WHY BE A SUCKER?

Now as never before, with boom times predicted "just around the corner," it is essential that the small investor and the public fully appreciate dangers of blind speculation.

It is easy to blame Wall Street and big business for depressions, yet Wall Street and the stock exchanges simply serve as a market place for the people's securities.

Depressions cannot be legislated out of existence. The public as a whole and individually must heed the lessons of the past if severe future depressions are to be avoided.

During a period when nearly all thought has been turned toward attaining complete economic security through Washington, it must not be forgotten that in the last analysis it is the initiative and common sense of the individual upon which the welfare of the nation finally depends.

THE DEATH LOTTERY

Last year, in an American city of something over 1,000,000 population, traffic deaths averaged approximately five per day.

The people read of this loss of life indifferently, turn the page and forget it. But the world would stand aghast if seven similar victims were selected each morning by lot and sacrificed at a public ceremony.

Of course, that would be impossible—but the idea may give you a new view of the automobile accident situation. In the city mentioned—which is no better or worse than many other cities and towns—the odds are about a hundred and fifty thousand to one against your being killed on any given day.

Under the lottery system of selecting victims for sudden death, the papers each morning could list the names of those drawn, and the unfortunate could wind up their business and go quietly to their doom.

So remember that the chance of you being killed by a motor car is a daily lottery and is greater than your chance of winning a prize in the sweepstakes in which you hopefully gamble a dollar or two now and then.

INSULTING LITTLE BUSINESS MEN

Those who forecast the destruction of small retail business in this country insult the little business man.

The life of the small retailer will not be all beer and skittles—but, taking him by and large, he shows an amazingly aggressive spirit. He is up on his toes and wide awake.

When the chain retailing system began its growth, some decades ago, the pessimists said that the day of the little independent was done—that monopoly would swallow him.

attracting enterprise. There can be no monopoly where competition has a choice of service.

One result of this condition is interesting. Many forward-looking independent merchants have not joined the groups which seek to penalize chains with class legislation and taxation.

TWO KINDS OF COOPERATIVES

Agricultural cooperatives fall into two distinct groups. One group is based on proven business principles, follows business methods and is entirely self-sustaining.

The other group seeks to exist through "doles" of one kind or another. It continually seeks subsidies and special favors from government.

Needless to say, cooperatives belonging to the technicalities and statistical detail—inseparable in any message of this kind—will prevent it from being widely read.

Thus self-sustaining co-ops should not be confused with co-ops which are always searching for sustenance from the public trough.

GET RID OF THE 'IFS'

The President's budget address provides considerable food for thought. It is unfortunate that its technicalities and statistical detail—inseparable in any message of this kind—will prevent it from being widely read.

Briefly the President said that the budget will be balanced for the year beginning July 1, 1937, if statutory payments toward reduction of the debt are not considered, and if relief and other emergency appropriations do not exceed $1,537,000,000.

There are other "ifs" in the message, but these are the most important. And it is now the duty of Congress to see to it that emergency spending is held to the lowest possible point, that every conceivable cut be made in the overhead cost of our multitudinous bureaus—some of which have outlived their purpose and have no excuse for existence—and that a scientifically planned program of economy permeate the entire Federal structure.

The President is also said to be working on a plan whereby various governmental departments will be consolidated in the interest of efficiency and economy. This has long been a vital need, and it is unquestionably true that wise consolidations would save the taxpayers untold millions without eliminating or reducing government services.

In brief, the people must demand that the budget be balanced, and that no "ifs" be allowed to stand in the way.

WHAT OTHER KENTUCKY EDITORS ARE SAYING

Causes of Floods

Many people find it hard to understand just exactly what started the disastrous flood that caused such terrible damage in the Ohio river valley and is now coursing down the Mississippi river to the Gulf of Mexico, leaving devastation in its wake.

Weather experts explain, the phenomena by saying that cold, dry air from the polar regions met warm moist air from the tropics. When this happens rain results. When it continues for an abnormal period the damage is far above normal.

In connection with the present flood it is pointed out that the rainfall over the Ohio river basin and other flood areas was some two to six times the normal amount during January. Some weather experts reported 23 inches of rain when the normal was only four inches.

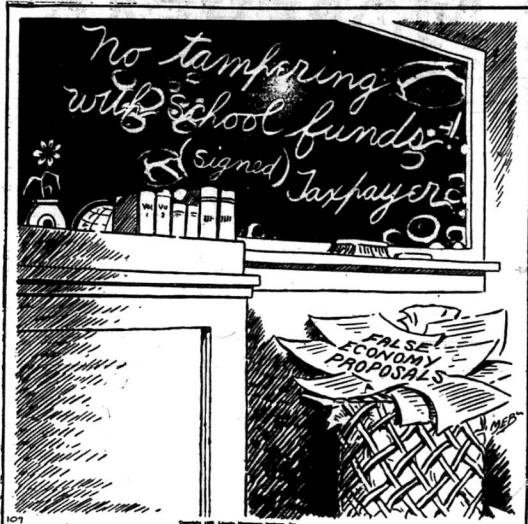

Readers, hearing constantly about an inch of rainfall, seldom realize that this means that 113 tons of water has descended on a single acre of ground. An inch of rain fall amounts to 3,600 tons of water to the square mile.

So great is the prodigious deluge that balances the evaporation of the water from the surface of the earth that competent weather experts estimate that the amount of rain and snow falling on the entire surface of the earth averages about 16,000,000 tons a day, measured with reasonable accuracy and the total fall of water amounts to 7,000,000,000 tons.

Notwithstanding the fact that glass clothes are predicted by the end of the century, we can see enough through the kind we already have to peek the nervous system of a crocodile.

Now what do you make of this? In professional football, says "Red" Grange, "we treat our players like the colleges do. If they are injured, salaries continue and all hospital expenses are paid."

THE HANDWRITING ON THE WALL!

Flood Damages Highways To Extent That Improvements Will Be Curtailed

Heavy emergency spending and the almost total destruction of several pieces of expensive and important machinery by flood water, Kentucky? State Highway program, which was planned to include the construction of a considerable amount of new thoroughfares, will be sharply curtailed according to an announcement made from the highway office today.

The states program will necessarily be abbreviated in order that the department may concentrate its efforts and a portion of its financial allotment to the reconditioning of important arterial highways damaged and in some instances rendered virtually useless and unsafe by high waters.

It was estimated that at least one-fourth of the main highways in the Commonwealth were effected one way or another by the flood and as these serve traffic especially through the northern, central and western section of the state it will be necessary to give them immediate attention.

THE 25-MILLIONTH FORD HAS JUST BEEN BUILT. It has never occurred before in automobile history that 25 million cars of one make, bearing one name, have been manufactured under one management. The 25,000,000th Ford car rolled off the Ford Rouge Plant production line on January 18, 1937. 25 million cars since 1902... more than one-third of all the cars ever built... enough cars to transport the entire population of the United States. The figures represent a remarkable contribution to the social welfare, the industrial stability and the general progress of our country. People respect Ford efficiency. They know Ford uses fine materials, the best workmanship at good wages, the best exact precision measurements. They know these things are passed along to purchasers in the form of extra value. Naturally, they like to do business with such a company. That is the only reason it has been required to produce 25 million cars. Naturally, too, they expect more of a Ford car, more this year than last year—more each year than the year before. They have every right to. The experience gained in building 25,000,000 cars enabled Ford to produce today a really superb motor car at a really low price—with the Beauty, Comfort, Safety and Performance of much more expensive cars. The 1937 Ford V-8 combines advanced design, all-steel construction, extra body room, and brilliant brakes with a choice of two V-type 8-cylinder engines—the most modern type of power-plant on land, sea, or in the air. The 65-horsepower engine provides top performance with unusually good economy for its high power. The 60-horsepower engine gives good performance with the greatest gasoline mileage ever built into a Ford car—and wears the lowest Ford car tag in years. People expect more of a Ford car because it's a Ford—and they get more, for the same reason. It is undeniably the quality car in the low-price field. 'Accused,' Title Of Picture At College

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Plays Lead In Friday's Feature Film

The College Theatre will present Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in "Accused," Friday night, February 12.

The story from the pens of Zoe Akins and George Barrard, is set in Paris. Doug. Jr., and Dolores are cast as Tony and Gaby Seymour, a sensational dance team whose act features a breath-taking knife-throwing finale with Dolores hurling the blade.

The devoted couple have just gotten their big chance in a Paris theatre. Into their Eden walks Yvette Delange, star of the theater and influential with the manager. Yvette tries to lure Tony away from Gaby. A scene ensues between the insidious jealous Gaby and the intruder. Yvette is found dead, a knife in her back. Gaby is accused.

That, briefly, is the story which mounts to a breath-taking climax and a thrilling surprise ending.

A powerful screen story of an attorney whose past returned to interrupt a brilliant political career, but which at the same time pointed the way to love, is excitingly told in "Criminal Lawyer."

The story is of a "mouthpiece" who is raised to the office of district attorney, and who later turns on the gang that put him there after it lured him into murder.

A pampered society girl and the attorney's secretary engage in a duel of wits for the affection of the lawyer, and he marries the debutante only to realize it is the other girl he loves.

The photoplay boasts a strong cast with Lee Tracy, Margot Grahame, Eduardo Coudel, Eric Rhodes, who finds opportunity to use his excellent baritone voice in the rendition of a new popular song, "Tommy, Tommy, Tommy," Betty Lugo, Frank M. Thomas, Aileen Pringle and Claire McDowell in principal roles.

Special western of Zane Grey's famous American novel, "Outlaws of Palouse," a star-spangled yarn of the immortal Roosevelt Rough Riders and the battle of San Juan Hill, will reach the College theatre screen next Tuesday under the title, "End of the Trail" with Jack Holt in the starring role.

Holt is again seen as the two-fisted, adventurous hero who courts danger and fights gallantly, a type of role that has made him a top-notch favorite with American audiences.

Surrounded by an excellent cast including Louise Henry, Quinn "Big Boy" Williams, Douglas Dumbleire, George McKay and Dale Brittenham, Holt appears as a life-loving westerner who is among the first to answer the call to arms in the war of '98 against Spain.

His adventures on the battlefield, his rivalry with Williams for the love of Miss Henry, a Red Cross nurse, and his fight to make himself worthy of her love when the cannon are stilled, and the boys come home, are dramatically interwoven in the stirring picture of the bloody hundred days year during which the United States emerged as a world empire.

Ralph Bellamy Has Lead in Cozy Film

Screen Star Believes Honesty Is Best Policy At All Times

Honesty is the best policy, and Ralph Bellamy, handsome, virile "man" of the screen, would be the first person to insist on complete truthfulness at all times, but whenever the subject of absolute honesty at all times arises, the actor, currently featured in "Straight from the Shoulder," which opens next Sunday at the Cozy Theatre, has an uneasy twinge in his conscience.

Turning away from his home in Chicago at the age of 17, Bellamy crashed his way into an audience with the management of a Shakespearean repertory company and, although he had never been near the footlights than the Chicago theatre gallery seats, he seemed to vivid a picture of his own past of successful stage background that the manager decided to give him a part.

Bellamy was quick to learn, and very soon was playing leads. In nine years, he played almost four hundred different roles, for 15 theatre companies, and at one time, owned his own repertory company in Des Moines, Iowa.

After learning everything stock and repertory had to teach him, Bellamy decided that he was ready for Broadway, and a few days after reaching New York he was given the male lead in a play opposite Helen Hayes. But Bellamy was not destined to stay East for any length of time, as the performance in the Hayes vehicle brought the attention of motion picture executives, and he was brought to Hollywood to play in "The Magnificent Lie" and "The Secret Six."

Among the more recent pictures in which Bellamy has been seen are "Surrender," "Young America," "The Daughter," "Once to Every Woman," "The Wedding Night," "Dangerous Intrigue," "Roaming Lady," and "Sart Francisco Nights."

CATCHING UP WITH PAST

Smokers who are guided as much by imagination as by habit are giving a try to a new cigarette with a flip, N. 67. Manufacturers hail the filtering idea as new, but it goes back at least five hundred years to early Persian efforts to cool pipe smoke through a "margule" or water pipe. Some historians even claim that Cassius, the great lover, thought there is no positive proof of the fact, invented a filter-method for smoking tobacco in order to escape pipe cigarette-breath, which he feared might make his amorous advances less attractive!

Kentucky Revenue Off Over Million

(Continued from Page One) ing the date motor vehicles are required to be registered from January 1 to March 1. It is anticipated that an equilibrium will be established during March.

Receipts from the tax on franchise-paying corporations during the preceding fiscal year to date were $439,849.93 more than during the current year. This is attributable to the fact that final assessments were made earlier last year than this year. The delay in making final assessments was occasioned by the making of accounting investigations prior to assessment.

Commissioner Martin said that the sales tax produced gross receipts of $6,268,130.81 during the preceding fiscal year to the end of January. Revenue laws designed to replace the sales tax have produced $5,216,394.73 during the seven months of the present fiscal year, approximately $1,050,000 less than the law they replaced.

The food, by limiting transportation facilities, preventing usual means of communication and curtailing taxpayers' business transactions, has occasioned a decrease in revenue receipts," the report concluded.

LIBELED LADY

WRITTEN BY LIBEASUS MITCHELL
From the METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER Picture

Synopsis—Bill Chandler has married, temporarily, Gladys Benton, sweet-heart of Warren Haggerty, managing editor of the New York Star, so she can bring suit for alienation of affection against Connie Allenbury who has sued the paper for $5,000,000 for slander in alleging that she was a husband-stealer. Gladys is to get a divorce as soon as the suit against the paper has been dropped. But Bill runs into all sorts of complications; Gladys falls for Bill and he finds himself in love with Connie.

Chapter Ten COMPLICATED LOVE STORY
Ten days passed without Haggerty's hearing anything from Bill Chandler and he was fuming with angry impatience, calling every place in New York where he thought Bill might be found. He barked into the telephone: "You're sure he's not at the Athletic Club?" Then try the Yale Club—call his apartment."

Allen, his secretary, waited until he was called. "He's not at his apartment," he said. "Mrs. Chandler just called up. She's looking for him, too."

"That was Gladys on the phone. Didn't you tell her I was here?"

"Yes, but she wanted him. She's afraid he's offended at something she said this morning and wants to apologize."

"Gladys wants to apologize?" exclaimed Haggerty unbelievably.

"He was to meet her for lunch but didn't show up. She's afraid there was an accident and wants us to try the morgue."

"She never tries the morgue for me!" said Haggerty amazed at this revelation. "What's going on here?"

"Maybe he's working on the wrong girl," suggested Allen.

"The wrong girl? What are you?"

He was interrupted by a voice from the dictograph asking for the headline. "Fend kills Seven," he shouted into it.

"What did you expect? No man could be around a beautiful girl like Gladys and not fall in love!"

Haggerty sprang from his chair. "You dirty, double-crossing, I should have known you'd cheat! She may be your wife, but she's engaged to me!"

"Then why didn't you marry her?"

"Because I was a fool!" shouted Haggerty. "But I'm going to now!"

Bill became serious, pleading, "Warren, I beg of you...For the first time in my life I'm in love. I've found the girl who makes the whole world to me—"

"And it had to be my girl! You quit playing at love, and it had to be my girl!"

"You've got no kick. You neglected her—"

"I neglected...Well, maybe I have been spending too much time with the paper, but I did it for her. I wanted her to be married to a top man."

"All you care about, Warren, is this paper. Well, you've got that and I've got Gladys."

"Gladys will do as I say. She'll start for Reno—no, you'd follow her there. She'll get a divorce in Tucson. That's where she and Simpson were spilt—in two weeks by mail."

"Look here, Haggerty, don't try any tricks—"

"And the Chandler divorce, will be air-mail, special delivery!"

Feeling that Chandler had double-crossed him in the Allenbury libel suit, as well as with Gladys, Haggerty decided to try his influence in persuading Connie to drop her action against the paper. He called at the Allenbury home. Connie received him coolly, but listened carefully to his pleas.

"I appeal to your social conscience, Miss Allenbury. If you go through with this case, it will throw 500 employees out of work—men and women jobs; walk the street—hungry, tired and cold, driven to drink and ruin. It's my fault. It was my mistake. All my life I'll be faced with the knowledge that I wrecked 500 lives—that's all I care about, Miss Allenbury. Those poor unfortunate souls shouldn't suffer for my mistake."

"You're right. They shouldn't suffer for your mistake," said Connie, pretending to be deeply moved. "They must be taken care of."

Haggerty seized her hands in his relief. "Heaven bless you, Connie—Miss Allenbury."

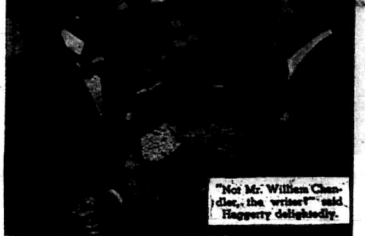

"And you for calling them to my attention. I'll see to it personally that the whole $5,000,000 goes into a trust fund for them!"

"You mean...?" Haggerty could barely utter the words, "You're going ahead with the case!"

"Of course!" Connie wanted to take care of those poor men and women!

"I'm just becoming familiar with your work and I thought maybe you might do something for our paper."

"Sorry, but I have my hands

"Not Mr. William Chandler, the writer!" said Haggerty delightedly.

Haggerty made a dash for it with a look at Bill that made him realize the editor's impatience to telephone Gladys and bring her with a detective to end blow with Connie Allenbury. He must think and act quickly if he was to create an alibi for himself against Connie. He assumed great confidence.

"By this time tomorrow I'll be dining on shipboard."

Connie was amazed. "Where do you think you are going?"

"Just dinner with my publisher. He's sitting on the Victoria."

"Why, today's the eighth."

"No, no, tomorrow is the eighth."

"Friday the eighth," said Bill with great assurance.

"But today is Friday the eighth!"

"Good grief! And he has the contract waiting for me to sign! This is terrible! I've got to see him! The boat sails from Brooklyn at eleven o'clock."

"You can meet it," cried Connie.

"I'll drive you, Bill."

"No, no! I have my car! Don't miss your dinner, I insist!"

Before she had a chance to argue with him, Bill was at the door, grabbed his hat and was out on the steps before the surprised butler could open the door.

"No, no, tomorrow is the eighth."

"No, no, tomorrow is the eighth."
