MOREHEAD, Ky. --- "Let's Talk Sports" made its return to the airwaves Thursday, Aug. 2, on WMKY-FM, and will be a regular addition to Morehead State University's 50,000-watt National Public Radio Station.

The hour-long sports talk and call-in program airs on Thursday evenings at 7 p.m. The program is also simulcasted on WMOR-FM in Morehead. WMKY's Rick Hesterberg and WMOR's Jim Forrest share hosting duties.

The program features sports notables, coaches and players. Past episodes included guests such as Phil Simms, Walt Terrell and Woody Fryman, as well as MSU Baseball Coach Steve Hamilton and Eagle Basketball Coach Wayne Martin.

"We try to be prepared to discuss anything," said Hesterberg. "We also try to cover area sports, including college and high school."

Listeners are invited to participate by calling 783-2001 during the program's airtime.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Many involved in the week-long celebration of the Kentucky Dance Institute call it a reunion.

"Families attend and come back year after year," said KDI's founder, Shirley Fort of Jefferson County.

Participants spend most of the week dancing inside Morehead State University's Adron Doran University Center. Instructors put them through the moves of folk, square, round dancing and clogging, Scottish, Mexican and South American dancing.

"We came to MSU when ADUC was built 27 years ago because it was away from the city and we knew all the action would be where the dancing was," said Fort.

Age is no concern in this annual event. This year's 130 participants range from age five to 89. They come from over 20 states and a foreign country.

"One comment made by newcomers to KDI is about the friendly atmosphere," said Fort. "They are made to feel so welcome that they never feel like newcomers."

With friendliness, one family has gone an extra step. Cora and Dick Myers of Philadelphia have "adopted" friends they have made at KDI. Now, after more than 20 years, the number of "family" members has risen to 34.

"KDI is like a family reunion," said Cora Myers.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Dot Ward seldom leaves her house to go to work--when she rises each morning, she's only yards away from her office.

Ward, a crafts hobbieist turned wholesaler, designs, sews and makes her wares at her Ashland residence. She makes hand-sewn crafts such as chicken doorstops, bread holders and wall hangings. Her chicken doorstop was featured in a recent issue of "Redbook" magazine.

With the exception of traveling to various fairs and exhibits, such as the recent Arts and Crafts Market at Morehead State University's Appalachian Celebration, she sells the crafts directly from her home.

Though the idea of working at home may sound easy, Ward said she puts in an "average person's work day, sometimes more."

"It's a full-time job," she said. "I work about 10 to 12 hours each and every day."

Ward does all of the work by herself during most of the year. But when orders become too heavy, as they do around Christmas, Ward gets help. Still, she ensures that her personal quality goes into each item.

"If it isn't perfect, I toss it," Ward said, smilingly proudly. "I don't even put it out for seconds--I have to be pleased with it."

Dot Ward

The sense of personal pride is something Ward said she has had since beginning crafts as a hobby some six years ago.

"I began making these different crafts during the entire year and then about a week before Christmas, I would have an open house and the neighbors would come by and pick up things I'd made to give as gifts," Ward explained. Soon, neighbors would begin coming by her house before birthdays, Valentine's Day and other holidays.

"It just began to grow and grow," she said of the business.

Today, Ward fills several thousand orders each year--an order size that would make some larger businesses a little envious. But Ward has the secret to success and she knows how to use it.

"Hard work," she said. "That's all it takes most of the time."

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Bluegrass, folk and mountain music come naturally to Lisa Lally, host of "Bluegrass Diversion," a bluegrass-oriented music show on WMKY-FM, Morehead State University's public radio station.

Lally, a 25-year-old MSU sophomore, is an honor student with a radio-television major and minors in journalism and music. She comes to MSU from Maysville Community College. She and husband Mike have two young children, Ben and Jude.

The talented Lee County native comes from a musical family. Her parents, Beatrice and Chester Briscoe of Leeco, near Beattyville, and four of her brothers and sisters often play music together.

Though she grew up primarily with country, gospel and bluegrass music, she has come to love mountain and folk music. In fact, "I can't get enough of it now," she said.

Lally plays banjo, guitar and piano by ear, and is an avid listener of "Folk Sampler," a program of folk songs that follows "Bluegrass Diversion" on WMKY.

"Mike Flynn, the host of 'Folk Sampler,' is one of my heroes," Lally says. Both programs have a weekly theme and include features and commentary.

But "Bluegrass Diversion" has an extra appeal to its listeners. A special part of the show is live performances and interviews with regional talent, including MSU students. The show recently sponsored an open recording session so musical groups too large for WMKY's studios could perform.

Since its debut in January, "Bluegrass Diversion," broadcast every Saturday at 8 a.m., has become a favorite program on WMKY-FM, 90.3. The show's musical theme, "Ragtime Annie," is performed by North Carolina's David Holt.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Peter T. McNeill of Flemingsburg is the new tourism/industrial development specialist in Morehead State University's Appalachian Development Center.

McNeill, former president and general manager of the Eastern Kentucky Production Credit Association (EKPCA), began his duties Aug. 6. He will, in the newly created position, coordinate programs to assist in developing tourism in Eastern Kentucky and to recruit new industry to the area.

"We feel very fortunate that Peter McNeill is joining our staff," said Dr. Donald L. Fogus, director of ADC. "Pete's ability, experience and knowledge of the region will be invaluable as we develop new programs."

McNeill, a native of North Carolina, graduated from Berea College in 1951, taught vocational agriculture in his home state for two years, then moved to Fleming County in 1953. From 1955 to 1959, he was the county's Agricultural Extension Agent; from 1959 to 1970, McNeill was employed by the Fleming-Mason RECC. During this time, he traveled to South Korea and Thailand to help develop rural cooperatives. He also did graduate work at Cornell University, and completed the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association (NRECA) Management Institute training program.

Peter McNeill
2-2-2-2-2-2-2

In 1970, McNeill was named general manager of the Bluegrass RECC in Nicholasville, a position which involved much successful industrial development. In 1974, the McNeills moved to the Philippines for a six-year assignment for NRECA. For another 2½ years, he worked as a consultant to the government of Indonesia. He returned to this country in 1982 and was president of EKPCA through December, 1983, when he resigned to devote full time to his Fleming County farming operation.

McNeill is married to the former Anna Lou Planck of Flemingsburg and they have five children.

McNeill's position in ADC is part of the Business Development program, which also includes an agribusiness specialist and the East Kentucky Small Business Development Center.

Other ADC services are in Appalachian Studies, Regional Research and Human Services. For information, write ADC, Morehead State University, Morehead, KY 40351, or phone (606) 783-2077.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- In the past 44 years of the Kentucky American Legion's Boys State program, more than 13,000 high school students have attended meetings and lectures designed to teach them the basics of state and local government. The 320 delegates at the 1984 convention at Morehead State University learned about government too, but took a lesson in humanity as well.

For the first time in the youth program's history, two of the student delegates were deaf.

When each of the two was asked to describe the six-day event, they said "thrilling," or called their attendance "an honor." But to Georgetown resident Larry Graves and Russellville native Danny Taylor, the word "challenge" may sum it up better.

The two juniors at the Kentucky School for the Deaf in Danville were selected to represent their school after being named by the school's staff and faculty members on the basis of their leadership and academic abilities.

Both 18-year-olds seemed gratified to attend, but were somewhat nervous before the convention began.

"We were pleased and proud to be selected to attend, but we didn't know what to expect from the other delegates when we got here," Graves said through interpreter Kent Mann. "It bothered me a little coming here and being deaf, but the other kids here really warmed up to us quickly and accepted us."

Soon after the two arrived, other delegates were writing them notes, using sign language and attempting to communicate with them. Even though interpreter Mann, as assistant principal at the School for the Deaf, almost always accompanied the two, a majority of the other delegates took the time to learn sign language, as well as a lot about deafness.

During the convention's election of mock public officials, both Graves and Taylor were named to the House of Representatives. Another of the elected representatives even introduced two bills into the House's session that dealt with problems of the hearing-impaired.

The American Legion's Department of Kentucky has also mentioned beginning instructions on sign language during the next convention.

Because of the understanding and the acceptance the two received, they were able to overcome their initial fear of the convention.

"It was a difficult transition," Graves said, "but after the first contact with the other people who are here, a bridge was extended for the two of us."

Now, both are anxious to convince others at their Danville school that they should participate in future Boys State conventions.

"It really was an honor to attend," Graves said. "It really has made me feel good about myself."

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University President Herb. F. Reinhard Tuesday announced several administrative and personnel changes designed to "streamline the administrative structure of the University and to pave the way for new leadership, creativity and imagination."

The changes included the reassignment of six key administrators to other positions and the development of a proposed new organizational structure.

Moving to faculty positions effective immediately will be Dr. Walter Emge, vice president for academic affairs; Buford Cragger, vice president for student affairs; Dr. Reedus Back, dean of graduate programs; Dr. Charles Payne, dean of the School of Sciences and Mathematics; and Dr. Alban Wheeler, dean of the School of Social Sciences.

The position of Philip Conn, vice president for university and regional services, will be eliminated about Oct. 1 through reorganization and he will become a special assistant to the president for three months and then a full-time faculty member in January.

In announcing the personnel shifts, Dr. Reinhard said:

"It is my strong feeling that while such changes are never easy to make, they indeed have been made in a very open and candid manner and with a sense of fairness to everyone concerned. These persons have given dedicated service to the University and the decision to make the changes was not personal. Rather, the changes were made on the basis of what is needed for Morehead State University to move ahead and reach its full potential."

Administrative Changes

Named as acting vice presidents were Dr. William M. Whitaker in academic affairs and Dr. Stephen S. Taylor in student affairs. Dr. Whitaker currently is dean of the School of Business and Economics and Dr. Taylor is director of counseling, testing and evaluation services.

Dr. Reinhard said national searches will be conducted for those two positions and also for the position of vice president for administrative and fiscal affairs which was vacated by last month's reassignment of John Graham. Porter Dailey, director of budgets, is the acting vice president in that area.

Permanent appointments to all three vice presidencies are expected by Jan. 1.

Dr. Reinhard said the proposed reorganization will be unveiled to MSU's faculty and staff members at a 10 a.m. meeting on Friday and they will be asked to react in writing by Aug. 31. A feature of the proposal is a reduction in the number of academic deans from seven to four through the conversion of six academic schools to two colleges and one school.

Dr. Reinhard said of the reorganization proposal:

"The plan constitutes a good faith effort to streamline the administrative structure of the University and to pave the way for new leadership, creativity and imagination which will enable us to be more responsive to the needs of students, faculty and staff and, certainly, to be more effective and progressive in fulfilling the University's mission to serve Eastern Kentucky."

Morehead State University is sponsoring its first annual Community Day on Saturday, Sept. 1, and you're invited.

"We extend a warm welcome to all of the citizens of Morehead and Rowan County to visit the campus for a full schedule of activities during the afternoon and to be guests of the University at the MSU-Georgetown football game that evening," President Herb. F. Reinhard said in announcing the event.

"My wife, Nancy, and I are pleased to host an open house and reception at our home and we are looking forward to meeting as many of our new neighbors as possible," Dr. Reinhard added.

He announced the appointment of a 16-member Community Day Committee to coordinate the observance. Representing the community are David Bolt, Ival Bryant, Billie Jean Clayton, Irene Cornett, Barbara Fannin, Jim Forrest, Deloris Jones and C. Roger Lewis. MSU representatives include Kyle Barnett, Dr. Robert Burns, Gretta Duncan, G. E. (Sonny) Moran, Nancy Reinhard and Dr. William Whitaker. Mike Fox, president of the MSU Student Association, is the student representative.

"We have an outstanding committee and I am confident that an exciting day will be arranged so that our visitors and our university family can enjoy each other's company," Dr. Reinhard added.

From "goofy golf" in the morning to fireworks at night, a full schedule of activities is planned for participants in Morehead State University's first annual Community Day on Saturday, Sept. 1.

Initiated at the suggestion of MSU President Herb F. Reinhard and planned by a community and campus committee, the observance is intended to encourage local residents to visit the campus during the afternoon and to attend the MSU-Georgetown football game that evening.

"Our committee has developed a variety of interesting activities which will afford several opportunities for campus and community people to become better acquainted," said Keith Kappes, chairperson of the Community Day Committee. "A feature event will be the open house and reception hosted by President and Mrs. Reinhard at their home. They are extending a general invitation to every citizen in Morehead and Rowan County to visit between 3 p.m. and 6 p.m."

Kappes added that those who visit the Reinhard home will receive complimentary tickets to the 7 p.m. football game at Jayne Stadium. High school, junior high and elementary students will be admitted free at the gate.

Community Day '84 starts at 10:30 a.m. at the University Golf Course with a "goofy golf" tournament to benefit the MSU football program. The entry fee is $25.

The nine-hole competition is sponsored by the Eagle Athletic Fund and will involve unusual golf "strokes" on each hole. Among the requirements are teeing off with a baseball bat and putting with a croquet mallet.

Activities shift to the main campus area at 1 p.m. with the opening of "Rowan County Remembered," an exhibition of photographs by Roger and Bernice Barbour of Lexington, formerly of Morehead. The photographs will be displayed in front of Camden-Carroll Library until 4:30 p.m. They were taken during the mid-1940's throughout Rowan County.

On display during the same hours across the street at the Claypool-Young Gallery will be the annual show of the Morehead Art Guild which opened earlier this month. Works by several local artists are included. Tours of the Breckinridge Archives Room and other special collections at Camden-Carroll Library also are on the schedule.

President and Mrs. Reinhard will open their home to Community Day visitors at 3 p.m. Refreshments will be available and casual dress is suggested.

Action moves toward Jayne Stadium shortly after 6 p.m. with a parade of cheerleaders, marching musicians and others. The entourage will include the seniors on the Rowan County Senior High School football squad delivering the game ball on a City of Morehead fire truck.

Pre-game activities include entertainment by members of the Morehead Shrine Club and a brief memorial service in honor of the late Carl D. Perkins. A combined chorus of students from MSU and Rowan County Middle School also will perform.

Halftime action includes shows by the RCSHS and MSU marching bands and a hometown salute to Kelly Lin Brumagen of Morehead, Miss Kentucky of 1984, who will compete in the Miss America Pageant a week later. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. David Brumagen of Morehead.

Highlighting the postgame schedule will be a fireworks display over the stadium and nearby Allen Field, awarding of special door prizes and, finally, a street dance in front of the Reinhard home.

"Community Day '84 promises to be an exciting and enjoyable day for everyone and we are looking forward to bringing the campus and the community closer together," Kappes concluded.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Workshops on environmental topics ranging from Canadian geese to nuclear energy to canoe trips will highlight the Kentucky Association for Environmental Education's (KAEE) 1984 conference at Morehead State University.

The two-day event, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 7 and 8, features tours of the Minor Clark Fish Hatchery, just outside Morehead at Cave Run Lake, and other workshops and exhibits.

Registration begins at 4 p.m. Friday and an environmental exhibition opens at 6 p.m. in the Crager Room of MSU's Adron Doran University Center.

Workshops on various environmental issues will be conducted Saturday. These include "Teaching Natural Foods in the Classroom," "Nuclear Energy and the Environment," and "Leading Canoe Trips Safely."

Workshop directors generally are from across the state, but a few come from outside Kentucky. Judy Van Winkle, from the American Museum of Science and Energy, will discuss nuclear energy. Dan Brewer, director of Kentucky's State Fish Hatchery, will lead the tour of the Minor Clark Fish Hatchery. Dr. Bonnie Appleton of Kentucky State University will explain growing Christmas trees and other native plants. About 20 speakers will lead workshops during the conference.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- A church music workshop featuring work with the cambiata voice will be conducted Friday and Saturday, Sept. 28 and 29, at Morehead State University.

Dr. Don L. Collins, director of the Vocal Music Institute of America and the Cambiata Press, both in Conway, Kan., will lead the cambiata section of the workshop. Cambiata deals with the musical training of a boy's changing voice.

Dr. Collins will be accompanied by MSU alumnus James Fitzpatrick, guest organist. Fitzpatrick is a general music teacher at Cassidy Elementary School in Lexington. He will also present a special concert Friday at the Morehead United Methodist Church.

Other courses at the workshop are adult choir, organ playing, handbells, Orff instruments and children's choir. Workshops will be taught by Dr. Collins, Fitzpatrick, Lucretia Stetler, MSU assistant professor of music; JoAnne Keenan, MSU instructor of music; and Vasile Venettozzi, MSU associate professor of music.

Registration is $75 per person and $25 for full-time college students. The deadline for registration is Sept. 10. College credit is available.

To register or for information, contact Venettozzi at (606) 783-2481.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- A series of four workshops in quilting will be offered by Linda Lowe of Elliottville and Sue Fannin of Morehead as part of Morehead State University's Academy of Arts folk art curriculum.

Cosponsored by MSU and several regional educational centers, the Academy offers a variety of classes and workshops in dance, music, theatre and the visual arts. This fall, class listings have been expanded to include the folk arts of jewelry making and pottery, as well as the workshops in quilting.

Lowe, a librarian at MSU's Camden-Carroll Library, has been a quilter for 12 years and has taught several quilting workshops. Fannin, a secretary in MSU's Department of Music, has worked with Lowe in many of the workshops.

The quilting series is scheduled in four two-day, evening workshops. Lowe and Fannin will teach quilting techniques used in Christmas decorations on Oct. 16 and 23. On Nov. 6 and 13 is piecing a patchwork quilt, a use of patterns and techniques. Set for Jan. 15 and 22 is a class on appliqued quilts and embroidery and a Feb. 5 and 12, 1985, class is on techniques of the quilting process.

Each workshop will be offered from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. and will be held in Room 202, Lloyd Cassity Building. For further information about the workshops or other Academy classes, call (606) 783-2483.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Amateur and professional craftsmen will exhibit their works during an Arts and Crafts Festival set for Sept. 21 through Sept. 23 at the Old Rowan County Courthouse.

"We are hoping to attract a good variety of professional and amateur craftsmen for the show," said Adrian Swain, Morehead potter and festival coordinator. "We're looking for good, original crafts."

Swain and members of the arts committee are planning demonstrations, exhibitions and live entertainment from groups such as the White Horse String Band and C. Roger Lewis and Friends.

The festival is sponsored by the Morehead Business and Professional Association and the Morehead State University School of Humanities.

The event is in conjunction with the Kentucky Logging Show on Sept. 22 and 23 at MSU's Derrickson Agricultural Complex.

Craftsmen interested in displaying original, handmade works should contact Swain at (606) 784-8212 for more information.
