Repeal of Kentucky Tax On Real Estate Not Constitutional

Court of Appeals Rules That Levy Must Be Collected Next Year

JUDGES HOLD TAX ON COSMETICS AS VALID

Governor Chandler's Tax Program Called For Exemption On Land, Property

The real estate tax repeal voted by the 1938 General Assembly was held unconstitutional this week by the Court of Appeals, which, in other opinion, upheld a 20-per cent tax upon the receipt value of cosmetics.

The court's opinion in the real estate tax case has the effect of reversing the levy of 5 cents on the $100 valuation for State purposes. The tax on cosmetics automatically goes out of existence April 1 when repeal of the omnibus tax measure becomes effective.

Judge Gus Thomas prepared the Appellate Court's opinion in the real estate case. It was concurred by the entire bench. The cosmetics tax opinion was prepared and upheld by a vote of five to two—Judge William Rogers, Chief Justice, and Justices S. S. Dill, James W. Stites, and James W. Stites.

Both the real estate repeal and the cosmetics tax were held invalid by Judge William Arbery in Franklin Circuit Court. He, too, held the General Assembly has no power to set aside the real estate tax. In the cosmetics tax case Judge Arbery held it breached terms of the interstate commerce clause of the Federal Constitution. This latter view was not upheld by the Appellate Court.

The decision of the Appellate Court in the real estate tax case, Judge Thomas wrote, has the effect of reversing the 1938 legislative act. The real estate tax at 5 cents on the $100 valuation.

Rock Fork and Sharkey-Farmers Roads To Be Constructed This Year, Fiscal Court Agreement Stipulates

The grading, draining and surfacing of 2 strips of road, approximately 11 miles, in Rowan County seemed assured this morning, following a special meeting of the Fiscal Court.

The Fiscal Court, meeting with Butch Warren, rural hauling engineer of rural roads, and Sam Exill, supervisor of rural highways, entered into an agreement that if the state used the proportionate part of the sum due this county that the court would match it dollar for dollar with money obtained from the Federal government, with the provision that these 2 roads be built.

The part that this county will receive from the state is approximately $1,000,000 which will be doubled with the Federal funds. The federal money could not have gone to this fund except through agreement, County Judge C. E. Jennings said.

The roads to be built under the agreement are—Sharkey-Farmers road, beginning at intersection of the lower Licking River road and running to the Jim Clay farm, approximately 6 miles; and the Rock Fork road, beginning at the intersection of North Fork of Triplett and running to the Waitz postoffice, approximately 5 miles.

In addition to grading, draining and surfacing these roads the agreement also stipulated that they be turned over to the state highway department for maintenance.

Initial Scrimmage At Morehead To Be Held Friday At 4

Epidemic of Bad Colds Prevents 6 Players From Practicing This Week

JOHNSON PLEASUED WITH SOPHOMORE PROSPECTS

Sessions Will Become More Strenuous As Squad Rounds In Shape, Coaches Say

Followers of the Morehead College football team will have their first opportunity to see the 1937 group in active combat Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, the date set by Ellis Johnson and Len Miller for the initial scrimmage of the spring football practice. Although Friday's scrimmage will not be in the form of a regulation game, it will last almost an hour and should present an insight into what Morehead will place on the field in this fall's conference combat.

An epidemic of bad colds has hit the squad, keeping 6 members from participating in this week's practice. Johnson expects most of those on the sidelines to be back by Friday, although they will not participate in the scrimmage.

The Eagle squad is comparatively small in numbers, only 26 men being out for yesterday's practice. If anything, it has been a club in even better than that of last year.

One happy note in the practice is that, so far, not an injury of any consequence has been sustained. However, Friday's practice may lay some of them on the sheet for a while. There has been a few "up" scrimmages this week, but the bodily contact work has been almost nil.

Johnson said today that 6 sophomores, Stanley, Dingus, Rose, Robertson and Greenholtz, were looking practically as good as veterans. Radlman, who has been laid up with a cold, is considered as one of the better sophomores.

Joy, Pathos Mark Observance of Birth of Christ Through Christian Union

Devout Christians observed the day of the Resurrection Sunday throughout the world, but chill March winds eliminated in many countries the display of Easter clothing which has become a traditional part of the spring holiday.

Thousands of the people of this and other lands attended special church services, but most cities missed the usually colorful march observed the day quietly with their families, attending a country church. THE PRESIDENT'S SUPREME COURT BILL

No issue since the World War has brought such a degree of debate, argument and bitterly opposed controversy as the President's judicial reorganization proposal which, to all intents and purposes, would give the Executive Branch control over the judicial branch in an unprecedented extent.

The President's action brought into the limelight a many-faceted and very old question concerning fundamental governmental theory. There are two kinds of democracies in the world. One, such as the United States, has a written constitution, by which the legislative branch must abide—or be reversed by the courts.

Those who support the President's proposal, or some other plan which would substantially change the role of the Judiciary in our life, are of the opinion that the courts, and especially the Supreme Court, act as a barrier to progressive legislation.

All this controversy has naturally led to the widespread belief that the Supreme Court has negated acts of Congress on many occasions. But rather surprising are the facts concerning this as presented in a recent article in the United States News.

First major decision of the court holding a Congressional act to be unconstitutional was the famed Dred Scott decision in 1857. This decision said that slaves were property and that he could be brought back from a "free" state to the slave state from which he had escaped.

The next decision occurred in 1870, when the Court decided that greenbacks printed during the Civil War were not legal tender for debts contracted prior to their issuance.

The Congress passed the first income tax law and the Court held it unconstitutional. Again the people adopted ordered constitutional methods to remedy matters and the 16th Amendment, specifically authorizing the income tax, resulted.

The Congress passed the first minimum wages for women employed in industry, two dealing with child labor, etc. In the first 144 years of the Republic eight such decisions were handed down.

Then came the New Deal—and the part played by the Court became suddenly more important. In the last four years, the Court has outlawed eight major acts of the Roosevelt stewardship—half of the major acts declared unconstitutional in the whole of its life.

Furthermore, the Court will pass on a number of other major New Deal laws during 1937, and legal opinion generally holds that the decisions will be mostly unfavorable.

Sources close to the White House say that the President has been considering various measures for limiting the power of the Supreme Court or changing its membership ever since the NRA decision. The proposed bill is the upshot of his deliberations, and it came as a surprise to many of his associates and to most of the Democratic spokesmen in Congress.

message was felt by industry. Says Business Week: "The President's message for revamping the Supreme Court fell like a bombshell on the business community, reviving fears of new forms of industrial and agricultural control."

LABOR FAVORS PETTENGILL BILL

At the last session of congress a bill to repeal the outmoded long-and-short-haul section of the Transportation Act—which makes it impossible in many instances for railroads to offer rates as low as those of their competitors—was introduced. It passed the House, but did not reach a vote in the Senate.

An identical bill has again been introduced by the same congressman, Representative Pettengill of Indiana, and recently testimony concerning it was taken.

In behalf of the bill representatives of many groups outside of the railroads appeared. Spokesmen for industry, shippers and producers pledged their support. And even from the industry itself, some of the most aggressive support came from railroad labor organizations.

George M. Harrison, President of the Railway Clerks' organization for example, described the bill as a measure "necessary to relieve railway employment of a restriction that is unfair to the railroad industry, socially unwise and economically unsound."

The clause came into existence to protect other types of transport from unfair competition—it was designed to meet a need that no longer exists. The Interstate Commerce Commission has adequate authority to see that competition is kept equitable without the long-and-short-haul provision.

Unprejudiced, informed opinion is almost unanimously of the belief that the Pettengill bill should be passed in the interest of the worker, the shipper, the railroads and the public at large.

THE COST OF FIRE INSURANCE

There is considerable misunderstanding of the basis upon which the cost of fire insurance is determined—and also of the record made by the insurance companies, especially the stock companies, in reducing their rates.

Insurance companies have no premium revenues those derived from their policy holders. Their expenses hinge upon the number of fires for which they must pay. Thus, when fire losses go up, rates must rise. And when fire losses go down, rates decline.

Naturally, a community cannot have one good year so far as fire losses are concerned. Rates are fixed over a considerable period of time—and a community must prove that there is good expectancy that loss will stay down before it is possible to slice its rate.

For over a generation the stock fire insurance companies have constantly reduced rates, and they are now at the lowest level in history. Their overhead costs, considering the complicated nature of the business, are held to a very low percentage. They constantly advance their standards of routine efficiency, in the interest of the policyholder.

We will have further reductions in the cost of insurance to insure them. We cannot have fire hazards if we continue our national habit of permitting fire hazards to exist and multiply on property until a blaze results. Several hundreds of millions a year in property values go in smoke—at least eighty per cent of that loss could be avoided with simple precautions.

The stock companies are as eager as their policy holders to lower rates. Whether rates will go down or up in the future is a matter that is up to all of us. If we indulge in the careless and slothful habits that cause fire, we must pay the bill.

SOUND "PLANNED ECONOMY"

Writing on the subject of cooperatives, Nation's Business says: "No one is likely to grope or contest the progress of self-help societies so long as they advance through their enterprise and good management."

"When their success depends on subsidy by the rest-of the community, they are vulnerable to the charge that their benefits are possible only when operation is sustained by the beneficent government. Well it has been said that 'planned economy' expresses the individual best when he and his fellows plan what they will do for themselves and not what others shall do at their behests."

If cooperatives can succeed only through subsidies and favoritism, it is obvious that they have no economic justification for existence. Fortunately for the cause of cooperation, the better cooperatives, both in the United States and elsewhere have wisely refrained from asking favors, and have gone ahead not with the aid of tax-freedom or subsidies, but through their own abilities, foresight and enterprise.

Reports Of Special Session Are Denied

Lieutenant - Governor Keen Johnson Says "It's News To Me"

Widely circulated reports that a special session of the legislature would be necessitated by the opinion of the court of appeals declaring the law eliminating all taxes on real estate unconstitutional, were branded as "news to me" by Acting Governor Keen Johnson yesterday.

On the face of it, though published reports stated as authoritative that a special session would be called, the ruling of the court of appeals makes a special session, more, instead of less, remote.

The court of appeals' decision may add $500,000 to the state's revenues. A report that the state income tax law would be repealed if a special session of the legislature was called also was believed without foundation due to the fact that during the week the ice cream tax was declared unconstitutional and the funds collected and impounded under it must be refunded.

CORRECTION

Through a transposition in lines in the political announcements carried in last Thursday's paper, Vernon Alfrey was listed as a candidate for Representative and J. B. Mauk as a candidate for county clerk. This was purely unintentional on the part of the Independent and we are glad to make this correction. Mr. Alfrey is a candidate for clerk of Rowan County on the Republican ticket and Mr. Mauk is a candidate for Representative from the Bath and Rowan County districts on the Democratic ticket.

KENTUCKY POWER & LIGHT COMPANY E. E. CURTIS, Manager

THE STORY SO FAR: Nick Charles, famous detective, returns to San Francisco with his wife, Nora, after solving the Thin Man case in New York. Home, New Year's Eve, when they are summoned by Nora's cousin, Selma, who lives with her aunt, Katherine Forrest. Selma says her husband Robert has been missing for three days. Nora insists that Nick try to find him.

CHAPTER THREE

The reputation of the Lichee Club was none too savory. In fact, that part of Frisco in which the cabaret was located was the center of underworld activities. But this did not stop a cosmopolitan influx to the club.

Since this was New Year's Eve, the place was packed. The orchestra—or what passed for one—was as cheap, tinny and tawdry as the rest of the surroundings. Whatever reputation the place enjoyed came from the fact that it was in the exact center of the Chinese section, and that it was smart, and a bit dangerous, to go there. Lots of faces that had achieved, or were going to achieve, front page notoriety would bob up in the noisy, seamy, smoke-frescoed, second-story atmosphere of the Lichee. Few people who came to the club were in evening dress.

Polly Byrnes was the featured singer on the current bill. What she lacked for voice she made up for in personality. She was not exactly an orchid in a bed of wild flowers, but she had tremendous vitality, and good looks of a strident, artificial sort.

"A waiter stopped her as she reached the door."
"I got a message for you," he said. "Your brother's looking for you."
"Well, let him look!" flung back Polly. She entered the room pulling off her shoes as she did so. Then she came to an abrupt halt. Facing her was the man the waiter was talking about. He was small, round and thin, with wrinkled cheeks and a badly-cut suit. The lines about his mouth were twisted into a sarcastic leer.
"So that's the way it is," he said.

"Please, Phil," she parried, "don't try to start anything. I'm in a hurry."
"You been in a hurry ever since I got back," he answered.
"Can I help it if I got to work?" said Polly.
"I don't mean that," replied Phil. "It's this drunk out there. What's going on?"
He brought forward a hand from behind his back. Polly saw that he had opened her purse and taken out a check. She reached for it, but he held it tastefully in the air.
"I'm in on this, you know," said Phil, his small blinking eyes staring at her greedily.
Polly made a grab for the check and seized it.
"I can't cut you in," she said. "You'll find a way, won't you?"

Dancer was none too happy as he saw the identity of his lover's sister, that he greeted him with an impassive look on his face.

"Yeah?" Dancer sneaked a glance at her—form from between half-closed eyes. "Well, then, the next day. Ain't it worth it?"
He pulled her toward him, gave her a squeeze, looked to see that no one was watching. His expression told her what he expected and what the reward would be. She smiled in a half-evasive way, then started for her dressing-room to change her shoes.

At the same moment Nick and Nora were on the way up. Nick managed to throw out his own arm just in time to avoid a disastrous collision.
"Well, well!" he exclaimed. "Big confetti they throw here!"
Phil scowled. He twisted himself away, clutched for the railing, and was off. Nick dusted himself off. He smiled at Nora, feeling that this was a real antidote for the depressing and dormant atmosphere of the Forrest home.

"This is more like it," he said gaily.
"Too bad we didn't bring Aunt Katharine," agreed Nora.
Dancer was none too happy as he saw the identity of his latest visitor. He had had a couple of brushes with Nick Charles before. But he shook hands with an impassive look on his face.
"A neat way you have of getting rid of your customers," bantered Nora.
"His sister works here," said Dancer. "I just get tired of him sometimes."
"I see," answered Nick. "You know, I felt a gun under his left arm."
"Just breaking it in for a friend," said Dancer.
They stepped across the entranceway to the club and Dancer beckoned to a stout, stubby, middle-aged Chinaman.

"I want you to meet my partner," he said. "Lum Kee, Mr. and Mrs. Charles."
"I your friend. You bet you," said Lum Kee. He bowed his head several times.
"You sent his brother up, Lum Ying," Dancer reminded Nick.
"I remember," answered Nick, with the same inexpressive inflection in his voice. "He's the one that started with a tong war and ended sticking up a bank."
"You bet you," beamed Lum Kee. "You catch 'em my brother."
"He still in?" queried Nick.
"Bet you," replied Lum Kee. "Five years more."
Nora's eyes followed Lum Kee's round figure uncertainly, as the Chinese co-proprietor excused himself. She turned to Dancer.
"Is he a gun man too?" she asked.
"No," said Dancer, "but you never can tell how close brothers are." He looked at Nick meaningfully and added:

"Here's good guy to have in the club."
Nora heard and understood. Her eyes opened wider and, involuntarily she pulled back. Nick looked at her in a mildly amused way, and pointed toward the archway leading into the club.
"This way, Mrs. Charles," he said dryly.
The dance floor was jammed with a yelling, gyrating, bottle-waving mass of humanity. At times even the Chinese jazz band could scarcely make itself audible above the din.

Dancer led the way through the milling crowd to a table, as Nora searched the room for some sign of the missing Robert. She had no way of telling that he was here. She only felt intuitively he might be. Suddenly, with an emotional jolt, she caught sight of him.
"Robert! Robert!" she cried, above the jostle and shouting.
He looked up drunkenly, from his rignside table. A flicker of recognition crossed his face.
"We just saw Selma," cried Nora. "She's terribly worried. Don't you think you'd better go home?"
Robert stared at her but said nothing. His hand automatically reached for the glass in front of him.

Nora was pushed away from him by the surging crowd. Dancer's eyes flashed in scheming hatred, as she and Nick were directed to a table across the room. He had not missed any part of the little scene.

Russia gave little notice to the day of the resurrection, it paying unnoticed in Moscow except for members of the foreign colony who traveled through the city in trains to attend services in one Catholic and one Lutheran church.

Jerusalem, the Holy City, saw an impressive celebration disturbed only by political storm-clouds. They groups of Christians joined in observance of the day.

An estimated 75,000 shivering spectators saw the eleventh annual mountain Easter parade presented at dawn, at the base of the wind-swept Mount Roosevelt near Lawton, Okla., the 22-degree weather keeping other thousands away.

In Chicago the sun was bright but chill winds sweeping the famed Michigan boulevard for the parades of Easter finery to be brief.

President Roosevelt rode to church in an open car at Washington, wearing morning clothes and a shuning top hat in deference to the occasion. He was attended a sunrise service at Arlington cemetery, where she laid a huge cross of flowers on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

In New York there was another Easter parade, in contrast to that on Park avenue, where occupants of a coach and four—her first to appear in an Easter parade—the parade of 1928—found few celebrities to observe.

It was a parade of the followers of Father Divine, a negro leader, who staged a peace demonstration along lower East Side in Manhattan. Led by 50 white garbed men and women on horseback the paraders shouted "Peace, Father," and "Father Divine is God," as they marched.

Court Holds Tax Is Unconstitutional

opinion also nullifies the 1936 law giving to the Department of Revenue the exclusive right to possess minerals for local purposes.

"Exemptions from taxation are not favored, and will not be implied, except in the most imperative language," Judge Thomas wrote in setting aside the argument that possibly the constitutional amendment authorizing the General Assembly to classify subjects for taxation gave that power.

"The classifying amendment of 1915 neither expressly nor impliedly authorized or even intimated that the General Assembly could entirely abolish the real estate tax."

Judge Thomas also touched on the argument that if the entire 1936 act, which also re-enacted the State ad valorem taxes, that the State might find itself without an ad valorem tax too.

"The General Assembly had no such purpose in mind and where we can develop the legislative intent, if it is within its just powers, we shall give it effect to that intent," he wrote. "By re-writing the 1934 provisions into what will be future conditions in this act, the General Assembly intended to continue this taxation."

The real estate tax was attacked by High Splint Coal Company, Harlan County, on constitutional grounds. The cosmetics tax was attacked mainly on the ground that it was a burden on interstate commerce.

In rejecting this contention, Judge Baird wrote that the items sought to be taxed "had reached their destination and changed hands before the tax became effective."

CCC Enrollee Writes On Preserving Forest

farm clearing have accounted for this in one hundred and fifty years. If we continue at this rate, we shall give the future conditions in Kentucky be?

From whatever standpoint value of forests is measured, it will be found that unless a portion of the nation's area is covered with mature forests, railroads and homes cannot be built, books, magazines, and papers cannot be published. It has been said "The Civilization of North America is founded upon Wood."

In this section of the country we are in great need of forest protection. There is now a CCC camp located at Morehead for this purpose. The people should join hands with the CCC camp and Forest Service in cooperation and make the forest program grow to a great help to our country.

We are badly in need of protection against forest fires. Of all the enemies of the forest, fire is the greatest. Fire protection plays a large part in the forestry program and each year thousands of dollars are spent in fighting fires. This money could well be used in the building of roads and other improvements of lasting value.

Even the lightest fire destroys some trees and damages others. The average forest fire kills most of the trees up to one inch in diameter on the area burned. This represents about eight years of patient growth. Many large trees are killed, but the younger the timber the higher the death rate.

The community of trees which we call the forest is like the community of persons which we call the human race. If we kill off the children, what is the future of the human race? If we burn up the little trees, what is to become of the forest? The answer is simple.

Some day, not so far off, we will have a costly task of planting trees on worn-out soil and trying to make them grow. If we banish forest fire, Mother Nature will gladly do this for us.

In the wake of fire stalk death and damage. Sometimes the damage is not easily seen, but it is there just the same. It is quite possible that the lack of knowledge of the very real injury which follows fire in the woods may partly account for so much carelessness with fire. People are usually careful when they realize that a thoughtless act may burn up their property. No person in his right mind will light a pipe and tip the burning match in the fodder bin or hay mow. Why?

His hand is stayed by the thought of fire, and the damage it will cause. Yet that same person may, without thinking, flip another match into dry grass and leaves and start a forest fire that will do even greater damage than the value of a hundred barns. What is true of the unthinking smoker is true of the man with the campfire, the burner of brush, or of anyone else who uses fire in or near the forest.

So that you may stop and think and then be careful with fire in the woods, the following fire injuries (evidence against fire) are given you:

- Injury to: 1—Soil; 2—Timber; 3—Water; 4—Wildlife; 5—Beauty.

Doctors Fan Spark Of Life In Infant

Pre-Mature Baby, Weighing Less Than Pound Is Being Kept Alive

A staff of doctors and nurses, using the most delicate instruments of medical science, fanned the tiny spout of human life in a perfectly formed baby boy who has a head of the size and color of a small red apple.

The "atom baby" weighing between eight and nine ounces, was born at 4:30 a. m. today and at midnight its airtight microscopic heart was still pumping blood regularly through the tiny body.

Dr. George J. Scovner, who delivered the child to Mrs. Louise Viles—a frail, black-haired woman hardly five feet tall herself, said the child was a four-months-and-ten days baby—one of the smallest ever known to medical science.

Child Seems Normal

No other premature baby, born at such an early stage of life, has lived, he said.

"Externally," he said, "the child seems to be normal. Let us hope and pray the baby will grow."

The baby was born by accident in the medical ward of the United Israel Zion Hospital, instead of the maternity ward, because Mrs. Viles's doctor did not suspect she was going to have a baby.

And there it had to stay, a tiny dark bundle wrapped in cotton wadding, with an inverted funnel over its head. A thin stream of pure oxygen passed through the funnel upon its face.

Its food for the first twelve hours of life was two drops of water every ten minutes. Then Dr. Scovner ordered a drop of 5 per cent lactose solution—sugar and milk in water.

Only nurses and the physician were allowed near the baby, which lay in a make-shift incubator.

When the baby was born, a tiny drop of alphanolbin, used to stimulate breathing, was shot into the body. It began to breathe, slowly at first and then its heart started pumping regularly.

Kentucky Seeks To Halt Tax Loopholes

The entirety of the State Highway Patrol was confining all of its efforts to flood duty during the most part of February and because of it the monthly average on the collection of revenues fell to $7,191.36, the lowest in a year, according to a report made by Colonel Huey. However, there were 217 corrections made on motor vehicle equipment during the month.

Because of the concentrated drive, constantly in effect, there are now more paid truck permits in Kentucky than ever before and a new high in operator's license has been reached. Although there are more operator's license in existence than ever before, Colonel Huey declared that a survey, made in several counties, show that at least two-thirds of the persons able to operate a car, still do not have a license.

The survey, made in five counties, shows that there are 3 7-10 drivers for every automobile whereas the licenses issued to operate a car are averaging but one license to each automobile.

To date approximately 378,000 automobiles have been licensed in the State and a like number of operator's licenses issued. There should be 1,300,000 operator cards in existence.

The evaders of the usage taxes are finding the Highway Patrol methods of ferreting out offenders quick and very effective. This tax is on the purchase of new automobiles. Many native Kentucky citizens, especially those living near the State borders, purchase new cars in neighboring states that do not impose a usage tax, license the car there and bring it into Kentucky. A 3 per cent tax is due the State on these cars. One by one these offenders are being found and made to pay the tax due.

Besides bringing to account the evaders of the motor revenue taxes, the Patrol reports for recent months show that it has been active in bringing to justice other offenders. The February report shows that the Patrol made 391 arrests during the month of February, the charges ranging from parking on the highway to murder and armed robbery. Those arrested yielded $4,076 in fines and $2,082 in costs.

If present plans are carried out, on May 1 the Kentucky State Highway Patrol will be the first State Patrol in the United States to be 100 per cent instructed in first aid.

The entire patrol will complete a full first aid course during the month of April. The course of instruction will be given at Louisville and all patrolmen will take the full course. When it is completed all Highway Patrol cars and motorcycles will be equipped with first aid kits and each car and cycle will bear the Red Cross insignia.

In order that the Highway patrol can be of still more use to the citizenry of the State, it is constantly schooling itself in the needs of the people. The patrolmen receive weekly, a bulletin concerning accidents that they are to extend to the travellers on the highways.

SWEETPOTATO BEDS

April 1 is the average date for sweetpotato beds to be made in Kentucky. There are many kinds comprising "flue beds," beds heated by manure and those without any provision for warming them, but which depend on heat absorbed from the sun's rays.

The most dependable is the flue bed, so named because it is warmed by flues beneath, through which pass smoke and gasses from a fire box in which wood fires or coal fires are maintained. Such beds, covered with glass, can be relied upon to deliver slips on schedule, almost no matter what the season, and to produce most slips per bushel of seed bedded. Three bushels should make 10,000 slips, enough for an acre. Covered with muslin, the behavior of such a bed is only slightly less dependable. The bed space allowed for a bushel of seed is 3 feet by 6 feet.

Manure-heated beds are used by growers of lesser extent, and by those for whom extreme coldness and speed are no essential. From 8 to 12 inches of manure is generally sufficient. The bed cover may be muslin, but glass or glass substitute is better. In such a bed, 4 to 5 bushels of seed will produce an acre's slips, in 3 drawings.

Lowest in the scale are the beds without heating means of any kind, but which depend entirely on sun-heat. The efficiency of such beds is vastly improved by spreading black roofing paper directly on them, to be removed when slips start forming. Even so, such beds are quite at the mercy of the season, and, in order that enough slips may be produced by June 1, 6 or 7 bushels of seed should be bedded, per acre.

Further information concerning bedding structures are found in Kentucky Extension Circular No. 778, a copy of which may be had free from the county agent, or by writing to the College of Agriculture at Lexington.

Black Rot is so universal a disease of sweetpotatoes that seed sweets should be treated by dipping them in a solution made of one ounce of corrosive sublimate in 8 gallons of water. In order

HOW I BECAME A RADIO STAR

By FRED ASTAIRE

It never occurred to me that I would ever do any radio work a little more than a year ago, when the producers of the Hit Parade prevailed upon me to come to New York to do a series of eight appearances on the program between motion picture assignments. Previous to that, I had always centered my attention on one thing at a time, whether it was the stage or the screen, and had felt it was best to continue that way—devoting myself exclusively to a single medium. Only a few months afterward, I was offered, and found myself, to do a thirty-minute week series of programs heard every Tuesday night over the NBC-Radio Network. It is a little more than a year ago, the most brilliant talent in radio—Johnny Green's orchestra, Charlie Hatterworth, Francis "Whitey" Conrad Thibault—and the show still has twelve weeks to go.

It is certain that in this series, my experience both on the stage and in pictures has been of tremendous help. Not only did I give people who have seen the films a chance to see me, but it also was a tremendous aid in preparing for the microphone those many people would prefer to hear me do.

That background in entertaining people started when I was eight, I began dancing then in my home town, Omaha, Nebraska. It continued through theatrical careers when I appeared in musicals like "The Passing Show," "Apple Blossoms," "The Love Letters," "The Bunch and Judy," and "For Goodness Sake." I was also a frequent appearance in London and on the continent, where I took vehicles on my dancing on the "African Wagon" and "The Gay Divorcee," after they had succeeded on Broadway.

The motion pictures, too, had a great deal to do with acquainting many people with anything I might do. That its complete dissolving may be assured, the corrosive sublimate should be stirred in a small quantity of hot water, and this added to the water in the treating vessel. Non-metal containers should be used throughout. Corrosive sublimate is deadly poison, taken inwardly, the solution should be kept away from children and from livestock. It will do no harm to the hands, however.

Further to insure against Black Rot, always use new bed soil and new covering material, sawdust or sand, should be used. Mustin, used again, should be boiled, and all frame material should be thoroughly swabbed with spent treating solution, to render it germ-free. This applies, even though no Black Rot trouble has been experienced.

What varieties to bed depends. For market potatoes and for high quality home supply, Nancy Hall and Porto Rico are preferred, even though the latter variety inclines towards overize. Both these being "yams," they need special care in keeping them, as in "fired" storage. For home use, and where storing must be done in more or less amateur manner, the more starchy Southern Queen subsequently do on the air, and pictures such as "Flying Down to Rio," "The Gay Divorcee," "Top Hat" and "Swing Time," proved valuable source material for radio programs. It was with a lot of manipulations and consideration that R.K.O., who makes my pictures, found a way so I could rehearse and appear on the air while doing a picture. You'd be surprised, too, if you were to know how much rehearsing goes into sixty minutes before the microphone.

"I've enjoyed radio as much as any medium of entertainment with which I have been connected during the years of my career. You see, I've had a swell time of it and hope that broadcasting will attract a good deal of my interest for years to come.

KENTUCKY 4-H CLUB, NEWS

Cecil Eubanks, a Taylor county club member, has joined the ranks of fine tobacco growers by a production of 1,560 pounds on one acre of land. The sale price was $923. Total costs, including land rent, labor, etc., were slightly less than 7 cents per pound.

TODD COUNTY boys who carried the baby beef project last year seemed to make the best club members, and as a result, the most money. Twenty-two bought beef cows for $70 or less each, in comparison with only 7 who owned cows last year.

JAMES FINSON, of Pike county, bought 200 baby chicks at a rate made especially low for 4-H club members. Pike county expects to have not less than 1,000 club members when the sign-up is completed, and to organize several new clubs.

FORTY ANGUO calves, weighing a total of 18,880 pounds, were bought by Hart county club members at 9 cents per pound, of $1,899. Seventeen members bought the calves, which were imported recently from Mexico.

HATCHING QUAIL in cooperation with the county game organization will be a project of Gallatin county Utopia club members. How to secure and hatch quail was explained to them by Lem Bledsoe, Jr., president of the local game organization.

A POPCORN project has been started by Breathitt county members, with every boy who selects the project raising one-quarter acre. Another project arousing special interest is that of purebred pigs, with Morris Fork boys leading in the number bought.

Farm records to be kept by club members, as well as adults, have attracted 15 Garrard county boys. The International Harvester Company is sponsoring a contest in record keeping and already inventories have been taken by those participating.

$110,000 WORTH OF CHECKS SENT TO DAVISS FARMERS

County Agent J. E. McClure has announced that about 1,600 checks for $110,000 worth of 1936 agricultural conservation program allotments are available in his office for 1,052 Daviss county farmers. This is about half the applications sent to Washington, he said.

MORE TREES FOR KENTUCKY

The Soil Conservation Service, through its three watershed projects and 14 CCC camps in the state, plan to plant approximately 6,270,000 trees and shrubs this year. During the 1936 fall season the organization planted 619,000 trees, mostly of the hardwood varieties. In addition to protecting land against erosion, it is expected that the trees will provide fence posts, fuel and other timber.

BURNED LIME AS BEST SOURCE

There are communities in many counties in Kentucky where both lime rock and wood occur in abundance. In many of these communities burned lime can no doubt be made the cheapest and most convenient source of lime, especially since burning lime does not require special machinery and since also the farmer can do all the labor and will need no cash outlay.

If burned lime is used for taking up his Agricultural Conservation Program allowance, the farmer will receive $3 per ton for burned lime where used in compliance with the program. He can in many instances burn lime for less than $3 per ton, according to S. C. Jones of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Under specified conditions, farmers are paid $2.50 per acre for thinning or pruning trees on a woodland for forest. Refuse wood resulting from such improvement of forest might be used in burning lime, thus increasing the profit from burning lime still further.

There was a marked increase in the tonnage of burned lime used by Kentucky farmers during 1936. County agents' reports show that 947 men in 31 counties used 7,454 tons of burned lime during the year. This was an increase of more than 100 per cent over the tonnage used in 1935. Agents' reports show that 200 limekilns were burned in 23 counties.

Revised circular No. 247 is available to farmers who plan to burn lime. Copies may be had from county agents or from the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

ASK CHANGE IN NAME OF FOREST PRESERVE

Col. William Boone Douglas, Washington, president of the American Order of Pioneers, Incorporated, and of the Boone Family Association, Incorporated, has petitioned President Roosevelt to change the name of the Cumberland National Forest in Kentucky to the Daniel Boone National Park Forest. The former name was given to the million-acre area by Presidential proclamation February 23.

The proposal to change the name was also taken up through Senator Allen W. Barkley with Secretary of Agriculture H. A. Wallace. Colonel Douglas has notified Frank C. Dunn, national vice president of the American Order of Pioneers and executive secretary of the Daniel Boone Bicentennial Commission.

MORE CANDY EATEN FIRST MONTH OF THIS YEAR

Sales of confectionery and competitive chocolate products were valued at $20,256,155 in January compared with $19,551,981 in January, 1936, an increase of 11 per cent, according to reports from 281 identical firms, just received by the Louisville Department of Commerce.

All sections of the country shared in the increased sales volume. Sales in the southern part of the country were up 18.8 per cent over January of last year.

Morehead Swimmers Defeat Eastern By Margin Of 40 to 35

Captain Morris led the Morehead College swimming team to a 40-35 victory over Eastern Teachers College at the Senff Natatorium Saturday evening. The Morehead team captured 5 firsts in the 8 events, three of them being taken by Morris.

The victory was more decisive for the Eagles than the score indicates. Morehead apparently held a 43-32 edge, but the judge disqualified the Blue and Gold swimmers in the medley relay last event on the program.

The summary:
 240-Yard Relay: Won by Eastern (Hennessey, Smith, Starn and Lund). Time, 2:27.7.
 60-Yard Breast Stroke: 1. Morris, Morehead. 2. Arbuckle, Eastern. 3. Corn, Eastern. Time, .35.
 90-Yard Back Stroke: 1. Hesser, Eastern. 2. Vanderpool, Morehead. 3. Edwards, Eastern. Time, 1:15.
 80-Yard Free Style: 1. Morris, Morehead. 2. Hennessey, Eastern. 3. Smith, Eastern. Time, 1:15.
 90 Yard Free Style: 1. Jackson, Morehead. 2. Kessler, Morehead. 3. Land, Eastern. Time, 59.9.

MOREHEAD WILL NOT HAVE BASEBALL TEAM THIS YEAR

Although baseball is being revived this year in many Kentucky Colleges, Morehead, for many years the outstanding college nine of the state, will not have a team.

An attempt is being made to get in a good stand of grass at Jayne Stadium, and athletic officials at the institution feel that baseball would tear the turf. Later the diamond may be placed at the eastern end of Jayne stadium, so that baseball would interfere very little with the football grid.

Morehead and Union Will Not Play In '37

Union College, of Barbourville, Kentucky, will not appear on Morehead College's football schedule this fall, it was definitely learned this morning. This is the first time that a Morehead football team has not met grid representatives of the Barbourville institution.

Union is not on the Eagles schedule because the schools were unable to agree on gates. However, to insure continuance of a happy sports controversy, the schools this week signed a 4-year contract, starting in 1938.

Western will probably replace Murray on the 1938 schedule, Coach Ellis Johnson said today.

Salem, Ind., reported an increase of $407,000 in volume of retail sales in two years.

Sport Spots

Followers of the Morehead College Eagles were a little disappointed this week when the 1937 football schedule was released. Eagle followers had hoped that the Blue and Gold would 'take-on' tougher foes than they met last year.

It must be remembered that Ellis Johnson and Len Miller are only in the initial stage of building a football team for 1938. Although Morehead had the best record of any team in Kentucky last year on the basis of games won and lost, the Eagles were not of the calibre to take on bigger outfits. Morehead did not play as difficult schedule as last year. The foundation of great Morehead eleven in years to come was successfully laid at Jayne Stadium last year. For that we have Ellis Johnson and Len Miller to thank.

The coaching staff is planning on a better team this year, but if their expectations pan out as expected in 1938 will be the big year for the Blue and Gold. Last year's freshman team was probably not as strong from position to position as former first-year players at Morehead, but Johnson and Miller didn't expect that. What they were aiming for was a few good players that will be eligible for this year'sarsity and the performance that some of those last year freshmen athletes are now showing at Jayne Stadium in varsity workouts is sufficient proof that they have just that.

It would not be surprising to see a 4 or 5, possibly more, sophomores start on this year's team. If the sophs deserve a starting berth it may be safely assumed that they will get it, for Johnson and Miller have no qualms about using a varsity player who fails to come through.

Two of last year's team will be lost this year. They are Robert Brashear, captain, and without question one of Kentucky's greatest athletes last year and Clyde Alley who has given three years of service to the Eagles cause with marked results. Alley did not come through last year as hardy as good a performance as he did in 1935, but the loss of this athlete will make itself felt soon on the Eagle team.

In speaking of the schedule—1938 will probably see Morehead meeting some of the better and supposedly better teams in this section of the nation. St. Xavier of Cincinnati and Marshall of Huntington, W. Va., are likely opponents who will be met in 1938. A southeastern conference foe is not so far in the offing if Morehead develops the team that the coaching staff expects to have.

Schedules of the larger schools are generally made up 2 years in advance and this is one of the reasons why it would have been virtually impossible for Morehead to appear on the card of a major school this year. Johnson is already dickering for those 1938 matches, however.

Western Kentucky Strawberry growers expecting higher prices as a result of flood damage to beds in McCracken county, thus reducing production. Ohio county growers increasing acreage considerably.

MRS. SIMPSON'S EYES Indicate Personality Color

Capitulating American Makes History As Creator Of A New Fashion Trend

"Her eyes are her personality"

It seems that the fascinating Baltimorean matches the smartness of her costumes to the sophistication of her wit. She favors gowns of extreme classic simplicity at a time when the fashion world is beseeching itself with frills and furbeaus. Perhaps this is in deference to the King's own taste, for he is noted for his preference for tailored chic in the costumes of his women friends. At any rate it points the way toward high "coronatic" fashions in which cut and color predominate as style features.

Speaking in detail, the United Press correspondent describes an afternoon costume of brown wool with a straight, short skirt worn with a tailored fitted jacket of the same material, and a blue angora blouse which is tailored and cut on the same lines as the jacket and "matches her eyes!"

Walls Simpson is noted for her vivid blue eyes. Though her distinctive taste may lead her to see a new pace for winter clothes, in choosing colors to flatter her most fascinating feature, she is in line with a trend that both courtiers

Our Fashion Artist sketched this from descriptions of her eye-matched afternoon costume.

The new so-called "coronation colors" are off-shades that are difficult to wear. To look well in them, a woman's makeup must not only be faultlessly becoming, but she must be clever enough to set off a difficult shade with some harmonizing tint that is flattering to her own coloring. Mrs. Simpson, for instance, with her black hair and bright blue eyes, would look far less glamorous in her chic, brown suit if she had not ordered a blue blouse to bring the whole ensemble into focus with her own particular type and personality.

Roy Holbrook Starts Morehead Grid Preps

Spring football practice for the Morehead High School Vikings started last week under the direction of Coach Roy Holbrook.

Coach Holbrook said today that, although the material was not as good this year as it was several seasons ago when his grid clubs were among the best in the state, that he had a bunch of determined athletes that should win some games and hold their own in the Eastern Kentucky High School Athletic Conference.

The Vikings schedule has not been completed.

A Garment manufacturing plant at Franklin, Ky., is now employing 145 persons.

Site Of Swim Meet In State Undecided

Morehead Invites Rest Of Colleges To Hold Event At Senff Natatorium

Whether Morehead will be the site of the Kentucky State Swimming tournament this spring remains a matter of conjecture today, but to use the words of G. D. Downing, head of the department of Physical Education and coach of the local team, "in all probability it will be."

Last year the tournament was held at Eastern with the University of Kentucky Wildcats winning. Morehead was second.

The Senff Natatorium at Morehead College has been classed as the finest indoor pool in Kentucky. It is ideal for holding the state meet, Coach Downing declared this week.

Downing has issued an invitation to all colleges that have a swimming team to have the meet this year. Coach Downing has taken the lead in making swimming one of the more important of the minor sports in Kentucky.

Murray, Western, Kentucky, Eastern, Berea and Morehead have swimming teams. The University of Louisville may also be represented at the state meet.

SHERIFF RESIGNS

But No One Wants Job In Bloody Clay County

There's a job open in Clay County but so far no applicants. Sheriff J. E. White resigned, but County Judge T. R. Marcum said no one had sought the place.

White, paid a fee on the number of arrests, said the work is too great compared to the compensation. Since he took the office there have been four murders in the county. White was appointed to fill the unexpired term of T. C. McDaniel, who also resigned.
