Department Heads Picked By Bishop To Serve At Fair

Plans for a more complete 1937 School and Agricultural Fair were laid at a meeting of the Fair Association held Friday, September 14 and 25, at the dates set for this year's fair.

The initial plans call for entertainment during the two days, including a band concert, fireworks, balloon ascension and a flower show.

Many New Attractions To Be Offered; Dates Are Set For This Year's Meet

A flower department was added to this year's program. A chairman for this has not been appointed, but will be named within the next few days.

Robert Bishop, President of the Fair Association, appointed the following heads of departments: School, Roy Corneille; Agricultural, C. L. Goff; Athletics, Roy Holbrook; Home, Mrs. W. L. Cappin; Music, Mrs. M. C. Lippin; and Mrs. Corneille and Mr. Goff have served on the fair association for many years, their chief being in the hands of the two most important parts of the fair—said to be out-lined in the major portion of the work towards the successful presentation of the fair. Roy Holbrook has been head of the athletics department several times; Mr. Layne was vice-president last year, while Mrs. Lippin has in the past been actively identified with the group.

KENTUCKY'S NEW REFORMATORY

Governor Chandler comes forward this week with the plans for the new state penitentiary. A careful study of these plans indicate, even to the average layman, that the Governor is really in earnest in his drive toward better penal and charitable institutions for Kentucky.

For decades Kentucky Governors have been promoting the very thing that Governor Chandler is on the verge of doing. Yet during those years our Chief Executives have always found some reason for not constructing those buildings and placing in Kentucky a modern program.

Although differing with the Governor on many of his proposals, it is our sincere desire to see him carry out his plan for the penal and eleemosynary institutions. We believe that he has the interest of the people at heart, especially those persons who are wards of the state.

Commenting in Sunday's Courier-Journal, Howard Henderson, Frankfort's correspondent for that newspaper, explains that the plan for the reformatory call for segregating prisoners so that first offenders are not placed with seasoned criminals and emerge with "diplomas in crime." Sanitation is to be practiced instead of ignored; education is to have a distinct part within the walls and recreation is to become a part of the convict's life unless he or she is a hardened criminal.

The idea is not to make life a heaven within the penitentiary for the convicts, but to reform them so that they may become useful citizens.

When the cornerstone is laid for the new prison and for other institutions in Kentucky, which year after year the Governor's program calls for, it should be a gala day for Kentuckians, marking progress for the Grand Old Commonwealth—progress that has been promised but never accomplished during the tenure of many a Governor.

On this piece of work we congratulate the Administration.

PERPETUATING THE MEMORY OF OUR GOOD CITIZENS

Within a few weeks the Independent plans to start a weekly series of articles of the life, accomplishments and hobbies of leading business, professional and civic men of Morehead and Rowan County. At the conclusion of the series, which will last perhaps a year, the Independent is furnishing a bound book dealing with these individuals who have made Morehead and Rowan County what it is today.

The persons who will make up this series of interesting articles have all done much toward the advancement and betterment of our community. They are the people who have had visions and successfully executed in actual life their dreams. There is a lifetime of good citizenship—many years of progressive achievement.

What this newspaper will do toward perpetuating their memory is small in itself, but for many years to come their names and pictures will look forth from the printed page, thereon inscribed the sincere tribute—here is a worthwhile Rowan Countian.

PITY THE POOR CONGRESS

Since a Washington summer can be as hot as Death Valley, we may hardly recognize our Senators and Congressmen when next we see them. The responsibility of "sweltering" through the mass of bills which President Roosevelt will prefer to be enacted at this session indicates that all of them will be pounds thinner and much more sere and gray ere the Congress is adjourned.

The biggest obstacle, of course, is the President's proposal for the reorganization of the Supreme Court. The measure seems hopelessly deadlocked in view of the threat of bitter-end oppositionists to filibuster any compromise suggestion to the point of physical exhaustion. Apparently, the shades of Huey Long are to be recalled.

Among the maze of legislation to come up this week is the farm tenancy bill to help tenants become farm owners. A sub-committee of the Senate committee on Agriculture plans some modification of the original measure.

The Senate plans to put aside debate on the court bill until it has agreed upon relief appropriations, the amount of which will be estimated in a sub-committee's recommendation.

Amid this welter, the House made two provisions for considering a two-year extension of FWA, while last Thursday an extension of the "nuisance" taxes was weighed.

Congress has a tremendous budget, with each legislation of such vital importance and involving in many instances vast expenditures, that we who so often wonder why "seemingly nothing ever gets done," should remember that our representatives in both houses must go slowly if we are not to reap the foily of wasteful haste. In the meantime, they have our sympathy which arises from a deep sense that we in this country are neither a senator or congressman.—Maysville Independent.

MOVING THE PEAR SURPLUS

The large surplus of pears hanging over the canned fruit market, much to the distress of growers in a number of states, particularly along the Pacific Coast where production is largest, is being rapidly reduced by cooperation between producers and organized large-scale retail stores.

Need for the drive is vividly found in the statistics. The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce reports that on January 1 of this year the carry over of canned pears in the United States was 40 per cent larger than on the same date in 1936. The Canning League of California reported the state's carry over as being 50 per cent. Consequently was steadily sagging prices. Growers faced a disastrous loss unless the surplus could be moved before the new crop matures in July and August.

Ten thousand growers in California, Oregon and Washington, acting through their cooperative organizations, formed a committee and asked the National Association for assistance. They immediately responded, planned a complete promotion, display and advertising campaign, and thus the present successful drive was born. Canned pears stores opened their drives on the same date. Preliminary figures show a tremendous increase in buying throughout the country.

Stores have worked with producers of other farm crops to move surpluses in this manner many times before, and these campaigns are now an established phase of chain operation. It has been reported that organizers of independent stores plan to aid agriculture in a similar manner. This cooperation marks a new era in producer-distributor-consumer relationship, and promises to be of major significance not only in benefiting agriculture, but in serving the consumer with first-class goods at fair prices.

DEATH IS PERMANENT

The destruction of the Hindenburg has once again brought before the eyes and minds of the world the lesson of sudden, uncontrollable fire. Millions of persons reading the news accounts and viewing the haunting photographs of the doomed airship and its victims have been gripped by a shudder of horror. Not so long ago the New London school disaster resulted in a similar mass-reaction.

The unfortunate part of it all is that these lessons are so quickly forgotten, and that a large part of the public virtually refuses to adopt safety measures. The ubiquitous exploding sock of a child's hand, the flaming cigarette, the match, the gas stove, the kerosene and gasoline are well in the fore as a producer of fatal burns, and as a destroyer of property.

Death by fire is just as painful and horrifying whether it occurs in a home or in a spectacular public place. Think of this before you throw kerosene on a blazing fire. Remember, death is a permanent proposition, and no amount of money will bring back life to a charred body.

NO "BOOMS" TODAY, THANK YOU

Thirty days without a traffic fatality! That is a record of which San Diego, California, may justly be proud. It is the result of an aggressive safety campaign initiated by local officials who had become alarmed by the staggering number of traffic deaths occurring within their city.

To fully illustrate the impressive results obtained, the safety committee of the local post of the American Legion prepared a chart closely resembling an ordinary index of business activity. The traffic death rate before the drive was represented by a diagonal line, reaching its peak in the upper right hand corner of the chart, darkly hinting at a breathtaking and horrifying "boom" in the "death business." Reduced to figures this line meant that on the average, one person was killed every three and eight-tenths days—a decrease of almost 80 per cent.

Success of the safety campaign was attributed to the fact that the police "cracked down" and the courts backed them up by handling cases efficiently and impartially. Too, San Diego's leading newspapers aroused in the public a spirit of white-hot cooperation, with a steady stream of constructive and helpful publicity.

San Diego's firm record conclusively proves that safety campaigns, seriously undertaken, can accomplish surprisingly effective results in a community.

It is a fact that the tens of thousands of farmers belonging to the well established marketing cooperatives have gone for years unorganized. Farmers in the last decade. Such cooperatives provide what individual farmers lack—mass bargaining power, equal in size and strength to that of wholesalers and distributors. They place the farmer on an even footing with those to whom he sells. This has been one of the most encouraging phases of agricultural development in recent years.

Production and consumption of margarine in Belgium during the past few years with production during the past 15 years registering an advance of approximately 400 per cent.

South Africa purchased 40 per cent more office equipment from foreign sources in 1936 than in 1935 and prospects for greater increases for the present year are considered good. About 65 per cent of the value of the typewriters imported is credited to American firms while sales of German products increased by 500 per cent.

Some observers think Chinese growers will plant a 10 per cent increase in acreage to Flue-Cured tobacco, with the purpose of growing a crop of 200,000,000 pounds; however it is difficult to predict the coming acreage. The leaf tobacco import trade of Switzerland, in general, during recent years has shown a downward trend, and with it imports of leaf tobacco from the United States since 1930 has decreased 29.5 per cent.

Prehistoric Man Discussed By Prof.

very young child. The authors call attention to the fact that no graves were found anywhere near the shelter, and that in no other rock shelters of the same region have the remains of an undoubtedly male, which had been buried in the flesh, been discovered, although large numbers of skeletons of females have been discovered. On the other hand, cremations have been discovered in association with artifacts commonly used by men, which has led to the advancement by Professors Webb and Funkhouser of the interesting theory that it may have been the usual practice among these tribes of prehistoric man to cremate the men and bury the women and children in the flesh.

In attempting to evaluate the archaeological evidence obtained from rock shelters of eastern Kentucky, the authors were unable to relate this people to any other prehistoric group within the state. Since the material from all shelters was remarkably consistent, it seems reasonable to the authors to regard these dwellers in rock shelters as a distinct prehistoric group, having a well-defined culture complex easily distinguished from those of other areas in the state.

So far, no criteria have been discovered by which the age of this occupancy can be calculated. According to Dr. Volney H. Jones, University of Michigan, to whom the vegetable remains were sent for examination, and who contributed a section to the report, the shelter is one of the oldest in Kentucky. He notes the great similarity of the material to that from the Ozark bluff-dwellings, and is tempted to place its origin in the pre-patril transition about 4,000 years ago. He admits, however, that evidence leading to such a belief is not conclusive.

Senate Judiciary Reports On Bill

elderly justices could be augmented or replaced at the rate of one a year. Opponents, however, declared they would filibuster against any modified proposal.

Submission of the committee's report made it possible to call up the bill for debate at any time, but leaders gave no indication when they might do so. They were expected to wait at least until the Senate passes the relief bill.

The eight members of the judiciary committee who voted for the bill did not submit a minority report.

Those who signed the majority report were King, Utah; McCarran, Nevada; Van Nuys, Indiana; Hatch, New Mexico; Burke, Nebraska; Connally, Texas; O'Mahoney, Wyoming; all Democrats; Borah, Idaho; Austin, Vermont; and Steiwer, Oregon, Republicans. Those who voted to report the bill favorably were Neely, West Virginia; Logan, Kentucky; Dietrich, Illinois; McGill, Kansas; Pittman, Nevada; Hughes, Delaware; and Ashurst, Arizona, all Democrats; and Norris, Nebraska, Independent.

Senator Hatch, although he signed the majority report said in a separate statement that the arguments were against the bill in its present form.

"It has been my thought," he said, "that these can be met by proper amendments to the bill; that with sufficient safeguards it can be made a constructive piece of legislation."

Never before has a Roosevelt bill come from committee with such a denunciation as the committee's report. It was prepared chiefly by three Democrats—King, McCarran and O'Mahoney.

Wally Warfield and Edward Are Wed

Famous Couple Joined in Marriage By Member Of Angelican Church

Edward of England and blue-eyed, American born Wally Warfield were married last week in the ancient and turreted Chateau De Candé in the pastoral village of St. Francis, and with a wistful plea for privacy to work out their own happiness departed for a honeymoon in Australia.

Two simple services united the couple, whose romance roused Britain's mighty empire to grave debate over the effects of constitutional monarchs and led Edward to quit the throne of his father because he could not have the ransom money for the United States for an exhibit at the 1939 Golden Gate International Exhibition.

The wifely, "poor man's parson" of the Church of St. George, England's opposition to remarriage by the twice-divorced Mrs. Warfield, read the religious services for the Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, vicar of St. Paul's church, Darlington, England.

The civil service began at 11:42 a. m. and at 11:47 Mr. Warfield had become the Duke of Windsor. The religious service in the chateau music room before 38 persons was given by the vicar with the reluctant blessing of England's church by the Rev. Anderson Jardine, who solemnly proclaimed:

"Those whom God has joined together, let no man put asunder... I pronounce that they be man and wife together; in the name of the father, and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost."

Then the excited Duke and his slender, vivacious bride turned to receive the Gospel of their friends. To be toasted in champagne, and to address to "the public" their hope that the days in which they have been compelled to live in the trying spotlight of world attention—as they have lived since the abdication crisis—be at an end.

They were to begin their life together and their search for happiness as private citizens in the "Fairly Quiet" town of Windsor, in Austria, where the Duke visited before coming to Canada to claim his beloved.

British royalty was absent from the wedding of the man who was Britain's King and India's Emperor. The governor general of Britain had withheld official recognition of the union.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain maintained strict official silence when a laborite member asked in the House of Commons if congratulations would be extended to the newlyweds.

Reds Prepare For Long Home Stands

Club Hopes To Better Stand- ing After Getting Off To Dismal Start

A wave of optimism is sweeping through the Cincinnati Reds' battefront, notwithstanding the club's early season slump. The Reds thought they were pretty badly off until they peeked into the records and discovered that their 1936 machine, which ended in fifth place, also was off to a poor start.

The 1936 condition was relieved by a sensational ninth of June, in which the club won 17 of the 24 ball games played and swung into July on the heels of the league leaders. On June 30 the team won in third place, after winning a doubleheader from the St. Louis Cardinals, but shortly thereafter the pace cooled and they dropped to fifth, where they finished.

If the 1936 team could recover its balance so late in the year there is no reason why the 1937 club cannot atone for some of its earlier season lapses, reason Charley Dressen said last night. They are anticipating better things when they return to their "home diamond" Tuesday, June 15, to start their second long home stand.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, arch

foes of the Reds, will provide the opposition on that occasion, also on the following night, which will be the second national contest of the schedule. This night game will be marked by a most complete fireworks display than previously produced, and an added touch of entertainment will be injected by the Franklin, Ohio, High School band. The Reds will also have their own band concert, so the event might take along the aspect of a battle of music.

The New York Giants, champions of the National League, will follow the Dodgers in here on Friday, Saturday and Sunday engagements, whereupon the Phillies will breeze in for the games on June 22, 23 and 24. The Sunday game against New York will be Italian-American Day, on which Ernie Lombardi and Les Scarcella will be honored.

Hunt For Tailed Men; Trio Seek Aborigines

On a dangerous hunt for tailed men, who Chinese legends claim, exist among fierce tribes on the island of Hainan, three young Americans were en route from San Francisco this week on National Geographic expedition which will penetrate the interior of the mysterious island, never before explored. The exploration, en route to the Orient on the Norwegian ship Corvenia, are Leonard Clark, of San Francisco, and Jack Smith, Burlington, and Leck Munroe, New York.

Whether or not they will find the legendary tailed men, who are supposed to exist south of the "Mountains of the Red Mist," on Hainan, Clark will arrange to bring an entire village of the Hainan aborigines known as Loi, of which there are several tribes on the island, back to the United States for an exhibit at the 1939 Golden Gate International Exhibition.

Clark, heading the expedition, which is also sponsored by the American Museum of Natural History, explained that the island of Hainan is owned by China and is about 14,000 square miles in area, and "wilder than Formosa ever was," he said.

"So wild in fact, that the Chinese people have not bothered to investigate the interior of the island," he said.

The expedition will map the interior of the island for the first time, locating the major peaks and headwaters of the rivers, and will learn for the first time the customs and religion of the Loi aborigines, who are of pre-Malay stock and supposed to be related to the Igorotes of the Philippines.

Munroe has been commissioned by Melvina Hoffman, noted sculptress, to record the aboriginal music of the Loi tribes.

PLAN MEETINGS TO HELP POULTRY MEN

Kentucky's twenty million dollar poultry industry will be given a push at the 13th annual poultry short course to be held July 2. Five days of intensive and practical training will be offered for the benefit of farmers, poultrymen and hatchery operators.

Those attending will hear talks, and then try their hand at culling, judging, selection of breeding stock, feeding, control of diseases and parasites, bloodtesting, and the like. Lectures also will be given on housing and house construction, equipment, brooding, marketing and other subjects of interest in the development of the industry.

To assist the faculty of the Kentucky college there will be brought to the state for the course three noted poultry experts—Dr. F. D. Beagette of the New Jersey Experiment Station, foremost authority on poultry diseases; J. D. Sykes, extension poultryman of Mississippi State College, a successful southern poultry raiser, and Paul Zumbo, Washington, coordinator in the National Poultry Plan.

The meetings will be open to men and women. Sessions will be held in the livestock judging pavilion on the Agricultural Experiment Station farm at Lexington.

LACK OF EROSION DOUBLES INCOMES

Farmers make twice as much money on land where there is little erosion as they do on land that is badly washed, according to a study made by the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture of 58 Logan county farms.

The average income from the 58 farms was $855. On the 17 least eroded farms, however, the income averaged $1,226, and on the 17 most eroded farms the income averaged $552.

The good land produced more tobacco to the acre, and also weed of better quality, than was grown on the badly washed farms. Income from dark-fired tobacco was about $50 more an acre on the good farms.

Complete maps were made showing soil type, amount of erosion and degree of slope on each farm. Information was also obtained on crop yields, livestock, receipts and expenses.

Claude Young, a Bath County farmer, reports that eight acres of crimson clover pastured 20 hogs all winter and seven cows during the month of April. A heavy growth was then turned under in preparation for corn growing.

clothing was hung behind the bar. Each purchase entitled the buyer to a chance on the "baby."
Residents in the vicinity were aroused by the thought that a baby was to be given away. Parber's telephone began to ring as protests were entered.
Parber requested Lieutenant Edward Beebe to investigate, and then decided to investigate personally. Lieutenant Beebe reached the cafe first.
"What does that sign mean," Lieutenant Beebe inquired.
"Just what it says, the bartender on duty answered."
"After questioning Lieutenant Beebe informed the bartender that he should remove the sign until further investigation.
"Parber when he reached the cafe, made the same inquiry. "What does that sign mean?"
"Just what it says," the bartender again answered.
"What is this, a hoax? Do you mean a human baby?" Parber inquired. Again he referred to the sign.
"Parber then proceeded to make it clear that there would be no human baby given away."
"Giving away of babies in this county is my job," Parber informed the bartender, pointing out that if there was any human baby involved there would be trouble in store for those participating.
"It was then developed that the 'baby' in question was to be a young pig. The infant's clothing that was displayed merely was a stage setting to add to the interest."
Marl is being obtained from 28 beds in Hardin county. A large number of lime stacks also are being burned.

Record For Honesty And Efficiency Pointed Out In Announcement Of Dave C. Caubill,
Of Morehead, For Rowan County Judge

TO THE VOTERS OF ROWAN COUNTY:
For sometime I have been debating the advisability of entering the race for the Democratic nomination for county judge. Until today, I had decided not to make this race, but a large number of my friends from all sections of the county have urged me to become a candidate for this office, and I take this news in announcing to the voters of Rowan County that I am now a candidate for County Judge on the Democratic ticket.
I believe that the majority of voters in Rowan County are personally acquainted with me and can judge for themselves whether I am competent, qualified and honest. I was born and raised in Rowan County and have spent practically my entire life here. For 29 years I have been Cashier and President of the Peoples Bank of Morehead, in which capacity I have had the opportunity to do business with most of the people of this county.
I ask that you give my candidacy your consideration and between now and the August 7 primary I hope that I will see each of you personally.
My only platform is clean and economical government for Rowan County. My experience as your county treasurer and in several other positions of trust, I believe, makes me qualified and experienced to protect the people's money and interests.

—Adv. DAVE C. CAUBILL.
Morehead --
-- This Week

ADMINISTRATION: It is a fairly safe conjecture this week that Z. Taylor Young will get the support of the State Administration in his campaign for Representative from Rowan and Bath Counties. Certainly, it appears that the worst of the son of the late Senator Allie Young, could secure from the State Government at Frankfort, is an even break in the forthcoming election.
In his address at the Morehead State Teachers College Thursday the Governor praised the late Senator Young in high terms, declaring that "most of the credit for the advancement of education in Eastern Kentucky belongs to him."
J. Dan Tabbutt, who spoke here last month, was one of Judge Young's closest friends. In the address he delivered an eulogy on Judge Young. Mr. Tabbutt, chairman of the Finance Commission, without question the most important office at Frankfort, outside the Governorship, has often been classified as the "man behind the administration's political maneuvers."
However, Lonnie Flannery, another candidate for Representative, has already publicly announced that if nominated and elected I shall support the Governor.
Lyle C. Tackett, another Democratic aspirant for Representative, is an anti-administration candidate, having opposed Governor Chandler in the gubernatorial race.

CULTIVATION
At the risk of appearing to prophesy gloom, but because it has happened in past seasons, dare the writer suggest that raising may become more scarce as the summer advances? This being likely, may not be amiss to wait toward plans for saving the soil moisture there is, through proper cultivation.
The most beneficial feature of cultivation is that weeds are prevented from robbing the garden vegetable of moisture and of plant food. The earlier the weeds are stopped, the better; that is to say, while they are still small. At that time, their roots lie close to the surface, and very little effort is needed to remove them.
Time was when no gardener felt he had "worked" his garden properly unless it looked so, cut with deep gashes, "to give the roots air." If there was supporting evidence of weeds laid bare, or handfuls of roots on the plow-points, so much the better. Such treatment, it was supposed, imparted fertility to the vegetable in that they were thus forced to recover. Although recovery was made in the event of a rain followed, always there was interruption until the roots could take hold again; in dry weather some-time catastrophic resulted.
In the past few years, experiment stations have been giving their attention to finding out just what cultivation was, and what it could do, and their findings are briefly this, that when weeds are removed without in any wise disturbing the soil in which they stand, maximum crops result. The "cultivators" in the experiments were razor blades, and the weeds were shaved off just at the ground line.
Although razor blades are in no sense cultivating tools farmers or gardeners would use, the principle is applied in horse drawn sweeps or in the best-knife attached to a wheel-hoe pushed by the gardener. The blades are tipped forward, so that when these tools are moved, the top half-inch of soil is penetrated, the small weeds lifted out, and those that go deeper, cut off. A hand hoe may achieve the same end.
This operation requires minimum effort, in contrast to deep "working" or chopping, both of which are real labor. Also, no interruption occurs in the growing of vegetables, whose roots, lying at from 2 to 4 inches beneath the soil surface, are permitted to continue gathering moisture and plant food so essential. Furthermore, because these tools leave the soil surface level and make no ridges through which extra surface is offered to evaporation, upper soil moisture is conserved, and because the water level is not dropped below root level because of borrowing soil from the middles to make the ridges, deeper moisture is kept available to the plants.
This sort of cultivation will not benefit much those soils that incline to "run together," but neither will deeper working. The remedy for this condition is to raise the humus supply, and to use more thoroughness in preparing the garden for planting. The fact remains, though, that even in such a situation, shallow stirring is best, and certainly always, in a garden otherwise so conducted that maximum crops may be expected.
Up to now the dry weather benefits of cultivation have been stressed; paradoxically, the same remedy may be brought forward, should moisture be present in ideal amount. Always, level, shallow cultivation is best.

To look at the pitching records is to realize that Lee has been consistently effective. He has allowed only 100 hits in 100 innings, and has fanned twice as many men as he has walked.

Grissom came out of the California hills in 1934 to join the Buckley Club of the Mid Atlantic League. He was signed to his first contract by Professor Charles E. Chapman of the University of California. He pointed the Reds near the end of last season, and next spring was optioned to Fort Worth. There he won 13 and lost 13, also pitching and winning a doubleheader against Houston. He was brought up to the Reds again, where he won one and lost one.

In 1936 he was counted on for a regular berth, but his illness overtook him, and after winning one and losing one, he was shipped to Nashville. He won four and lost one there before quitting for the season.

This spring he reported to the Reds' camp full of health and amiable. He has proceeded to do all the things expected of him, and then some. It was apparent at the first that Grissom is a pitcher. Grissom's first notoriety was achieved through his fighting activities, rather than his pitching feats. He was in three flat fights during the training season, then, in his first game after the start of the schedule, he engaged in a battle with Al Todd of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Notwithstanding all of this, Lee is not a hard fellow to know and like. He's a big boy who doesn't know the meaning of the word "fight." When some toughie happens to him he takes it lightly. It was Grissom who rowed a boat over the centerfield fence at Cresley Field in Cincinnati during the flood. During that flood he met and won the present Mrs. Grissom. The wedding took place the night of the opening of the National League season.

The southpaw was born at Sherman, Texas, on October 23, 1912, of German and Irish parents. His family later moved to Los Molinos, California, where parents, rhapsomaniacs, found him is 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 195 pounds, and has brown eyes and brown hair. He is a switch hitter.

Treasury Starts Drive To Stop Leaks Uncle Sam plugs Treasury bill Congress at all demand of President Roosevelt is preparing a hot seat for the tax dodger. The increasing drain of expense on receipts has every agency of the government working overtime seeking ways and means to prevent the escape of any revenue that rightfully should go into the Treasury.

Behind the benches against the government's battle-cry against those who would try to evade their just obligations is a little publicizer but even more dramatic campaign against a racket born of the depression. Behind the doors of Secretary Morgenthau's counting house a little group of men is relentlessly hunting down the crooks who deal in "runaway gold." The colorful details of that undercover campaign against hoarders and "high-graders" are described in the current issue of The Saturday Evening Post.

The trouble all began three years ago with the passing of the Gold Reserve Act of 1934 which has since been extended to June 30, 1939. Under this law, it is a crime to have gold coin or amalgam unless the holder has a license or an exemption. In other words, the possession of raw gold today places the ordinary citizen in the same position he was in a few years ago when he had a few bottles of raw whiskey in the cellar. The chances are he won't be caught but actually he is a lawbreaker. The government, after $250,000,000, a cool quarter of a billion, but so far has not been exchanged for nice, new crisp pieces of paper. The job of bringing in that sum belongs to Frank Wilson, Chief of the Treasury's Secret Service. Mr. Wilson does not often read about himself in the papers. He is not likely to be seen with gun in hand, stalking a public rat. He's a book-keeper detective who follows figures and finds that they seldom lie. Al Capone is chewing his nails in lonely Alcatraz because Chief Wilson knows how to add two and two on a phony balance sheet. You may also recall that the trail of figures that led Bruno Richard Hauptmann to the electric chair was the work of Mr. Wilson.

The little fellow who hides away a twenty dollar gold piece or two has little to fear from the agents of the Treasury Department. They are training the big shot hijackers of gold. The Secret Service knows that the criminal master mind is not just a detective story creation. The agents are on the heels of master minds, the higher ups in such incredible thefts as that of $600,000 by William Randolph Hearst's famous Homestake richest single gold mine in the world. The newspaper publisher's elaborate hole in the ground has brought more than three hundred million dollars worth of gold, net, into the coffers of the Hearst family. Chief Wilson's sleuths have never recovered Mr. Hearst's gold. They broke the ring that perpetrated the crime but the man or men behind the scenes slipped out of the trap.

'Uncle Henry' Plays Leading Role Tonight

'Outcast' Is Title Of Film At Cozy

Two hundred people in a mob can be as ominously effective on the screen as 1,500 or 2,000.

It may sound impossible but Director Robert Florey, famed among other things for the way which he conveys drama to the screen, proves it in "Outcast," a gripping drama with Warren William, Karen Morley and Lewis Stone, which begins on Sunday at the Cozy Theatre.

"It's not the size of the mob bent on violence that counts," says

Director Florey. "It's the amount of effective action and movement such a crowd shows."

A climactic scene in "Outcast" called for a rural mob to seize five Kentuckian mountaineers, planned to give tired housewives a breathing spell, a few days of relief from hot kitchens, monotonous home routine, children and husbands.

Samuel Clemens Story Is Coming

The Prince and the Pauper Will Be Shown at College Friday

For Friday, June 18th, the College brings one of the greatest reproductions in screen history in the immortal story by Samuel Clemens (Mark Twain) entitled "The Prince and the Pauper."

Featuring Errol Flynn, Claude Rains and Henry Stephenson this great story of a poor boy who exchanged places with the prince is a fascinating plot for young and old. The experience of a poor boy confused by the pomp and richness of the court life and of the prince who wanders helplessly through the poverty and rough life of the common people, thus giving the rich a taste of want and the poor a taste of riches, never fails to interest any type of audience.

The college is glad to announce that definite arrangements have now been made to secure Janet Gaynor and Frederic March in "A Star Is Born." In this picture Gaynor and March are supported by Adolphe Menjou, May Rob-

HUSBANDS, CHILDREN BARRED FROM CAMPS

No husbands nor children allowed. So will read warning signs at five Kentucky homesteaders camps, planned to give tired housewives a breathing spell, a few days of relief from hot kitchens, monotonous home routine, children and husbands.

Two camps will be at the Blue and Gray state park at Elkton, one at the Agricultural Experiment Substation at Quicksand, and one at the Fahoms Lodge of the Fayette county homesteaders on the Kentucky river.

Programs will include entertainment, singing, folk games, camp fires, handicraft, and a lot of just plain rest, according to Miss Myrtle Weidon, state leader of home demonstration work.

Miss Ella Gardner, a recreation specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture, will direct the recreation, and Mrs. F. S. Kelley, music teacher at the Health high school in McCracken county, will have charge of the music.

Opportunity to attend the camps will be made available to members of homesteaders clubs in about 40 counties. The camps will be held in July and August.

Miss Mary Esther Hurt was a business visitor in Mt. Sterling Saturday.

Sen. Andy Devine and Lionel Stander. This picture will appear July 2nd.
