The Cumberland National Forest was found prepared to respond to several emergency calls during Kentucky's greatest disaster. Equipment ordinarily used in the fighting of forest fires were found to be as effective in flood relief.

The first call came on Friday, January 22, from Ashland when help was needed to move refugees and supplies from the flooded parts of the city.

On Saturday a second call was received—this time from flooded Frankfort. Quickly plans were made and blankets, coats and mattresses were sent from the supplies in this city.

AMERICAN LEGION FIGHTS FOR SAFETY

The Americanism Commission of the American Legion, long active in the cause of traffic safety, has released two talking-slide-films dealing with that vital subject. Entitled "Inertia" and "The Other Fellow," they are an important contribution to promoting wider understanding of the cause and cure of the traffic accident problem.

"Inertia" is an interesting and unusual presentation of why it is necessary to exercise care at the wheel of a motor car. It describes the physical laws of motion and how they affect automobile driving.

The second film, "The Other Fellow," is a dramatic treatment of community responsibility for the mounting toll of death and injury because of failure to discharge responsibilities of enforcement, engineering, education, self-discipline.

It is peculiarly fitting that the great organization which grew out of a carnage should be engaged actively in a war the primary purpose of which is to save lives.

HANDWRITING ON THE WALL

Unless labor unions and employers exercise self-restraint over their respective powers and recognize the rights of the public, the government will step in and take control.

Dr. Sutherland said it was "only a matter of time until any group using power without responsibility will be checked," and pointed out that as a general rule this country never curbed power until it was abused.

When any group of leaders, no matter who, declares its plan to win their point at all costs, regardless of suffering of workmen or the public, it is time to break their grip—that is what government is for—to protect all the people.

If the day arrives when our government can be controlled by either labor or industrial dictators, to the detriment of the people, fascism or communism will have swallowed democracy, individual rights will be wiped out and labor will become a form of slavery.

BREAKING THE BACK OF THE RAILROADS

Passage of the bill creating a six-hour day for railroad employes, which will be an issue in the current congress, is called a "major threat to private railroad control," by Frederick J. Lisman, a distinguished authority on railroad matters.

Mr. Lisman points out that the bill would not merely reduce the railroads' profits; it would wipe out those profits and leave huge deficits. It would prevent roads from obtaining capital to operate, expand and rehabilitate lines.

The railroads already face a grave problem caused by the Interstate Commerce Commission's refusal to continue the emergency rate tariff. Without arguing whether or not the ICC is right, it is certainly obvious that we cannot reduce the income of any industry—and especially one which has found it difficult to profit even in the best of times—and at the same time increase operating costs without inviting bankruptcy.

Certainly railroad labor can have few fresh grievances. It works the standard eight-hour day, with liberal over-time provisions. It is paid extremely well. It is represented by strong unions, which aggressively present its side of any controversy to managements.

country working to achieve recovery and needing fair treatment for all industry, as well as labor.

INVESTMENT PLUS SOCIAL SECURITY

Figures released by the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau show that the remarkable improvement in life insurance purchasing made during depression years is generally being maintained.

This is the result of the average citizen's conviction, largely established by the bitter experience of bad times—that life insurance represents one of the safest possible forms of investment, as well as protection and social security for himself and family.

PLAYING WITH FIRE

News items report proposals for laws in Maryland and Oregon to levy a tax of $5 per annum on each radio set in the respective states.

Oregon gave class taxation a firm foothold by enacting the original gasoline tax. Premium taxes on insurance represent class taxation well hidden from the general public.

The radio tax proposal is a bolder step. If it were countenanced, it would be wide enough to extend class taxation to pianos, refrigerators, bath tubs or anything the tax-gatherers thought would produce taxes with the least squawk.

It is unthinkable that such a thing as a radio tax would be suggested—but it brings the class taxation evil into the limelight. Should the menace be extended?

THE SPORT OF HALF-WITS

In at least one respect, 1937 got off to a bad start. Reports collected by the National Board of Fire Underwriters show that an unusually large number of false fire alarms were deliberately turned in on New Year's eve.

In the city of New York alone, there were 154 such alarms. Every false alarm risks the lives of firemen and the general public. During a period of seven hours in New York on New Year's eve, there were 10 real fires. Coupled with the false alarms, this means that a tremendous number of calls made it necessary to reduce the response to each alarm to one engine and one ladder company.

The matter wouldn't be so bad if "false alarm epidemics" occurred only at rare intervals. In every community the false-alarm problem exists the year round. Some false alarms are turned in by malicious persons. Others result from a "half-wit" sense of humor. And every one of them risks life and property and reduces the available fire-fighting force in case a real fire starts.

Malicious offenders should be severely punished, and police must have the fullest cooperation of the neighbors to apprehend them. Turning in a false alarm just isn't funny.

WHAT OTHER KENTUCKY EDITORS ARE SAYING

How About the Press?

The answers that come back reveal widely different opinions. Just now, one hears much of the failure of the newspapers to exert decisive influence in the recent presidential election.

Before going much further with this thought, it might be well to differentiate between the metropolitan press, with its huge investments and impersonal contact with readers, and the so-called county press, where the editor knows most of the people in his area, and what is just as significant, they know him.

The large city press, with newspapers boasting hundreds of thousands of subscribers and millions of dollars in revenue, is seldom fortunate enough to possess enthusiastic following. The newspaper, as an institution of news and entertainment, is bought as a bargain, its contents perused and the buyer is through with it.

The influence of larger newspapers rests largely upon their presentation of the news or their treatment of public topics. When they attract the following that prefers what they offer, then they go wrong in the opinion of readers, the population is apt to take it as a personal affront and put up a fight to get the newspaper on the right track.

In some of the smaller cities and towns of the country there are newspapers, which the public regards as almost a public possession, regardless of who owns or manages them. The populace is interested in the opinion of readers, the population is apt to take it as a personal affront and put up a fight to get the newspaper on the right track.

The idea of a tough job is being a bill collector for a firm that sells motor trailer homes on the installment plan.

A short social call usually takes an hour—30 minutes for the call and 30 minutes to get away after starting.

Experiments Show Forests A Factor In Flood Control

Water Drains From Land More Readily When Not Cultivated By Trees

Recent experiments carried on by the United States Forest Service in many parts of this country shows the influence of forests on run-off and stream flow is an important factor in flood control.

Through the experiments it was found that run-off from cultivated land following severe rains was as high as 125 times as fast as that from uncultivated forest land.

The slower run-off of water from forest land can be accounted for to several conditions found in such areas.

The forest litter, which is made up of the leaves, twigs and debris which cover the forest floor, is capable of absorbing from 150 to 900 percent of its own weight in water.

occupied. In other words, the forest acts like a great sponge and is nature's best water and soil holder.

It was pointed out that the primary reason for the establishment of the National Forest was for the protection of watersheds. The effect that a project will have on the watershed is always taken into consideration before any work is started on the National Forest.

Flood conditions, such as are now causing great losses in Kentucky, are taken in consideration in the construction of roads, bridges, recreational areas, etc., and the Cumberland National Forest reports that all of its roads so far constructed are well above the highwater and in good condition for travel.

Former Resident Pens Memoirs of County

By E. S. MONTGOMERY In the early seventies, Morehead could boast of but two general stores, one by Warren Alderson and one by Howard Logan, and what they called a hotel was run by Uncle John Hargis, which later was run by Judge Carey, where Patton's Drug store now stands.

My father, N. H. Montgomery, said Uncle John could measure when ever he wanted to. On one occasion he was brought in the court house to testify in a case and he did not want to talk. When the judge asked him a question he would sneeze. Finally the judge instructed the jailer to take that man out until he was through sneezing.

Uncle John, son of Thomas F. Hargis, was one of the brightest young attorneys of his time in eastern Kentucky. After the Civil War he settled in Carlisle, Ky.

In about 1873 Uncle Billy Barker of Elliott county had a 16-year-old boy that strayed off and for some misdemeanor was put in jail at Carlisle. Uncle Billy walked in to Carlisle to get his boy and he went by to see Tom Hargis for he knew him well. He said that Hargis took a paper and went over the then small city and had all the women to sign it so as to let the boy out of jail.

Hargis presented it to the judge and had the boy out to go home with his father. Uncle Billy offered to pay Hargis for his services, but the attorney would not take anything.

In about 1878 I stayed all night with a Mr. Thompson near Flemings. He told me that he had heard Tom Hargis make a speech in the court house in Flemings in that village. He was speaking for a young man against a bank that was trying to sell the young man's home.

Mr. Hargis spoke until he fell to the floor and afterwards said he would love to have spoken 40 minutes longer.

The last time I ever saw Mr. Hargis was in Mayville (he then lived in Louisville, Ky.) in the eighties. The city of Mayville had employed him in a suit against a gas company and I went to his room in the hotel and talked to him. He told me that after the Civil War he was over in Carlisle and made a home-made suit of blue jeans, and still had the clothes in his possession.

He was raised in the south end of Rowan next to Elliott county, but left there the year the first C. & O. train run through that county 1851.

My knowledge of Morehead was little until 1931, 50 years later. I could not find Morehead until I inquired as to where the business section was located. On the old state road before the C. & O. was built, all that bottom where the depot and railroad area was a papa patch.

Now when I visit your beautiful little city and think of what it used to be—it seems that a miracle has been performed there between those mountains since I was a boy.

vada, and certain counties in Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Nebraska, Oregon, South Dakota and Wyoming. Alfalfa meal and chopped hay may be imported under certain conditions, but all hay is forbidden.

Dry and Test Flooded Seed A statement from the seed laboratories at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington advises that seeds soaked in the flood should be carefully dried by spreading on clean floors, or bagged only when the excess moisture is gone, and then rested before sowing or sowing.

Suggests Care of Flooded Plants The water that covered ornamental plants during the flood should be used to irrigate the shrubs, says Prof. N. R. Elliott of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

FARMING BY IMPROVED METHODS

Written by the Staff of the University of Kentucky Agricultural Extension Work, College of Agriculture

Lets The Lessons Taught By Drouths Lessons learned from the drouths of recent years are listed by William B. Howell, agricultural agent in Oldham county.

More attention is being given to drouth-resistant crops, Mr. Howell mentions in particular alfalfa and sudan grass. He believes the alfalfa acreage in Kentucky might be increased 200 to 300 per cent, and that a third to a half-acre of sudan grass per animal might be sowed as insurance against feed shortage.

Another point is that farmers might arrange for a feed survey, especially hay and other roughage, from years of abundance to years of scarcity.

Then, Mr. Howell feels, more stress could be placed on the sowing in late summer or early fall of rye, wheat, barley and other crops for fall, winter and spring grazing. Kentucky farmers this year have had a gratifying experience with fall and winter grazing. Cattle and sheep grazed these crops through much of the winter, and one authority estimates that the open winter and abundance of grazing have been worth millions of dollars to Kentucky stock raisers.

Mr. Howell concludes by appealing to farmers to consider drouths, especially those of mid-summers, when making their season's plans and try to be prepared to withstand a partial drouth without severe losses.

Benefit Payments For Adapted Seed A notice from Washington, relayed through the College of Agriculture at Lexington, says that no practice payments will be made in the farm program where red clover and alfalfa seed from foreign countries, other than Canada, is used. Seed from foreign countries, with the exception of Canada, is not considered adapted to Kentucky conditions, and hence will not call for the practice payments of $2.50 an acre for alfalfa and $2 an acre for clover.

For many years the Kentucky College of Agriculture has been urging farmers to use adapted seed only. It points out that all of the red clover for which practice payments will be made is not well adapted to Kentucky conditions and suggests that farmers select their clover seed even more carefully as regards origin than is required by the rules of the farm program.

Red clover seed produced within the state and known to fit local conditions, is considered best. Seed from the southern part of the clover belt that is not farther north than middle Ohio, is usually adapted to Kentucky conditions. If that cannot be had, then seed from northern states and Canada is preferred to that from western states.

Alfalfa seed produced in the region from Kansas north with the exception of Kentucky, is recommended for Kentucky. The law requires that unadapted red clover seed contain a percentage of seed stained red or green, and that unadapted alfalfa contain seed stained red, purple red, orange red or green.

Plants that were loosened or broken should be pulled back to normal position, and tied there if necessary, according to Professor Elliott. Low-growing evergreens may have been broken, but they will out-grow much of this injury if the branches are tied back into place.

Trash and litter should be carefully removed. This may require hand work, and should be done with care. Small broken branches may be removed back to the lateral stem.

After trash has been removed from the tops of the plants, turn the hose on them. However, if water pressure is available, washing off the mud and silt. Buckets of water may be dashed on them, if no hose is at hand.

When the soil is dry enough to work, cultivate the area about 2 to 3 inches deep to a depth of 10 to 12 inches. This will prevent the soil from forming a crust, and at the same time made available the top soil food in the new soil deposited by the flood.

The Farm and Home (Kentucky Experiment Station) Money that is spent without a reasonable return is satisfaction is money wasted. Why should money that might be spent for recreation, for instance, go for a light accidentally left burning all night, or for cheap dishes that are quickly broken.

A working library on home-making problems is easily built up. Bulletins obtainable free from the state agricultural college, articles from farm magazines, and good advertising material may give a start. Many persons like to make a scrapbook or keep a card catalog on home beautification, gardens, foods, etc.

To be healthy means more than being physically fit. It includes mental reactions that are sound and having a wholesome, helpful attitude towards other people.

Health depends on heredity and environment, but also upon a person's reactions to his environment. To prevent food spoilage, watch the temperature, moisture and humidity. Cellars and refrigerators may largely control temperature.

When children have a regular schedule of household work, they learn to plan for it and thus develop a sense of responsibility. As most people have to face difficult situations in adult life, it makes it easier if they have learned to carry their share of the load.

When laundering the baby's clothing do it separately from the regular family laundry. A mild soap is preferable. Rinsing that thorough removes all traces of the soap. The clothing of the baby or child may be washed with the regular laundry.

Homemakers' Exchange of Helpful Household Hints and Recipes

Shopping is simplified if you carry several small slips of paper on which your name and address are typed. Give a slip to the clerk when making a purchase. You will save the time usually spent in giving your name and address, and avoid all chance of mistakes.

THE NEXT TIME you have a stubborn nut to unscrew, don't wrestle with it. Just try using the nutcracker. You will find that it will grip the bottle cap and unscrew it easily.

When children's arms outgrow the sleeves of their leather jackets sew a knitted wristlet to the sleeve lining at each cuff. This will keep out the winter wind and eliminate that itchy linings of the jacket.

To enable little folk to recognize their own globes among dozens of others, paint the stripes a bright color.

A CHEESE BISCUIT mix that you can make yourself! Sift together 3 cups of general purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon paprika. Cut in 1/2 cup shortening. Then add 1/2 cup grated cheese. Then store in a modern refrigerator.

No longer do you need someone's scratched arms to help wind into a ball yarn or a ball yarn in skein. Simply put the skein over a lamp shade and loosen the top screw of the lamp so that when winding, the shade will wind.

When people get what is commonly called "that tired feeling," and furthermore become gloomy to serving things, get to the extent that they threaten the peace and happiness of the home, it may be due to the lack of Vitamin C.

When people get what is commonly called "that tired feeling," and furthermore become gloomy to serving things, get to the extent that they threaten the peace and happiness of the home, it may be due to the lack of Vitamin C. ent, or to put it in less professional terms, if people don't eat the fresh fruits and vegetables giving Vitamin C, health is subnormal. Even though actual disease is not apparent, listlessness, excessive tiredness and general lack of vitality is a result. If vitamin C is almost totally absent from the diet, spongy gums, loose teeth and painful joints may follow.

Remedy: eat fresh cabbage, lettuce, potatoes, tomatoes and citrus fruits. This should be an A No. 1 answer to the problem for those farmers, who have these things in abundance. The value of these foods as far as vitamin C is concerned is destroyed in most cases by cooking. The exceptions are potatoes cooked in their jackets, either boiled or baked, and tomatoes.

Quoting a recent report of the Bureau of Home Economics, Washington, D. C. the home economist department points out that the vitamin C content of fresh orange juice is two and a half to three times that of freshly-epurated commercially canned tomato juice. It is further emphasized that all fruit juices lose some of their vitamin if allowed to stand.

Hotbeds and Cold Frames By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture A most valuable adjunct to an efficient garden is a hotbed or cold frame, or both, for by their use is advanced the date of harvest of cabbage, lettuce, radishes, tomatoes, peppers, egg-plants, and sometimes onions.

Both are shallow box-like structures, without top or bottom, which, placed on the ground, enclose space within which seed may be sown or plants set several weeks before this could be done outside, the crops within the frames being protected by covering the frame with glass, canvas or glass substitute. Cold frames are warmed entirely by the sun's rays, but a hotbed has under it a pit filled with manure, straw, fodder or even tree-leaves, which, as it ferments, supplies warmth, both day and night.

For these reasons, it would seem that there is merit in making either a hotbed or a cold frame, or both, and receiving the indicated benefits, to say nothing of the pleasure that attends.

President Asks Aid For Farm Tenants

(Continued from Page One) received about $12,000 more than they earned. This is about 40 per cent of the total that could have been earned. This situation was, due to several factors:

(1) The program was started too late in 1936 for some farmers to make necessary changes in their plans.

(2) A lack of understanding of the principles of the conservation program.

(3) The shortage of money required for using lime, phosphate and other practices for which they would have been paid.

Most of these factors should be overcome for the 1937 program and there is a possibility of a bigger percentage of the farmers participating in the new program which should make it possible for the county to obtain about twice the amount of payments in 1937.

Forest Service Aids Flood Stricken Area

(Continued from Page One) hall, WHAS and other points. The men worked through the days and nights at top speed, getting a little sleep only when they were too tired to continue. Their supplies were soon running low, so the truck left Winchester with food, water, sleeping bags, batteries and lights. Early Wednesday morning water broke through the basement walls of the Starke building and endangered the telephone board. Again a call went out, this time for pumps. Two gasoline pumps were sent from Morehead and arrived late in the afternoon.

Recently 300 cots were received from the Monongahela National Forest in West Virginia to be used by flood refugees in this city. Sixty-seven have been furnished the Red Cross for the colored refugees who have already arrived. Today the U. S. Forest Service is prepared to leave at a moment's notice with men, trucks and heavy equipment. Since the crest of the flood has been reached it is not expected that there will be a demand until the waters have receded enough so that work of clearing and cleaning up can be started.

Soil Conservation Program Completed

(Continued from Page One) on in finding homes on good land. "Fourth, cooperation with state and local agencies of government to promote the general leasing system." The President said action along such lines "should furnish a sound basis for the beginning of a program for improving the present intolerable condition of the low-income farm families." He asserted that the only solution to the problem is "a nationwide program under federal leadership and with the assistance of states, counties, communities and individuals."

Wanna Act? Star Says Be Natural

Do you want to be an actress? Then don't act. This is the paradoxical advice of Wendy Barrie, lovely English actress, appearing in "Under Your Spell" Twentieth Century-Fox picture starring Lawrence Tibbett, which opens Friday at the Coney Theatre.

"The best acting is the complete absence of acting," says Miss Barrie. "Be yourself at all times before the camera and depend entirely upon your own emotions and you will protect the dramatic effect you desire." It was Miss Barrie's complete lack of affectation which won for her her first part. A prominent British director saw her at lunch in London's Savoy Hotel and was so struck by her naturalness that he offered her a part in a picture he was then making. Wendy Barrie accepted and her "natural" screen career began. In addition to Lawrence Tibbett and Wendy Barrie, Gregory Ratoff and Arthur Treacher are prominently featured in "Under Your Spell."

BUSINESS-MAN GAGSTER

Introduces Business Psychology and Methods in Art of Comedy

An inquiring reporter should circulate among the comedians of Broadway and Radio Row to ask "Who's your favorite author?" An answer in many cases would be "Connie Conrad." Not Joseph Conrad, the author of the story but Eugene Conrad, well-known to the comic brotherhood as "the other Conrad."

The comedians who evoke coast-to-coast guffaws on the stage, screen and air, have highly-paid writers and gagmen, who are important behind-the-scenes workers, providing the raw material on which the comedians fashion their acts. They fashion comedy situations and write the gags to fit them, while the artistry of the funny men themselves is mainly concerned with interpretation and delivery.

Slipce radio, voracious consumer of comedy material, has displaced vaudeville (of which one) comedy was good for years of use, the gag specialist has been in great demand. He knows almost every joke ever uttered or printed by man with all the minute variations of each. He also knows that a new joke is as rare as a blue moon.

Such a specialist is Gene Conrad, who puts comedy writing on a big business basis. He has a large staff of writers who supply him with material for a nearly nine-lengths of America's famous gagmen. He is right now his chief assignment is as scripter for Jack Pearl, who recently made a triumphant return to the stage in a familiar characterization, Baron Munchausen.

His career and accomplishments have been almost as phenomenal as those of the white horse. Baron Munchausen is a manager of a salesman and a salesman manager in publishing and business methods and fields, he instituted sales methods which are now in general practice and hang up a number of sales records which still stand. Thirteen years ago an actor friend in Canada had an idea for a play and persuaded him to write it. Without the rebuffs and delays which came almost as a matter of course, he had his first opus immediately produced as a Broadway musical comedy. Three months later he went from Canada to New York to see it for the first time. Another actor friend prevailed upon Conrad to write him a vaudeville sketch. This led to a deluge of orders from friends of the vaudeville, and Gene got a leave of absence from his firm to write them. He recently asked the top boys to be paid for comedy material and naturally got "the usual" answer in 1932. He hasn't had a day's vacation since then.

The list of his comedy clients reads like the Blue Book of stage acting them on this cruise," continued he, "will be Connie's favorite, William Chandler. Do he wear wedding bells?"

In his anxiety to show Gladys the word of the matter, he called in his defense. "I don't believe it! You're partly hidden by bushes. How much does Chandler mean in love with you, Connie? Are you in love with him?"

"Not jealous, are you, Dad?" She patted his cheek fondly, but the serious look in his eyes, and the fact that he was dropping her lightness, in love with him, Dad. More than I ever dreamed I could care for anyone. You like him, don't you?"

"Then stop being mysterious! Tell me what's worrying you!" "The Van Arsdale's say he's married."

"I'm sure you're mistaken, Mrs. Van Arsdale."
"Oh, no we're not! We saw him this afternoon coming from a hotel. We called to him, but he was getting into a taxi and didn't see us. We stopped to leave a message at the hotel and the clerk said, did we speak to his wife, and I said 'Naturally'—and he said she was in the beauty parlor shop. And we saw her!" She laid a hand on Mr. Allenbury's arm. "And, my dear, she's a case—a psychopathic case!"

"She was in a booth," added Babbs, "and kept screaming. Let me out of here! And before we could even speak to her, she rushed past us like a mad woman."
"Oh, look, there's Connie and Mr. Chandler now in that tin-type booth being photographed!" exclaimed Mrs. Van Arsdale.

"You wait here," said Mr. Allenbury hastily. "I'll get them. We'll make a party of it. I'll be right back." He ordered champagne cocktails from a passing waiter, and made his escape.

While Bill was paying the tin-type photographer, Mr. Allenbury took his daughter's arm.

"Connie, I must see you. I can't talk to you here. Come. Never mind Bill; he'll keep." He led her to a secluded spot in a corner of the yard where they were partly hidden by bushes.

"How much does Chandler mean in love with you, Connie? Are you in love with him?"

"Not jealous, are you, Dad?" She patted his cheek fondly, but the serious look in his eyes, and the fact that he was dropping her lightness, in love with him, Dad. More than I ever dreamed I could care for anyone. You like him, don't you?"

"Then stop being mysterious! Tell me what's worrying you!" "The Van Arsdale's say he's married."

For a moment she couldn't utter a word. She rallied to his defense. "I don't believe it! You're partly hidden by bushes. How much does Chandler mean in love with you, Connie? Are you in love with him?"

"Not jealous, are you, Dad?" She patted his cheek fondly, but the serious look in his eyes, and the fact that he was dropping her lightness, in love with him, Dad. More than I ever dreamed I could care for anyone. You like him, don't you?"

"Then stop being mysterious! Tell me what's worrying you!" "The Van Arsdale's say he's married."

"But you said a question?" Bill was bewildered.
"That's a question: Will you marry me?" He turned, without answering, to take her in his arms. She pushed him away.
"But will you?"

GERMAN PLAINS TO SPRAY LARGE FARMS

German military planes will be utilized in future for spraying large agricultural and forest areas in that country where insects become threatening, according to a report to the Louisville District office of the Department of Commerce. Morehead Cinches SIAA Tournament Invitation

Eagles Hold Game Lead In Conference Matches

Morehead college stood in the best spot of any college in Kentucky today with an invitation to the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Tournament assured and the K.I.A.C. championship, based on season's play within the conference practically clinched.

Although defeated at Eastern Friday evening 40-38 in an overtime, the Johnson coached combination came back to take Union 46-40 at Barbourville and Transylvania 42-24 here Monday evening. Those two victories gave Morehead a full game lead on second-place Eastern.

Only by a complete reversal of the dope, based on past performances of all clubs, can Morehead fall to land in first place within the K.I.A.C. Should Morehead lose to Kentucky Wesleyan at Winchester Saturday evening, in their last game, which appears improbable, and Eastern win its three games scheduled this week, which apparently is even more probable the Maroons could top the Eagles by half a game.

The standing then would read:

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Eastern	10	3	.769
Morehead	10	3	.769

However, Eastern meets Western in one of its games, with the Hillsoppers favored. In addition the Maroons are expected to have a difficult time with the other clubs that they meet, for in Kentucky this year most games have been nip and tuck affairs.

On a straight percentage basis Morehead is at least a 5 to 1 favorite to win the K.I.A.C. title based on general standings. For the first time in years it appears likely that Murray will not be an entrant in the S.I.A.A. tournament. Last year the thoroughbred won the S.I.A.A. title, defeating Western of Bowling Green, another Kentucky club, out in the finals. The only way in which Murray can gain an invitation to the S.I.A.A. tournament is for the Racehorses to win the K.I.

Dark Horse May Prove To Be Champ In 14th Regional Basketball Tourney

The high school sports picture in the Fourteenth Region as tournament time nears finds the competition close, with prospects of naming a regional champion remote.

Judging from records already compiled the outstanding teams include: Ashland, Mt. Sterling, Olive Hill, Morgastown, Breckinridge, Soldier and possibly Morehead High.

Coach "Tiny Jones, rated as one of the smartest coaches in eastern Kentucky has a much greater chance than he has had in years past to win the title. He has a team which is expected to be the best in the region.

Records in Kentucky college basketball are against collegiate opposition follows:

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Morehead	11	1	.918
Eastern	10	2	.833
Western	10	2	.833
Kentucky	12	5	.706
Eastern	9	6	.600
Georgetown	7	7	.500
Westleyan	6	7	.462
Louisville	6	4	.444
Centre	6	4	.429
Transylvania	2	8	.200
Transylvania	1	12	.077

Transylvania Five Victimized 42 to 24

Lawrence Carter Paces Winners In 13th Victory Of Season

Transylvania, up-set conqueror of the University of Louisville, failed to come through as expected Monday evening, and Ellis Johnson's Morehead Eagles had an easy time beating the Teachers to win their K.I.A.C. title to a full game and a half.

Lawrence Carter, Harlan county product, who has been in a slump for a few games, came back with his old-time scorching brilliance to rack up seven field goals and four foul points for 18 and individual point-making honors. All of Carter's field goals were unopposed and his guard under the basket.

With Fitzpatrick dropping in four field goals and a foul point in the first 15 minutes Transylvania managed to stay close to the Eagles. With five minutes remaining in the first half the Teachers were ahead 14-12. Coach Johnson shifted his lineup at this point sending Kiser in at center, and moved Carter to a forward and Arznen to a guard post. Arznen held Fitzpatrick in check and Carter paced a five-minute attack on the basket to give Morehead a 22-13 lead at the half.

The Eagles continued the attack in the opening of the second half to lead 30-16 after five minutes and 38-16 with eight minutes remaining when Johnson substituted his entire team. The Morehead Reserves played the tiring Pioneers on about even terms during the balance of the fray.

Fitzpatrick's early attack on the basket enabled him to share scoring honors on his club with Froyer. Both made nine points.

The Morehead scoring was fairly evenly divided, except for Carter's hefty total. Stanley Arznen and James Ishmael, the other scorers on the Eagles' club didn't make many points but did a good job of feeding it under the basket. Especially was Arznen's defensive performance outstanding. Ed Kiser and Buck Horton also showed up well.

Morehead continued their good foul-shooting percentage by making 10 of 13. The Teachers hit the first 10 free throws they tried. Transylvania made six of 14 gratis tosses.

Eagles Beat Union Bulldogs By 46-40

Blue And Gold Loses To Eastern 40-38 In Extra Period

Morehead college attracted record crowds to their two-day basketball trip at Richmond and Barbourville Friday and Saturday. At Richmond the Eagles succumbed to the Eastern Maroons 40-38 in an overtime battle, but they defeated Union 46-40 at Barbourville.

The Eastern fray was replete with thrills with Morehead in the lead most of the time. However, Eastern stepped in a set throw seconds before the game ended, tie the score at 24-24.

In overtime Lacey made a field goal and Arznen two of three free throws good, but Rankin and King's holders and a brace of foul points by Delaney enabled the Maroons to win.

From a standpoint of thrills, the game was the best that the Eagles have played this year, but on the basis of good playing the Johnson men were not up to top form. Eastern's other hand, turned in one of their best games of the year.

Morehead jumped into an early 8-2 lead at Union, saw this diminished to two points after 15 minutes had elapsed in the first half and then ran it back to 24-18 at the intermission. The Eagles clung to this advantage throughout the second half, their lead never being less than four or more than eight.

Both teams were at peak form this match. Union, having a distinct advantage on the smaller, poorly-lighted floor, cashed in on long shots. Morehead, depended on crisp and close-in baskets, plus free throws to win the game. The Eagles made good on 16 out of 18 foul shots. In field goals, Union out-scored Morehead making 16 to the Teachers 15.

Breckinridge Defeats Washington School

The two Fraley boys and Clinton Tatum led the Morehead-Breckinridge basketball team to a clear-cut and well-earned 22-11 victory over Washington High here last Wednesday. Washington, conqueror of Newport, one of Kentucky's strongest clubs, were pre-game favorites over the Morehead team.

Thursday evening Breckinridge will entertain the strong Olive Hill High school. Competing which are unbeaten in the Ekay conference. Breck is not a member of the league but defeated Olive Hill by six points earlier in the season. The Breck club goes to Washington Friday. Morehead High will play Russell here Saturday in a conference match.

Fans who are planning to attend the K.I.A.C. tournament at Richmond should make reservations now. Hotel accommodations are likely to be at a premium.
