PRECAUTONARY.—The Cincinnati Enquirer of Sunday last, urges upon the City authorities the propriety of establishing a quaranine, in order to gourn against the danger from cholera; and mentions as a fact, that, in the course of three or four days from that time, there will be a fleet of boats up from New Orleans, all of which will bring more of these control of the passengers. As the fell scourge may possibly be amongst the passengers on some of these boats, we think the Enquirer is right in urging the necessity of establishing a quaranine; anders extending so this city, it might be well for our new founding the stablishing a quaranine; and several three days from the course of the secretal propriety of doing a similar thing here.
