MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Dr. Randall and Mrs. Sue Wells have been named co-chairpersons of Morehead State University's 1984 Parents Weekend.

The annual event, set for Sept. 14-16 this year, offers parents of students the opportunity to visit the campus and meet students, faculty and staff of MSU. A dinner, breakfast, concert and golf tournament highlight the weekend activities.

"We are hoping for a really good turnout," said Dr. Wells, a professor of education. "This is a perfect opportunity for parents to spend time with their son or daughter in the University atmosphere."

Mrs. Wells is an associate director of the Division of Student Activities and Organizations.

Every parent of a MSU student is an automatic member of the MSU Parents Association. Dr. and Mrs. Wells are former association members. Their daughter, Troy Lynn Wells, is a 1981 MSU graduate.

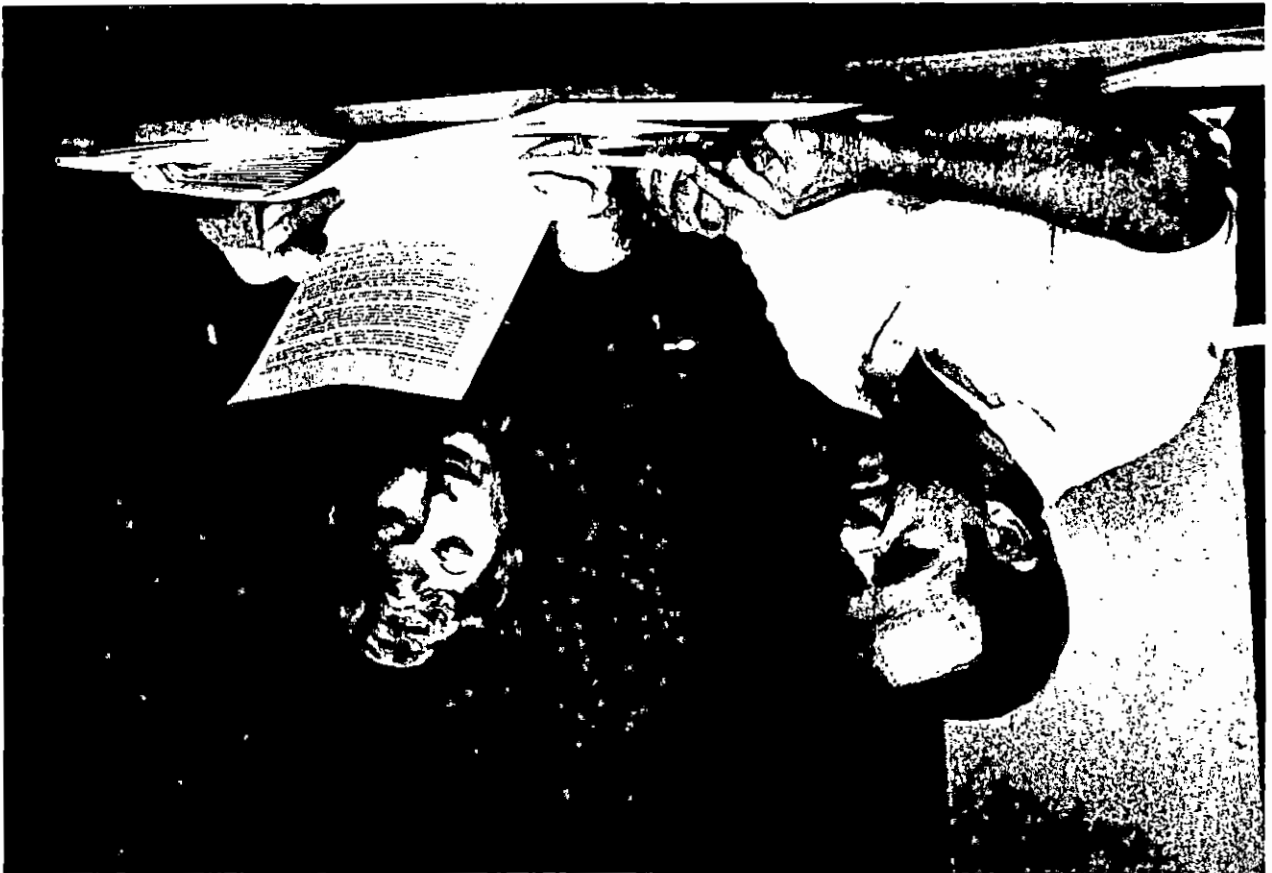

For more information on Parents Weekend or the Parents Association, contact Dr. and Mrs. Wells at Morehead State University, UPO 1322, Morehead, KY 40351.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- The Kentucky lumberjack champion of the 1984 Kentucky Logging Show will take home an extra $300.

The added purse, posted by Tibbal's Flooring Company of Oneida, Tenn., will be given in addition to prize monies won during the individual event competition during the Sept. 22-23 show at Morehead State University's Derrickson Agricultural Complex.

Lumberjacks will compete in horizontal chopping, two-person crosscut, stock chainsaw, "hot" chainsaw and axe throwing, with cash awards going to the first four finishers in each event. The overall Kentucky champion will win the $300 bonus.

The Kentucky Logging Show, cosponsored by the Kentucky Forest Industries Association and Morehead State University, also features a mule and horse pull, displays of logging equipment, a beauty pageant and a Saturday night concert.

The popular musical group Atlanta, singer Sandi Powell, and country comedian Jerry Clower will perform at 8 p.m., Sept. 22, in MSU's Academic-Athletic Center. Advance tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for students; admission at the door is $12 and $7.

To order tickets or for more information, write the Kentucky Logging Show, PO Box 712, Morehead, KY 40351, or phone Harry Ryan at (606) 783-2010.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- New federal loans are available to businesses hurt by the government's recent payment-in-kind farm programs according to Mark Dixon of the Small Business Development Center at Morehead State University.

The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act, signed into law on April 19, 1984, provides $100 million for low interest loans to businesses such as farm supply stores whose sales suffered as a result of the PIK program which took land out of production. The loans are handled through the Small Business Administration's Atlanta offices.

Information on the loan program is available from Mark Dixon, Small Business Development Center, Appalachian Development Center, Morehead State University, Morehead, KY 40351 or call (606) 783-2077.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Vegetable growers from seven Eastern Kentucky counties met Aug. 28 in Beattyville to plan a cooperatively-owned regional vegetable grading and packaging facility.

The plan, according to organizers, is to create a cooperative which will expand fresh market possibilities but not compete with existing process sales programs and other cooperative efforts. One delegate from each county was chosen to serve on the acting Board of Directors which will officially charter the new cooperative.

Vegetable growing, according to Lee County producer Jerry Gouge, is a venture particularly suited to Eastern Kentucky.

"We have mostly small farms," said Gouge, "and we have to depend on rich bottom land along the rivers. This is one of America's poorest areas, and the future of tobacco farming is questionable, so we must develop alternative crops and marketing plans."

Gouge and General James Little realized that a regional program was needed while reviewing their own success and failures.

"None of us has the resources, working alone, to accomplish what needs to be done for all of us," said Gouge. "We need centralized packaging, grading, cold storage and transportation."

Gouge and Little organized an ad-hoc committee -- which included specialists from Morehead State University's Appalachian Development Center, the University of Kentucky, and the Save The Children Federation, plus the county agriculture agents from Lee and Owsley counties -- to determine the feasibility of a cooperative effort. Encouraged by their initial findings, the small group invited vegetable growers and support personnel to a larger meeting in Beattyville.

Vegetable Growers Cooperative

Joining vegetable growers from seven counties were county agents, vocational agriculture teachers and representatives from the Kentucky Department of Agriculture, the Christian Appalachian Project, the Farmers Home Administration, the Kentucky Farm Bureau, the Soil Conservation Service, the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, Appalachia: Science in the Public Interest, Morehead State University and the Save The Children Federation.

The farmers present voted to proceed with official organization of the cooperative, and to solicit the involvement of other interested growers in surrounding counties.

The next meeting is set for 6 p.m., Sept. 19, at the Save The Children warehouse in Traveler's Rest, near Booneville. For details, contact Jerry Gouge, Old Landing, KY 41358, or phone (606) 464-2974 or 464-3643. Other county delegates that may be contacted are Neil Hoffman, Owsley, 593-6584; J.B. MOREHEAD, Ky. --- The "out to lunch" sign has become extinct at Morehead State University.

Among the changes instituted by new MSU President Herb. F. Reinhard was the adoption of staggered lunch hour schedules for administrative personnel to enable offices to remain open from noon to 1 p.m.

Traditionally, MSU had closed its administrative offices during the noon hour.

"Remaining open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. will allow us to do a better job of serving our students and the general public," Dr. Reinhard said of the change. "We are here to serve others and this change will be of significant benefit to those whose schedules are free only at lunchtime."

Toll-free telephone lines into MSU's admissions and graduate offices also are being answered during the noon hour as a result of the new schedule.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Following on the heels of Morehead State University's successful Community Day, two more annual events have been planned.

Legislative Day and Business and Industry Day will be annual days honoring government officials and members of the industrial arena, respectively.

The first Legislative Day has been set for Saturday, Sept. 29, when the MSU Eagles host Murray State University in a football game. MSU President Herb. F. Reinhard has named a steering committee to begin planning that day's activities.

Business and Industry Day will become an annual event beginning Oct. 27. The Eagles play Western Kentucky University in football on that date. Activities will be announced as they are planned.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Because of increasing costs and the decreasing number of weekend student patrons, the cafeteria in Morehead State University's Adron Doran University Center will be closed on weekends, according to Porter Dailey, acting vice president for fiscal affairs.

"We have several friends in town who eat lunch at the cafeteria on Sundays, and we're certainly sorry that we won't be able to continue our service to them," said Dailey. "But, we just can't financially justify continuing weekend service with the costs we face."

The second cafeteria on campus, in the Alumni Tower residence hall, will remain open for weekend service.

The ADUC Grill, which serves sandwiches, snacks, fruits and drinks, will also continue to offer weekend service. According to Dailey, holders of meal plan cards will be able to use the grill and receive credit on the plan.

The ADUC cafeteria closing is effective the weekend of Sept. 15.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Two expired terms on the Morehead State University Board of Regents have been filled by Gov. Martha Layne Collins. One member was reappointed and another position was filled by a new regent.

Patricia Ann Burchett of Paintsville is the new member and Judge James M. Richardson of Owingsville has been reappointed.

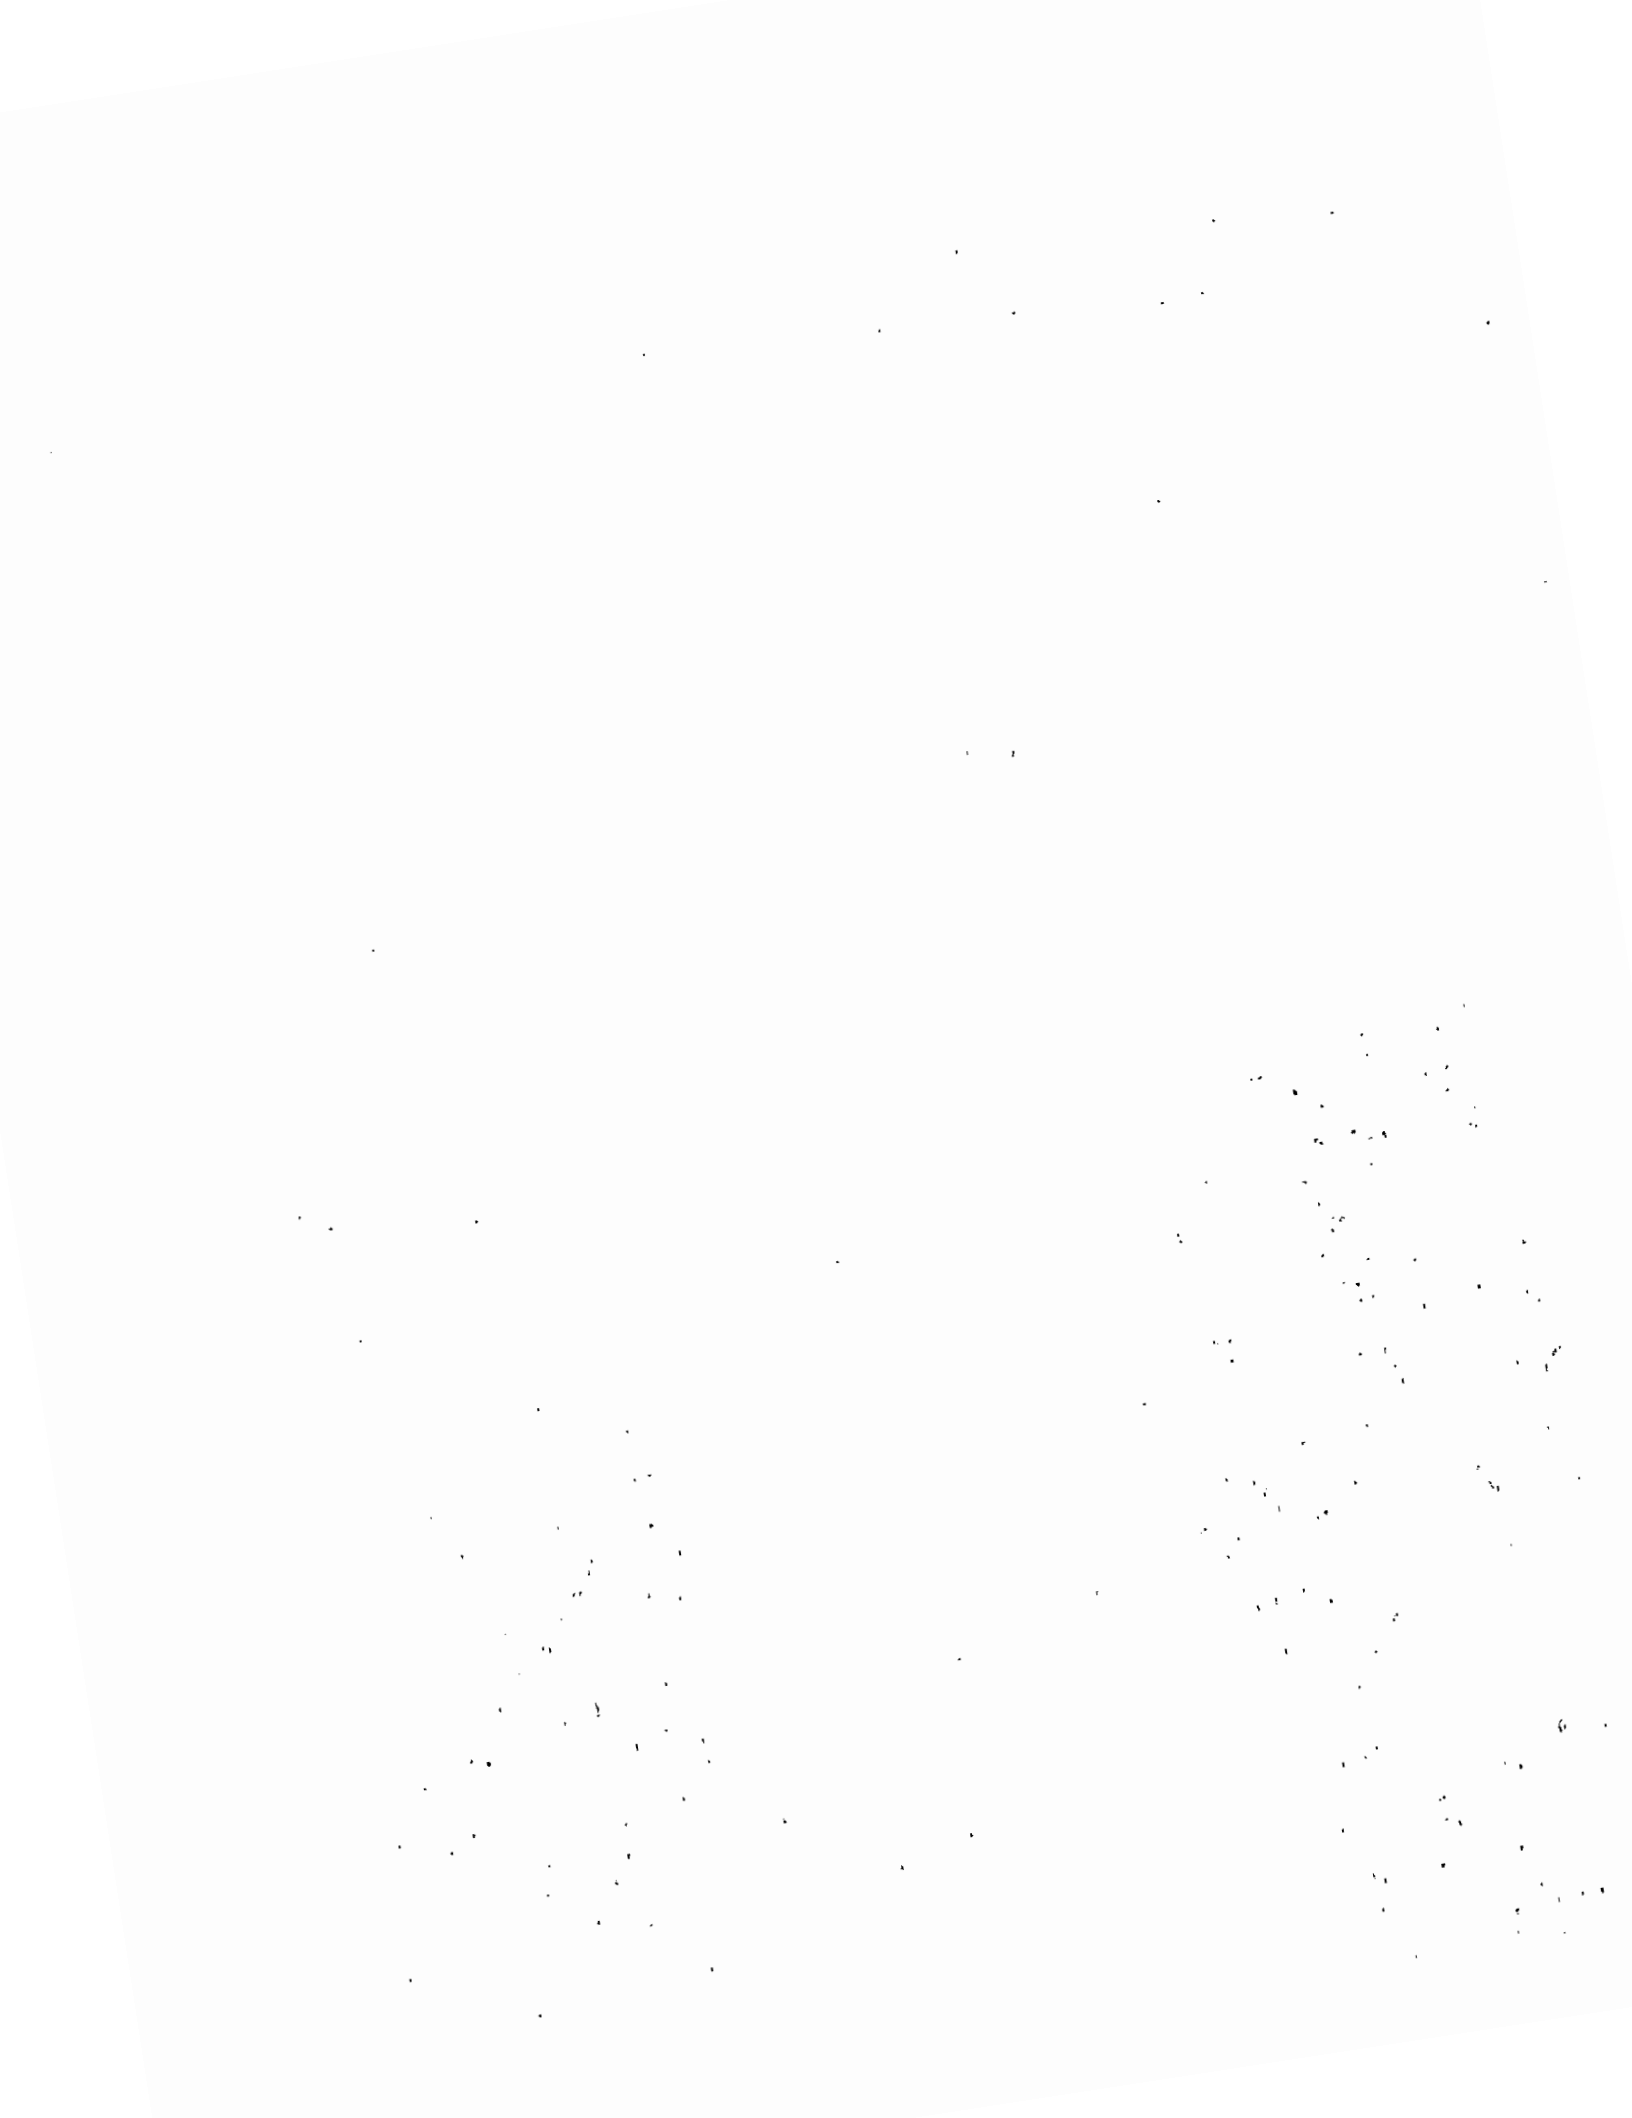

Burchett, an elementary school teacher of seven years and mother of three teen-age children, will fill the Republican seat vacated by John Baird of Pikeville. Burchett teaches in the Johnson County School System and is married to Leon Burchett, superintendent of the system. She holds bachelor's and master's degrees in education from MSU.

Richardson, second in seniority on the Board to Lloyd Cassity of Ashland, is the judge in Kentucky's 21st judicial circuit. The 58-year-old democrat has served on the Board since 1975. He is married to Grace Reffitt and they have four daughters and one son. Richardson has been an attorney since 1949, with 24 of those years as Bath County attorney. He and three of his daughters attended MSU.

The two positions expired on June 30 and Baird requested not to be renamed to the Board. Burchett and Richardson will serve until June 30, 1990.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University's Interfraternity and Panhellenic Councils have new office space, thanks to MSU President Herb. F. Reinhard.

A former faculty residence at 1 Woodlawn Terrace, near Nunn Hall, a women's residence, will be officially opened as office space for the two coordinating councils of MSU's Greek student organizations during activities for Parent's Weekend, Sept. 14-16. The ceremony is at 4 p.m., Friday, Sept. 14.

The move was announced Thursday after Dr. Reinhard had talked with students the night before. His talk with them was part of an ongoing plan to meet with students in residence halls and discuss their concerns about campus and university life.

Two of the three bedrooms in the house will be turned into offices, and the third will become a conference room. A kitchen will remain intact and a den will become a study area.

The five officers of the Panhellenic Council, coordinators for campus sororities, and the four officers of the Interfraternity Council, the fraternity coordinating body, will be given keys to the new office.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- The presidential election, treatment of multiple personalities, the Cinderella Complex and a presentation by the country's foremost consumer advocate are featured in the 1984-85 Concert and Lecture Series at Morehead State University.

William Rusher and Toby Moffett will debate upcoming presidential election issues during a free public program Oct. 4 in MSU's Button Auditorium.

Rusher is a professional lecturer/debater and columnist for conservative issues. He is the author of "How to Win Arguments."

Moffett, a self-described liberal democrat, is a former Connecticut congressman. He was the organizer of the Citizen's Action Movement, a consumer action group and has made appearances on CNN's "Crossfire" and "Election Watch '84."

Dr. Cornelia Wilbur was the psychoanalyst to "Sybil," the girl whose multiple personalities were the subject of a book and movie. She will come to campus Nov. 7 to discuss her experiences in dealing with multiple personalities.

Beginning the 1985 half of the series is Colette Dowling. She is the author of "The Cinderella Complex" and on Feb. 13 will discuss barriers women find in the search for independence.

Leading consumer advocate Ralph Nader will highlight the University's Founders Day celebrations with a March 28 lecture in Button Auditorium.

The lectures are a part of the University's annual Concert and Lecture series. Each of the presentations is free and open to the public.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Classes in basic jewelry making are being taught by Larry Dales of Haldeman as part of Morehead State University's Academy of Arts folk art curriculum.

Cosponsored by MSU and several regional educational centers, the Academy offers a variety of classes and workshops in dance, music, theatre and the visual arts. This fall, class listings have been expanded to include the folk arts of pottery, quilting, fiber techniques and jewelry making.

Dales, assistant professor of photography at MSU, has been teaching art, crafts and photography for over 20 years.

"Jewelry making has always been my primary interest," said Dales. He received a master's degree in crafts design, specializing in jewelry making, from Brigham Young University.

The jewelry making class will focus on basic handbuilding methods, primarily using silver, copper and brass. Emphasis will be placed on design quality and craftsmanship as students learn piercing, cutting, joining and applique techniques.

The jewelry making class will be offered from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. on Wednesday evenings. For further information about this or other Academy classes, call (606) 783-2483.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- William Rusher and Toby Moffett will open the lecture programs for Morehead State University's Fall, 1984 Concert and Lecture Series with an Oct. 4 discussion/debate on the upcoming presidential election.

Rusher is a professional lecturer/debater and columnist for conservative issues. He has been a spokesman for the PBS series, "The Advocates" and a regular on the ABC "Good Morning America" segment, "Face-Off."

His column, "The Conservative Advocate," is published three times a week. Among his literary works are "The Making of the New Majority Party" and "How to Win Arguments."

Opposing Rusher in the election debate is Moffett, a self-described liberal democrat.

Moffett is the organizer of the Citizen's Action Movement and chairman of the Defense Dialogue Group, working with the Freeze Movement in Washington lobbying efforts.

He is a former Connecticut congressman and has made several appearances on CNN's "Crossfire" and "Election Watch '84."

The lecture starts at 10:20 a.m. in Button Auditorium. It is free and open to the public.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- If a picture is worth a thousand words, then Morehead State University senior Mike Hanson owns a library.

Mike, a San Jose, Calif. native who moved to Mt. Sterling when he was 16 years old, took his childhood hobby of photography and turned it into a prospective career.

"I first started taking pictures when I was about 12. I was working as a flag holder at Motorcycle races, my whole duty was to stand there all day and hold up a yellow flag if there was an accident. One day I decided to bring my camera to work and take pictures," Mike said.

Though Mike never took a real interest in photography for almost four more years, when he took an interest, it became practically non-stop.

"I first really got into photography after I moved to Kentucky. I didn't know anybody and I wanted something to do," Mike recalled.

After he enrolled in a high school photography class, his mother bought his first 35mm camera. From that point on, Mike said "things really began to kick into high gear."

Today, as a freelance photographer for numerous publications, a photographer for hobby, and the photo editor for The Trail Blazer, MSU's student newspaper, Mike admits to spending "around 40 hours per week on his photography work."

On top of all of this, Mike has still found time to do such things as help the photo department at Lexington's Herald-Leader newspaper cover a recent Kentucky Derby; work for a wide variety of MSU publications, including being photo editor of the student yearbook as a junior; and, most recently, work with a freelance writer on a story which was published in a major magazine.

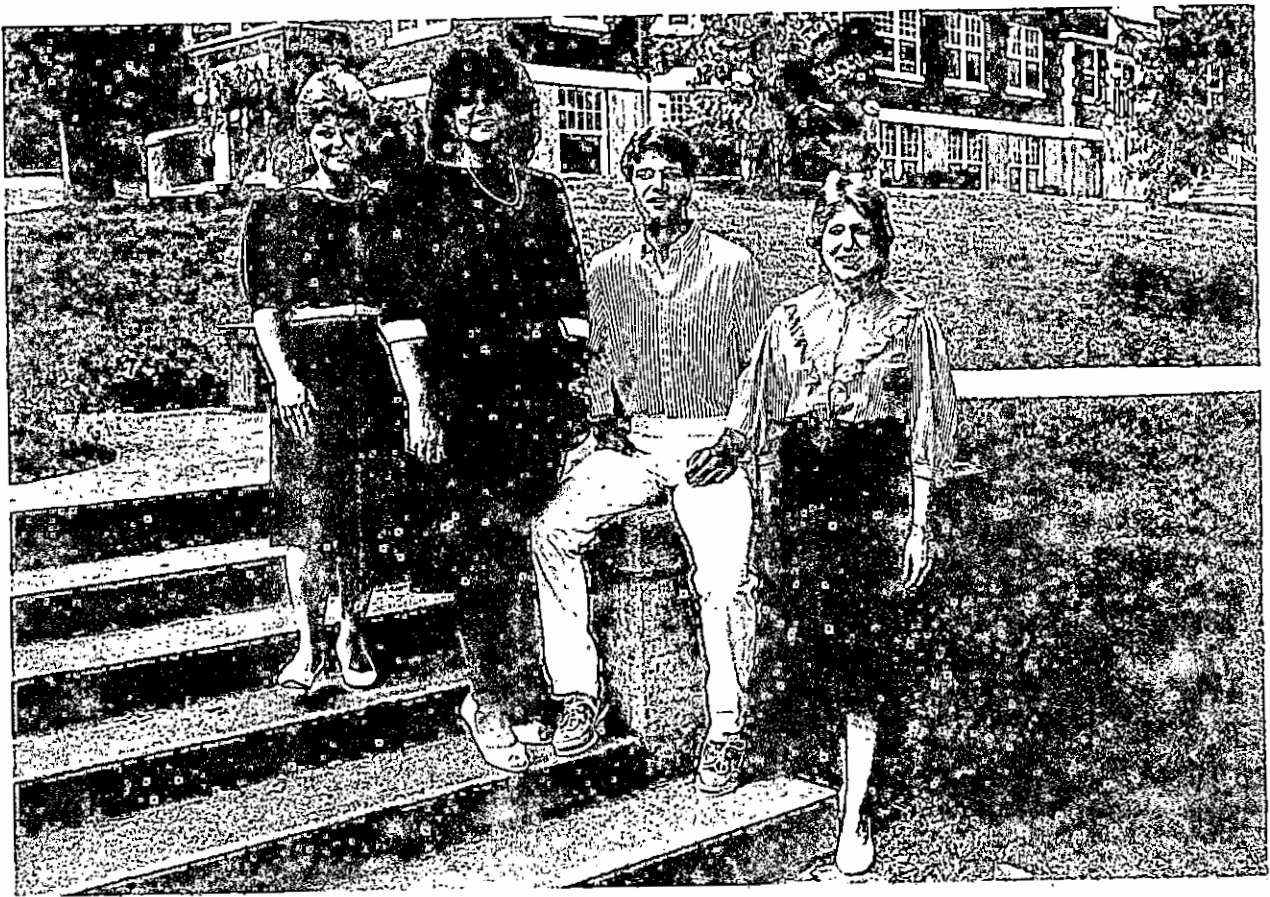

After such a varied selection of publications, some photographers might have difficulty deciding their favorite event to photograph. Mike doesn't have that trouble --- say "sports," and he quickly perks up.

"I like sports most of all because it's so hard to get at least one good picture that can say something. In still photography, you've only got one picture, and," Mike said, "that picture has to be worth a thousand words."

On that thinking, libraries are built.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- The Morehead State University Testing and Evaluation Center offers information and tests for university students and Kentucky residents.

The National Teacher Examination (NTE) will be offered Oct. 27 at the center. Students enrolled in a teaching program and working as student teachers are required to take the test. The fee is $46.

A special NTE test is set for Nov. 10. This test will be required for students entering the teaching program in 1985. Students planning to take the tests should register five weeks in advance.

The American College Testing (ACT) program is a required college entrance exam and is necessary for all entering college freshmen. The test is scheduled for Oct. 27 and Dec. 8 at the center. The fee is $9.50 and students should register five weeks in advance. Registration forms are available from the center and high school counselors.

College Level Examination Program (CLEP) tests are offered on an appointment only basis. The tests cover all aspects of general college education requirements. "K" credit is awarded for each test successfully completed. The fee per test is $25.

A high school equivalency certificate is the goal of the General Educational Development (GED) exam. To take the test, a person must be at least 17 years old and out of school for one year or more. An application is also required from the person's high school superintendent. Tests are $10 and are scheduled by appointment.

Tests

The Strong Campbell Interest Inventory (SCII) compares similarities in a student's interests to those of professionals in a particular field. A profile test is $3 and an interpretive report is $5. The tests are offered Monday through Friday by appointment.

A free Nelson-Denny Reading Test is offered Mondays and Wednesdays by appointment. The test is required for radiology technology students.

Another free test is the California Test of Basic Skills (CTBS), which is required for all education students. Students should register with the center at least two weeks before the Oct. 3-5 testing dates. The test may be repeated the following semester, if necessary. A retest for those students who took the initial test in Spring, 1984, is set for Sept. 26-28.

Miller's Analogies Exam is a test for graduate students and is required by some universities. The fee is $20. Appointments are required.

The Graduate Record Exam (GRE) is required for all students planning to enter the MSU graduate program. Testing dates are Oct. 13 and Dec. 8. The fee is $29. For registration forms, write Graduate Record Examinations, Educational Testing Service, PO Box 955, Princeton, NJ 08540.

The center also offers registration forms and information about tests offered by other universities. For information, write the Testing and Evaluation Center, 501A Ginger Hall, Morehead State University, Morehead, KY 40351. The phone number is (606) 783-2526.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University President Herb. F. Reinhard will hold his President's Leadership Conference with 100 high school juniors and seniors at the end of this month.

Beginning at 11 a.m. Friday, Sept. 28, and continuing through 5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 29, the conference is a series of workshops that develop the students' academic and leadership abilities.

Conference workshops will deal with such topics as the 1984 elections, interpersonal communication and personal development. Dr. Reinhard will lead a special workshop and discussion. Social events include a football game and a pool party.

The goals of the President's Leadership Conference are to recognize the young leaders in the surrounding schools and communities and to use MSU facilities and faculty and staff expertise to provide educational service to Eastern Kentucky.

High school counselors within MSU's service area have been contacted and asked to select two outstanding juniors and two outstanding seniors from their high school for attendance at the conference.

For more information, contact Kyle A. Barnett, scholarships and awards officer in MSU's Division of Admissions, at (606) 783-2000.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- The Kentucky Logging Show Festival, Sept. 21-23 on the old courthouse lawn in Morehead, will feature art and craft demonstrations, live music and a display of children's art.

According to Morehead potter Adrian Swain, coordinator of the Festival, there will be working demonstrations of weaving, printmaking, wheel thrown pottery, portrait painting and blacksmithing. Booth exhibits will feature handmade items ranging from quilts to pots and folk art.

Music will be provided by the White Horse String Band on Saturday and C. Roger Lewis and Friends on Sunday. Storytelling, food booths and a "Big Wheel" race at 4 p.m. Saturday will add to the fun.

Inside the courthouse the work of art students from area schools will be on display.

The Festival opens at 10 a.m. on Friday and Saturday, and at noon Sunday. There is no admission charge. Sponsors are the Morehead State University School of Humanities and the Morehead Business and Professional Associations.

The Festival is held in conjunction with the Kentucky Logging Show Sept. 22-23 at MSU's Derrickson Agricultural Complex. The Logging Show concert featuring Jerry Clower, Sandi Powell and Atlanta, will be at 8 p.m. Saturday in MSU's Academic-Athletic Center.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- You don't have to be a lumberjack to have fun at the Kentucky Logging Show this Saturday and Sunday at Morehead State University's Derrickson Agricultural Complex.

From 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Sept. 22-23, the showgrounds, just off Ky. 377, will be alive with singers and dancers, beauty queen contestants, chainsaw sculpture demonstrations and a pair of 2,200-pound oxen. The lumberjack competitions, which pit contestants in sawing, chopping and axe throwing contests, begin at 1 p.m. on Saturday. The Kentucky Logging Show Beauty Pageant begins at 10 a.m. Saturday, followed by the skidder contest at 11 a.m. Displays of antique and modern logging equipment will be open and working all day.

The Saturday night concert, featuring Jerry Clower, Sandi Powell and the hit group Atlanta, starts at 8 p.m. in MSU's Academic-Athletic Center. Advance tickets, $10 for adults and $5 for students, will be on sale at the Logging Show until 5 p.m. and are also available at The Music Machine, People's Department Store, P & B Army Surplus and Martin's Department Store. Tickets at the door are $12 and $7.

Downtown on the old courthouse lawn will be an Arts and Crafts Festival featuring pottery and blacksmithing demonstrations, live music, displays of children's art and booths filled with handmade products. The festival runs all day Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Sunday's schedule at the Logging Show includes the knuckle boom loader contest at 10 a.m., lumberjack competitions beginning at noon and the horse and mule pull at 3 p.m. R.C. Nixon's oxen, used in the movie "Centennial" and now performing for the filming of "Huckleberry Finn" at Augusta, will be at the show all day Saturday and Sunday.

Exhibitors have been preparing their displays at the MSU farm all week, and will be welcomed by the Morehead/Rowan County Chamber of Commerce with an exhibitors' dinner Friday evening at the Holiday Inn.

MSU students running the food booths at the Logging Show will offer a wide variety of meals and drinks. Ongoing entertainment will include a cavalcade of clogging and stage performances.

Admission to the Kentucky Logging Show is $2 for adults. Parking is free at the Derrickson Agricultural Complex. Over 10,000 visitors are expected to the show, which is cosponsored by the Kentucky Forest Industries Association and Morehead State University.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Jim Skaggs of Lawrence County is the newly elected president of the Northeast Kentucky Beef Improvement Federation (NKBIF), a non-profit organization designed to improve the productivity of Eastern Kentucky beef herds.

The Federation's first major project, in conjunction with Morehead State University's Department of Agriculture, is an on-farm bull performance testing program and subsequent sale of the bulls tested. Weanling bulls will be weighed, scored and measured at the MSU farm, taken back to the farm of origin for a 140-day performance test and then re-evaluated just prior to the March, 1985, auction.

A testing fee of $100 is charged at registration, which counts toward payment of the 5 percent sales commission. Part of the commission from each sale will go toward construction of an NKBIF performance testing facility.

According to Phil Kenkel, agribusiness specialist for MSU's Appalachian Development Center, the need for a Northeast Kentucky organization stems from different growing methods in the region.

"Most mountain beef producers graze their cattle," said Kenkel. "There is less grain feeding than in the rest of Kentucky. The people who formed NKBIF wanted a separate, applicable testing program geared to their specific needs."

DANNY R. WRIGHT, COORDINATOR

The following is a review by Mary Pritchard, art consultant from Columbus, Ohio.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- The Faculty Exhibition at Morehead State University reflects an art department in transition. A lack of direction presents special problems for the organizers, not the least of which is the creation of visual order from an unrelated body of work. The result is an exhibition which is unwieldy and uneven, but which also displays technical competence, vitality, and potential.

The chief drawback stems from the imbalance in participation by department members. In sheer number of works, Steve Tirone, assistant professor, painter, ceramicist and sculptor, dominates the show. His shaped and joined canvasses are well crafted and energetic. Although marred by "Orphan Annie" eyes, the portrait bust of his daughter Amy is lively and expressive and certainly deserves a more sympathetic material than cement. Unfortunately, the ceramics suffer from overkill. The calligraphic gestures which seem dynamic on one bowl appear repetitious and overworked when viewed repeatedly in an overcrowded installation. This lessens the impact of several fine pieces.

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions and activities. It emphasizes that this is crucial for ensuring transparency and accountability in the organization's operations.

2. The second part of the document outlines the various methods and tools used to collect and analyze data. It highlights the need for a systematic approach to data collection and the importance of using reliable sources of information.

3. The third part of the document focuses on the role of technology in data management and analysis. It discusses how modern software solutions can help organizations streamline their data processes and gain valuable insights from their data.

4. The fourth part of the document addresses the challenges of data security and privacy. It emphasizes the need for robust security measures to protect sensitive information and ensure compliance with relevant regulations.

5. The fifth part of the document discusses the importance of data quality and accuracy. It highlights the need for regular data audits and validation to ensure that the data used for decision-making is reliable and up-to-date.

6. The sixth part of the document focuses on the role of data in strategic planning and decision-making. It discusses how data can be used to identify trends, opportunities, and risks, and how it can inform the development of effective strategies.

7. The seventh part of the document addresses the importance of data literacy and training. It emphasizes the need for employees to have the skills and knowledge to effectively use data in their work, and discusses various training and development programs.

8. The eighth part of the document discusses the future of data and its potential impact on various industries. It highlights the growing importance of data in the digital age and the need for organizations to stay ahead of the curve by embracing data-driven innovation.

In contrast to Tirone, fibre artist Janelle Delicata, adjunct professor, shows only two works and neither one is enhanced by its installation. A boldly composed tapestry is thrust between unrelated smaller paintings and a delicate weaving is overwhelmed by the Tirone paintings on the adjacent wall. Dixon Ferrell, associate professor, is also underrepresented. Ferrell manipulates paint effectively in a series of "Compositions." The best of these create a sense of infinity and space but the small scale of these paintings limits their potential.

Tom Sternal, art department head, and Joe Sartor, assistant professor, are both exhibiting work which seems to point in new directions for them. Sternal, newly appointed department chairman, is primarily a sculptor but in this exhibit, he is represented by very recent paintings and drawings. References to death and immortality permeate his landscapes. The paint handling is very direct and unforced, but the feeling of spontaneity is somewhat at odds with the monumentality of his images. It will be interesting to see the sculpture which results from this new direction. Sartor expresses similar concerns through the subject matter of his painstakingly crafted paintings. He gives freer reign to experimental techniques and symbolism in the Klee-like encaustic painting "Signals."

Robert Franzini, associate professor, views the exhibition as a teaching opportunity, demonstrating a variety of printmaking techniques. Several works show a certain dryness but at his best a sensitivity of line and gesture gives freshness and life to prints such as "Seated Woman." He has devoted a great deal of research to a method of relief ink etching through which he produces haunting images of rich tonality and texture.

Pritchard Review

The photographs of David Bartlett, associate professor, are the most effectively displayed works of the exhibition. In the back alcove of the lower gallery, they form a self-contained world. The artist's strong response to light and sense of composition create panoramas of trees and water, mist and leaves. Two photographs serve as examples of thoughtful placement. In one a white trailer against a white house shows an austere sense of control and composition. Hanging next to it is a densely patterned still life landscape of curled saw blades, bed springs, pipes and leaves in rich tones of black and grey.

What this exhibition lacks in focus, it makes up for in individual work. A newly invigorated art department and a supportive administration promise a season of experimentation and progress at Morehead. Next year's exhibition will be one to anticipate. The exhibit at the Art Gallery in the Claypool-Young Building at Morehead State University continues through Sept. 28.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- It's a well-known trait of fishermen to swap stories about "the one that got away" -- well, fishermen aren't the only ones to talk.

"It's just like getting fishermen together whenever bird watchers gather," said Fred M. Busroe, an associate professor of biology at Morehead State University. "Both like to swap stories about the size, color and breed of what they saw."

Busroe is vice president of the Kentucky Ornithological Society (KOS), which will meet Sept. 28-30 at MSU for its annual fall meeting. This is the first time the organization has met at the University.

KOS organized more than 50 years ago to involve Kentuckians in the art of bird watching. A journal, "Kentucky Warbler," published by the society, is the only one of its kind in Kentucky, Busroe said.

According to Busroe, bird watching is a relatively easy and inexpensive hobby.

"It's easy to get started," he said. "You don't need expensive equipment and you become more experienced and knowledgeable as you go along."

Registration for the weekend's activities is open to the public and will be conducted at 4 p.m. Sept. 28 in the Adron Doran University Center (ADUC). The cost is $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Following the registration, at 7:30 p.m., is a meeting in Lappin Hall Room 130 featuring Sherri A. Evans and Brainard Palmer-Ball.

Evans is a state employee of the Fish and Wildlife Department's non-game program in Frankfort. She will speak on "The Current Status of Kentucky's Breeding Bird Atlas," a book detailing the location of bird species throughout the state.

Palmer-Ball, an ornithologist, will lecture on "Birding at the Paradise Steam Plant," a facility on the Ohio River near Louisville.

Busroe will guide a tour of bird watchers at Cave Run Lake and the nearby Minor E. Clark Fish Hatchery at 8 a.m. Sept. 29. He said other tours of the Morehead area will be available Sept. 30.

"The best thing I like about being a bird watcher is the opportunity to get out and enjoy nature," he said.

At 2:30 p.m. Sept. 29, Brian Anderson, an employee of the Kentucky Nature Reserves Commission and a professional biologist, will lecture in the Riggle Room of ADUC on the "Bald Eagle Survey at Ballard (Ky.) Wildlife Management Area."

A board meeting at 4 p.m. Sept. 29 in the East Room, ADUC, will be followed by a dinner at 6:30 p.m. in the Red Room, ADUC. The dinner costs $6.75 per person.

The featured speaker at the dinner is Dr. Madison E. Pryor, MSU professor of biology, speaking on "Penguins and Other Birds of the Antarctic."

Pryor, a self-described amateur ornithologist, served two tours of the Antarctic, the last in 1963 as an American exchange scientist with a Soviet expedition.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- "Acid Rain, The Media and You" is the topic of keynoter Jack Katlic's talk at the upcoming conference on "Kentucky Coal: A Look at the Future," scheduled for Oct. 5 at Lexington's Holiday Inn-North.

Katlic, senior vice president for American Electric Power Co. in Columbus, Ohio, is a former Lexington resident and was executive vice president for Island Creek Coal Co. before assuming his post with AEP, parent to Kentucky Power Co.

Katlic's address is expected to bring into sharp focus the factors surrounding the heated acid rain issue and what the coal industry can expect in the near future regarding it. Katlic is also expected to tell coal producers what they can look for in future requirements by the electric power industry.

Other speakers at the conference will include representatives from both industry and government. They will portray new mining technologies and equipment that are in the offing, assess competition from foreign coal producers, and discuss how to increase productivity through improved human relations.

The conference is the first of its kind, and is sponsored jointly by Morehead State University and the National Independent Coal Association. Pre-registration will be held Thursday, Oct. 4, beginning at 3 p.m. at the Holiday Inn-North, with a reception at 5 p.m. More information is available from MSU's Wes Blakely, at (606) 783-2633.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Dr. Wanda Bigham, a native of Barlow, has been named the acting dean of graduate programs at Morehead State University.

She holds a bachelor's degree in music from Murray State University, a master's in music and education from MSU and a doctorate in education from the University of Kentucky.

Dr. Bigham has studied educational management at Harvard University and has been an officer of the National Council of Educational Opportunity Associations. She has also served as the vice president of the Southeastern Association of Educational Opportunity Program Personnel and was president of the Kentucky Association of Educational Opportunity Program Personnel.

Dr. Bigham has educational administrative leadership potential, according to the American Council on Education (ACE). Last spring, ACE named her a 1983-84 Fellow in Academic Administration. It was the first such fellowship ever awarded to an MSU nominee. About 40 persons are named each year.

She is also a member of the Sigma Alpha Iota Professional Music Fraternity, American Association of Higher Education, the American Reading Forum, Phi Kappa Phi and Phi Delta Kappa, among other organizations.

Dr. Bigham and her husband, Dr. William H. Bigham, a native of Paris, Tenn., have three children. She is the daughter of Herbert M. Durrett of Barlow.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- In an attempt to continue providing an alternate source of purified water for area residents, Morehead State University has begun construction of a new pipeline at its Bridge Street power plant.

Recent installation of a pollution control system at the plant has caused interruptions to water service. The University will build extended water lines at the power plant so this source of water can be delivered outside the safety fence being constructed around the pollution control system. The line will ensure a continuous supply of water to residents with needs.

The water, from the same purified supply used on campus, may be purchased at the rate of $.25 per 100 gallons. The minimal rate will help offset pipeline construction costs.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University's Educational Talent Search program has been funded through June 1985 by the U.S. Department of Education.

The program, which started at MSU in 1968, received $93,874 to continue its work with Kentucky high school students.

Program Coordinator Charles Gilley said the talent search covers 17 eastern and northeastern Kentucky counties and 21 high schools. Counselors from the program visit the schools and host seminars to interest students in continuing their education past the secondary level.

"We are particularly interested in the low income student and those students who would be first generation college students," Gilley said.

Gilley said 56 percent of the students counseled in the program last year went on to college.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- The East Kentucky Small Business Development Center will present a "Recordkeeping" workshop Oct. 13 at Morehead State University.

Larry Blair, CPA, will conduct the all-day session designed for those interested in setting up a financial records system or modifying one now in use. Blair will recommend the records to keep and how long to keep them; he will also cover the simple "one-write" checking and record systems.

The workshop is from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Riggle Room of MSU's Adron Doran University Center. The registration fee is $15, which includes lunch and all printed materials. A second person from the same business may attend for $5.

Blair, from Morehead, has been a practicing CPA since 1970, and is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Kentucky Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Sponsors of the "Recordkeeping" workshop include the Small Business Development Center (SBDC), MSU's Appalachian Development Center, the Small Business Administration, the Kentucky Commerce Cabinet and the Kentucky Division of Forestry.

For information, contact Robert Justice, Program Director, SBDC, Appalachian Development Center, Morehead State University, Morehead, KY 40351, or phone (606) 783-2077.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- The forward-thinking human resource practices of Pyro Mining Co. in Sturgis will be highlighted at the upcoming conference "Kentucky: A Look at the Future."

The conference is set for Friday, Oct. 5, at Lexington's Holiday Inn-North, just off I-75. Some 150-200 coal industry people are expected to attend the conference, sponsored jointly by the National Independent Coal Operators Association and Morehead State University.

Pyro Mining, although a relatively young coal producer, has turned coal industry heads through its progressive personnel policies. The company enjoys a high rate of productivity and a low rate of absenteeism among its personnel, two important factors that plague many of the companies in the industry.

James Shouse, manager of employee relations for Pyro, will address the conference on his company's human resource development policies.

Other areas to be addressed at the conference include state-of-the-art machine technology and the current and future market place for coal. Expert speakers on these topics from around the nation will be on hand at the conference, geared to coal operations people in both strip mining and deep mining.

Registration for the conference is at 3 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 4, followed by a 5 p.m. reception at the Bluegrass Pavilion Room in the Holiday Inn. A nominal fee of $35 for adults and $20 for students is being charged while admission to the conference and its functions will be by registration badge only. MOREHEAD, Ky. --- The Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity and Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority at Morehead State University teamed up at a recent football game to do some volunteer work for the National Kidney Foundation. They sold boxes of candy, marked with the NKF seal, to raise money for the foundation in its annual candy sale fundraiser.

The fall candy sale supports NKF's efforts to help patients with end stage renal disease, who require dialysis treatment or transplant. The NKF is the only voluntary health agency that deals with the prevention, treatment and cure of diseases of the kidney. Of special interest to patients in this region of Eastern Kentucky is the Foundation's drug bank, which assists needy patients to secure their required medication while undergoing treatment.

Sigma Phi Epsilon and Sigma Sigma Sigma will be selling candy for charity at the Eagles and Murray State University game. Half the money collected will go directly into the drug bank for assisting area kidney patients.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Jerry Gouge of Lee County is the first president of the Kentucky Mountain Farms Cooperative, a new effort to revitalize Eastern Kentucky agriculture.

Other officers elected during a Sept. 19 meeting of the group are Neil Hoffman, vice president and Eddie Ditty, treasurer.

Kentucky Mountain Farms Cooperative, already representing vegetable growers from eight Eastern Kentucky counties, will work to develop centralized packaging, grading, cold storage and transportation for all its members.

According to Phil Kenkel, agribusiness specialist for Morehead State University's Appalachian Development Center, the new cooperative is a unique joint effort.

"County agents, vocational ag teachers, state and federal agriculture agencies and private organizations are working together," said Kenkel. "The Save The Children Federation, the Christian Appalachian Project and Appalachia: Science in the Public Interest, all private service organizations, are supporting this project."

Gouge, whose farm is at Old Landing in Lee County, sees vegetable growing as the key to Eastern Kentucky's agricultural future.

"We have mostly small farms," said Gouge, "and we no longer can depend on just tobacco. To succeed as vegetable growers, we have to work together to cut costs and supply a larger marketplace."

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- The emotional, social and educational challenges facing talented and gifted students is the topic of an Oct. 4 conference at Morehead State University.

The conference, "Education of Academic/Talented Students for Parents and Educators," promotes understanding of the problems facing gifted students and offers guidelines for helping them get the most out of the educational system, according to Dr. George Troutt, regional coordinator for the Kentucky Association of Gifted Education and coordinator of MSU's Teacher In-Service.

"We're going to be looking at the education of gifted students from all angles," he said. "This conference will show how parents, educators and coordinators of gifted student programs can help."

The one-day conference begins at 9 a.m. Thursday with an opening statement by MSU President Herb. F. Reinhard. James Gregg, state coordinator for KAGE and Dr. Bill Price, KAGE president, will lecture in addition to Troutt.

The keynote speaker is Dr. Roger Taylor, an expert in the area of gifted children. Taylor will speak on effective parenting and obtaining the full potential for gifted students.

The conference is open to the public. Registration will be conducted from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. in the Crager Room of MSU's Adron Doran University Center. The conference fee is $20. For more information, contact Troutt at (606) 783-2894.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University theatre students will present the classic Thornton Wilder play "Our Town" Oct. 11, 12 and 13 in MSU's Button Auditorium.

"We are going to portray the play the way Wilder intended," said Dr. Travis Lockhart, theatre program coordinator and assistant professor. "As a result, we will not use a lot of scenery--the main emphasis of the play is on the characters and their experiences."

Dr. Lockhart is also directing the play, which features 26 MSU students in the cast.

"It is the type of play which the audience can easily relate to. People will see themselves through the experiences enacted," he said.

All performances begin at 8 p.m. Tickets are $3.50 for adults and $2 for high school and college students. MSU students are admitted free with a valid I.D. card. Seatings at all performances are general admission only.

For more information, contact Lockhart at (606) 783-2167.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Charlee Mae Brodsky, one of five photographers showing prints in the "Faces of America" exhibition at Morehead State University, will lecture Monday, Oct. 15.

Brodsky, who has a master's of fine arts degree from the Yale University School of Art, will discuss her work at 7:30 p.m. in Claypool-Young, Room 111.

Photographs by Brodsky, an assistant professor of art at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh, Pa., are on display in the art gallery of the Claypool-Young Building through Nov. 2. The photographs are from "South Side" series and "South Side Torso" series.

The exhibit is on display from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays. The exhibit and the lecture are open to the public and free of charge.
