation and effort helps to fulfill our obligation to the handicapped person."

Why help the handicapped person? Let us remember that there are 15 million handicapped persons in America today. Many of these persons are disabled Veterans, who gave of themselves to protect our freedom. Surely these persons deserve a break or even chance at making an honest living.

What do we do? The local office of our employment service tries to match a man and a job. We try to find jobs for local handicapped persons. We try to obtain orders from employers who request a handicapped worker. Never do we hire a handicapped person to a

Roads Unit Is Looking Into 1965

With several weeks of good weather remaining for work on Kentucky's rural roads, the Department of Highways is already looking ahead to work in 1965.

The twelve district highway engineers in the state have been asked by Commissioner Henry Ward to make recommendations to him by Jan. 1 on work to be done with state funds next year.

The Department will invite local officials to make recommendations for expenditure of state funds through the Rural Highway and Rural Secondary programs. Both programs are administered by the Highway Department, but recommendations of local officials are considered.

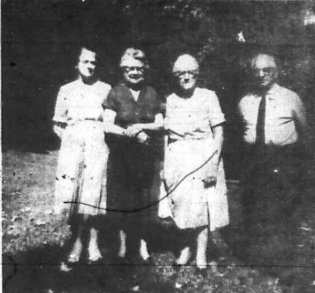

Ward wants the proposed county programs planned and submitted to him by the first of the year so that work may begin at the earliest possible time next year.

MYRTLE

REUNION - This group of people who attended school on Bull Fork in Rowan County more than 60 years ago, recently held a reunion in New Castle, Ind. The first time many of them had met since their school days, an era which spanned three with a depression and all the other happenings of six decades. Included were, Jr. Core Ward, Bernard Garrison, Dr. Effie Cassidy Thomas, New Castle, Ind.; Wanda Ramey Carter, Dayton, O.; and Hiram Ramsey, Piedmont, Calif.

"In order to do this, we must begin planning these programs now," Ward said. "No plan exists in any county for either of these programs until finally approved by the Commissioner of Highways and I want plenty of time to review all recommendations before approving a program of work."

"We want the recommendations of all interested citizens as to the wisest expenditure of state tax funds," Ward explained, "but those improvements recommended do not necessarily represent an approved program."

Rural Secondary roads comprise a system to be improved and maintained with two cents of the seven cents state tax on each gallon of gasoline.

Rural Highways make up a system of roads to be improved and maintained by the annual legislative appropriation of $10,000,000.

An equitable amount from each fund is credited each year to a program in each county.

Each of the 12 highway districts in the state has a planning engineer with the responsibility of helping to recommend which roads on each of the systems most urgently need improving.

"We hope with this early planning start to accomplish a sound, professional improvement program on all our rural roads, next year and in the years to come," Ward said.

FARM BUREAU in Action

Farmers are becoming dependent on government handouts for a growing percentage of their income.

Government payments to farmers in 1964 are expected to reach $2.1 billion, or 17 percent of an anticipated net income of $12.5 billion. For the first 10 months of the year, payments totaled $553 million—nearly one and a half times more than the $371 million paid during the same period a year ago.

The growing dependence of farmers on government aid for their livelihood is dramatized by the fact that as recently as 1959, payments accounted for only 5.9 percent of net income.

In spite of the tremendous increase in government farm subsidies, net farm income continues to fall. As in mid-1964, net farm income was running 2 percent below the level of several years ago adjusted annual basis.

With a greater share of the farmer's income coming from the federal treasury, farmers are being forced to submit to tightening government control.

Part of the process of grinding farmers into submission is to drive down the market price and force the producer to take a larger share of his return in the form of government payment.

Government stocks were dumped on the market under the 1961 and 1962 feed grain programs to depress prices and force producers into compliance. When the grain trade complained about government competition, the Administration's answer was direct payments to farmers.

In the case of wheat, prices have been smashed by large sales of CCC stocks and a requirement that mills pay what amounts to a processing tax on wheat that is used to produce food products.

On the surface, the cotton situation is somewhat different, but the government is now paying someone in the trade 6 1/2 cents a pound for every pound of cotton that is consumed domestically or exported.

Thus, the income of cotton farmers has become dependent on payments even though these particular payments are made to persons other than farmers.

Once farmers are deeply mired in the quagmire of relief payments, they will be completely dependent on the whims of Congress and the Secretary of Agriculture for their livelihood. As long as the non-farm segment of the economy enjoys prosperity, consumers may be tolerant of doles to food and fiber producers, but what would happen if national non-farm income started to decline?

It looks as though farmers are rapidly going on the government payroll without the protection of civil service status.

State Completes Forest Inventory

Field work has been completed on Kentucky's first statewide forest inventory in 35 years. State Natural Resources Commissioner J. O. Matlack has reported.

The work -- sampling some 3,500 wooded plots all across the state -- in cooperation with the U. S. Forest Service.

Field work on the inventory took nearly three years, Matlack said. The report, covering preliminary results in Southern Kentucky was released last fall.

Other area reports will be released in the fall and through next spring, when the complete statewide inventory is expected to be available.

Information obtained in the survey included such data as number, size, type, and quality of trees in each sample plot. This information will be projected to determine Kentucky's complete forest resources and their marketable worth.

"This report, when completed, will be invaluable to Kentucky," Matlack said. "It will give us something concrete and up-to-date to aid both potential and existing wood-using industries, listing exactly what Kentucky has available in wood resources, and where it is located."

Gene B. Butler, State forestry director, pointed out that the new inventory is much more intensive than the last one, made in 1929. "We now have many new techniques which have enabled us to do a much more thorough job in the same amount of time," he stated.

Butler said the preliminary report released last fall covering 12 counties in the Southern Cumberland region, showed that less than 28,000 acres or 1.2 percent of the region's entire forest crop can be classed as non-producing -- either incapable of growing timber crops or reserved for other uses.

The 12 counties first inventoried contain 2,100,000 acres of forest land -- approximately 80 percent of the entire Southern Cumberland region's total land acreage. This was an increase in forested land of 6.1 percent since 1949.

Of the commercial forest in the area, 49 percent is in saw-timber-class trees at or near the harvest age, measuring 11 inches in diameter and up. The volume of saw-log-size material increased by 9 percent since the 1949 inventory.

Copies of this preliminary report and of other reports when they are released may be obtained from the Division of Forestry, Department of Natural Resources, Frankfort.

Requesters should specify the name of the report. The preliminary report is Highlights, Timber Resources of the Southern Cumberland Region, Kentucky.

"I REMEMBER"

BY The Old Timers

From Samantha Barnett, Church Hill, Tenn. When I was a youngster there were three seasons I liked best, the Spring, Fall and Christmas time. Though the seasons have changed quite a bit in the last forty years, as well as other things, I still remember the joy of the first warm days of Spring -- how we would knock our toes off on the first rock we came to, but it was fun wading in the creek watching the first wild flowers burst into bloom, and going bird watching.
