FEDERAL SUITS INSTITUTED TO CLEAR TITLES TO TRACTS OPTIONED; NOTHING TO FEAR

Property Owners Concerned Over Summons To Covington, Need Not Fear; Purpose Only To Clear Titles To Land

Summons to the federal court at Covington, Ky., which have been causing considerable alarm among property owners in this county, are not nearly as serious as they appear, according to Mr. Tenyson Redwine, who has charge of the Government work of clearing the titles to property in this county. Mr. Redwine stated to a News reporter that he had been put to a great deal of trouble explaining the reason for the summons being issued.

The land owners were served with notices to appear before the federal court at Covington solely for the purpose of clearing their titles and the titles of the land under option to the government for the establishment of the Cumberland Forest area in this section. In his examinations of titles for the purposes of making abstracts to the land under option, Mr. Redwine has found approximately sixty tracts out of eighty examined to have defective titles in some way. Before the government will purchase the land the titles must be absolutely clear. Chief among the things which effect the titles is the over lapping of some tracts in the boundaries.

When a tract of this sort is found not only the owner of the land under option but the owner of every tract bounding that tract is summoned to appear before the court to establish the boundaries and clear the title. In most cases it is merely a formal matter. At any rate it is to the advantage of every property owner to have this title cleared by the federal government, as it thereby perfects the title of the land under option, but that of adjoining lands as well.

CIRCUIT COURT

The crowds in town this week are the usual Circuit Court crowds, milling about, waiting for something to happen. Some are here on business bent; some are here because they can't help themselves; some are here merely as curiosity seekers.

LAST WEEK'S ISSUE

The News has received so many complimentary comments on the issue of last week that they are becoming slightly embarrassed. We can only say what we believe, that the compliments were not so much for the News, as they were an indication of the great love and respect of the entire mass of citizens for Judge Young, to whom the edition was dedicated.

Incidentally several thousand extra copies were printed and the edition was exhausted completely on Monday of this week. People are still dropping in to the News office to order additional copies. We are sorry to be obliged to announce that there are no more copies available.

THE REGIONAL

About this time each year the chief topic of conversation in Morehead is, who will win the Regional Tournament. Morehead will again be hosts this year to the visiting teams from this section of the state.

The Regional tournament has come to be one of the high lights of the year in Morehead. And the most peculiar part of it is the interest not only the people of the town but the people of the rural rural districts are taking in the

Morehead Baptist Church To Hold Revival; Rev. Gaines Will Preach

The Morehead Baptist Church has announced its plans for a revival meeting to begin April 16 and to continue through the two following Sundays. Rev. Louis S. Gaines, Pastor of the First Baptist Church, Lexington, North Carolina, and an intimate friend of Pastor Karee, has been asked to come and do the preaching. His consent has been received and plans are now going forward for the meeting. The singing will be, as usual, in charge of the local Pastor. Rev. Gaines is also a good singer and his work in former meetings with Pastor Karee has prepared them both to do a suitable work together in song. Further announcements about the meeting will be made later.

April is to be known as Go-to-Sunday-School month. The Kentucky Sunday School Association under the direction of Dr. George A. Joplin has planned to foster an entire month of Sunday School attendance rather than only one day. Dr. Joplin was here about a week ago and made plans with the local pastors and Sunday School Superintendents to observe the entire month it is deemed best to foster the whole month, inasmuch as attendance on several Sundays may bring about the habit of going to Sunday School, while the one day would not be so likely to do so. It is expected that the local committee will make special announcements from the pulpits and by posters. Special days will be observed designating each Sunday with some particular emphasis to be made known by the committee.

Corn-Hog Program Folk Dancing Brought To A Close Classes To Open

The Rowan County Corn-Hog Production Control Association will be organized Saturday March 9th at the Court House. Each farmer who has signed an application for a Corn-Hog contract will be eligible to vote in the election of 1936 Committee. The committee will be composed of farmers who have signed contracts. As the Association will have forty to fifty members. Farmers will be allowed to sign contracts for some time yet. But only farmers who have signed by March 9th will participate in the organization.

The committee elected March 9th will attend a training meeting on March 11th to receive instructions relative to their duties as committee members. Grady Sellards of the Kentucky Experiment Station and County Agent Chas. L. Goff will instruct committee at this meeting.

Beginning Monday, March 11, the Morehead State Teachers' College will have Danish Folk Dancing classes which will be under the direction of Denver Collins, noted recreation leader from the Carr Creek Community Center.

At the regular chapel hour for the State Highway Department this week, Mr. Collins, aided by students of the college, will present folk dance programs.

Mr. Collins will also have charge of a recreation period at the College gymnasium each evening of the State Highway Department at 7:00 to 8:00 p. m. During folk hour, he will teach Danish folk dances, English Country dances, and Kentucky running sets to the college students. In the endeavor "to show the joy of doing things in rhythm as well as providing wholesome form of recreation."

Church To Stage J. S. Hobbs Dies Of Heart Attack * Automobile Race

What might be termed a unique automobile race is being staged at the Christian church Bible school starting next Sunday morning. The Bible school has been divided by classes into two divisions. One division of the school is riding in a for the other division of the school is riding in a Buick. The mileage is determined by the attendance and offering. Each one present counts a mile. Each penny of the offering counts a mile. Each Sunday will witness a lap in the race and the mileage will be computed and carried forward each Sunday.

The picture of the two cars with the classes riding in the cars are displayed in the church. Each Sunday the cars will be moved forward or backward as the mileage is computed. The race will continue on the second Sunday in May, Mother's Day, when a grand lap and final check up will be made. Much interest has already been aroused in the unique project.

J. S. Hobbs, concrete inspector for the State Highway Department died suddenly Saturday morning following an attack of acute indigestion according to the Coroner's inquest held following his death.

Mr. Hobbs had been complaining for several days of pains in his stomach, and had been attempting to cure himself. He had decided to consult a doctor or get some medicine and had gone to Bishop's Drug store for that purpose. As he was waiting for a clerk, he suddenly groaned and fell over. He was carried to the Midland Trail Garage where he died before medical assistance could reach him.

Mr. Hobbs lived in Louisville although he was a native of Nicholas county. He was connected with the State Highway Department in the capacity of concrete inspector, and was in Morehead for that purpose. He had been here since the work on the street last fall. The remains were taken to Nicholasville where funeral services were held at the home of his aunt on Monday. Burial was made in Nicholasville.

Truck Jams Five Cars Together

Six cars, including the Aetna Oil Truck were wrecked Monday night when the truck side swiped an automobile parked in front of the Midland Trail Hotel, and rammed it into several cars parked beside it. The accident is said to have been caused by the driver of the truck, Elwood Candell dropping to sleep while driving.

The truck drove into the first car and jammed it up against the next. Each car was shoved into the car next to it and all were damaged to a considerable extent. Mr. Caswell's truck was protected by property damage insurance, so that the damages were taken care of immediately. The total damage to all cars amounted to about $300.00.

To Sponsor Dance On Friday Night

On Friday night of this week following the session of the basketball tournament at the College Gymnasium, the tournament dance will be held at the Morehead High school gymnasium. The music will be furnished by the King's Jesters Orchestra, a local musical organization under the direction of Earl Young, which has gained considerable reputation as a dance orchestra.

The dance will be under the auspices of the Morehead Woman's Club and the funds realized will be used for the purpose of further equipping the playground established by that organization at the public school. Subscription to the dance will be One Dollar. Everyone is invited to attend.

Horton Receives Adapted Ballads

L. H. Horton, music department head, has received copies from a Chicago publishing house of mountain ballads and other songs, which are arranged especially. Rev. Daniel H. Kiser, pastor of the Morehead Baptist Church, collaborated with Mr. Horton in the arrangement of the ballads. The songs are: "Madame, I Have Come A-Courtin'", "Red Rover, Red Rover", "Moore's Echoes", "Brahms' Lullaby", and "The Waggoner's Lad."

Huge Sum Is Paid In Taxes Last Month

$14,198.72 Collected During Past Month; Total Over $50,000

Tax collecting for the month of February ran to the startling total of $14,198.72, according to Mort May, sheriff and tax-collector. Most of December when the largest total was paid in, this was by far the largest monthly collection made by Mr. May. December was larger by several thousand dollars due to the fact that the C. and O. Railroad Company and other franchise holders made their payments in that month. The February collection were of taxes only.

The total collections to date amounted to $46,307.09. Outside of the franchise money the sheriff is charged with taxes to the amount of $38,000.

As no tax payment extension was granted this year, the taxes became payable on March 1, and after that date the penalty and interest was put on. Some tax payers may have

Morehead Faculty, Students Heard In Broadcast Over WSM Friday

Morehead State Teachers College went on the air Friday night at 9:30 when members of the college and training school broadcast a program over WSM, Nashville. This broadcast was a splendid one in a series of teachers college's broadcasts sponsored by The George Peabody College for Teachers. The series is under the direction of Dr. A. L. Crabb of Peabody.

"Conservation" was the theme of the Morehead program. The reason for the use of this theme, according to Aimee Irene Moore who directed the program, is that Morehead is situated in one of the most beautiful regions of Kentucky and every department of the college teaches in some form the value of conservation.

Speakers in the order of their appearance on the program were as follows: Miss Moore, Dr. W. W. Welter, Chiles Van Antwerp, Dr. A. Y. Lloyd, Jesse Mayes and Dean W. H. Vaughan who gave the closing speech in the absence of President J. H. Payne who was unable to make the trip on account of illness.

A ONE DOLLAR RELIEF VOUCHER

Three Sixteen mile trips to the post office to get it. Two thirty mile trips to Morehead to get it. One hundred eight miles in all to get get a ONE DOLLAR Relief voucher so that he would not have to work.

That is the record of a certain man in Rowan County. Let the man be nameless, as he was evidently shameless. The story is that he was offered work and refused it on the ground that he would be cut off the relief rolls and would be ineligible to receive his One Dollar voucher. In other words he was just too lazy and shiftless to work.

But— He lived eight miles from the nearest post office. And— He made three trips to that post office walking sixteen miles each time. The voucher was not there.

Then— He made two trips to Morehead which was a distance of 108 miles to get a dollar, without working for it, instead of taking his ax and walking to the hills to cut ties, honest labor which would have netted him several times the amount of money he received from the government for doing NOTHING.

While we sincerely believe that there are a few in this county who are unable to work or make a living, we can scarcely believe that any man who is able to walk 108 miles is physically unfit for honest toil. We are unable to picture any man with an atom of self-respect demanding that he be supported without effort on his part to help himself. We believe that there is nothing so completely disgusting as an able bodied man has no reason for not working because he is to lazy to lift a spade or ax or shovel in honest effort.

And we believe with all sincerity that there is not a man in Rowan county who cannot make a living for himself and his family if he had the "guts" to get out and try. Consequently we have no sympathy with the fellows that we see rushing the grocery stores presenting vouchers paid by the rest of us who still retain sufficient self respect to get out and work for what we get.

Incidentally we know of several widows who, if anyone deserves help from the government, are entitled to it, who are working and paying their way, and yet, who, in common with the balance of the self-respecting people are helping to pay for the support of these so-called men, who far from being ashamed of their dependence are rather proud of the fact that they are living without effort on their part while widows who work are paying their expenses.

A RIGHTEOUS PROTEST

It has recently come to our attention that a movement is on foot to label foods— particularly canned foods— with a grade system. For instance, "Canned Peas—Grade A" would supposedly tell the buyer all she is to know. The canning industry protests, and we believe, rightly, that such a system will tell the buyer nothing, will tend to reduce quality, lessen the farmers' and growers income, open up unlimited price competition, and raise havoc all down the line.

The counter suggestion of the canning industry is descriptive labeling, labeling which will tell the consumer all that the canner is able to state in definite, accurate terms about the product in the can— the method of preparation; amount of contents in measure, pieces, or numbers of servings; color; etc., more in fact than the purchaser would know about fresh fruits or vegetables when purchased.

The value of the descriptive label is obvious. This additional information, coupled with the purchaser's acceptance of a well-known brand name, would make substitution, either by canner or dealer, well nigh impossible.

We believe the canning industry is meeting the trend of the times by proposing to tell purchasers of their products all about the product, by means of the label. More power to them.

JUDGE YOUNG PRAISED BY STATE GROUP

Lexington, Ky., March 2. — A resolution on the death of Senator Young's wife and Allie Young, Morehead, was adopted today by the executive committee of the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association at meeting here. The resolution lauded the late Senator Young as "one of the greatest patriotic public citizens of the time."

Another resolution urged that the Democratic State Central Executive Committee and other authorities use all their wisdom in selecting a man of high character and ability to fill the important vacancy caused by the death of Senator Young as Democratic National Commit-

The resolution urged that the Democratic State committees or other leading Democrats in the State assume the duties of Senator Young's wife and Allie Young, Morehead, and ascertain from her "if Judge Young, during his illness, expressed a desire to have anyone succeed him, and fill out the unexpired term as Democratic National Committeeman," and if so to carry out his desire.

Dr. J. L. Vallandingham, president of the association, read a letter he received from Senator Young just prior to his death in answer to a request from the association asking if the Senator would accept appointment as one of the members of the advisory council of the organization. "Yes go right along I am willing to serve in any capacity

In this movement, Dr. Vallandingham quoted the letter as stating: "A resolution endorsing the courageous leadership of Lieut. Gov. A. B. Chandler in calling the special session of the Legislature, which has given the people of Kentucky a chance to have a voice in selecting the officials who will have charge of the affairs of Kentucky for the next four years, also was adopted by the association's executive committee."

The resolution stated "We further resolve to thank those other courageous men who joined with Lieutenant Governor Chandler in making this fight for the people." It declared that "as the nature of the Legislature under Lieutenant Governor Chandler's leadership has given to us the opportunity to select honest and competent men for important places in Kentucky's Government that we, with all our determination and energy, pledge ourselves to a programme of selecting men for office who will be true to the trust imposed on them, and their official capacity to represent the people of Kentucky."

Members of the association's executive committee, besides Dr. Vallandingham, who signed the resolutions were M. C. Howard, E. P. Land and W. E. Scott.

VINSON ATTACKS DOUBLE TAXATION

Washington, March 6. — Cooperation between Federal and State agencies was termed essential for equitable redistribution of tax burdens by Representative Vinson, Democratic Kentucky, in a speech today before the Interstate Assembly of Legislators.

The programme of the assembly was devoted almost entirely to the question of confiscating taxes, which Vinson said was as old as taxation itself.

This is a work that must be done, and now is the time for action, we should see that the burden of taxes is distributed as equitably as possible, Vinson said.

Vinson said he regarded the assembly as a great power for the achievement of that goal, and suggested that the assembly's commission on conflicting taxation meet with the House Ways and Means sub-committee on public taxation of which he is chairman.

HOLMS IS WEAKER PHYSICIANS REPORT

Washington, March 2 — Oliver Wendell Holmes, beloved friend of the Supreme Court, is losing slightly in his courageous battle for life, his physicians said today after a bedside consultation, Dr. J. H. Rogers, pneumonic, the aged man was under an oxygen tent a measure resorted to when pneumonia patients are desperately ill.

Fresh supplies of oxygen were taken to the jurist's home during the night.

Longscope and Dr. Ecker, we find the Justice a little weaker than he was yesterday and in view of his very advanced age, this is a disappointing condition.

MAN WHO REARED 47 ORPHANS DEAD

John Everett Reese who reared 47 orphan children under the novel principal of "spare the bank book and spoil the child, shot and killed himself today.

But it was not because of any wrongdoing on the part of the children he took under his care. Most of them are now proudly said, cannot fine, under his bankbook discipline. Coroner Edward Cook said the 78 year old Bachelor farmer killed himself because of ill health.

successfully opposed. The question as to whether or not under the rules of the Senator the bill could be brought out for consideration without the consent of 26 members. Judge Young had written the rules requiring that number to bring a bill from committee. Senator Brock was supporting the Sales Tax vigorously and was making a determined effort to have it re-considered. Judge Young feared that they would hold the Senate rules inoperative and set them aside. In order to get an expression he advocated the bringing out of a "fish" bill that had been sent back to the committee. He made another passionate plea in favor of the bill. Brock opposed it. Judge Young fought to bring it from the committee and Brock opposed it. Judge Young's request for 26 members to vote in favor of it before it could be brought out, Lieut. Gov. Chandler ruled in favor of Brock. Judge Young took the floor and amidst the laughter of the Senate made a one sentence statement: "I don't like fish anyway." He had forced the issue and forced Brock to support the rule which killed the Sales Tax in the 1932 session.

His power was the most finished piece of parliamentary work that has ever been witnessed in Frankfort.

Two extra pleas illustrated as no other man showed, capable brain and the ultra-smart tactics employed to gain the end that he believed was for the best interest of Kentucky.

To the state at large, Judge Young was merely a politician. To his friends in the state and in Morehead he was not a politician so much as he was a statesman. There is a distinct difference.

Judge Young never capitalized in this power for personal gain. He gave a $20,000 a year position to take up his work in the Senate that he might devote his entire time to serving his people. He proved that and again that he had no personal gain in the loss of a friend who could not be replaced - and sorrow for the loss suffered by the people of Kentucky.

On the day of his funeral services at Morehead, I saw thousands of his mountain neighbors pass by his bier with bowed heads and tear strained cheeks, which conveyed to me the full meaning of their sorrow and loss.

It is related that early in his fighting career a man had left behind a record of his character, accomplishments and charity which should be a standard for the people of Kentucky, especially of the mountains to strive to equal.

bright and shining sword which he so long wielded and carry on the battle for his section and for all the people in the State of Kentucky.

Signed: Robert Humphreys, Mayfield, Ky. President, Protem of Kentucky State Senate.

Dan Talbot Writes

It is with great timidity, caused by the knowledge of my lack of expression, that I undertake to make a statement regarding one of the truest and most loyal friends God Almighty ever gave me - sorrow for years I have known Judge Young personally and during these years I had occasion to seek his advice many times, I feel that I have never seen a man so turned back to every fortune in receiving advice from one of the greatest Kentuckians.

During the time I have known him I have seen the great and the humble approach him seeking the advice of one who had never been known to be quite capable. I have seen many call upon him for material aid, as well as advice regarding important matters of the state and Nation, and I have never seen a man turned back without receiving that which he sought. It has been observed by me that those who followed his advice never had occasion to regret.

For almost fifty years Judge Young fought a bitter battle for his own existence and that of his family; a battle for the people of Kentucky and especially for the people of the mountains.

Just a few weeks ago I saw him leave his home in the mountains and go down to Louisville with all the apparent vigor and health his giant construction would imply for the purpose of continuing this battle he had fought for so many years. In this line of duty he was stricken with the disease that conquered his indomitable spirit.

It was with the deepest sorrow I learned of his death. I know of no friend who could not be replaced - and sorrow for the loss suffered by the people of Kentucky.

On the day of his funeral services at Morehead, I saw thousands of his mountain neighbors pass by his bier with bowed heads and tear strained cheeks, which conveyed to me the full meaning of their sorrow and loss.

It is related that early in his fighting career a man had left behind a record of his character, accomplishments and charity which should be a standard for the people of Kentucky, especially of the mountains to strive to equal.

Yours very truly,
Dan Talbot.

A Tribute From M. S. T. College.

Stately halls of learning nesting at the foot of a protecting mountain are only a vision in the mind of Judge Allie W. Young, now stand as an impressive and fitting monument to the memory of this benefactor of the youth of Eastern Kentucky, who of the State Teachers College will be to posterity an epic in stone and marble of his love for the people of Morehead, of Eastern Kentucky, and of the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

Through the strenuous efforts of Judge Young, Morehead was chosen as the site for a state teachers college. The wisdom of that choice is being emphasized to a greater and greater degree with each passing year. He resigned a lucrative position to enter the Kentucky Senate to make sure that the institution once established, would not be starved into a state of impotency. All his political skill and astuteness were called into service and directed by his tremendous energy to the end that his dream of a college equal to any in the land for the young men and women of Eastern Kentucky however poor or humble, would be a reality. Morehead today is evidence that his unselfish vision has become a splendid reality.

Under the stimulation of his guiding hand the college has attained a record of growth that is outstanding in the nation.

As Morehead prospered, the other educational institutions of the Commonwealth prospered. When Judge Young fought for and obtained an appropriation for Morehead he also secured even greater appropriations for her sister institutions.

May the unconquered spirit of Judge Allie W. Young, which is so woven into the very fabric of wood of this, his beloved State Teachers College, lead Morehead on and on to greater and nobler triumphs and achievements. "His strength lies in us; we can not fail."

A TRIBUTE

Judge Young In The Legislature

Judge Young's greatest brilliancy was demonstrated when he went to the legislative sessions at Frankfort. His rooms at the Capital Hotel were the center of activity in the capital city, and the majority of the bills were acted on in these rooms rather than on the floor. The vote was a mere formality after the meeting in his rooms.

Perhaps the most outstanding events that illustrated Judge Young's cleverness and his far-sighted knowledge of human nature and people were the two that follow.

In the 1926 session Judge Young pledged to support a bill creating another normal school up the Big Sandy. He had promised a friend that he would support the measure if he introduced it in the House, and it got to the Senate. We do not know, but we naturally suppose that Judge Young's hope was that the bill would not pass the House that he would therefore not be called on to make good his word. As so happened, the bill did pass the House by a big majority and there was nothing for the Judge to do but support it and fight for its passage would injure the college in which he was interested. He also knew the futility of establishing another such institution in the State.

Friends here wondered what would happen. They knew the Judge and they knew his word was as good as his bond. Here's what happened. A substitute bill was introduced in the Senate creating three additional teachers colleges. Judge Young made an impression plea for the passage of the bill, saying that it was the duty of the state to bring education within the reach of every child in the state. He succeeded in obtaining seven votes for its passage. And he, was absolutely sincere in his efforts to obtain its passage. But it is suspected that in the privacy of his own room, he breathed a sigh of relief that the bill was dead.

Probably the cleverest bit of parliamentary work ever staged in Frankfort occurred two years ago. When Senator Brock made an edict of the Sales Tax, which Judge Young was bitterly and

Mayfield Senator Extends Tribute

On last Thursday afternoon I attended the sad and impressive funeral of Judge Allie Young at Morehead and later his funeral on the beautiful hill at Mt. Sterling. I speak with the voice of a people more than four hundred miles distance from the mountain home of my dear friend. I am a comparative recent friend of the deceased. It has not been my good fortune to know him but a few short years, but I soon learned that all people whether from the valleys, the mountains or the blue grass who believe in the rights of the ordinary man could unite in the love and respect of Allie W. Young. I loved him like I have loved few men. I drew from him inspiration and courage to carry on and to fight the battles of my less-fortunate brothers. I am bowed low in grief and am stricken with my irreparable loss but I am thankful that I was allowed to know him and to be closely associated with him during the latter years of his life. To my own people I bring here a message of sympathy and sorrow and I call upon you to seize the

NEW CASTLE IND. NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Salyer and Mrs. Bert Salyer, of Salt Lick, Ky., arrived here Saturday night. They will make their home at the Dallas Harry residence.

Mrs. Sadie Lye and son Howard were visiting in Newcastle Saturday night.

The revival held at the church of God at corner of Walnut and 18th street in Newcastle is reported as being a big success.

Rev. Leslie Brown of Lexington is preaching. Mrs. George Salyer is the guest of her sister Mrs. Eudine Lye of 18 street.

Mr. Roy Jones and family have moved to the Harry Rutledge residence.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Fannin announce the arrival of their first child, a baby girl, on February 16, at the Henry County Hospital.

224 DEATHS

Last year there were thirteen cases in this country. These cases cost the parent not less than from fifty dollars to one hundred dollars each when one trip to the doctor before hand, at such a little cost, would be entirely eliminated.

What is the trouble can be stopped entirely. If they would like their babies to the doctor and have it immunized against diphtheria just as soon as it is old enough, in a few years, we would not have such a thing as diphtheria and that fear would be entirely eliminated.

What if it does make it cry for a few minutes? It will not do it any longer and diphtheria will kill, in coming up the excess that parent put up, we find the following: Thirty one per cent make the following answers: "I will next time." "Too much trouble." "All right, if the child wants it." "For got to come."

Sixteen per cent include such answers as the following: "Too young yet." "Already had diphtheria." "Wait till exposed." "Another kid." "Not afraid of diphtheria: "We did not have it when we were children." "Never been sick any, I will risk it."

Fifty one per cent make such answers as: "Don't believe in it"; "Made neighbors child sick once"; "Religious objections"; "Poisons the blood"; "Previous unpleasant experience"; "It would hurt"; "Don't like the idea."

The remaining per cent make the following excuses: "Child has been sick"; "Just came to the county"; "Our friend who writes Dr. before his name" advises against it.

It appears therefore, that the failure to wipe out diphtheria completely is due to the opposition of the parent. When will this attitude of the parent be changed so that they will see their doctor at the proper time and the baby immunized against this dreadful disease?

FEDERAL SUITS

(Continued From Page One) In this county, according to Mr. Redwine there were innumerable pieces of property to which the title is subject to question, due to a number of agencies. Many of them were transferred from the old patents and were not clearly defined.

Others were sold at tax sale and were never redeemed. All these things enter into a clear title which is required by the government before they will purchase a tract.

It is in order to clear up these details that the government is instituting suits.

So if you are summoned in the future, it will be well to remember that it is not a matter for alarm, but rather one which will do the property owner the favor of establishing his title clearly and without doubt.

ABOUT TOWN

(Continued From Page One) game. Practically every rural school now has some kind of a basketball team, and some knowledge of the game has been obtained by every patron of every school. This when you speak of Regional tournaments, nearly every one who visits knows what you are talking about.

It is somewhat of a contrast when one considers the condition of a few years ago.

Twenty years ago, the first high school basketball team of this section was being organized at Haldeman and Morehead.

The game was a novelty to nearly everyone except possibly a few college students. The interest was nothing. Boys had better work at something useful than play a silly game like basketball.

But all that has changed now. Basketball has taken hold, not only in Morehead and Haldeman, but in Elliottsville, Farmers, Clearfield and the rural schools. Almost every school has an outdoor court with baskets hanging at various angles, and some hotly contested games are staged between the pupils themselves.

The world wages on.

CIRCUIT JUDGE

Taking up the Relief situation he scoured the lazy, able-bodied men who should be earning their own living, up the sweat of their brow. He said the situation should be thoroughly investigated.

"We are paying these bills," he said, "we are paying out this money. The taxpayers are paying out this money, and it is time for us to see that they stop wasting it."

TAXES

year an extension was granted to April 15 this year no such extension was granted.

Comparatively speaking, the collections are very satisfactory, according to Mr. May. Assessment values have decreased in the past few years to such an extent that they are less than half what they were four years ago.

A $1.50 Dinner for 6. Illustration of a family at a dinner table with a sign saying 'DINNER'S READY'.

Oven-Baked French Fried Potatoes
Current Jelly
Bread and Butter
Peach and Banana Salad
Dress
The ingredients of the first dish are as follows:
3 baked chicken 2 tbsp. Sour
1 large egg 1 1/2-cup can chicken
1/2 cup butter without rice
1/4 cup evaporated milk
1 cup water 6 salt
2 tbsp. butter 1/2 salt and pepper
Cut up chicken, dust with flour and salt, and dip each piece first in beaten egg, then in crumbs. Place in a well-greased flat pan (some people like to use two glass plate plates) so the pieces are only one layer deep. Place in a hot oven—400 degrees—having the pan covered for the first fifteen minutes. Baste occasionally with the quarter cup of butter melted in the third of a cup water. Bake from forty-five minutes to an hour, or until tender. Meanwhile make a rich sauce by melting the three tablespoons butter, adding the evaporated milk and season with salt and pepper. Four over chicken when done.
The ingredients of the salad are:
6 canned peach 6 lettuce leaves
2 bananas 1/2 cup mayonnaise
Arrange crisp lettuce leaves on salad plates. In the center of each place a mound of dried banana. Cover with an inverted peach half, and dress with mayonnaise.

March 10 is about as late as sweet fingers in raking the lawn, so grass peas should be sowed. Dig a trench 6 inches deep, loosen the soil in the bottom 4 inches, and enrich with a bushel of well rotted cow manure or 2 pounds of complete fertilizer per 25 foot row. Mark a row 2 inches deep in the trench and cover seed 2 1/2 to 3 inches, filling trench as plants grow.

Looses. Do not disturb the mound of earth around hybrid tea roses until all danger of frost has passed and growth started. Pruning back to this mound removes most of the bare pieces, but where soil is winter kill and the plants will be fairly well pruned for the coming season.

The Lawn. If bluegrass seed was not sowed last fall, sow the last of the bare pieces, but where soil is winter kill and the plants will be fairly well pruned for the coming season.

Use broom or rake with flexible season.

Farm And Agriculture News

By Professor Henry C. Haggan

Head Of Agriculture Department, Morehead College

VOISTEROL — Bille (1931) carried on an experiment of feeding cod liver oil and visterol to birds confined in batteries. The cod-liver oil fed battery hatched 25.9 percent better than the visterol fed battery. In other words, vitamin D from visterol is not as efficient in promoting hatchability as that from cod liver oil.

Branion and Smith (1932) found that visterol (irradiated eggsterol) is not as efficient as cod liver oil in promoting egg production and hatchability. When birds confined in batteries were given an overdose of visterol the percentage hatchability fell rapidly to a very low level in two months and the last three months of the experiment not a single chick was hatched from the battery.

SUNSHINE — Branion and Smith (1932) point out that there is a marked improvement in the hatchability of confined birds when they are permitted to run outside in the spring sunshine. It is well known that there is an increase in the ultra-violet light in sunlight as spring advances and that this has a correspondingly influence on the increase of hatchability.

Hughes (1925) secured hatchability percent of 58.4 for a pen of birds outside in sunlight as compared with a pen outside but received ultra-violet light 78, and a control pen inside receiving no light 40.4 percent.

Martin and Insko (1929) regard sunshine as an important factor in securing high hatchability.

Martin, Erikson, and Insko (1930) showed that hatchability of eggs could be increased if the confined pen receiving no supplement is fed cod liver oil or treated with irradiation, or given access to direct sunlight.

IRRADIATION — Branion and Smith (1932) state that recently investigators have used ultra-violet irradiations from artificial sources either direct or indirectly by the irradiation of the ration.

Hughes (1925) using White Leghorn hens in experiment divided into three parts, control, irradiated, and fed cod liver oil secured a hatchability of 70 percent for the irradiation pen as compared with 74-percent hatchability for the cod liver oil pen and 55 percent for control pen. He then used another experiment comparing birds indoors without irradiation, in sunlight out of doors and another pen indoors but receiving ultra-violet light. The indoor pen receiving no irradiation gave a hatchability percent of 40, 4, the birds having access to sunlight outdoors 58.4 percent hatchability, and the indoor pen with ultra-violet light 78.1 percent hatchability.

Hart and his co-workers (1925) secured a hatchability of 60-70 percent in an irradiated pen of birds while the pen receiving no irradiation and confined inside gave a hatchability percent as low as zero.

Martin and Insko (1929) secured a higher percent of hatchability in irradiated pens of White Leghorns and Barded Plymouth Rocks than when cod liver oil was used.

GLASS SUBSTITUTE — Branion and Smith (1932) state that glass substitutes which allow light to penetrate to the birds, have not been investigated to some extent.

RANGE — Martin, Erikson, and Insko (1930) found that bluegrass range and sunshine with a good basal ration were effective in producing eggs having a high percentage of hatchability.

Hatchability In Relation To Of Lights In The Poultry House — Penpie and Thompson (1930) mention that problems in poultry husbandry dealing with artificial light in houses that commanded the attention of poultrymen for many years, but it is only recently that the use of continuous light throughout the night have been reported. July (1930) permitted to burn all night during the winter months in certain oil sections of Oklahoma and Texas where gas is readily available.

In this discussion, we are only concerned with the effect of lights on hatchability.

Kenard and Chamberlain (1931) at the Ohio Experiment Station did not find light to be injurious to hatchability. They also found that all night light was valuable for bringing slow maturing, late hatched, or inferior pullets into production.

Penquite and Thompson (1933) state that all night light or continuous light did not materially decrease the percentage of healthy chicks hatched.

Godfrey and Titus (1934) used electric lights on confined and confined pen of White Leghorns from September 15 to April 15. The lights were turned on each morning at 5 A. M. until daylight. The confined birds were given cod liver oil and no deleterious effect was found on fertility and hatchability.

Payne and Simmons (1934) in comparing the profitability of hens and pullets under artificial light and found that the pullets gave slightly better than the hens, however, the difference was not great. The lightened groups were slightly higher than the unlightened groups.

Methods Of Rearing — Buckner, Martin, and Insko (1934) brooded three pens of chickens and compared them as to their percent hatchability. Pen one was raised in a colony brooder, pen 2 was started and kept in a battery brooder for six weeks and then transferred to a colony brooder, and pen 3, was raised to maturity in a battery brooder. They found no difference in the percent hatchability in the three methods of brooding the chicks.

Mercurial Ointment — It is a known fact that some poultrymen use mercurial ointment in ridding their birds of lice. Pearl and Surface (1915) advocated this method in but they had not studied its effect upon hatchability but only from the standpoint of killing the lice. Deakin and Robertson (1932) showing that this method was determined to the hatch decided to carry no more extensive experiments as little work along this line had been done. Their experiments involved three procedures. First, eggs were set under treated hens for varying lengths of time, then transferred to the incubator, and thirdly, eggs were treated directly with ointment and then incubated. They found the following results. The embryo in eggs set under hens treated with mercurial ointment die before the third day of incubation. The eggs set under treated hens for 48, 24, 12, and 2 hours showed a gradual increase in mortality after passing the 2 hour stage. When the eggs were treated directly with the ointment and then artificially incubated, a few embryos survived this treatment indicating a resistance either on the part of the embryo or the membranes to the poison. Thus we might conclude that mercurial ointment should not be used on breeding stock during, and probably two or three months previous to, the breeding season.

B. Hatchability In Relation To Minerals

Buckner, Martin, and Peter (1929) in studying the calcium metabolism in the laying hen point out that in the absence of calcium supplement (limestone, oystershell) from the diet of laying hens on a ration consisting of yellow corn, wheat and buttermilk, fed ad libitum (with cabbage, lettuce, or other green feed twice a week) the hatchability of fertilized eggs diminished until it finally became zero. Martin, Erikson, and Insko (1930) confirmed the study of hatchability in relation to minerals and conclude that there is a close relationship to percent of egg shell and percent of hatchability. A decrease in the percent of egg shell was always paralleled by a decrease in the percent hatchability. An increase in percent egg shell was always paralleled by an increase in the percent hatchability.

July (1930) relates that several workers have demonstrated that calcium limitation in the ration of the breeders results in thin-shell eggs. The shells being relatively low in calcium, sometimes to such an extent that hatchability is affected.

C. Hatchability In Relation To Vitamins

(1925) quote from the work of Delezenne and Fournau in mentioning that fully 75 percent of the calcium of the mature chick embryo comes from the shell during the process of incubation. From the foregoing, it is essential that the breeding stock be given the right kind of mineral and in the proper amount if hatchability is raised or maintained. Iodine is a required ingredient in the diets of the larger classes of farm stock. Its requirement, as far as the hen is concerned, however, has not as yet been definitely established. In this discussion, we are only interested in the relation of iodine to hatchability and will be discussed only from the standpoint Malin (1932) fed potassium only to a flock of White Leghorns and kept another flock as a control pen. He found that the control pen receiving no iodine gave a 12.9 percent hatchability over the pen receiving the iodine. Scharrer and Schropp (1932) also experimented with the feeding of iodine to breeders. They fed 2 milligrams of iodine per hen per day. They report a 3.5 percent egg production and increased hatchability 8 to 12 percent in the iodine fed pens over the control pens receiving no iodine. On the other hand, Wehmer (1934) fed 0.5 milligrams of iodine per bird per day and did not receive any increase in hatchability over the control pens. Johnson, Pilkey, and Edson (1935) used 974 birds in their potassium iodine experiment. One group was fed 3 milligrams per bird per day while another group received 1 milligram. The remainder of the birds were used as controls. They did not find the hatchability of the eggs to be improved by the feeding of the potassium iodine.

More work along this line needs to be done before any definite conclusion can be had as to the value of iodine in its relation to hatchability.

Senators Policies Again Endorsed

Almighty God in his infinite wisdom has called for our midst one of our most beloved and valuable citizens and public servants. In the death of Senator Alle W. Young, the people of Kentucky and more especially the people of the 31 Senatorial District have suffered a deep felt and irreparable loss.

Senator Young lived a long and useful life, a life devoted to the welfare of his people and his state, a fact attested to by the glowing tributes paid him by the press of the state both during his life time and in his death. Alle Young was a veteran, of many bitter political battles yet so gentlemanly was he in his behavior that even his enemies respected and honored him.

Alle Young has departed from our midst but his spirit, his ideals and the principles for which he fought shall remain with us for all time and constitute a lasting monument to his memory.

SIT BACK in the rear seat of the 1935 Ford V-8—and change your idea of what an automobile ride is like!

A way has been found to give rear seat passengers the comfort of "a front seat ride!"

Ford has done this with a new engineering development—Full-floating Springbase with Comfort Zone Seating.

You might have been satisfied with nothing more than Comfort Zone Riding and the proved Ford V-8 engine together in one car. But the 1935 Ford V-8 offers you many other features almost as important.

It is a roomier car—with more leg room—wider, deeper seats. It strikes a new note in streamlined beauty. Interior fittings are almost luxurious. Large, soft-pressure tires are standard. Safety glass all around, comes at no extra cost.

And, in addition to low purchase price, the new Ford V-8 gives you traditional Ford economy. It uses no more gas than a 4-cylinder car—has low oil consumption—seldom needs valve grinding or carbon removed.

See this 1935 Ford V-8 today. It's a new automobile value!

Cops Crown In Y. M. C. A. Independent Tourney At Ashland Over Wurtz Bros.

Place Oxley, Combs And Carter On Tournament Team In Thrilling Bout

The Rowan County News Hounds sponsored by the Rowan County News drove through a tough opposition to cop the Y. M. C. A. Independent basketball tournament together with most of the trophies awarded at Ashland last week. The finals played Thursday night between the team of Wurtz Brothers in Ashland and the Newshounds from Morehead resulted in a victory for the Hounds 29 to 24. The Newshounds not only cleaned the tournament, but placed three men on the all-tourney team, and Carter brought home the sweetest of the sportsperson's a $2.00 shirt.

The Newshounds opened the tourney by beating the Betsy Lane team, tournament favorites. They drove on the next night to overcome the Ashland travelers and Wednesday afternoon downed mates from Morehead.

Thursday night they cleaned the slate by taking the Wurtz Brothers team.

Lux Oxley and Mouse Combs landed forward berths on the All-tourney team; Lawrence Carter was placed at guard while Bobby O'Mara of the Wurtz team won the center position, Doc Adams on the Soldier Blue Denims was placed at the other guard position. Thus four of the positions on the tourney team won all-tourney team players.

Morehead was represented by practically three teams with the Eagles Nest team, the Newshounds and the majority of the Soldier team being made up of Morehead College students and alumni.

The Eagles Nest, Soldier and the Newshounds all went through to the semi-finals, the Hounds taking Soldier in their stride while the Nesters

Orga'ze Fish-Game Association Here.

With an initial membership of fifteen and a membership drive under way, a branch of the Northeastern Fish and Game Association with headquarters at Ashland, Ky. has been organized here.

The purpose of the organization is to protect the fish and game in this section from unlawful killing. At present, the primary aim is to put a stop to dynamiting, seining, giggering and shooting fish. Later the organization will take a hand in apprehending and prosecuting other violators of the Kentucky Fish and game laws. A reward of $25.00 is offered for turning in and convicting any such violators, which will be put in Rowan county creek this year, it is promised.

went down before the drive of Wurtz Brothers.

The Newshounds' team consists of Paul "Mouse" Combs, Luster Oxley, Lawrence "Carbide" Carter, Sprout Johnson, Tommy Ryan, Edward Kufahl and William Moccabee.

Two other Morehead teams, Soldier and the Eagle Nest team went to the semi-finals of the tournament before being eliminated. The Eagle Nest team was proud of the team that represented it in the Y. M. C. A. Tourney and congratulates the boys on their fine showing.

Breck Downs Soldier To Win District

PLANS FOR REGIONAL TOURNEY COMPLETED; EXPECT REAL GO

With local fans pulling for local boys and local teams the opening of the 14th Regional tournament is awaited here with a considerable degree of interest. Breckinridge High School will carry the colors of Morehead and the fans here are hoping that they will come through with flying colors and represent Morehead and the 14th in the state tournament the following week.

Mt. Sterling is rated as favorites to win the crown in this region, by most observers. But that does not mean that Mt. Sterling is alone in the favored class. Breckinridge High, Cattlettsburg, Russell, Soldier as well as Mt. Sterling will be contenders. Little a sterling here of Powell County High or Heidelberg and Winchester is almost as much of an unknown quantity.

Prospects are for one of the best tournaments ever held here, with an outstanding team to steal away the thunder of the lesser teams. Every game is expected to be a tight battle, since many of the teams met in the regular season and judging from the results, the tournament will go to the team that gets the breaks.

The drawings for positions were held here Sunday with Breckinridge drawing Cattlettsburg and Soldier drawing Russell. Mt. Sterling will meet the same team they met in the district finals, Winchester, and Heidelberg will meet the team they defeated for district honors.

Brothers will referee the tournament with Bill and Bob Hickey of Lexington officiating for the matches.

Brackets of eight teams will compete similarly at 15 other places in the state next week-end and the winners of each go to Lexington. Sixteen teams make up the field there.

The lone upset in the 14th finals came at Raceland where Cattlettsburg subdued Russell 38-29. Twice during the season Russell beat Cattlettsburg.

No final result was available from the 54th at Winchester, where Mt. Sterling played Winchester in the final game.

At Olive Hill in the 55th Morehead Breckinridge nosed out Soldier 21-18 in a close game. Breck had easy sailing through the upper bracket while Soldier had a tough time in the lower bracket.

Soldier knocked off Grayson 25-17, Haldeman 18-17 and Olive Hill 11-10 Saturday afternoon in a semi-final battle. During the season Soldier beat Breck at home by 10 points but, lost by one point at Morehead.

Mt. Sterling and Winchester, the favorites won out at Winchester, where the tournament ran exactly to form throughout.

Upsets galore marked the 53rd at Bettyville where Irvin was expected to cop first place. Heidelberg came through to defeat Powell county, conqueror of Irvin, 21-15 in the final game.

Breck Ekes Out Victory In Final Thriller At Olive Hill In 54th District Tourney

When Breck meets Greek will have nothing on the Regional tournament here which opens Friday afternoon. It may prove to be as bad as the war between the States especially if both Soldier and Breck Training School get through the semi-finals. It will then be a brother act over, with Roy and Allie Holbrook in the leading roles. With Roy coaching Breck and Allie doing the same for Soldier, the brothers are likely not to be so brotherly, at least during the session. Allie says he hopes they both get through the early stage of the tournament.

"Roy's beat me twice this season," he said, "but I hope I get another shot at him, I know I can beat him if I do."

Roy, on the other hand hopes the same thing. He'd like to meet Allie in the finals for sentimental reasons if no other.

But it might be a good idea to wait until the preliminary and semi final matches are played. All Morehead hopes that both the boys will bring their teams under the wire and stage the final game for the Regional championship.

Incidentally, there will be another brother act in the tournament here, only this time it will be one of assistance. Bill Hickey who has called many a game of both football and basketball here will referee and will be assisted by his brother Bob Hickey. The Hickey brothers are from Lexington and should work well in double harness.

Tournament Manager Bill Scrogins has his hands full these days, completing arrangements for the Regional tournament. After calling a number of referees in the order of his preference, beginning with Bill Hickey, he finally succeeded in getting two that were at least not objectionable to the majority of the coaches. Coaches, are, you know as a whole, somewhat like prima-donnas, always suspicious of the intentions of the other fellow. It would be hard to say just how many referees were considered and rejected before the one satisfactory were selected. And even then the prima-donnas went out muttering to themselves. And they wonder why tournament managers get grey.

The trophies for the tournament are on display at the Eagles Nest where all may view them, and the rest of us just looking.

And after the Regional State.

Soldier Defeats Grayson, Haldeman, and Olive Hill In Tournament Drive

Breckinridge Training School came through the district tournament at Olive Hill last week with flying colors, winning the finals over the Panthers of Soldier Hill after a fighting exhibition of basketball that had the fans on their feet the greater part of the time.

Soldier had come through the hard bracket defeating Grayson, Haldeman, Olive Hill, while Breckinridge tuned up for the big battle with conteste over Denton and Hitchins. Hitchins sprung a surprise attack on Breck and gave them a much stiffer battle than they expected, but the local team came through with a victory to enter the finals.

Considered an up-set, by most fans, Soldier opened her drive for tournament honors by defeating Grayson. Actually it was not so much of an upset as some believed, as Soldier has been serving notice all season that they would be among the contenders for honors.

Olive Hill drew an easy game in Sandy Hook and met Soldier after that team had disposed of Haldeman. Incidentally Larry Fraley's team almost staged a real upset when they ran up on the Soldiers and were nosed out by one point, 18-19. Ban Jones proved to be the big fly in the Soldier ointment. Olive Hill was barely nosed out in the same manner as Haldeman, 11-10, but the Soldier boys had the punch when the punch counted and won out again to meet Roy Holbrook's team in the finals Saturday night.

Haldeman defeated Grahn to meet Soldier.

Morehead was eliminated by Hitchins Thursday night and Austin Riddle was able to enjoy the rest of the tournament without worry.

The entire tournament was well handled and the games proved to be much more interesting than was expected.

The final game between Soldier and Breckinridge was a hair raiser of the most exciting variety. The lead changed nine times during the game, but Breck had the necessary edge to carry it through to win.

This is the second time that the teams coached by the Holbrook Brothers met in the finals of the district tournament and the second time Roy's team has bested that of his younger brother. Allie however says that Roy can't do it again and he hopes that they are able to meet in the finals of the Regional this week.
