"It's the first time I ever heard a political speech that I wanted to read more," said one of the Democrats who attended the meeting addressed by A. B. Chandler last Thursday. "I could have sat for hours and listened to him. And when it was over, I guess I was like most of the rest of his audience. I wasn't ready to go home, so I stuck around and shook hands with him and watched the rest of his friends. He's my candidate, although I wasn't so sure of it until I heard him speak."

Probably the most interesting side-light on the Chandler meeting was the number of farmers and laboring class of people who visited him both in the afternoon and attended the speaking at night. During the afternoon they flocked to the law office of Hogge and Hogge where Mr. Chandler remained for almost three hours being introduced to his supporters here. When it came time for him to leave, it was at least fifteen minutes before he could make his way out of the room.

He will not soon forget the reception given him by Rowan County. One admirer of the candidate said that he had intended to vote for Mr. Chandler, before, but after he saw his genuine friendly smile and heard him speak he only wished he had two votes to give him.

Hon. Fredrick A. Wallis speaks in Morehead Monday afternoon. While not a supporter of Mr. Wallis, he has a definite following in this county, and we believe that Democrats should attend his meeting and hear his address.

Word comes from Lexington where Mrs. Allie W. Young is resting in the hospital, that she is showing marked improvement and that it is likely that she will not be required to undergo the operation which was at first thought to be necessary.

In the absence of Mr. Clark Lane who was program chairman for the evening, Mr. Robert Bishop very ably introduced the speaker. H. P. Sargent, of Chicago, connected with the Illinois Steel Co. was a guest, H. W. Harrington was admitted to membership in the club. A special guest night program is planned for next week.

College Expects Large Enrollment

With the close of the regular college semester this week, faculty members and students are planning on a short vacation before making up again the work of the summer term which begins on Monday, June 10, according to Dean William H. Vaughan. Following the week of vacation the Morehead State Teachers College will open what bids to be again the largest summer term the college has ever enjoyed.

To a large extent, in fact to a complete extent, it has become the habit of college faculty members here to predict a greatly increased enrollment over the corresponding semester of the preceding year. And it has also come to be recognized that their predictions have never failed to be more than bettered each time. Consequently when we asked Dean Vaughan what the prospects were for the summer enrollment, he stated that he believed it would go over the thousand mark. This he added, would give them an enrollment of about 150 more than last year in the first summer term.

Morehead has been one of the few schools in the state that has never failed to make a gain in enrollment over the previous semester.

Lieutenant Governor States His Case To Constituents: Happy Challenger.

Before a cheering crowd of nearly a thousand friends and supporters, with a handful of scattering opponents, A. B. Chandler, Lieutenant Governor of Kentucky, and one of the outstanding Democratic candidates for the nomination for Governor of Kentucky, opened his campaign in Morehead last Thursday night. Arriving in Morehead from Maxville Thursday afternoon, Governor Chandler held open house at the offices of Hogge and Hogge, greeting a large number of friends and party leaders and discussing the state of politics with them. Mr. Chandler was accompanied by Hon. J. Dan Talbot, State Auditor.

Old timers here said they had never seen a like demonstration staged in local politics. The crowd gathered literally filled the courtroom, packing the court room until there was not even standing room, filled the entrance to the room and extending back to the stair way. To take care of the expected overflow a loud speaker had been connected with the speakers rostrum. A crowd estimated at one hundred and fifty heard the speakers from that point. Cheering was the most spontaneous ever heard in this county. There was no cheering section as such. The audience was in a receptive mood and responded to the speeches as if they were hearing what they wanted to hear. It was practically one continuous round of applause from the time the meeting opened until it was brought to a close.

Governor Chandler was introduced by Dr. T. A. E. Evans of Farmersville, who referred to the fact that the best Governor Kentucky ever had was a young man, Governor J. C. W. Beckham. He said he believed it was time that Kentucky had another young governor, a man who will lead the people who would go into the office to serve the people instead of himself. He said that Happy Chandler was a disciple of Judge Allie W. Young and that he believed he had the welfare of the people at heart.

Governor Chandler in discussing his platform paid high tribute to Judge Young and to the Morehead State Teachers College to which he referred as a memorial to Judge Young which must be maintained and must enjoy continuing growth. Speaking of the college, he swung into his stand on teachers salaries and stated that he was opposed to the idea of bringing the schools and colleges into politics. He took the position that teachers salaries should be maintained at a fair scale at all costs. He said that he was vitally interested in the schools of the state, that he had received his education in the public schools and that he intended when he is elected governor to see that they are justly treated.

He assailed the Sales Tax as an unjust law which put the burden of Government on the backs of those who can least afford to bear it. He stated that he would, if elected governor, repeal the unjust law which

DECORATION DAY

One day in the year is set aside to honor the soldier dead of the United States. Other days are days of celebration, of mirth and fun and riotous glorification. Independence Day, July Fourth is recognized as a day of celebration in the real sense of the word. Thanksgiving Day is just what the name signifies. Armistice Day is a day of commemoration of victory.

But pre-eminently in American life stands Decoration Day. May 30, as a day in which we pay honor to the soldier dead of the nation, the soldier dead of all wars. Originally it was established to honor the dead of the War Between States. Out of it grew the memorial day services that included the veterans of all wars. And gradually it came to be accepted as a day in which to decorate the graves of all the dead, soldier and civilian.

Locally, Decoration Day includes the decoration of family graves in the cemeteries and in many instances family reunions. We wish to call attention to one outstanding fact. That is that there are fewer and fewer of the old Civil War veterans remaining in our midst. So far as we are able to learn there remains but one member of that valiant band of men who offered their lives for their country during that war. That man is Uncle Joe Jamison, who is at present 89 years old.

It is our suggestion that in remembering the dead, it is well not to forget the living. Why not set aside May 30 to remember Uncle Joe Jamison in ways that he will appreciate and thus make Decoration Day, 1935 a day of real cheer to a man who lives in our midst as well as a day of commemoration to the dead?

There are many ways of doing this, which should be left to the imagination of his friends, little tokens that Uncle Joe will like little things he can use, little services of regard for the oldest living veteran of Rowan county.

ROWAN AGAINST THE SALES TAX

The crowd that attended the political speaking held at the court house last Thursday evening attested in no uncertain language the fact that the Sales Tax is unquestionably the major issue in the coming campaign for the nomination for Governor. A. B. Chandler, Lieutenant Governor of the State of Kentucky swept the house into cheering such has never before been heard in a local meeting. He packed the court house and court yard as it has never before been packed. He stirred up enthusiasm that surprised even his friends.

To our mind, he is the outstanding contender in the Democratic party for the position which he seeks. He has the advantage of being the sole standard bearer of the party who is unequivocally opposed to the Sales Tax. His nomination would eliminate the Sales Tax as an issue in the November election, as the Republican candidate is also an opponent of the law.

One of the telling points of Governor Chandler's speech, a point that appealed particularly to students and faculty members of the college as well as teachers, was his exposition of his platform with regard to schools. He explicitly stated that he was opposed to bringing the schools and colleges into politics and that he would see to it, if nominated and elected that the teachers would receive a fair and just salary for their work and that salaries would NOT be reduced.

Another telling point was his statement that he would see that the state highway department absorbed the county road system thus relieving the county tax payers of the burden of road taxation they now bear.

But primarily his campaign issue is the repeal of the Sales Tax, the tax which places the burden of government on the man who can least afford it, the little fellow who pays as high as ten percent tax on every dollar he spends.

It is our opinion that a vote for "Happy" Chandler is a vote for good government, a vote for LOW priced Government, a vote for economical government, a vote for clean government. He has been tried and not been found wanting. He has proved himself to be the friend of the common people of the masses, and that is the kind of a man the voters of Kentucky should nominate on the Democratic ticket in August

Laughing Around the World

Where the Partnership Dissolved

By IRVIN S. COBB

ONE of the oldest stories in the known world—and in my humble judgment one of the best ones as well—Also with three actors—an itinerant conjurer and a twelve sound machine—was the most popular version runs in this wise: It is a hot day in a Mississippi countryside. The conjurer, who is making his way across country foot, is sitting alongside the dusty road, resting. There passes him an ancient negro returning from a fishing expedition. The undertaker has yielded no fish but the dandy is not going home empty-handed. He has captured a fine sea squatter-turtle. He is holding it fast by its long tail, which is stretched tautly over his right shoulder so that the fat underneath of the captive rests against his back. He gives the turtle a shove in his mind of turtle-ooop, turtle-ooop and turtle-ooop. He bids the recumbent stranger a polite good-morning and trudges on. He has gone perhaps twenty feet further when an impish inspiration leaps full-grown into the conjurer's brain. In addition to his other gifts he is by way of being a fair ventriloquist. He throws his voice into the turtle's mouth and speaking in a muddy, guttural tone such as would be suitable to a turtle if a turtle ever indulged in conversation, he says sharply:

"I look here, nigger, where are you taking me?"
The old man freezes in his tracks. He pulls his eyes rearward. There is the look of a vast, growing, startled bewilderment on his face.
"Who—who dat speakin' to me?" he asks falteringly.
"It's me speakin' to you," the turtle seemingly says, "here on your back. I asked you where you were taking me."
The old man "sees the old man, 'I ain't takin' you nowhere—I's leavin' you right here!"

required the poorer class of people to pay into the state treasury as high as ten percent of their income.

He stated his case so clearly and so fairly that his hearers whether they agreed with him or not were impressed with his sincerity.

He assailed the bi-partisan combine which enabled the administration to force over the Sales Tax and defeat the case so clearly and so fairly that his hearers whether they agreed with him or not were impressed with his sincerity.

He said that since 1922 the expenses of state government had increased from a little over $10 million dollars to over 46 million in 1932 and that if the government were reorganized and a strict system of efficiency established the governmental costs could be cut so that there would be little necessity for the sales tax, and what necessity there was would be covered by taxes that would not injure anyone.

He cited figures to show that within ten months of the Sales Tax collection in the state, far from being brought out of debt was already 3 million dollars further in the hole. This he said was due to the fact that so many jobs were created in order to get votes to pass the sales tax that there was little left with which to pay the indebtedness.

Mrs. Chandler referred to Thomas Rhea, administration candidate as "Sales Tax Tom". He failed to mention other Democratic candidates in the race.

the employees of the state to keep quiet and when the time came to vote to vote as they pleased.

Following the speaking, practically the entire audience gathered to shake Governor Chandler's hand and to pledge him their support. The reception lasted until 11:30.

PROTECT YOUR LIFE AND THE LIVES OF OTHERS!

THERE are three questions you should ask yourself about the tires you buy:

- 1-"Will the non-skid tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"
2-"Are they built to give me the greatest blowout protection?"
3-"Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

Answer No. 1-Harvey S. Firestone early realized the value of tire traction and safety and was the first to design an All Rubber Non-Skid Tire.

Firestone does not depend solely on traction and non-skid tests made by its own engineers-it employs a leading University to make impartial tests for non-skid efficiency of its tires and their most recent report shows that Firestone High Speed Tires stop the car 15% quicker than the best of all popular makes of tires.

Answer No. 2-Blowout protection must be built into a tire. Friction and heat within the tire is the greatest cause of blowouts. Firestone protects its tires from friction and heat by a patented process which soaks every cord and insulates every strand with pure liquid rubber. This is an additional process known as Gum-Dipping, by which every 100 pounds of cotton cords absorb eight pounds of rubber. This extra process costs more and is not used in any other make of tire.

Leading race drivers investigate the inbuilt qualities of the tires they use, because their very lives depend upon their tires, and they always select Firestone Tires for their daring speed runs. In fact, Firestone Tires have been on the winning cars in the gruelling Indianapolis 500-mile race for fifteen consecutive years, and they were on the 5,000-pound car that Ab Jenkins drove 3,000 miles in 23 1/2 hours on the hot salt beds at Lake Bonneville, Utah, at an average speed of 127.2 miles per hour, without tire trouble of any kind.

Answer No. 3-Thousands of car owners reporting mileage records of 40,000 to 75,000 miles, is proof of the long mileage and greater economy by equipping with Firestone High Speed Tires. Let these unequalled performance records be your buying guide.

Go to the Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store or Firestone Tire Dealer and let him equip your car with Firestone Tires, the safest and most economical tires built.

Fam And Agriculture News

There is no sharp division between the early garden and the late garden, for they merge. This is the time, however, for beginning to arrange for that part of the garden that is to furnish vegetables for the late fall and for canning and storing for the winter, for now space will begin to appear, in which "succession" vegetables may be put.

For example, the early greens and radishes are done. Rather than let their egged leaves stay to furnish opportunity for the cabbage worms to multiply, they should be removed the rows respaced and a row of beans planted, or, for that matter, since now is the time to save seeds and carrots to store for the winter, either of these. There may be rows of peas now at their prime, or just past. In these, without disturbing them, tomato plants may be set 4 feet apart. When the peas are finally picked, the vines may be removed from around the tomatoes and they will go on to occupy the space.

If it is desired to have pole beans, hills of corn, on stalk each, may be put in rows of peas or, if such, now cutting, and three beans planted about them, later thinned to two stalks. Although this is not quite orthodox gardening, it does solve the bean pole problem. Kentucky Wonders may be used, or if variety is an item, Tall Horticultural. This is a "green-shell" bean, a change from the greenpod sorts as for the corn, although the "roasting ear" sorts, Johnson County, Louisville Market and Hickory King are all very well in their way, sweet corn is better. It is suggested that, for a real treat, Golden Cross Bantam be used.

Bean planting should go on, every two weeks, but during June and the first half of July the rows should be canning surplus is had. For these plantings, Refugee or Thousand and one may be used. Although there are a few strings, the superior flavor and yield of this variety commend it.

The variety of tomatoes to use is Marglobe, for it is resistant to the wilt disease, found in many home gardens. Even though the wilt is not present, Marglobe gives good account of itself, its main fault being that it cracks about the stem, when the season is uneven in moisture, but that is a fault common to most varieties, in unsuitable weather. The best beet to raise for winter storing is Detroit Dark Red. It is capable of producing large shapely roots that stay tender no matter what their size. Their color, deep red and black, add to their desirability.

The best storing carrot is Chantenay, a short, broad shapely root of fine quality and texture, no matter how large it gets. Its color, too, commends it. Early cut hay has a higher feeding value than late-cut hay, and the stock eat it better. Green color and leafiness are desirable qualities. These are obtained by quick curing and proper handling in curing and storing.

Summer Radishes. — As the season grows warmer, the early varieties of radishes, particularly those of white sets, Icelic and Lady Finger should be used from now on.

Summer Lettuce. — Those who wish to continue having lettuce far into the hot weather, should make a sowing of the lettuce now, the seedlings moved into some row will become vacant in the next three weeks. The variety to use is Triomphe.

Bordeaux Mixture. — Used for the use of Bordeaux continues, in fact, it becomes more imperative as the season goes on. Cantaloupes, watermelons and the other "vine crops" are subject to a leaf spot that ultimately destroys the foliage and kills the plants unless some thing is done. To forestall this trouble, all vine crops should be sprayed with 4-4-50 Bordeaux Mixture just as they begin to run, and again in two weeks and two weeks later. Three such sprayings will usually add from two to three weeks to the season of any of the vine crops, but more particularly in the instance of the watermelons and the later varieties of cantaloupes. For these often die before any fruit at all has ripened.

Bordeaux is useful, too, in controlling, or in reducing, the damage fleabeetle inflict on potatoes and tomatoes; with the coming of hot weather, fleabeetles may become numerous enough well to consider. Bordeaux is also a control for leaf spot and rust on beans. Combined with the proper arsenical, the Mexican bean beetle can be controlled at the same time.

In order to assure tomatoes for the late summer and for canning, seed may be sown now, and the plants set in any space that offers, in about a month. Marglobe and Greater Baltimore are both good varieties, the former recommended if there is any likelihood at all of tomato wilt. For really showy tomatoes to eat, Matchless should be chosen. Although the yield of this variety is lower than that of some of the others, its color is exceptionally good, and the fruits are just large enough to can whole.

Increasing farm flock profits by producing big, clean, fertile eggs, is discussed by C. E. Harris, poultry specialist for the University of Kentucky.

Big, uniform eggs sell better than small, irregular ones. They should be clean, which can be arranged by having clean litter on the laying house floor and in the nests. Confine the hens until noon on rainy days, and keep them off the dropping boards during the day.

Most important of all is interior quality. This means infertile eggs in summer. Failure to dispose of roosters at the close of the hatching season costs farmers a vast sum of money. A big rooster consumes as much feed as several hens, at several times the cost, and is worth nothing after his owner is supplied with hatching eggs. Get rid of roosters now; replace them with cockles next year.

After clean, fertile eggs are produced, they must be so handled that they will get to consumers in good condition. Gather eggs often in hot weather. Put them into a basket until the animal heat is gone, and then into cases with the big end up, and store in a cool place. If the flock is small, use half cases that hold 15 dozens. Never store eggs with the big end down, nor on their sides, as this causes the yolk to get out of place and stick to the shell. Keep eggs in the shade when taking them to town, and deliver two or three times a week during summer.

Coffee Rules

YOU'VE read them, dozens of them—lots of rules for making good coffee. But none of the lots is any good if the coffee isn't good which means, among other things, fresh. To make a good cup of coffee out of coffee that isn't fresh to start with is as hopeless a task as the traditional effort to "make a silk purse out of a sow's ear." It just can't be done.

All the Same

As for the rules for making the brew after you have made sure of good fresh coffee, they are all approximately the same. The next step is measuring the amounts of coffee and water carefully with an accurate measuring cup and spoon. You should use two level measuring tablespoons of coffee to each level measuring cup of water. This is the rule no matter what type of coffee-making device you use. Never let coffee boil because that ruins the flavor, and never let it stand more than half an hour if you want the flavor to be perfect.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS THIS story was told to me by Leo Roberts, of Boston, Mass. It happened right there. You know Boston is supposed to be the most cultured and intellectual town outside Oklahag, Oklahoma. (Ever hear of Oklahag? That's where I was born, and the OO is not a misprint they belong there. It's the only town in the world where you have to say OH, OH twice before you start in saying the rest of it. But it's Boston that has made me cultured.) Maybe it was. He don't show it much. A little girl fell out of a window in Boston. I've heard that she had pushed up and called her, "How old are you, girl?" "Well, girl, I'm from Boston so you can't see me."

Nervous, Weak Woman & Soon All Right

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders, of Paragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time until I would have to go to bed. After my first bottle of Cardui, I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt worlds better. I gave Cardui to my daughter who was in about the same condition and she got soon all right." "Hundreds of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU consult a physician."

A Vote For A. B. Chandler FOR GOVERNOR Is A Vote Against The Sales Tax

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Written each week by Rev. B. H. Kazee, Pastor of the Baptist Church,

SUBJECT: The Worship of God. Psalm 100, John 4:20-24, Col. 3: 15-17.

GOLDEN TEXT: "God is a Spirit; and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth," John 4:24.

Comparatively few people in this day know very much about what it is to worship God. Most people do not care about it. However, God asks for worship, and produces in the hearts of His children a desire to do so.

1. The call to Worship.
In the first passage studied the Psalmist calls for worship. He suggests the manner of expression which constitutes worship and calls us to do the doing of it. There are times in our lives when we ought to recognize God with praise and worship. It is the manner in which we express before the world our recognition of God as the giver of all good and perfect gifts; of our dependence upon Him; of our realization that He is the supreme end and answer to our lives; and thus we preach Him to the world as the end of our devotion.

2. The Place and Spirit of Worship.
In the passage in John the question of where we should worship is raised. From it we learn that true worship is not to be confined to any one place. (IV 21). Jesus did not do away with the gathering for worship but He did free us from slavery to any particular place. Wherever human hearts gather in submission to God, there He will be found in their midst to receive their worship. He commanded ceremony and pomp as an expression of worship, and emphasized intelligent understanding of God as the basis of true worship. Added to this He placed sincerity as the key note. No form is worship unless the heart is sincere in pleasing God above every other possession to which it bows. He demands the highest place in all our affections. That alone can make true worship. Thus only regenerate hearts can truly worship.

3. The Program of Worship.
Coming together in the spirit of brotherly love, what form should the worship take? In one body we are called together in peace. Then, verse 16 of the passage in Colossians says, "Let the Word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom"; thus, suggesting the important part of the worship. The coming together is to dwell upon God's Word and find the rich messages it brings. Preaching the Word, if the Word is really what is preached, is a large part of the worship. Then is assigned singing. Psalms and hymns and sacred songs; And these should be the kind of songs and hymns that will teach and admonish each other. There should be some messages in them to teach us and to admonish us to more holy living and spiritual understanding. So often this is not true in our church music. And the singing should be done with Grace in our hearts. Many cannot do this those who are not born again. Again, therefore, true worship is restricted to those who are spiritually taught.

Thanksgiving, prayer, singing, preaching, and whatever else is done or said should be done in the name of the Lord Jesus. For it is He that God wants us to honor and praise—"Worship," says Gordon, "is a word which comes out of the word 'worth.' It really means thinking deep down in your heart how worthy God is; how full of power in making the world so beautiful, and in sustaining life so constantly, even in those who leave Him out; how full of love in giving His only Son to die for our sins, gentle and winning, and motherly. It is blessed to come close to it between times."

ATTORNEYS AT LAW

Kennel Murder Case

BY S. S. VAN DINE

Copyright by W. H. Wright

It eliminates certain possibilities, narrows down certain elements of the murder; and it leads to a specific interpretation of the two crimes—the murder of Archer and the murder of Brisbane.

Forgive me if I cannot follow your esoteric ratiocinations. Perpend, Markham, Vance was generally present. It is highly unlikely—no, to say impossible—that the dog would have followed any one in the front door without being seen. If she had been deliberately admitted, she would probably have not been injured and left behind the portieres. Therefore, in view of the various factors of the situation, I believe the dog entered the house through an open door. And as the murderer would not have left the front door open, we may, as a hypothesis, assume that he entered by the rear door. And this would be in keeping with the nature of the crime. Furthermore, it is not at all unlikely that he would have left both the gate and the rear door open so that he could make his escape without unnecessary noise. If that case the dog could easily have followed him through the open gate and door, without being seen or heard. And the place where the dog was found—just outside the library door—was a logical spot, for the dog was found—just outside the library door—the dog could have come in through the kitchen and dining room and into the library.

Markham nodded slowly. Yes, All that is quite reasonable. But, after all, anyone could have come in the rear door.

Provided he knew the lie of the land, was familiar with all the domestic arrangements—and could have obtained a key. Also, provided he knew that all the servants would be away that night.

Vance looked up thoughtfully. Yes, Markham, already your article Scottie has narrowed down our investigation. Unwittingly she has pointed out several valuable clues to us. She has helped us, no end. And I have a feeling she's going to tell us a lot more.

It was about half past three when we returned to the Coe house. The sergeant was bustling about, giving orders.

"I've got something for you, sir. He swagged a little as he led us into the library and pointed to the poker—and it's got blood on it."

Vance went up to it and examined it closely. He picked up something from it between his thumb and forefinger, and went to the window. Yes, there's dried blood on it, and also a coarse brindle hair. He turned and nodded. It was this poker, Markham, which wounded the scottie. And undoubtedly, too, Archer Coe was struck with this poker. The shape of its blunt end coincides perfectly with the wound on Archer's head.

He frowned and looked at the vase in which he had found the bloodstains.

And, Markham, that poker belongs in this room—in that rack beside the fireplace, just in front of the place on this divan where Archer Coe was sitting when Gamble was shot last night. More evidence that something sinister and horrible preceded the crime upstairs. And it took place in this room.

And, argued Markham, doggedly, Archer Coe's body was found upstairs, with his clothes changed, and the lights on, and the door bolted on the inside.

Yeah, supplemented Heath, and with a gun in his hand and a bullet through his head.

I know all that Sergeant. That's the terrible and baffling thing about the crime. The signposts of death all indicate this library, yet death itself was elsewhere. And there's no clear-cut leading between the two places. By the by, Sergeant, where did you find this poker.

That's one on you, sir. You looked at it this morning and didn't see it. I found the poker in the chest—the teakwood chest beneath the east window? You found the poker in that chest?

That's what I'm trying to tell you.

Vance sat down and drew deeply on his cigarette. Sergeant, since we went to lunch? he asked presently.

No, one, sir! Heath was emphatic. Burke's guessed it every minute while you've been away. The bullet helped him fix the door, but didn't get three feet in the room. And it was me, and no one else, that searched the room.

Natural Pineapple Juice Captures the Cook's Fancy

By Caroline B. King Home Economics and Culinary Authority

AS housewives we women have long used the pineapple in our menu-making. We have used it in its fresh natural state to some extent; but of late have found it more convenient and more satisfactory to serve the very fine canned fruit which comes to us from the sunny fields where it is grown. The flavor of that fruit has been a revelation. Now comes another surprise, and another revelation. It is possible to secure the natural juice, unswayed except for the sweetness developed by the direct rays of the sun as the fruit ripens. Then, try it. The luscious ripeness which is so desirable, but almost unobtainable in any but Hawaiian pineapples. The nutritive value of this juice, rich in minerals and essential vitamins, in the diets of young children and adults, is recognized by the highest authorities in the fields of medicine and dietetics.

A Breakfast Beverage

And how can we improve our menus with this rich, natural, unswayed pineapple juice from the fields of Hawaii? The very best way, for instance, is in an uninteresting affair, just a more pleasurable to the activities of the day. Then, try introducing it with an appetizing fruit juice cocktail, one-third orange, two-thirds natural unswayed pineapple juice and a mere squeeze of lemon. Perhaps you will want to inquire about pineapple griddle cakes, or muffins, which add interest to an often uninteresting meal.

I wish I had time and space to tell you some of the dietetic details that are so delightfully flavored with natural unswayed pineapple juice. And I must just mention a few desserts—the sabacons, which heretofore we have believed could only be undertaken successfully by a chef, the pineapple cream pies, the loes and jellies and all the rest of the tempting things that become ambrosial delights with the addition of pineapple juice.

For Basting Meats.

And meats! Ever think of combining fruit juices with your roasts and chops and chickens? No, not the syrup in which pineapples is packed—that is just a little too cloying. Throughout this little article I refer to unswayed pineapple juice, the kind you can buy so conveniently in cans. As it takes on that appetizing brown which is a mark of perfection, adds up to pineapple juice, best if two or three times, using at least a couple of the juice in all. And of course it goes with baked ham, roast chicken, duckling, and lamb—only is cooking lamb you will like to add a bit of fresh mint, or mint favoring.

As A Sauce Flavor

Sauces of various kinds are given a touch of magic with unswayed pineapple juice, and a pineapple pineapple sauce is no exception. You will like to experiment, too, with fruit punches and various sorts of fritades, for pineapple juice seems to harmonize with every fruit. May emphasize again: Don't make the mistake of combining the syrup from canned pineapple with the natural unswayed juice in all. They are quite different and distinct, both good, but the natural one is cooking lamb you will like to use I have enumerated. Just try it for yourselves!

SPORTS PLURGES

Still at the bottom of the heap, but it is not the fault of the pitching.

Morehead has lost all the games they have played but one this season. And in spite of the record which shows they are not only in the cellar but may stay there, they have played brilliant ball.

In practically every instance the pitcher has not only pitched good ball that should have won, but has pitched top-notch ball. Look up the record and you will find that it shows very few "babe" games in any game off the delivery of Ed or McNabb. Eds held the opponent usually to not over four hits in a game, while McNabb came through his first encounter with two hits recorded against him. In fact, he could not have done better. He failed to issue a walk, and struck out four men, while his opposing pitcher was allowing four hits, three walks and striking out six.

Judging by the record Morehead is the hardluck team of the league as they have played good ball all season.

It seems that the local fans demand a winning team, however, judging by the crowds that attend. They appear to have forgotten that the Clayton aggregation has returned two pennants in as many years, and that on past performances alone they are entitled to the support of the local fans.

The boys are about ready to step into the winning column. They should be due for a break which they certainly have not had through this season. They can't continue the class of ball they have been playing without taking the measure of their opponents part of the time. Fans here can safely get behind them and offer their support, because after all, the support a team gets from the home fans has a lot to do with whether or not the team wins or loses.

This week will be a baseball week with at least two attractions. Today (Thursday) being Decoration Day, has come to be established as a baseball holiday through the nation. Consequently, Morehead being no exception, the Morehead team will covet on the diamond for the entertainment (we hope) of a million, or so fans. At any rate they are entitled to expect a goodly crowd at Jayne Stadium always providing the day is fair and the weather warm.

Sunday will see the locals visit Owingsville where they will attempt to solve the delivery of Feaback, who is again in the livery of the Owingsvillians. Feaback is smarting under the odium of being the only pitcher who has thus far lost to Morehead. He will undoubtedly try to be at his best, and his best is plenty good.

At any rate the Clayton aggregation is not handicapped by lack of financing any more, since the usual thing that backs up sports here got behind them with money, in spite of the loss of last season. You can't run a ball team without support and it takes time to get one started after the support is given. That's one reason there is still the last half of the season to hope for.

The coaching school planned at the college for August with two of the star coaches of the nation in charge, is apparently attracting considerable attention over the state. Already inquiries have begun to come in from high school and college coaches who are making plans to attend and get the benefit of the experiences of these experts. It looks like a big week for Morehead when the school opens.

TRANSY LOSES 10 TO 2 BEFORE COLLEGE NINE

Clayton Leads Onslaught With 3 Hits; Dale Strikes Out Eleven Ramblers.

Staging a battling rampage in the last half of a varsity game here last Wednesday, the Eagles crashed through with two runs in the fifth inning, three in the seventh and five more in the eighth to turn back the Red Ramblers of Transylvania, 10 to 2. Dale, freshman sensation on the mound for the Downing men, was in rare form and led the Ramblers down with four hits and struck out eleven. This was the Eagles' second win in four starts and their second consecutive victory.

Fitzpatrick for Transy, limited the Morehead men to eight hits, but they combined these with seven Transy errors and six walks to garner their ten runs. Clayton led the Eagles at bat with a single, double and a triple out of five times at bat.

Transy led until the fifth when Wyant walked, Clayton was safe at first on an error, and Nolan drove them both in with a double, but from that point on the game was all Morehead's. In the seventh frame, Wyant walked again, Dale reached first on an error, Oxley walked, and Clayton drove them all in with a double. Ryan walked to open the eighth, then Wyant singled, Dale was safe on an error, Clayton tripled, to drive in Ryan, Wyant, and Dale. Nolan tripled scoring Clayton and Oxley singled to send Nolan home. The Ramblers scored one run in the first inning on a triple and an error and the other in the eighth on an error and two singles.

Ex-Colonel Achieves Victory Over Purdue

A. N. McMILLIN

Camp's Selection For '21 All-American Draws Indiana From Big Ten Cellar.

A. N. (Bo) McMillin, above, Walter Camp's selection for quarterback on the 1921 All-American team, has consented to conduct classes in football in Morehead's coaching school in August. Coach McMillin is now head coach at the University of Indiana.

McMillin is best known for his feats on the gridiron while playing with Centre College's famous "Fraying Colonels" in the early '20s. In 1921, the mighty Harvard team was beaten by the Danville eleven, 6 to 0, in one of the biggest upsets in football history. This past year McMillin raised Indiana from the Western Conference cellar by sinking the powerful Purdue Boilermakers, 19 to 8, "in the most astonishing upset" in Big Ten history.

For several years before going to the Hoosier State, he coached the Kansas Aggies to several championships in the Big Six.

McNabb Pitches Stellar Ball But Loses Game 1 To 0 When Error And Hit Combine For Run

Allows Two Hits No Passes But Fatal Error Loses

Tight Game.

Edgar McNabb, former Morehead Teachers College star pitcher opened his season with Morehead Sunday in their game against Maysville, and, while pitching brilliant ball, his teammates lost the decision to Maysville, 1 to 0. The game was a heartbreaker, with Mac dishing up one of the best pitching exhibitions he has ever offered. He allowed only two hits, struck out four men and failed to issue a walk. Yet a on first in the eighth, a bad decision by a team mate put a man in position gave him second and a hit brought him home to cinch the game for Maysville.

McNabb is slated to work with the locals the rest of the season. The following is the story of the game as it appeared in the Maysville Independent.

Elongating their string of wins to four, the Maysville Baby Bears trounced Morehead yesterday 1 to 0 in an interesting ball game played at Forest Avenue Park.

The novelty of a completely sunny Sunday proved to be of little avail in attracting a crowd, most fans journeying to Cincinnati to see the King of Swat play against the Reds. Next Sunday's doubleheader at Vanceburg and the Memorial Day game here with Paris Thursday are expected to be different stories.

Brooksville Drops Game To Flanders

The seventh was fatal for Brooksville in the game with Flemingsburg on the Fleming diamond. With the score one run each after six exciting innings, the Braves continued wend and allowed their opponents to collect five more to add to one made in the first. They managed to get one run in the eighth, but even that left them at the short end of a 6 to 2 tally.

Both teams made one error, and each pitcher—Wilson for Brooksville and Kit Stumbo—allowed seven hits. The former struck out four men and walked one and the latter fanned eight and walked three. Hinges was on the receiving end for Brooksville and another of the seven Stumbos for Flemingsburg.

The Maysville-Morehead tilt yesterday was a pitchers' battle. Keatley of the Bruins allowed four hits, two of them scratch hits, struck out six batters and gave three bases on balls. McNabb, Rowan county moundsman, allowed two hits, struck out four and didn't walk a man.

Maysville's lone run and the only one of the game came in the eighth inning when Hubbard stole second and scored on Rowan's double to center field after hitting a grounder and making first on D. Carter's error.

Vanceburg, with whom Maysville shares the lead in the Kentucky State league, won over Paris 2-1 at Vanceburg before a larger crowd of fans than the one which saw the Bears whip Morehead.

Steidel, Vanceburg pitcher, allowed seven hits and struck out nine, while Terry, Paris moundsman, allowed two hits and struck out seven. Cooper was behind the bat for the Lewis county team and Thompson for Paris.

The game was played in an hour and a quarter.
