

MONDAY, OCT. 10, 1898.
The Civil docket will not be called until Monday next—the Court and bar having decided to depose the main case pending in the Criminal docket. It really does seem as if the business of the Court never would be brought up square. But Judge Pizzani will work wonders with it, yet.

A man connected with Van Amburgh's vineyard and orchard that was exhibited here last night, was arrested at the Parker House on Tuesday, on a charge of homicide at the residence of the man who was prosecuted in the case. His rough and ready appearance, short, fat, and with a prominent nose. We learned of no further particulars.

The trial in the Mason Circuit Court, of William Brown, charged with the murder of the late Senator M. Collins, some two years ago, was concluded on yesterday. The jury after remaining out an unexpecting short time, brought in a verdict of guilty, and found the period of his confinement in the penitentiary at three years. In the three previous trials the jury failed to agree.

In the four trials, this case occupied the Court about 85 days. The case was exceedingly tedious. Considerable interest was felt in the result of the trials. Either throughout or at some time during their continuance, every practicing lawyer at the Mason bar, except perhaps two, has been engaged on one or the other side.

At Ashland, Filmore papers.—The Ashland Knickerbocker, an independent paper published with Democratic partialities, has booted the Republican flag. This has so outraged the American in Greeney, that immediate steps were taken to attack the paper. Mr. E. Success toll.

CPA A. BRASSER QUILL.—Some of our lady readers in this city will remember the beautiful patch-work Silk Quilt, of Mrs. J. J. FAY, of Henry County, Ky., much of which was made during her visit to this neighborhood. It was exhibited at the Louisville Fair, on Tuesday last, over 17 others that were shown in competition.

"Every body's cousin Tom," as the Louisville Journal sarcastically designates this transaction, and the result of the case, has the field for somebody and some cause—it is a little unenviable what and who. In scattering his ungenerous glass, he also said, "and the last not least, my wife, who is a better mother of admirers of his genius and oratory, no matter what they think of his political taste and associations. We find in the Lexington Observer and Reporter the following list of appointments: Mr. Marshall addressed the people of Lexington on Monday evening, for an hour and a half before and an hour and a half after, upon the whole of the matter, with the object of the speech as his positions or course, calls "one of his truly most worthy orators.
