MOREHEAD, Ky. --- More than 350 students will participate in commencement exercises on Dec. 15 in the first winter graduation ceremony in Morehead State University's history.

The 1:30 p.m. exercises will be held in MSU's Button Auditorium for the first time since 1956.

Commencement addresses will be delivered by Robert M. Duncan, chairperson of the MSU Board of Regents; MSU President Herb. F. Reinhard; and Lynette Kaye Greene, student representative.

Greene was selected by the university's deans on the basis of her academic and extracurricular achievements. Her address will replace that of a guest speaker, the tradition in past graduation exercises.

Greene will receive a bachelor of arts degree in elementary education, graduating with a 4.0 grade-point average. She is a member of Phi Kappa Phi and Kappa Delta Pi honorary societies and the daughter of Charles and Shirley Greene of Farmers.

The commencement grand marshal is Dr. Lawrence Griesinger, professor of education. Dr. Griesinger will lead the academic procession by virtue of receiving the "Distinguished Faculty Award" at the spring commencement.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Beginning in January, 1985, Morehead State University's Academy of Arts will offer new courses in literary and media arts. The new courses in journalism, creative writing and photography are designed for youth 14 to 18 years old.

Creative writing, with an emphasis on short stories, will be taught by Garry Barker, communications coordinator for MSU's Appalachian Development Center. He has had several short stories published and has written a novel, "Copperhead Summer," which is at press. The class will be taught on Wednesday evenings from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. in the Appalachian Development Center.

Journalism, an introduction to the basic skills and equipment used in newspaper production, will be taught by W. David Brown, associate professor of journalism and advisor to MSU's student newspaper, "The Trail Blazer." The class will be held from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Wednesday in Allie Young 305.

Photography, an introduction to basic photography and darkroom skills, will be taught by David Bartlett, assistant professor of art at MSU. The class will be held in the Claypool-Young Building, Room 302, from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. each Wednesday.

Other course listings include fiber arts, needle arts, creative movement classes for youth, teens and adults and a creative dramatics class for youth.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University will host the 1985 Conference of the Appalachian Writers Association.

Over 200 writers are expected for the June 28-30, 1985, meeting and workshop coordinated by MSU's Appalachian Development Center (ADC) and Department of English.

Garry Barker, ADC communications coordinator, and Dr. Gene O. Young, associate professor of English, will coordinate local arrangements for the writer's gathering. Barker, acting chairman of the 400-member Appalachian Writers Association, also will coordinate formal incorporation of AWA as a non-profit organization.

"We will sponsor the annual conference, a quarterly newsletter, writing competitions, and a series of chap books," said Barker. "Also, we will initiate annual AWA awards to outstanding Appalachian books and authors."

The group's Advisory Board met recently at MSU. Virginia novelist Sharyn McCrumb, program chair for the 1985 conference, reported on plans to bring editors, publishers and authors to Morehead to discuss the group's emphasis on marketing techniques.

"Our members can already write," said McCrumb. "Our focus will be on providing help with publication and promotion."

An AWA "Book Booth," which would travel the region selling members' books, was planned. Berea author Sidney Farr will coordinate the initial effort during the March, 1985, Appalachian Studies Conference in Berea.

FRANKFORT, Ky. --- Additional funding of faculty-staff salaries is the greatest need of Kentucky's public higher education system, Morehead State University President Herb. F. Reinhard recently told a legislative committee.

"We have an outstanding faculty at our institution but we cannot continue to expect them to stay in Kentucky if their salaries are not competitive," Dr. Reinhard stated in an appearance before the Interim Joint Committee on Education.

"At Morehead State, the dedication of the faculty has been our abiding strength in difficult times and we are proud of the quality education our graduates have received," he added. "But we cannot maintain that quality if our best professors go elsewhere."

Dr. Reinhard, who was among three university presidents asked to comment on the future direction of their respective institutions, also called for better coordination of the state's efforts in public education at all levels.

"The citizens of Kentucky need and deserve the best educational system we can develop and that approach starts in pre-school and ends in our universities," Dr. Reinhard said. "Those who would question the wisdom of supporting eight state universities obviously have not read the studies and statistics which show conclusively that, in fact, we need to better support what we already have and to work closer together."

Legislative

Dr. Reinhard, president of MSU since July, said the institution has "great potential" and that he and the administration would cooperate fully with the General Assembly in "providing the financial resources to make a fine university even finer."

"I accepted the presidency of Morehead State University because of my firm conviction that the alumni, faculty, students and citizens of the region are committed to making it into a truly outstanding regional university in every respect," he said.

Dr. Reinhard cited several examples of "positive change" on the Morehead State campus, including adoption of higher admissions standards, establishment of a Faculty Senate, reorganization of the administrative structure which generated $260,000 in savings, improved lines of communication inside and outside the institution, and better maintenance of the physical plant.

Also appearing at the committee session were Murray State University President Kala Stroup and Northern Kentucky University President Leon Boothe.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University's ninth annual Appalachian Celebration will be June 24-29, 1985.

According to Dr. Donald L. Fogus, director of MSU's Appalachian Development Center (ADC), plans are firm for expanding the Celebration into even more of a community event with a more festive gathering of musicians, dancers, craftspeople, and writers.

"We will soon announce a new Advisory Board for the Celebration," said Fogus, "and the entire ADC staff is taking a more active role in planning. New next year will be food booths, antique farm equipment displays, demonstrations of traditional skills such as shingle riving and corn grinding, and the annual conference of the Appalachian Writers Association."

ADC Tourism/Industrial Development Specialist Peter T. McNeill is coordinating much of the new activity, including an evening of gospel music, a puppetry and storytelling session. Also new is an evening of traditional mountain music being planned by Marynell Young.

Other traditional Appalachian Celebration events -- such as the Arts and Crafts Market, art and craft workshops, music and dance workshops, and tours of the region -- will continue. Full details will be announced early next year.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University President Herb. F. Reinhard announced Thursday that Dr. Roberta T. Anderson, senior scholar in residence with the U.S. Department of Education, has been appointed vice president for academic affairs, effective Jan. 28.

Dr. William M. Whitaker, MSU's acting academic vice president, will remain in that position through Jan. 27 and then assume the duties of assistant vice president for academic affairs on Jan. 28.

"We are most fortunate to have attracted an educator with Dr. Anderson's superior background to this important position at the University," Dr. Reinhard said. "In addition to her outstanding personal credentials, she is coming to us from the staff of the U.S. Secretary of Education and has an excellent view of public higher education from the national perspective."

He added:

"We also are pleased that the University will continue to benefit from Dr. Whitaker's strong leadership in the academic community. He has served with distinction in an acting capacity since August and I am pleased that Dr. Anderson has asked him to accept the position of assistant vice president."

Dr. Anderson currently is on leave from the deanship of the School of Education at the University of South Dakota. Previously, she served as vice president for graduate affairs of the National College of Education in Evanston, Ill., and as director of that institution's branch campus in Naperville, Ill.

The new vice president's background also includes service as an assistant county superintendent, principal and teacher in the public schools of Illinois and other midwestern states.

She holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Wisconsin and master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Illinois.

Dr. Anderson accepted the Washington post early in 1984 and her duties include service to the National Institute of Education.

She is the first woman to be named a vice president at MSU in the institution's history and will become the only woman holding a vice presidency at a Kentucky public university.

Dr. Whitaker, a member of the MSU faculty since 1975, was named dean of the School of Business and Economics in 1977 and held that post until being appointed acting vice president last August.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Two of the three speakers at Morehead State University's premier December commencement exercises advised the graduates to heed the immortal words of historical English leader Winston Churchill.

Lynette Kae Greene, the representative of the graduating class, and Robert M. (Mike) Duncan, chairperson of MSU's Board of Regents, exhorted the 383-member graduating class to obey Churchill's famous commencement address: "never, never, never give up."

Parents, friends and relatives of the candidates filled MSU's 1,500-seat Button Auditorium as Greene, Duncan and MSU President Herb. F. Reinhard congratulated the students.

President Reinhard urged the students to try and "reach out and improve the life of another individual in some way" as part of their goals following graduation. He also advised the graduates that they "would always be a representative of their alma mater, and Morehead State will always be a representative of you."

Greene spoke as the student representative by virtue of her 4.0 grade-point average. An elementary education graduate, she is a member of Phi Kappa Phi and Kappa Delta Pi honorary societies. The daughter of Charles and Shirley Greene of Farmers, she addressed the candidates in place of the traditional guest speaker.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- A "Tax Workshop For Farm Businesses" will be held Jan. 17 at Morehead State University.

Offered through the East Kentucky Small Business Development Center (SBDC) of MSU's Appalachian Development Center, the workshop will concentrate on up-to-the-minute information of 1984 farm tax return preparation. Instructor John Osborne, a CPA and assistant professor of accounting at MSU, will provide special attention to computation of depreciation and investment credits.

The workshop will be held Thursday, Jan. 17, from 6 p.m. to 9:30 p.m., in the Adron Doran University Center. A $2 fee covers refreshments and handout materials. There is no registration charge; Osborne and the SBDC program of the U.S. Small Business Administration are presenting the workshop as a public service.

Workshop participants may bring their tax preparers at no extra cost.

The next in a series of SBDC workshops at MSU will be "Managing Your Advertising," set for Feb. 21.

For information contact Robert Justice, SBDC, Appalachian Development Center, Morehead State University, Morehead, KY 40351, or phone (606) 783-2077.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Tom Daley, marketing consultant for the Kentucky Small Business Development Center, will present a "Marketing Basics" workshop Jan. 10 at Morehead State University.

The workshop, designed to aid small business owners and managers, will concentrate on the planning and implementation of a sound marketing strategy. Daley, author of "A Marketing and Sales Primer for Small Business," is employed by the University of Kentucky to provide marketing consultation to Kentucky small businesses. He is a graduate of Xavier University and has worked for the Mead Corporation and General Motors.

The "Marketing Basics" workshop will be Thursday, Jan. 10, from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. in MSU's Adron Doran University Center. A $5 registration fee includes refreshments and a copy of Daley's text.

The workshop is presented by the East Kentucky Small Business Development Center (SBDC), part of MSU's Appalachian Development Center. The statewide SBDC program is sponsored by the U.S. Small Business Administration.

Upcoming workshops at MSU also include a "Tax Workshop for Farm Business" on Jan. 17 and a "Managing Your Advertising" workshop on Feb. 21.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- New short-term job training classes begin Jan. 2 and 7 at Morehead State University.

MSU's Appalachian Development Center and the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) will offer a six-week course in Tourism/Retail Sales; an eight-week Account Clerk/Data Entry class; and an innovative, six-month Pharmacy Technician program. The Pharmacy and Tourism Classes begin Jan. 2, and the Account Clerk program starts Jan. 7.

JTPA classes combine classroom teaching with practical experience. Various Morehead businesses cooperate in providing work experience for students.

The JTPA programs are funded through the TEN-CO Private Industry Council, and are open at no cost to qualified residents of 10 Northeast Kentucky counties. Recent graduates have moved quickly into full-time employment; over 90 percent of the 1984 students are now working.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University's edition of Dr. Cratis Williams' "William H. Vaughan: A Better Man Than I Ever Wanted To Be" has gone into a second printing.

Published by MSU's Appalachian Development Center in June, 1984, the Williams memoir of the man who was president of Morehead State Teachers College from 1940 to 1946 has proven to be of interest to MSU historians and followers of Cratis D. Williams.

Dr. Williams, a Lawrence County native, is now special assistant to the chancellor of Appalachian State University in Boone, N.C. The author of "The Southern Mountaineer in Fact and Fiction," Dr. Williams is regarded as a pioneer in the area of Appalachian Studies Conference in Berea, with a series of presentations coordinated by Dr. James M. Gifford.

Dr. Gifford, assistant director for Appalachian Studies in MSU's Appalachian Development Center, also wrote the introduction to the Williams memoir.

Dr. Williams will return to MSU June 24-29, 1985, to serve as Scholar-In-Residence for the annual Appalachian Celebration.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- There is nothing unusual about students paying their collegiate dues by working part-time. One Morehead State University student, however, has found that paying dues is easiest with a mixture of comedy and magic.

Marcie L. Carr, a Springfield, Ohio, junior, has worked for the past four years as a magician's assistant to her father, Hermann, in the guise of "Mark-O, The Clown."

"Dad and I started Mark-O four years ago after we attended a magic show convention," Marcie said. "Dad thought it would be good for the show. Since then I've performed as Mark-O whenever possible, but especially during school breaks and summers."

"Mark-O likes to joke and cut up...he's always trying to mess up Dad's tricks. He's really just a big kid," she said.

Hermann Carr has worked as a professional magician for more than 35 years. His family-based show features his wife, Marcia, as full-time assistant. Two sons, Clark and Mark, both MSU graduates, are former assistants in the family performances.

The family magic show has toured the country. Marcie recalled a 1978 Easter performance at the White House as one of many career highlights.

"The White House was a lot of fun," she said. "It was everything I thought it would be. Dad had always talked about the family performing there but I just thought he was talking. I'm really glad his dream came true."

(more)

Mark-O The Clown
2-2-2-2-2-2

The Carr family was so impressive they were invited to a White House repeat performance in 1979. While the Washington, D.C., performance is a highlight, Marcie said she most enjoys performing for elderly and handicapped people.

"It really gets to you when you see someone's eyes light up. There is nothing that means any more to me than performing at homes for the handicapped or elderly," she said.

Beneath the costume, makeup and outgoing mannerisms of "Mark-O" is a different person, Marcie said.

"When I'm made up as Mark-O I'm nothing at all like I am in reality. Basically I'm very shy and not outgoing," she said. "When my friends find out what I do back home they just stare--they can't believe the same Marcie they know dresses up as a clown.

"Of course it works the other way too. Whenever I act up at school I can always say 'That's the Mark-O coming out in me.'"

GIVING TIME --- Russell Williamson, center, chairman of the board and president emeritus of Inez Deposit Bank, and Robert M. (Mike) Duncan, president of the bank, recently presented a check for $3,000 to Morehead State University President Herb. F. Reinhard, left. The check represents the bank's gift to MSU for 1984. Duncan is chairman of the MSU Board of Regents. "We are most appreciative of the confidence and support of Mr. Williamson and Mr. Duncan and their associates at the Inez Deposit Bank," Dr. Reinhard said in accepting the gift. Williamson was a member of MSU's first graduating class and is a former alumni president.
