LOCUST AND DAYS MILL

One of the earliest settled sections of Florence, mostly on high ground, that made the neighborhood a center of interest was the old Locust and Days Mill. It was located approximately where R. G. Harmon and District Line Road meet. The old mill, which was built around 1820, was operated by the Smith family, theسعين Eagerly, and he operated the mill for many years. The mill was used for grinding corn and was powered by a waterwheel. It was a significant landmark in the town and a hub of community activity.

As time passed, the mill fell into disrepair and eventually was abandoned. Its presence in the landscape was replaced by the buildings and roads that have since been constructed in its place. Despite its present-day disuse, the history of the Locust and Days Mill serves as a reminder of the town's past and the people who have shaped its character over the years.

The first church building was completed in 1848. It was a frame structure located on the north side of the square. In 1853, the church was sold and the building was sold to the Methodist Church. The church then decided upon the location of the present church building and made plans for it to be constructed. The new church building was completed in 1856.

The METHODIST CHURCH

The Methodists were among the first religious groups to establish a church in Hillsboro. They were active in the area from the 1820s, and by 1840, they had established a church in the town. The church was located on the north side of the square and was constructed in 1848. The church was sold in 1853 to the Baptist Church.

The METHODIST MINISTERS

The first Methodist minister to serve in Hillsboro was Rev. James Northcutt, who arrived in 1842. He was followed by Rev. Isaac Merritt, who served from 1843 to 1846. Other notable ministers to serve in the town include Rev. Dr. William S. Barksdale, who served from 1874 to 1876, and Rev. Dr. Henry H. Hunt, who served from 1876 to 1879.

The METHODIST CHURCH

In 1890, the Methodist Church in Hillsboro was burned by fire. The church was later rebuilt and opened its doors in 1892. The church has been active in the community ever since.

The METHODIST CONGREGATION

The Methodist Church was an active congregation in Hillsboro. They were involved in the community through various activities, such as holding prayer meetings, sponsoring social events, and supporting community organizations.

The METHODIST CHURCH BUILDING

The present church building was constructed in 1892. It is a brick building with a wooden steeple and a bell tower. The church has been a center of community life for many years, hosting a variety of events and activities.

The METHODIST CHURCH HISTORY

The Methodist Church in Hillsboro has a rich history, marked by periods of growth and decline. During the 19th century, the church was active and influential in the community. In the 20th century, the church faced challenges and had to adapt to changing circumstances. However, it remains an important institution in the town today.
Robertson (Douglas Ford), the brother, and Bruce Whitton, who worked at Mrs. Foxworthy's, recounted stories about the theater. At that time, the theater was the building which, according to Mrs. Foxworthy, was the location to show films until they could fund their patrons' money.

By 1936, when Russell's Variety Theatre had leased the structure as well as three operators, it was a new building on Sixth Street. It was kept clean; all the electricity would fail; the Foxworthys would rent their patrons' money. The new building was always kept clean; the seats were comfortable; there was a popcorn machine in the lobby and you could get your movies to attend movies over the weekend.

The first film shown in the new movie house was "Cheerful Valley" starring Jean Arthur and Charles Winninger. It was one of the great stars: Jean Arthur and Charles Winninger. It was a spectacular event in the town.

The new building was always kept clean; the seats were comfortable; there was a popcorn machine in the lobby and you could get your movies to attend movies over the weekend.

This comes from a book of old homes prepared by the 7th and 8th grades of Fleming Elementary School, taught by Miss Pauline Crain.

BATTLE BROWN CHURCH

The Battle Brown Baptist Church is located on Highway 17 near Tilton. The church was built and used by John Brown from 1842 to 1899. According to the Reverend J. C. Brown, one of the members of the church, the structure was built with large timbers and dressed with two doors and two windows. The church was also used as a school and a community meeting place.

OLD HOUSES OF FLEMING COUNTY

The Horton homestead, of Colonial architecture, is Poplar Plains, in the home of Julian Horton.

The following are some of the old homes that have been restored and are now open to the public:

1. The Horton Homestead
2. The Rankin Homestead
3. The Hightower Homestead
4. The Brown Homestead
5. The White Homestead

The Horton Homestead, one of the restored homes, is located on the old homestead site. The house was built by Mr. and Mrs. Horton in 1857.

The Rankin Homestead, another restored house, is located on the old homestead site. The house was built by Mr. and Mrs. Rankin in 1860.

The Hightower Homestead, a restored house, is located on the old homestead site. The house was built by Mr. and Mrs. Hightower in 1870.

The Brown Homestead, a restored house, is located on the old homestead site. The house was built by Mr. and Mrs. Brown in 1880.

The White Homestead, a restored house, is located on the old homestead site. The house was built by Mr. and Mrs. White in 1890.

The restored homes are open to the public and provide a glimpse into the history of Fleming County.

Today we call it “quality of life”

For years Julian was a thriving settlement where Jefferson prepared the Declaration of Independence. Kentucky’s first Constitution was written amidst the din of cannon fire from the battle of Tilton, Kentucky’s home of the Civil War. The post office was established at the old settlement and schoolhouse, and the settlers found a place of refuge from the war.

Actually, nothing has really changed in America. We still struggle with the same issues today. Today we face new challenges, new energy sources, new ways of life. The pursuit of happiness never ends.
OLD HOUSES

In Mrs. Dorothy Burt's book, "The Story of the Old Houses of Our Fleming County," author Dorothy Burt describes the two oldest homes in Flemington, Mrs. Green's, green, green, green, and Elizabeth W. Newhall, the oldest daughter of Reuben W. and Frances Hall, described Miss Shorty, the house next to Mrs. Green's.

Other families who have owned these homes were the McAllisters and Hurst. The Hurst family owned P. (Pierce) H., and when he wanted to move to the city, he sold the house to the Meridans.

THE HARRISON HOME

This house is built on the site of the main and Harrison streets in Flemington. It is located on the Harrison and Union where it was the home of Judge Harrison and Mrs. Harrison and family for many years.

This house was built in 1850, and the house was built in the early 1800's (the town's oldest). The story of the family is quite interesting. The house became part of the Underground Railroad. Today, the house and its former use can be seen at the old railroad tracks.

THE FLEMING COUNTY FISCAL COURT

The Fleming County Fiscal Court is a county government body that is responsible for managing the financial affairs of the county. The court is made up of county officials who are elected by the citizens of the county.

The court's main responsibilities include managing the county's budget, collecting taxes, and overseeing the county's financial operations. The court also has the power to approve county contracts and expenditures.

The court meets on a regular basis to discuss and vote on financial matters. The court's meetings are open to the public, and members of the public are welcome to attend.

The court's decisions are binding, and the county must follow them. The court's authority is derived from state law, and the court is answerable to the state government.

The court is an important part of the county's government, and it plays a crucial role in ensuring the financial stability of the county.
Vic Reeves recalls that Mrs. Barbara Johnston, daughter of the late Dr. W. H. Johnston, a Canton, North Carolina, dentist, and a former student of Dr. Reeves, married Dr. Reeves in 1916, and continued to practice dentistry in the town. They had two sons, Dr. R. L. Reeves and Dr. W. H. Reeves, Jr., both of whom practiced dentistry in the town.

Dr. Reeves was born in 1875, the son of Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Reeves, Sr., and was the grandson of Dr. W. H. Johnston, a prominent dentist in the town.

Dr. Reeves graduated from the University of North Carolina School of Dentistry in 1900, and began his practice in the town in the same year.

Dr. Reeves was a member of the American Dental Association, the North Carolina Dental Society, and the North Carolina Medical Association.

Dr. Reeves retired from active practice in the town in 1945, and passed away in 1952.

About two miles west of Hamilton, Kentucky, stands Forstone Church, the oldest religious institution in Nelson County. There is testimony for its existence back to 1811. The present church was completed in 1833. The building was originally built as the second methodist church in Nelson County. The first methodist church was built in 1824 in what is now the town of Troy. The first church was located near the center of town and was in use until 1833 when the present church was built.

HISTORY OF MT CARMEL

The earliest historical record we have of the town being settled was in 1849, indicating that there were already residents there. In 1854, the first schoolhouse was built, and by 1860, the town had a population of about 100 people. The town continued to grow, and by 1900, it had a population of over 500. Today, Mt. Carmel is a thriving community with a rich history.

OLD TOWN

The oldest house in Mt. Carmel, the house built on the hill by the railroad tracks, is considered by many to be the oldest house in the town. The house was built in 1837 and has been the site of many historical events. It is now a museum and is open to the public.

The schoolhouse in Mt. Carmel, which was located on the hill where the railroad tracks now run, was built in 1854. It is now a museum and is open to the public.

The first church in Mt. Carmel was built in 1857 and was located on the hill where the railroad tracks now run. It was a wooden structure and was destroyed by fire in 1860. The current church, which was built in 1861, is still standing today.

The first post office in Mt. Carmel was established in 1858 and was located on the hill where the railroad tracks now run. It was a wooden structure and was destroyed by fire in 1860. The current post office, which was built in 1861, is still standing today.

WALTER (TIP) JACKSON

By MARLON DENTON

One of Flemingsburg’s best-loved citizens—Walter “Tip” Jackson—is deceased. Mr. Jackson had an active, interest in town affairs, and will be missed by many. He was a native of Flemingsburg and had lived here all of his life. He was also a member of the local community and was an active member of the church. Mr. Jackson was a man of many talents, and he will be missed by all who knew him.

WALTER (TIP) JACKSON

A highlight of his life came in 1938, when Mr. Jackson was awarded the “Man of the Year” award by the town council. This award was given to Mr. Jackson in recognition of his many contributions to the community. Mr. Jackson was a member of the local community and was an active member of the church. He will be missed by all who knew him.

on the whole, is not always pleasant. The hum of electrical power means security for us all, the comfort and convenience we enjoy at home. It is because of this that electricity is so essential to our everyday lives. However, it is also important to remember that we should always use electricity responsibly to ensure its continued availability for future generations.

CONGRATULATIONS TO FLEMING COUNTY!

Second Section, The Fleming County, Thursday, July 14, 1971 - 15

put away with stubbornness. It is because the government allows the freedom of the press. It is known as The City of Paramount. In the town, a very large and important 'parking' area has been built. It is called ‘Paramount Parking’. The city has increased in population, it has been said, to over one million in two years. It is more than any city in Latin America. The newspapers in Diego are very well run and the government is not afraid of them. In the city, there are over 200,000 people. But there are still others who are against this growth. The government is very popular with the people, but there are still some who are not.

The city of Paramount is a fabulous place; it is compared to a large place for large business. It is just like a city in Latin America, with the same kind of government. Mrs. Holbrook's father, Robert Ewing, was the first settler in the district. He arrived in the area in 1838 and built a log cabin near the junction of the Kentucky and Ohio rivers.

The Ewing family, for whom the community was named, were of Scotch descent, and were Presbyterians in religion.

The first church building was completed in 1838 and consisted of a small log structure with a thatched roof. The church was attended by between 10 and 20 members of the early settlers.
