WORK PROGRAM AND PROJECTS ARE COMPLETED

Eight Projects Approved By State Administration; Others Asked

ENOUGH IS TOO MUCH
"How about another tournament?"
"Chin Clayton was asked the day after the close of the recent Regional..."
"I'm going to surprise you," said Mr. Clayton. "I'd just as soon not have another tournament."
The reason is very simple and logical. Of course the Eagles Nest did business. They always do, more especially at tournament time. But the help in the Eagles Nest is so completely worn out by the extra work that they are not able to do justice to their regular work after it is over.
And that's a business man's viewpoint.

With the new work relief program already in effect, considerable more work is being accomplished on the projects under way than has ever been accomplished before, according to the County Judge. Chas. E. Jennings and work administrator, Dixon Shouse. Work has already been started on one project and by March 15 it is expected that seven more projects will be gotten under way, furnishing work to approximately 750 men.

The following projects have already been approved and the working arrangements are being made. At the intersection of the Rodburn Sandy Hook Road for a distance of two miles. This surface as that of all other surfacing projects will be constructed of native stone and gravel.

Surfacing Adkins Branch Road for a distance of one mile. This road leads past the Masonic Hall at Ellettsville from the intersection with the Sandy Hook Highway.

DRAINING AND SURFACING ROADS IN WEST MOREHEAD.
DRAINING AND SURFACING UPPER LICKING RIVER ROAD BEGINNING AT INTERSECTION WITH HIGHWAY NO. 50 AT FARMERS UP THE RIVER TO THE MOUTH OF SCOTTS CREEK, A DISTANCE OF FOUR MILES.

Repairing (reflooring) four bridges of county road system.

Surfacing one mile beginning at the C. W. Clay farm on Bluebank to Holley Swin farm on Licking River.

Projects under consideration which have been recommended by the fiscal court and County Judge are the construction of a new voting houses in each voting precinct in the county. These booths are to be 12 feet by 24 feet with three bodies in each all to be properly lighted.

A project is also proposed and had been submitted to construct one mile of highway beginning at the city limits of Morehead and extending up Ouley Branch. This, if approved, will be a continuation of Wilson Avenue.

According to the estimates made, the total cost of the projects approved up to the present will be $30,000 in labor; $3,500 in teams and trucks and $11,000 in materials. The teams and trucks are being used by local people.

The teams and trucks are being donated however, and the county is furnishing the material. The federal government pays the labor costs.

PLUMBING SHOP CHANGES TITLE

A change has been made in the title of the Morehead Plumbing and Electrical Supply Company Shop, so that it will be known in the future as the Plumbing and Electrical Shop. The management and ownership will remain the same with Cecil Landreth and A. H. Catron in charge and ready to serve you.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS
THERE was a pair of Scotch bankers, and they were needing deposits in their bank. They were trying to think of some kind of stunt advertising that would attract attention to their bank. And whereas, aside from his practice as a lawyer at the Bar and throughout Central and Eastern Kentucky he distinguished himself as a capable and effective practitioner until 1904, at which time he began his term of office as Circuit Judge of this District, in which office he continued to serve with distinction and marked ability for the period of ten years, after which he had special employment connections as an attorney with many corporate and coal interests in Eastern Kentucky, until he became a member of the Senate for the State of Kentucky by election in the year of 1924, and was elected for three consecutive terms, which office he held at the time of his death.

It may be said that his devotion and interest was directed toward his mountain territory and its people and especially the City of Morehead, the prime cause of the location of the Morehead State Teachers College at Morehead, Kentucky, which stands as a monument to his memory to this day.

His efforts and energy were directed to the educational and other improvements of the people among whom he lived and served, including the improvement of the road system in Kentucky, in which he was one of the pioneers in the entire state, and there are today many improved thoroughfares throughout the state, more especially in Eastern Kentucky, which were brought about by his untiring efforts; and his passing is a distinct loss to the entire State.

Now, Be It Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of this Court and copies thereof furnished to the papers for publication, and that a copy of same be presented to Mrs. Mary Young, his widow, and family.

IRS. PAYNE RESTING IN COLLEGE HOSPITAL

Mrs. John Howard Payne is at present in the hospital at the college, resting after suffering a slight nervous breakdown. For the past several months Mrs. Payne has unfortunately had a number of family mishaps which have naturally caused considerable concern and it is the culmination of these worries that have caused her to seek to rest for a few days.

In October President Payne underwent an operation and was gone for several weeks. Their daughter, Mrs. John Jenkins in January, underwent an operation for appendicitis. These together with a number of minor worries have naturally borne most heavily on Mrs. Payne.

Heavy Rains Bring Flood Conditions

Licking River And Triplet Creek Combine To Flood Farmers

Flood waters from Triplet Creek River have held Farmers water-bound for several days, so that traffic on Highway 60 has been held up completely or routed around by way of the Morehead and Sharpsburg. Busses have been making the route by Owingville, Sharpsburg and Flemingsburg to Morehead, since Tuesday, when one bus slipped off the highway in the high water and blocked the road. Passengers on the bus were taken off in boats. There were no injuries and no one was drowned as was reported here during the day.

Residents of Farmers were in the water flood that has experienced for several years. Water was in most of the store buildings and in many of the homes in the village. It reached its peak about 1:00 o'clock Tuesday night and began to recede. However it will take several hours at least before it is back to normal and the highway is cleared.

Morehead citizens spent considerable time on the road between here and Farmers, driving down to see the water.

Heavy rains on Sunday, Sunday night, Monday and Monday night caused the flood.

C. U. WALTZ RECOVERING FROM SERIOUS ILLNESS

C. U. Waltz, who suffered a serious heart attack on Sunday and expected to recover, is somewhat improved at present and is well on the way to recovery. He has been resting well and his family is greatly pleased over his present condition.

Mr. Waltz, who is employed on the railroad, came home Sunday a day with his family, expecting to return to work Sunday night. Just before the time for his departure arrived he was stricken suddenly and continued to become worse. However, Monday morning he was considerably improved and now is apparently well on the way to recovery.

To Hang Portrait Of Judge Young

Plans are underway for the unveiling of a life-size portrait of Judge Allie W. Young in the auditorium of the Morehead State Teachers College in the near future. The portrait is to be hung on the building.

Lo Mirabile, senior partner in the Louisville firm of Leber & Mirabile, has painted the portrait from photographs of Judge Young, and observers who have seen the likeness on display in the windows of the establishment testify to its excellence.

CITY COUNCIL IN MEETING HEARS PLEA FOR RELIEF FROM SEWERAGE PROBLEMS

Grand Jury Makes Final Report

The Grand Jury adjourned on Saturday last week after returning thirty indictments during their six days of investigation, probably the smallest number of indictments that have been returned in a great many years. The difference in the number of indictments is probably due largely to the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Final Report Of The Grand Jury Of Rowan County For The March Term 1935.

We, the Grand Jury of Rowan County Circuit Court for the March term 1935 have been in session six days and have reported in open court thirty indictments.

We have examined the officers reports of the county, found them to be correct and acted on all matters set out in these reports.

Dr. Taylor Named To Regent's Place

Maysville Man Selected To Place Left Vacant By Death

Announcement of the appointment of Dr. Arvin O. Taylor, prominent Maysville, Ky., physician, to the Morehead State Teachers College Board of Regents was made last week by Gov. Ruby Laffoon. He was appointed to fill the vacancy left by the death of Judge Allie W. Young, a member of the Board, who expires Jan. 1, 1936.

Dr. Taylor has always been interested in education, serving two terms on the Maysville City Board of Education, part of the time as president. During his membership, a large building program was carried out, including the construction of the Maysville Colored School, which is reputed to be one of the best in the country. During his administration, a member of school system expanded to include a new school district and the condition of education facilities were improved.

Dr. Taylor was born May 3, 1883 at Tollebores, Lewis County, Kentucky, the son of Dr. Robert N. Taylor, a member of the Smithsonian Institute and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Dr. Taylor's father was a

Discuss Organization Of Fire Department And Purchase Of Equipment

The regular meeting of the City Council held on Tuesday night of this week, resulted largely in a discussion of plans for the reorganization of the fire department, and a further discussion of the proposed sewer system with the construction of a reservoir. This project which was started last year under the C. W. A. has never been completed although all arrangements were made at that time. It involves the construction of a refuse plant which will prevent the waters of Triplet being contaminated at Clearfield. As the matter is at present, the creek at that place presents a most unsanitary condition which endangers the health of the citizens of that village.

Mr. S. Bowne, Manager of the Lee Clay Products Company plant at that place was before the council and spoke in the interest of the people of Clearfield. The council agreed to do all the things necessary to obtain the assistance of P. W. A. to complete the project at the earliest possible moment.

The discussion of the fire situation, which has been brought to the attention of the citizens of Morehead on numerous occasions through articles and editorials in the Rowan County News, demonstrated that the work of the paper has been bearing fruit. The council has naturally hesitated until they were sure they handle were ready to have their use it for the purpose of added protection of life and property.

The council took no definite action at the meeting on Tuesday night, but adjourned the meeting until next Monday night when action will be taken.

One of the chief items of interest to the tax payers of Morehead was the report of the Police Judge, E. E. Masgard on the results of the new jail, recently installed. Mr. Masgard reported that in the month of February they had saved the city a total of $93.00 as the result of having their own jail.

Circuit Court Has A Busy Session

Important Cases Are Tried; Many Convictions; To Adjourn

The second week of the March term of Circuit Court finds the docket being fairly well cleared, with the outstanding cases set down for this week being the trial of Omer Kissick charged with the killing of Jesse Harris. The case was tried last week and resulted in a hung jury. The petit jury for the term were dismissed by Judge Caudill at the end of the first week and new juries have been summoned to serve the balance of the term.

Up to Tuesday night the following cases have been tried:

Bolin Johnson, charged with cutting and wounding Orvil Fouch; sentenced to three years in penitentiary.

Omer Kissick, charged with murder of Jesse Harris. Hung jury. Retrial set for Wednesday, March 13.

Bun Collins, charged with robbery of Andy Bays; sentenced to two years in penitentiary.

CONGRATULATIONS

The Rowan County News takes this opportunity to congratulate the Morehead State Teachers College on the appointment of Dr. A. O. Taylor of Maysville to membership on the Board of Regents in the place left vacant by the death of Judge Allie W. Young. Dr. Taylor's reputation as a man sincerely interested in the advancement of education in Eastern Kentucky is well known and he is probably one of the few men fitted, even in a measure, to take over the work of Judge Young.

Dr. Taylor has been a member of the Board of Education of the Maysville Public School System, and was president of the Board while Dr. J. H. Payne was superintendent of schools in that city. He is, therefore, an old friend and acquaintance of Dr. Payne's and is unquestionably sympathetic with his aims and plans.

It is our sincere wish that Dr. Taylor enjoy ever success in his new work of carrying out the plans of Judge Young, whose close personal friend he was for years, before and up to the time of Judge Young's death.

We believe that with such men as Dr. Taylor, on the Board of Regents the future of the Morehead State Teachers College is resting in safe hands, hands interested only in the welfare of the college.

AN HONOR CODE

Many interesting stories are told of the honor code at Washington and Lee University, where it was established by General Robert E. Lee when he became president of the school in 1867.

No supervision of students is exercised during examinations; the institution; books, articles of clothing and all sorts of property are left anywhere with the assurance that they will not be disturbed.

Several students help to pay their expenses by selling sandwiches, candy, apples and the like, but the sales are made without the presence of clerks. The articles for sale are displayed with price cards, and customers help themselves, placing their money in the cash box. During one football game more than $125 worth of lapel buttons were thus bought and paid for without the supervision of anyone, except that when the box was filled with bills a professor placed a weight on them to keep them from blowing away.

New students are thoroughly instructed in the requirements of the honor code and impressed with the importance of rigidly observing it, because, it is explained, this school is built around tradition. And the essence of that tradition is that "it's a pleasure to be a gentleman."

ARTICLE WRITTEN BY PROF. JUDD ISSUED BY PEABODY STAFF

H. D. Judd, head of the department of extension, has a paper published in the February issue of the Peabody Reflector and Alumni News magazine sponsored by the George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville. The title of the article is "Disabilities of College Students in Arithmetical Computation."

The paper resulted from experiments conducted by Mr. Judd over a period of several months to determine the extent of students' disabilities on "crutches" to solve arithmetical problems. It was discovered that inefficiency in problem solution usually resulted from the use of such devices as searching for combinations of ten, multiplication of moving the lips in performing arithmetical operations, writing the number to be carried at the top of the column of figures and taping with chalk of pencil in doing same.

Mr. Judd compiled a table indicating the different types of "crutches" employed by the members of his classes. Some 76% of the methods employed, if not abused, serve to increase speed and accuracy, but for the most part the devices served to cause carriers to accurate computation by students using them.

Indications were that the honors would be distributed more evenly than last year, as voters began "jumping the fence" after pledging themselves to the support of certain candidates backed by individual campaigns.

Trivette, Marjorie Martin (with-drawn), Rita Preston and Tempa Keene, all of Allie Young Hall.

Voting throughout yesterday was scattered with no candidate assuming the support necessary for a clean-cut victory. However, some support was shown for Rufah, Adams, Wolford, Jackson, Waters and Moeabee, but no definite movements were at Saturday to the any of the principal candidates. Carter county split on Joe Wadsworth and Roy Adams. Had there been one candidate from the county, a poll of more than 500 ballots would not have been available.

GREAT JURIST GOES TO GRAVE

In a sleet storm that pelted the bare heads of national dignitaries, Oliver Holmes, the great liberal of the Supreme Court, went to his final rest in a hero's grave at Arlington Saturday, the ninety-fourth anniversary of his birth.

With the death of Oliver Wendell Holmes, who was the oldest man ever to serve on the supreme court of the United States, Justice Louis D. Brandeis becomes the grand old man of the nation's judiciary. Brandeis, who will be 73 next November 16, is the oldest of the justices now on the supreme bench.

ILLINOIS RIVER IN FLOOD

As tributaries of the Mississippi sent flood waters roaring into two southern towns at least one point on the mighty river's main channel feared its swirling surge would reach flood stages.

At Beardstown, Ill., the Illinois river stage was at 11.7 feet, seven tenths of a foot above flood stage, with little chance for relief. Other points in the large basin reported little change in the floods, however. Despite the heavy burden of snowfall in the north, early thaws have not proved menacing.

How's Business

A FACTORY OR TWO
There are said to be two towns in Indiana which have never known that there has been or is a depression. During the trying days of the past few years, when men and women everywhere have been without work, hunger, crying for aid, demanding relief, the citizens of these two towns have been going serenely on their way unconscious of the fact that other citizens of other towns were actually in want.

There was a very definite reason. Several years ago the forward looking citizens of these two towns, saw the hand writing on the wall for the small town unless they did something. They figured it out and set to work. If they said they can get one or two small factories to locate in our towns, we will solve the problem of employment for our people, and at the same time we will be saving money in overhead for the small factories that are now operating in the cities."

They raised a fund and induced several small factories to locate in these small towns, rather than in the centers of population. The result has been that the small factories with their output were able to compete with factories in larger cities and undersell them due to their low overhead. The result of that was that the small factories, which were engaged in one business when other larger factories were closing down. And the final result to the towns was that during the entire depression, not one citizen of the town was on relief rolls. In fact, heeding it or not, there were no relief roles in the towns.

The moral of that story is plain. Morehead could utilize one or two or more such factories to take up the slack in employment here and in this county.

It takes only a few forward looking enterprising business men to take up this matter and put it over.

DELAY IN BONUS SEEN

House passage of the bonus next week became doubtful today when leaders agreed upon highly unusual procedure designed to assure a clear vote on inflation.

The understanding was that at least ten and perhaps twelve hours of debate, enough to consume three normal days, would be allowed before voting.

The schedule set offered ample opportunities for separate votes on the Vinson American Legion Bill, which makes no provision as to how the money would be raised, and the Patman bill, which would direct the printing of $2,000,000,000 in new currency.

FINANCIAL SUCCESS

The Fourteenth Regional Tournament which was held here last week under the auspices of the Morehead State Teachers College, was, according to tournament manager, W. D. Serrogins, a success in every way. This was particularly true, so far as the financial side of the tournament was concerned. Before the tournament got under way, it was feared that it would not be a success financially and that the college might come out in the "red" when the final receipts and expenses were listed. However, to the pleasant surprise of everyone concerned, the tournament manager found that they were at least as far ahead as they were last year. In fact, their receipts were almost identical with those of last year.

While Ashland with her crowd of rooters was not present, the other contenders brought fans along to offset this loss. Friday night was the big session, but contrary to the usual the Saturday night crowd was almost as great, the receipts for that night being within $4.00 of the total for Friday night. This was in direct contrast to the finals last year, when a mere handful of fans watched Ashland toy with Russell.

One of the reasons for the belief that the tournament would go in the hole, was the addition of Heidelberg and Powell County High to the contenders. These teams came a long distance and while increasing the expenses brought comparatively few fans with them to increase the receipts.

A stab in the back! Same like the dog upstairs. And almost in the same place.

And the weapon? The same. A sharp, narrow, four cornered instrument. Only in this case the hemorrhage was external. A lot of blood loss.

Died instantly, I take it, remarked Vance.

Yep. The doctor nodded. Must have fallen in his tracks, coat and waistcoat of the dead man, and inspected them.

And this time the stab was through the clothes. He was wearing, he commented, a minor point but worth verifying, I say Doctor; any indications of a struggle.

Nope. Not a sign. He got it in the back when he wasn't expecting it. Startled him for a split second probably, look at that expression and then he curled up and passed out.

Devilish business, amended Markham.

Oh well, I'm no moralist. Doctors confessed. I'm a doctor. They're too many people in the world anyway.

Now where do we stand? he asked, spreading his hands hopefully.

By the fact that Gamble heard him come in at midnight. I imagine he always comes in silently. It's a Chinese characteristic. On general principles, the Chinese never want their movements, however innocent, to be known to foreigners.

What do you say to our having polite intercourse with Wrede and the Signor Grassi?

Markham waved his hand assent. And we'd better get up, he urged.

Heath gave orders to Bark to remain at the library door and see that no one entered the room. Gamble went back to stay in the front hall and answer the doorbell.

Which one of the babies do you want first? the Sergeant asked.

The Italian, by all means said said Vance. He's frightfully upset, and therefore in an admirable state of mind for questioning. We'll keep Wrede till later, he's teeming with possibilities.

Grass and the Sergeant joined us a few seconds later.

Mr. Grassi, Vance began without preliminaries, we should like to know exactly what your social and professional status is in this house.

Yes—that is right, he returned, I came here at Mr. Coe's invitation a week ago yesterday. It was to have been a fortnight's visit.

Grassi's dark eyes became suddenly brilliant with astonishment; but almost at once a wary look came into them, and he smiled with cold politeness.

Yes, a small triangular piece, Vance nodded. Then he added: I have grave fears Mr. Grassi that the Ting yao vase has been broken.

There's only a Tao Kung vase there now, Vance informed him.

On the same table, Vance replied earnestly. Beneath the Tao Kung vase, there was a sneer in the intonation of the word.

I understand from Gamble that you left the house at about four o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Jess Shirley, of near Mt. Summit, was found dead in his automobile Friday morning in which it is believed he expired from the carbon monoxide fumes of his car.

Friends and relatives of Mr. Carl Jones surprised him on his 26th birthday which was Sunday with a champagne dinner, at the home of his sister Mrs. Bryan Salyers.

Why Some Hens Lay More Eggs Than Others

The 1930 Agricultural Census of the United States shows that the average egg production per hen for the whole nation is 90 eggs per year. For Kentucky it is 80 eggs per year. It is possible to have in the flock a bird laying 200 eggs per year and yet have one laying 300 eggs or more per year. There are probably flocks in Rowan county that do not average more than 100 eggs per year under the present methods of housing, feeding, and management. It costs very little more to support a pullet that lays 300 eggs in a year as compared with one laying 100 eggs.

Even as early as 1891, Charles H. Wycoff developed a flock of pullets that averaged over 200 eggs per bird per year. James Dryden developed families of White Leghorns and Barred Plymouth Rocks that were noted as high egg producers. He developed the first birds that laid 300 or more eggs per year. He also developed the first hen that was credited with laying over 1000 eggs in her lifetime. Then Hansen Poultry Farm is said to now have over 600 hens with known trapnest records of 300 or more eggs per bird per year.

It is now possible to breed high egg production into a flock as egg production has been found to be inherited. It might be said that we now have more 300 egg hens than we had 200 egg hens fifteen years ago. Individual hens have made high records in most of the important breeds of chickens. A White Leghorn has been reported to have laid 321 eggs within one year, and many others have produced better than 325 eggs in the same length of time. Thus, we might ask ourselves, why do some hens lay more eggs than others? This problem has been studied from many different angles and it is now possible to predict rather closely the annual egg production of a pullet before she completes her first laying year.

This wide variation between high and low production in hens has led many investigators to try and seek the factors which are responsible for the number of eggs a hen lays in 365 days. They have found a number of well-recognized factors and others that are more or less obscure. These factors may be divided into two groups, namely, genetical and management.

GENETICAL FACTORS

1. Cycle and Rhythm

In poultry production, cycle means the number of days a hen lays consecutively without a skip. Individual hens vary widely in their cycles. Some hens develop a very regular cycle while others seem to lay in irregular cycles. The shorter the cycle, the less is the total number of eggs a hen will lay in a year. Only a few birds maintain a cycle of more than 10 eggs for a long period, but sometimes a hen will lay a cycle of 40, 50, 60, or more. One hen has been reported to lay a cycle of 229 eggs without a skip. The number of eggs laid in a cycle will very materially affect the number of eggs laid in a given time. A hen laying a one egg cycle will lay 14 eggs in 28 days. If she lays in two-egg cycles, she will lay 19 eggs in 28 days. A three egg cycle will give 21 eggs while a five egg cycle produces 35 eggs and a six egg cycle gives 42 eggs for the 28 days. Thus we find a positive relationship between the length of cycle and the total annual egg production.

Rhythm means the frequency which is repeated. Thus, cycle is closely associated with rhythm. Some hens lay in cycles of four and six eggs with only one day skip. If she repeats this in regular periods, this is referred to as rhythm. It is interesting to know that if a hen lays one day and skips the next, she will generally lay about the same time each day.

If she lays two days out of three, the first egg in the cycle will be laid in the morning and the second in the afternoon. Atwood (1924) mentions the following about cycles in egg production.

1. The longer the cycle the shorter are the intervals between the laying of successive eggs.
2. The interval between the laying of the last two eggs of a cycle is usually greater than any other interval in the cycle.
3. The intervals between the laying at or about the middle of a cycle are shorter than the intervals at either extremity.
4. As the birds become older, the intervals between the laying of successive eggs become longer.
5. The shorter average intervals are usually associated with the more prolific layers.

2. INTENSITY

Intensity of production means the number of eggs produced in a given time as one month, three months, or six months. The laying year may be divided into winter, spring, and summer months. Thus, the number of eggs laid during these periods may be referred to winter, spring, and summer intensity. Intensity, as well as rate of production as measured by cycle and rhythm, can be accurately determined by the use of the trapnest. Investigators have shown that there is a strong relationship between annual production and the production of the various seasons of the year. For example, Benion and Warten (1933) working with White Leghorns compared winter egg production with total annual production. In December, January, and February, they concluded that there was a positive correlation between the number of eggs laid during this period, the greater was the total number of eggs laid during their year. They further conclude that the winter period of egg production could be used as an index in estimating how many eggs a hen would lay during the year. If a hen laid 40 to 50 eggs during this period she would have an annual egg record of about 175 eggs. If she laid 51 to 60 eggs during the 205 eggs per year. If the winter months gave 61 to 70 eggs the total for the year would be about 235 eggs. Those hens laying over 70 eggs during the winter months would lay above 235 eggs for the year. Hays (1925) mentions that it is not profitable to save as breeders those hens that lay less than 40 eggs during the winter period. The birds that laid the best for the first two months of the winter period also laid the most eggs throughout the whole winter period. Rice, Hall, and Marble (1930) mention that by measuring the intensity of production of a hen over a short period, it is possible to predict with some degree of accuracy past or future production, or to predict annual production. This can also be used as a guide in predicting second year production as well as the first.

3. PERSISTENCY

Persistency refers to the continuance of production at the close of the laying year. A bird may inherit persistence and yet not lay good during the fall months due to environmental conditions. A bird lacking the "persistence factor" is not likely to lay late even under the most favorable environment. Birds of low persistence lay very few summer and fall eggs; that is, the annual production is distributed mainly over the winter and spring periods. The earlier a bird stops laying in the fall, the less is the annual production. If a hen lays 15 eggs in August and 15 eggs in September, this period can be used as a prediction of calculating the total annual production. A hen laying this number of eggs usually lays over 200 eggs per year. The greater the number of eggs laid during August and September, the greater will be the total number of eggs laid during her year.

The persistency of a hen should be calculated more than one year. The best layers coupled with sufficient egg size should be retained as breeders. It is possible to build up persistency by rigid selection. It is possible for birds to maintain persistency over a long span of years. Fordus University had a hen that laid 1243 eggs in seven years. This is an average of 177.4 eggs per year. At Cornell University, they had 31 or more hens that had laid over 1000 eggs each and one laid 1221 eggs in eleven years. At the University of Kentucky, a White Leghorn hen laid 1217 eggs in eight years. Age of bird should be coupled with persistency. When this is done, the farmer will not have to dispose of a good portion of his flock each year because of the rapid decline in egg production in the second, third and so on years.

The tournament furnished a number of these calls. But the rainy weather that has prevailed for several days was accountable for the majority of them. The highway from here to Olive Hill, which is of "black top" construction, and which is very slippery when wet, was responsible for most of the wrecks. Fortunately no reports have come in of any one being seriously injured in any of the accidents.

Mt. Sterling Wins Over Breckinridge

RUSSELL BEATS SOLDIER BY 23 TO 17; TROJANS DEFEAT WINCHESTER BY 27-22 SCORE

Mt. Sterling, Russell Drive To Semi-Finals In First Round

Breck Wins In Cattle'burg Tilt

Mt. Sterling's stalwart Trojans defeated Winchester last night in the first go of the 14th Regional Tournament by the short score of 27 to 22. With Ishmael blasting the hoop for eight points in the last quarter, Mt. Sterling was able to overcome a two-point lead held by Winchester at the end of the third quarter.

Neither team was able to score consistently in the first quarter and the game ended with Mt. Sterling in the lead by the short margin of 5 to 3. At the half, Winchester had led up a notch and the count stood 7 to 6 in favor of the Trojans. Going into the second frame, Mt. Sterling was unable to check the flurry of shots that the Greyhounds dropped through the net, and the Clark countians were behind 14 to 16 with three quarters of the game gone.

Going into the last quarter, Ishmael, Mt. Sterling sharpshooter broke loose, and with his teammates feeding the ball to him he shoved the leather through the hoop for eight points, to give his team and the large number of supporters a great victory. Twice before this year, Mt. Sterling has defeated the Clark County team but never by more than a four point margin.

Both teams played defensive ball with few wild shots being attempted. Mt. Sterling justified pre-tournament predictions by demonstrating one of the best passing and shooting attacks seen here this season.

John, sterling Winchester guard kept his team in the running throughout the game by scoring 12 points and turning in a good exhibition of guarding. He is the outstanding guard seen in the tournament, according to the consensus of fan opinion.

The 14th Regional Basketball Tournament of 1935 was a huge success as have been all of the tournaments sponsored by Morehead Teachers College. The Trojans of Mt. Breckinridge Training School by seven point margin to win the right to represent the 14th at the state meet this weekend at University of Kentucky. Freshman Coach, Bill Straggins was in charge of the tournament and he handed it over to Head Coach G. D. Downing of Morehead made the presentation speech and the announcement of the all-tournament team. The Hickey Brothers of Lexington were the officials and the recipient of many bouquets and bronx cheers. Mt. Sterling, Cattleburg, Soldier and Russell were the teams that have been to this regional before. The newcomers were: Powell County, Heidelberg, Breckinridge, and Winchester. The gate receipts were smaller than in former years but the college did not lose any money on the meet. The famed Tomcats of Ashland were absent the first time and the absence of their followers did not help the box office yet the tournament was a greater success from the standpoint of good sportsmanship and hard playing of all teams entered.

Mt. Sterling, a favorite from the start came through three hard games to win the cup and they deserved every game they won because they played the smartest ball in the tournament. Coach "Tim" Jones of the winning Trojans is one of the best coaches in Kentucky high school circles and he has never failed to put a winning and well-groomed team on the hardwood. Mt. Sterling has played in a higher class of tournament than most of the teams entered and they plainly showed that they could stand one terrific game after another without flinching. However, the Trojans are not one of the favorites for the state title and do not seem to have the actual class of a state championship team. Their boys are small and fast but will run up against tall quarry fat combinations that will give more than they will take in the state meet.

Breckinridge Training School of Morehead Teachers College had easy sailing into the finals as they were in the lead from the start. The weak teams in the tournament, They polished off Cattleburg and Powell County by ten point margin and were not extended beyond a hard workout. The Eaglets are coached by Roy Holbrook, local teacher and senior at Morehead Teachers College, and all of his charges with the exception of one are from Morehead. As in the 54th District the luck of the draw favored the Eaglets and they took advantage of it. The boys from the hill went into the final game carrying the hopes of the College and townfolk and ranked equally with Mt. Sterling before the game. The final result was somewhat marred by the inconsistency of the officials yet proved to be one of the best in the meet. At the half the Eaglets looked to be stronger of the two yet were trailing by two points. After the intermission the boys from the bluegrass began to pull away and were doing the same as the gun ended the play.

The winner's cup donated by the Dixie Ice Cream Company of Lexington was a beautiful twenty-inch bronze of grecian design topped by a basketball player in the act of shooting a ball. The runners-up trophy was donated by the popular rendezvous of Eastern Kentucky, Eagles Nest owned and operated by "Chin Clayton". The large plaque was made of black walnut and with a large silver image of a player on pedestal. The college presented the tournament team with basketballs, James Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Will Johnson of this city was the only Breckinridge player to be placed on the team.

Coach Roy Holbrook had the best looking outfit in the meet and they were the best looking prospects for Morehead. Many of the visiting players were impressed favorably by the hospitality shown them and made verbal statements that they were coming to Morehead for their college careers.

The competing coaches and their school officials were the officials for large list submitted and they picked the two lemons of Central Kentucky to handle the games. The officials were Bill and Bob Hicky of Lexington and they were the game miserably. Bill is the older of the two and has been calling games in Central Kentucky for several seasons with fair success but this writer never heard of the other officiating at any kind of a game before. Having known both for some time and knowing that they were honest in their interpretation of the rules of the game, we somewhat hesitate to give them the credit that they really deserve. In the first place, Bill had seen his day as an efficient official and in the second place Bob will never see his day unless he goes back to school and learns the rules and have his credits reset. They got off on the wrong side when they let the Powell-Heidelberg game go on a rampage and they stayed on the wrong side throughout the tournament. Winchester was the team that suffered most from bad decisions and in the final game they called anything that popped into their heads regardless of the nature of the playing. This was the first time in the history of the tournament at Morehead that the officials really were booed and they received no more than they justly deserved. Morehead Teachers College had no hand in selecting the officials and the list voted on by various coaches contained many excellent officials who know the game and will call the game by rules. This writer has made a survey of the tournament and is satisfied that the Hickey Brothers handled the games. It is certain that the future tournaments in this section will probably be by mistake that was made in this respect.

Every team came to Morehead believing that they had a good chance of winning and they played hard clean basketball toward that goal. The players and their followers conducted themselves in such a manner as to warrant their visit again. The townspeople were glad to welcome them and the college feels that it has made many new friends in Eastern Kentucky. All Morehead backed Breckinridge and Allie Hark's Soldier boys because they were home outfits and they deserved the cheers that went to the ceiling ringing floor. Little Helen Holbrook of Breckinridge was the best sell leader among the many that did their stunts before the crowds. The Morehead Teachers College band under the direction of Marvin George played at all sessions and drew rounds of applause from visitors and students. The tournament Dance sponsored by the Woman's Club was the social highlight of the week and the excellent rhythms of the Kings Jesters delighted the toes of two hundred or more.

Class Tourney Held at M.H.S.

Juniors Have Favored Team; Freshmen Team To Play Faculty Team

A big treat is in store for us all next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, when the class tournament including junior and senior high school and faculty teams, will be played.

The drawings were made Thursday morning, and practice has already started for this big event. The Juniors are the favored team since they have practically all the Vikings in their class. The Seniors may prove a "dark horse" as we aren't sure yet just what they plan to do. The Faculty and Sophomore will have mixed teams, since neither group has sufficient men to make up a team. The Faculty has Canfield, Hogge, and Riddle, and it is expected that Allen and Boggs will finish out the team.

The following is the schedule for the games: Freshmen - Faculty Seniors - Seventh Grade Sophomores - Juniors Seventh Grade - bye

Heidelberg Loses to Powell, 25-18

By Heidelberg In District Meet; 25 To 18

Powell County spurted into the lead in the second half against Heidelberg in the first game of the tournament and won going away by the score of 25 to 18. Powell county failed to show sufficient strength to bracket it with the stronger teams in the tournament.

Heidelberg led the Powell countians at the half 11 to 10 but weakened in the last frame as Baker and Cunningham tossed the leather through the hoop for a total of 15 points.

Local Team Loses On Bad Breaks; Score 10-8 At Half; Final, 20-13

Morehead's contender for championship honors in the Regional tournament held here last Friday and Saturday fell before the onslaught of the Mt. Sterling Trojans in the finals Saturday night after having successfully weathered the battles of Friday afternoon and Saturday afternoon. The Trojans took the final contest and the championship honors Saturday-night when a game little Breckinridge team faltered in the last half and lost by a score of 20 to 13.

To reach the finals Breckinridge had defeated a highly touted Cattleburg team by ten points on Friday night and had stopped Powell county, high conquerors of Heidelberg by the previous evening, 25 to 18.

Mt. Sterling had taken the measure of Winchester Friday night and had won according to the wishes of the majority of the fans. Breckinridge broke on top and at the end of the first period led the Trojans 7-6. At the half they trailed 10-8, largely because they had two baskets taken away from them on a traveling charge, but their superior ability to work the ball under the basket for crisp shots apparently gave them a decided advantage and made them the favorites at the half.

However in the following half, while they tied the score up at 11-11 they lost their basket eye, missing seven wild open criss while the Trojans were hitting impossible long shots from all angles. There is probably always a little "if" involved in a basketball game. The finals of the regional were literally crammed with it.

By the don't play basketball games and the Trojans piled up enough points to win.

Considerable criticism of the officiating was heard from all sides throughout the tournament. Several fans, unprejudiced, held that it started bad and got worse with every game.
