Violations Are Found In Most Rowan Co. Restaurants

Establishments serving food and drink in Rowan County have an average compliance rate of 67 percent with United States Public Health Service sanitation regulations, it was disclosed here this week.

This compared with an average of 88.71 percent in a July, 1960 inspection and a 74 percent figure compiled following a similar inspection in December, 1958.

Twenty-five restaurants, lunch counters and soda fountains were included in the October report, with the highest compliance at 100 percent and the lowest checked at 34 percent.

These were the principal violations found by Weist, and Sanitarian Fritz Greene in the 25 Rowan County food service establishments:

- Floors of kitchen, rest rooms, toilet and soda fountains were not clean and were in need of repair.
- Walls and ceilings in kitchen, dining and rest rooms were not clean.
- Doors and windows—ineffective screens, flies.
- Lighting—inefficient lighting on working surfaces.
- Ventilation—gas heaters unvented, no hood over stoves.
- Toilet facilities—not convenient, not clean, in need of repairs.
- Doors not self-closing.
- No outside ventilation.
- Water supply—chlorine residual not sufficient.
- Lavatory facilities—not convenient, not clean, no soap or towels provided.
- Construction—open scaps, bare wires, chipped and cracked dishes.
- Cleaning of equipment—refrigeration, slicers and other equipment should be cleaned and kept clean at all times.
- Sanitation—cleaning of utensils—can openers, knives, etc., should be kept clean at all times.
- Washing methods—dishwashing methods not approved, improper or inoperative gauges.
- Chlorine residuals in third compartment.
- Storage of utensils—utensils stored in clean place.
- No paper waste, handkerchiefs, contact surfaces.
- Straws improperly handled.
- Disposal—open garbage cans, no paper type cans, annual not clean.
- Garbage piles and trash outside.
- Refrigeration—unrefrigerated cream, milk for coffee.
- Temperature over 50 degrees F.
- Wells was pile to collect.
- None of the restaurants was given a "B" rating.
- In many cases only minor infractions of the Public Health Service regulations were observed.
- However, he said the average of 67 percent compliance is disturbing and added that another inspection will be carried out in 1965.

ECONOMY HIGH HERE

Net Household Income Here $4,600

A new report, just released, contains the first figures showing how Rowan County made out, economically, during the past fiscal year.

They reveal that it was a year of sturdy growth locally. Most families had more money.

The extent of the progress is brought out in the annual fiscal-year survey made by the Standard Rate and Data Service.

It indicates how much was earned, and in the 12 months ending June 30, 1964, by people in each section of the United States.

Residents of Rowan County, they show, had a net income of $4,600 per household in the year, after taxes, of $15,180,000.

It represented a gain over the previous year's net of $14,199,000.

The rise, 6.9 percent, compares favorably with the United States rise of 6.4 percent.

What this higher income boded down to, in terms of the local family, was an increase in the net income per household.

The national business boom, now almost four years old, was bolstered during fiscal 1964 by a number of favorable factors.

All signs point to continued gains in the months ahead, with Americans living it up in a manner that was never dreamed of a generation or two ago.

The typical working man of today is a man of means, with the wherewithal to enjoy a standard of living that was once reserved for the very rich.

At the same time, only a minor increase in the cost of consumer goods took place.

The atmosphere was conducive to spending and that is what residents of Rowan County did.

The report shows that their purchases in the year, in local stores, came to $10,851,000, compared with the prior year's $9,873,000.

State Trooper James A. Farley said the county agent's car ran into a concrete wall about one-half mile west of U.S. 60.

Farley said Ratzold hit the "must have dozed off," and ran off the highway.

Johnson Medics Compromise On Viet Nam

For nearly two decades this newspaper has printed Roger Babson's year-ending predictions on economic and political events and trends which he believes will occur during the coming year.

7. Conditions in Cuba are not likely to change radically in 1965. The Russians will do nothing to handicap Castro; neither will they do much to help him.

8. Cutbacks in defense spending will not result in radical unemployment in the U.S. in 1965. Companies and regions seriously affected by the loss of conventional defense work will shift to meet the rapid changes in our system of defense during the next few years.

9. Our Defense program, under Secretary McNamara's leadership, will increase efforts in 1965 to produce new superweapons. It is realized there would be no Maginot or other "line" to protect any country in future wars.

10. Intensified emphasis on new space-age defenses will provide more jobs in 1965 than the closing down of obsolete installations will eliminate.

11. The stock market will continue to be a paradox in 1965. The Dow-Jones Industrial Average may push up to 1000 before any real turn-around takes place.

12. 1965 may be an advantageous time for investors to put very small sums of money into "space" stocks.

runaway prices next year at productive capacity is too large.

19. To the extent -- and this could be considerable -- that higher costs cannot be compensated for by price hikes and greater efficiency, profit margins will suffer in 1965.

20. Indeed, despite the projected 2% cut in the corporate income tax rate next year, we look for only a very slight overall rise in corporate profits.

21. Little real progress will be apparent in the drive to reduce unemployment.

22. Following the strike interruptions of late 1964, personal income should move smartly ahead to new highs in the first half of 1965.

23. Cash dividend payments should increase in 1965, although at a much slower rate than has been the case this year.

24. No assessment of finances in the United States can be made without carefully weighing Britain's plight.

has been overdone in some sections and a breathing spell is logical.

32. The situation in industrial countries is still somewhat different. With business heading higher in the first half and with labor costs scaling new peaks, industrial community prices will not decline in price in 1965.

33. Living costs will also rise to new all-time highs. And, since President Johnson is committed to getting Medicare passed at this session of Congress, look for hospital, nursing, and doctors' fees to spike before the end of 1965.

34. Climbing capital goods outlays will be one of the brightest spots for 1965.

35. Further progress in United States exports will be hard to achieve in the coming year.

36. The important automobile industry should stop another export cut sale year in 1965.

37. The powerful building and construction activities should prove a strong support to general business during 1965.

38. Although we are still forecasting a boom year in 1965,

Kentucky Gets One Eighth of Poverty Plan Dollars

A solid boost towards helping these men and their families to reduce their 1960 poverty. Eventually, the commissioner added, he hopes to see the program further extended to include 30 more Eastern Kentucky counties with similar needs. The program will start next year under Federal Economic Opportunity Act, fulfilling the remainder of the $10.5 million grant. Appointed by Gov. Edward T. Breathitt to coordinate the program was 39-year-old James L. Poel, a former deputy commissioner of Child Welfare and most recently a special assistant to Highway Commissioner Henry Ward. Most of the grant, $9.6 million will be used by the State Department of Economic Security to expand a pilot project already in operation in the nine mountain counties of Bell, Breathitt, Floyd, Harlan, and Pleasants. Leslie, Letcher, Perry, and Pike. Public assistance payments provided the backbone for the original program there, but probably the greatest single benefit to the county was that 6,000 men unemployed were put to work at $3 an hour to repair strip mine spoilsbanks, fight fires, repair roads, clean sidewalks and streets and in other ways participate in the State's beautification drive. 1965 Could Well Be Finest Year In All Of Morehead's History

Nineteen hundred, sixty five - almost two thirds of the 20th century's history. A factual, in-print record of Morehead...

Ground breaking for Cave Run Reservoir will be in early spring, perhaps March.

Congress will make whatever appropriation the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers request for construction of Cave Run Reservoir...

At almost all federally financed projects of this kind, magnitude and land-owners in the river basin will complain...

The regional FHA office at Atlanta will approve application of the Morehead Municipal Housing Commission for 60 additional four-unit units...

The strike at Lee Clay Products Company will end with a satisfactory contract on management and labor.

Rowan County will have fewer farmers as the trend continues to become more valuable to people who have money to invest in...

Residential and business lots (and all property) in Morehead, considered fantastic by realtors and outside investors that loan money on lot mortgages...

Business analysis for 1965 is agreed by all who foretell the future, and is the same as it has been for the past decade.

Morehead State College will have an enrollment increase of about 10 percent.

The Kentucky Department of Highways will continue surveys on Interstate 64 through Rowan County in 1965 but no construction contracts will be let.

A tremendous effort will emanate from Frankfort to pass a multiple purpose bond issue.

If there is a contest for Morehead Council the issue will be clear cut - whether to spend upwards of $1 1/2 million to pipe water from Licking River...

Congress will pass the Appalachia bill, but it will be of little benefit to Rowan County or this part of Kentucky.

The federal tax cut will turn loose more investment capital that will be felt in every community.

Some further predictions in capsule church attendance in Rowan County will continue to increase.

Ohio Valley Conference basketball race will work itself into another down-to-the-wire dog fight between Murray, Western and Morehead.

Our pick is Western, but the Eagles could do it. Coach Guy Pennell will field an improved football squad...

Morehead will be affected, like a part of the Bridge Street area and the old Morehead Ice Plant...

Changes in the total price support rate under the 1965 feed grain program were made to encourage greater farmer participation...

The overall price support for the three crops -- corn, barley and grain sorghum -- covered by the program will be the same for 1965 as for 1964.

However, a larger proportion of the support will be in payment form, with some reduction in the average loan rate for all three feed grains.

The chairman pointed out that the success of the program depends on participation sufficiently high to offset program costs by a reduction in the public investment in Government feed grain inventories.

The higher price-support payment and lower loan rate are aimed at encouraging participation by widening the margin between returns for participants and non-participants.

By individual grain, the 1965 total price-support and the loan and payment division are as follows:

corn, $1.25 per bushel ($1.05 loan, 20-cent payment); barley, 96 cents per bushel (80-cent loan, 16-cent payment); grain sorghum, 85 cents per bushel (65-cent loan, 20-cent payment).

The 1964 total support were the same as 1965, but the division was: corn, $1.10 loan, 15-cent payment; barley, 84-cent loan, 12-cent payment; grain sorghum, $1.77 loan, 25-cent payment.

The greater reduction in the 1965 grain sorghum loan rate, which is offset by a higher payment rate, is needed to bring grain sorghum price-support loan values more in line with market prices of recent years.

With the acreage substitution feature for wheat and feed grain acreage, which is new to the program for 1965, producers will have a more flexible range of cropping opportunities and income possibilities.

Since Government costs by diverting acreage to conserving use and thus reducing production, they get not only price-support loans and purchases, but also price-support payments and acreage diversion payments.

The program sign up for feed grains and for spring wheat will start on Feb. 6 through Mar. 26.

Seek Greater Participation In 1965 Feed Grain Program

Changes in the total price support rate under the 1965 feed grain program were made to encourage greater farmer participation in the program.

The overall price support for the three crops -- corn, barley and grain sorghum -- covered by the program will be the same for 1965 as for 1964.

However, a larger proportion of the support will be in payment form, with some reduction in the average loan rate for all three feed grains.

The chairman pointed out that the success of the program depends on participation sufficiently high to offset program costs by a reduction in the public investment in Government feed grain inventories.

The higher price-support payment and lower loan rate are aimed at encouraging participation by widening the margin between returns for participants and non-participants.

By individual grain, the 1965 total price-support and the loan and payment division are as follows:

corn, $1.25 per bushel ($1.05 loan, 20-cent payment); barley, 96 cents per bushel (80-cent loan, 16-cent payment); grain sorghum, 85 cents per bushel (65-cent loan, 20-cent payment).

The 1964 total support were the same as 1965, but the division was: corn, $1.10 loan, 15-cent payment; barley, 84-cent loan, 12-cent payment; grain sorghum, $1.77 loan, 25-cent payment.

The greater reduction in the 1965 grain sorghum loan rate, which is offset by a higher payment rate, is needed to bring grain sorghum price-support loan values more in line with market prices of recent years.

With the acreage substitution feature for wheat and feed grain acreage, which is new to the program for 1965, producers will have a more flexible range of cropping opportunities and income possibilities.

Since Government costs by diverting acreage to conserving use and thus reducing production, they get not only price-support loans and purchases, but also price-support payments and acreage diversion payments.

The program sign up for feed grains and for spring wheat will start on Feb. 6 through Mar. 26.

Restaurant Workers To Get Course in Food Handling

A four-day, eight session training school, designed to improve food handling and service methods, has been scheduled here for Jan. 11-14.

Dr. Kenneth S. Welsh, Rowan County Health Officer, said the training is slated primarily to persons who operate food service establishments and their employees, but is open to all groups, including those in schools, homemakers groups and the like.

Although the course will run two sessions a day for four days, the morning and afternoon sessions each day will feature the same material. Thus, persons who work mornings may attend afternoon sessions, and persons who are employed during the afternoon may attend morning classes.

The staff of the school will include Dr. Welsh, Jay C. Stewart, area sanitarian for the State Department of Health and the Rowan County Health Center. Classes will run two hours in the morning and two hours in the afternoon on Jan. 11, 12, 13 and 14, from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. and from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. at the Rowan County Health Center.

A limit of 35 persons to each session will be imposed, Dr. Welsh said.

There is no charge.

To be taught by discussion and lectures, the program will be augmented by film strips on various subjects.

The program will include these topics:

Jan. 11 - Bacteria and their relation to food service.

Jan. 12 - Food preservation and insect and rodent control.

Jan. 13 - Food preservation, insect and rodent control.

Jan. 14 - Dishwashing and housekeeping.

Persons who attend at least three of the four sessions will receive a certificate of attendance.

"Employees in food service establishments are encouraged to permit employees to attend as many of the sessions as possible," Dr. Welsh said. "With the knowledge which they gain here they will be more valuable employees and they will be more capable, competent employees."

The training school is sponsored jointly by the Rowan County Health Department and the Rowan County Development Association.

Forestry Folk Hold Annual Yule Party

By Joe J. Mink

Last Saturday the employees of the Morehead District of the Cumberland National Forest gathered together for their annual family Christmas dinner. Due to Christmas vacations, sickness or other reasons, we usually have a few missing. This year all except one family made the dinner which was enjoyed by all.

Due to poor working conditions in the woods around the holiday season many of our employees use part of their vacation time for a trip home.

This week's Forester Roger Buckley and wife Francis will travel to West Virginia to spend time with friends and relatives in the Morgantown and Tunnelton areas. Forester John Hevener and wife Barbara will leave for Virginia to spend a week with relatives around Staunton and Marion.

During the holiday season quite a few people will use some of their vacation time to take their families and friends hunting. We would like to remind these hunters that since the holiday season many of our employees have had considerable time during the recent cold spell and woods outdoors where there is danger of fire even though it is cold.

During periods of cold windy weather the forest fuels will become dry, however, most people do not realize it. The fuels that are as long as the sun is shining that the woods and grass will not be dry. This is a false sense of security. The cold winds will dry out the forest fuels with little or no sun shining. So be careful with fire in the wooded areas during the holiday season.

Ask Accurate Income Data From Farmers

Thousands of self-employed farmers and their dependents have retired with Social Security benefits since 1952. However, Congress extended coverage to this group. Today nearly 4 1/2 million people whose living depends upon farming are building social security protection against the loss of income resulting from disability or death.

"Rising farmers in this area to file prompt and accurate income and earnings reports for 1964," Thomas B. Thompson, Social Security District Manager, pointed out that failure to do so may result in reduced social security benefits or the loss of benefits.

"Now is a good time," Thompson said, "for farmers to examine their records to see what they must report on their Federal income returns for the past year."

Also, he said, low-income farmers can build Social Security protection. Thompson cited a special optional provision in the law which enables farmers whose net earnings are less than $400 to acquire social security credits.

It works like this: If a farmer's gross income from farm self-employment is between $800 and $1,800, he may count two-thirds of his gross farm income as net income for social security.

If gross farm income is over $1,800 and net farm earnings are less than $1,200, he may report either his actual net or two-thirds of his gross farm income as net income for social security.

Information regarding Social Security taxes and return forms can be obtained at the Internal Revenue Service Office, Post Office Building, Morehead. Questions about old-age, survivors, and disability benefits should be taken with the Ashland Social Security Office at 1816 Carter Avenue.

60 Percent Of Superhighways In Kentucky Open, Underway

Sixty percent of Kentucky's planned 1,000 miles of superhighways are open to traffic or under construction, according to the Kentucky Department of Highways.

In a report of 1964 accomplishments to Gov. Edward T. Breathitt, the department said key sections of Interstate 64 in Jefferson and Boyd Counties and of Interstate 75 and Interstate 64 in Fayette County have been opened to traffic.

Construction was begun in April on the Central Kentucky Parkway, a 75-mile toll road connecting the Western Kentucky Parkway and the Blue Grass Parkway.

The report also noted that the way was cleared for construction of Interstate 24 in Western Kentucky with the approval by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads of a corridor location for this superhighway. More major traffic service to this part of the state will be provided by the proposed Par Chase Parkway, on which the department started engineering work in 1964.

In addition to the 35 miles of interstate highways opened this year, the department has completed 106 miles of other roads with the help of the Federal government.

Using its own money only, the department finished improvements of more than 600 miles of roads, most of them rural and secondary, during 1964.

The agency began a major expansion of its work on rural roads under a legislative directive to double the amount of money allocated each year to the rural highway program.

The department's program for the future, according to the report, is to complete the super-

AT NATIONAL AVERAGE

Rowan County Birth Rate Holds Up, Nation Declines

Rowan County's birth rate last year held up relatively well, despite the fact that, in most parts of the country, there has been a steady decline in the number of babies born in the last few years.

According to the latest national survey, babies were born at the rate of 20.0 per 1,000 residents.

This compares favorably with the birth rate recorded in many communities throughout the nation.

Comparison is based on the nationwide compilation of birth statistics, recently released by the U. S. Public Health Service.

It shows that there were 200 babies born to residents of Rowan County in the year ending Jan. 3, 1963, exclusive of the number born locally to non-residents.

Each of the newcomers announced his arrival with a shrill clamor for food, clothing, shelter and attention to his various other wants.

A whole group of industries, retail outlets and service businesses, geared to satisfying such demands, were ready for their arrival.

They were prepared to supply them with special foods, baby clothes, nursery furniture, toiletries, business ties, toys, play pens and a host of other items.

Businesses of this type, which cater to the arrival of new babies, are considerably affected by the rise or fall in the birth rate.

But how much is purchased from them in equipping each new child varies widely from family to family and from area to area across the country.

Not counting medical and hospital expenditures, the average outlay per baby, including gifts from relatives and friends, appears to be in the neighborhood of $300. Something more than that is spent for a first-born child, a little less in the case of a second or third child.

Applying this general average to Rowan County's new arrivals, it adds up to $78,000 a year locally for baby supplies and equipment.

Because of the decline in the birth rate, the Census Bureau has had to revise its estimate of what the population will be in 1970. There will be about 4,000, 000 less than was predicted five years ago.

Claig Sprout . . . And His Friend, TIMOTHY TUGMUTTON . . . Sez

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I was reading some figures put out the other day by the Census Bureau that had ought to gild us older folks shoo-put. They was announcing that 3.1 million on boys and girls in this country reached the age of 17 this year and that it was around a million more than last year. Furthermore, they figger it will increase another million next year. And out of them 3.1 million gittin' to be 17 this year, 256,000 was married, and 1 out of ev'ry 3 was already divorced.

And along with them figgers, the FBI announced teen-age crime was at all time high in the nation. Fer instance, post-offices was claiming ball point pens was getting stole as fast as they could replace 'em and most of 'em was being took by teen-agers. Anybody, Mister editor, that would steal one of them post office pens was hard up fer something to steal and it goes to show that kids was just stealing for the devilment of it.

I don't reckon they was much the general public can do about teen-age marriage, divorce and crime. This has got to be a problem fer the parents. But they was one angle to this big teen-age social and explosion that has got to be met by the people.

Where was all them young 'uns going to school? All school 'uns and colleges all over the nation was already bating out at the seams and we got millions more coming on fast. As a nation it seems to me we was meeting this school problem from the hindside position. We don't do nothin' about it till the river sits out of its banks, then we patch the banks and wait till the next flood.

It makes me recollect a talk I had met with my banker. He said that most fellers that comes in fer a loan bases his worth on what he plans to do tomorrow but the bank has to figger his worth on what he done yesterday. In this problem of getting teachers and school for the millions of kids that was coming on, it looks like we was hoping too much fer tomorrow and ain't no done enough yet.

Well I reckon I better cut my little sermon on schools short. I might be like the politician that told the crowd he was cutting his speech short an account if he didn't some feller had sent word he was going to cut his throat.

Actual, Mister Editor, I ain't got no license to discuss school problems and I'm warning you fer right here I ain't running fer the school board. They didn't have but 3 grades when I was a young'un and I had more trouble gittin' through the last grade than MacArthur had gittin' across the Yalu River, but I believe mighty strong we got to educate them millions of kids that is coming on and we was to have the right kind of a nation.

Yours truly,
Claig Sprout

NURSING IN THE PEACE CORPS:

Fluent Hands, Skills to Share

The cry of a kicking, newborn infant . . .

The impatient chatter of children at play . . .

The unsteady breathing of a 70-year-old, fighting to live.

These are some of the sounds of life. In many lands they would have ceased were it not for:

A single drop of smallpox vaccine . . .

Fluent hands helping a surgeon close a wound.

In these familiar sounds and common actions, hundreds of American nurses in the Peace Corps are finding a new sense of purpose, a new feeling of dignity. The level of medical standards we know in the United States has not been reached in most developing nations. Every day, thousands of lives are lost due to smallpox, malaria, tuberculosis, dysentery, malnutrition—maladies which in our land have almost ceased to take their terrible toll.

In 21 countries around the world, Peace Corps nurses are serving in urban and rural hospitals, clinics and health centers. Many are working in special institutions—tuberculosis sanatoriums, leprosariums, mental, maternity and infectious disease hospitals. Others serve as instructors in schools of nursing and in public health and community development projects. Volunteers also work in surgery, public health, midwifery, anesthesiology, psychiatric nursing and physical therapy.

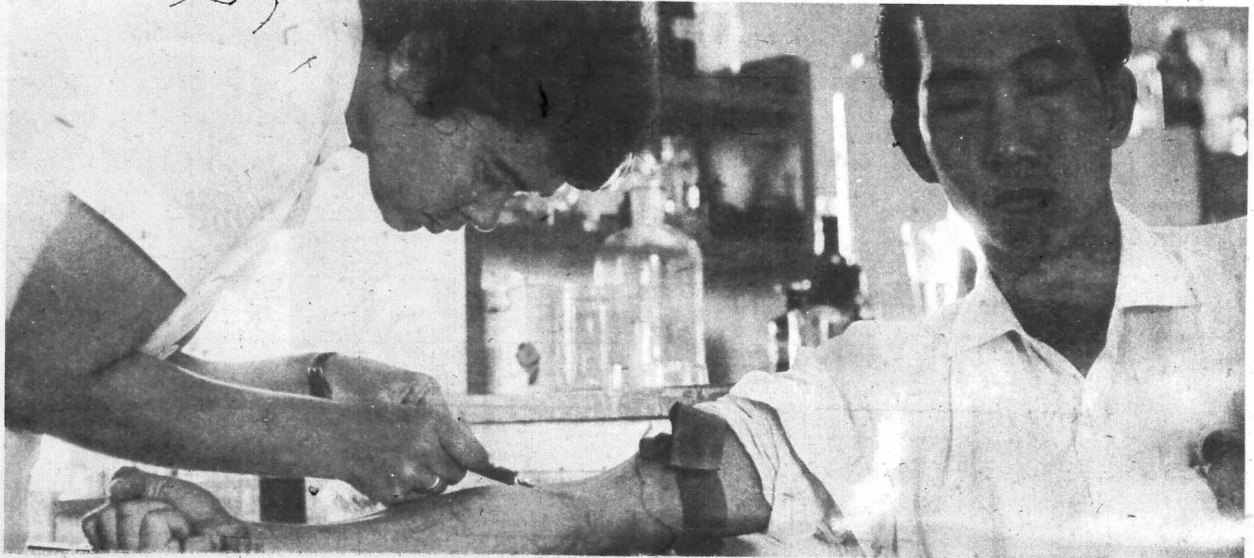

Prior to August, 1961, Melinda DuBose was a clinical instructor of communicable diseases in a Miami hospital. A few months later, Peace Corps Volunteer DuBose was credited with helping stem a crippling typhoid epidemic on the island of St. Lucia in the West Indies. During another 11-week period, she treated 1,650 children plagued with whooping cough, malnutrition, intestinal parasites and skin infections.

Hard, demanding work?

"Sure," she says, "but the heart-warming experiences are multiplied many times over nearly every day. You can't help but feel the warmth of these people as you assist in crowded clinics, attempting to teach a mother the proper diet for her child or explain the reasons why her child has intestinal parasites. There's no feeling in the world that equals the smile on a mother's face, a smile that says, 'I believe you and will try to do as you say.'"

The Peace Corps needs all kinds of Americans—men and women, young and old—for a wide variety of jobs. None, however, are needed more than graduate nurses. For more information about how you can help, write the Peace Corps, Washington, D. C. 20525.
