Louisville, Ky.—Co-operation for the eradication of illiteracy from Kentucky was the theme of Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, of Morehead, chairman of the Kentucky Anti-Illiteracy Commission, principal speaker at the opening session of the Jefferson County Teachers' Institute at the courthouse here. Mrs. Stewart, known far and wide as the originator of the "moonlight schools," told the teachers that if the Commonwealth is to take her rightful place in the literacy scale the teachers themselves will have to assume much of the burden.

The institute was well attended by teachers both from the county and the city, and the interest bids fair to increase. The entire body attended the exercises dedicating the new George Rogers Clark Ballard School at Florida Heights. The principal address was made by R. C. Thruston Ballard, who donated the site for the building, and other speakers will be Superintendent Parksdale Hamlett, County Superintendent Orville Stivers and Prof. T. J. Coates, State Superintendent of Rural Schools.

Commencement exercises for 101 graduates of the eighth grade of the county schools were held at the Girls' High School.
