Jennings Says Rural Road Program Petty Political Maneuver

County Judge Alleges That Less Than Ten Per Cent Of Employees Last Year Were Of Republican Party

SIGNED STATEMENT ISSUED WITH APPROVAL OF THE FISCAL COURT

Declaring that Rowan County's Rural Highway Program last year was nothing more than a petty political machine, operating relatively little good for the rural roads, County Judge Charles E. Jennings in a signed statement today said the Fiscal Court would not approve a similar program this year.

Rowan is one of the thirteen Kentucky counties which does not have an approved rural road program.

Jennings set out in a verbal onslaught on the manner in which the program was handled in 1936 that there were approximately 100 jobs given that year and of that number not more than ten Republicans were hired.

Attached to the statement were the copies of correspondence between the county judge's office and Cecil T. Williams, Commissioner of Rural Highways. A letter dated March 20 read, in part:

"We (the Fiscal Court) are badly dissatisfied with the way the work was carried on here last year, and desire different management for this year's work. The work last year was of very little practical value and was not under capable management. Furthermore, we are not willing to be blamed with the employment of persons working on the Rural Highway Program in this county and we want to know who does the selection of employees and how it is done so that we may publicly state this to the taxpayers of this county. . . . In other words, do not intend to be the goat this year."

In his oral statement, given in addition to the signed one, Judge Jennings said: "It was the practice to dilly-dally around with the road program last year, repairing holes here and there in a haphazard manner with the apparent intention to give some politician in that neighborhood a job."

"These same politicians want to use Rowan County's quota of road money this year in the primary and general elections."

The statement from the Rowan County Judge said that on March 31 the Fiscal Court submitted a plan to Mr. Williams asking for the construction of two roads this year but that this was turned down, evidently, because it would be impossible for the politicians to scatter the work around, handing out jobs to henchmen in various parts of the county. Jennings said the entire Fiscal Court was in agreement with the stand to not approve a program akin to last year's.

Appearing elsewhere in these columns is the full text of Judge Jennings' statement and copies of correspondence between him and Mr. Williams.

HARLAN WAGE PARLEY OPENS IN CINCINNATI

Representatives of the Harlan Ky. Coal Operators Association, and the United Mine Workers of America conferred for an hour late today on terms for a contract that would affect 6,000 miners in Harlan County, Ky. and then adjourned until Wednesday.

Before starting negotiations late in the day, both the operators and the union indicated a contract similar to the New York wage scale adopted for the Appalachian coal field would be sought.

BUREAU OPERATING AT TOP SPEED UNDER LLOYD

Careful Investigation Being Made of Each Application, Records Disclose

As the end of the fiscal year draws near, the administration of aid for the eligible aged men and women of Kentucky continues with pronounced vigor. No department of the state government, perhaps, has labored more zealously to perform the task imposed upon it, than the Division of Public Assistance of the Department of Welfare.

Beginning its work last September under the direction of Dr. A. V. Lloyd, the Division of Public Assistance has disposed of thousands of applications for old age assistance in Kentucky, regarding the eligibles, culling the ineligible and setting each up for every case to the apparent satisfaction of all parties concerned.

According to a report issued this week by Dr. Lloyd, the total number of old age assistance grants in Kentucky for the period ending June 1, 1936, was 31,599, representing a monthly outlay of $1,000,000 (approximately).

These figures represent increases of 6,669 in the number of recipients, and of $70,000 (approximately) in monthly outlay over the report issued for the month of May.

BUMPER CROPS OUTLOOK FOR THIS SEASON

Farmers all over the country report the probability of bumper crops this year. Barring violent storms or severe drought the nation will produce more foodstuffs this season than it has for many years.

The farmer will be able to lay away foodstuffs this year. On the market what he produces, no doubt, bring cheaper prices, but he will have more of it to sell and is certainly confident that he can truck his own larders well.

To the working man—the salaried individual—this means that prices will probably be lower this year. The present upward trend has apparently reached its peak, and with the new harvests coming on the market, the housewife should be able to shop more economically than since the depression.

Business is good. Crops will probably be good. There is cause for much joy.

LESS FELONIES ON CIRCUIT COURT DOCKET

It is gratifying to note that, at the present term of Rowan Circuit Court, there is a marked decrease in felonies. It is equally as pleasing to any sincere citizen of the county to know there has been a gradual decline in homicide cases over a period of several years.

More than any other one thing this spells progress for Rowan County. It sets out that our people are becoming better educated—that lawlessness is at a lower ebb than it has been at any time. It is gratifying to note that recent court dockets is that there are less cases in which people are charged with disturbing religious worship. In the law books they classify this as a misdemeanor. It should be a crime punishable by almost an equal penalty as that of murder.

It may be noted that there are more divorce cases than in the past. As civilization advances, it seems that divorces increase. This is true of everywhere.

THINGS ONE REMEMBERS

In these days when practically every town, city, state and millions of individuals have their hands out for public funds, it has become real news to read of any public project that is financed without expense to the taxpayer.

Silverton, Oregon, recently celebrated such an event when it dedicated a new community hospital without the aid of public funds. The hospital was made possible by the legacy of Jerome Morley, a pioneer resident, plus donations of other citizens.

In the dedicatory address, Governor Charles H. Martin, (Democrat), of Oregon, said: "Mr. Morley represents that fine type of American citizen who made his own way through life and did not expect to live off the government. It is refreshing in this day and age of 'gimme boys' to encounter a man of such spirit."

"Today the most appalling thing to me is the constant tendency of citizens to distress to turn to the government for aid."

Governor Martin took occasion to blast chiselers, sit down strikes, parlor pink professors and pussy-footers of all kinds, whether politicians or doctors.

Yes, it is refreshing to read of an upstanding American community supplying its needs with good old-fashioned American initiative and energy, rather than "with paternalistic pap. And it was still more refreshing to see a courageous public official compliment the community with remarks that were not honey-coated bait to attract votes. We need more of it."

GOOD CITIZENS MAKE GOOD STATESMEN

It is a trite saying, but no less a fact, that boys of today are the citizens of tomorrow. And from a nation's citizenship must be drawn its statesmen, as well as its leaders in other fields.

Today, with so many different political doctrines that are abroad, many of which would destroy our whole system of government, the obligation to furnish wholesome leadership and training to the youth of the land weighs more and more heavily on the shoulders of the present generation.

To be a good citizen a man must first be a good citizen. Aside from the home, the church and the public school, no organization is better fitted to start a boy in the right direction than the Boy Scouts of America.

As Rev. I. J. Heizer pointed out Tuesday at the Elizabethan Royal luncheon, the Boy Scout organization is one of the few groups in America today from which boys may receive training in citizenship.

This organization specializes in building good citizens. Its leaders know the American boy better than many parents and teachers do and are skilled in ways and means of gaining his confidence and co-operation.

In a few weeks a campaign will be launched in Hardin county, which, if carried through successfully, will enable boys of this county to receive the benefits of the organization on a much larger scale. More troops will be formed and the services of a trained Scout executive will be available.

Citizens of the town and county who take the long view of the question of training our leaders of tomorrow will co-operate in the movement and see it through to a successful conclusion.

—Hardin County Enterprise.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE PREACHER

Someone is always writing about doctors and lawyers and teachers, but seldom can you find space devoted to the humble servant known as the preacher. Maybe if it hadn't been for the recent thoughtfulness of a Missouri editor you never would have had a pen picture of the preacher. But he has been thought to write one, and in the belief that citizens of Boone county will enjoy reading, we take the liberty of reproducing it—and here it is:

"The preacher has a great time. If his hair is gray, he is too old. If he is a young man, he has not had experience enough. If he has ten children he has too many. If he has none, he is setting a bad example. If his wife sings in the choir, she is presuming, and if she does not she isn't interested in her husband's work. If the preacher reads from notes, he's a bore, and if he speaks extemporaneously, he isn't deep enough. If he stays at home in his study, he doesn't mix enough with the people; if he is seen around the streets, he ought to be home getting up a good sermon picture of the calls on the home of the grandstand; if he calls at the home of the wealthy, he is an aristocrat.

"What ever he does, someone could have told him how to do it better. Yes, the preacher has a great time!" —Boone County Recorder.

TAXATION—FRIEND AND FOE

"The Roman Empire was destroyed not by the barbarians but by taxation," said Mr. James W. Gerard, President Roosevelt's representative at the Coronation, speaking at a dinner given him by the Pilgrims in London. He was alluding to the tremendous burden of taxation which in the United States, in Great Britain, and in many other countries is one of the most formidable barriers to overcome.

Public expenditure today, as in the Roman Empire, falls under two headings—productive and unproductive. It would be unfair to the Roman system not to remember that Roman rulers, especially in the first and second centuries, spent constructively as well as wastefully; and it was not the constructive expenditure which ruined them. The great military goods which they built were useful for traders as well as troops. Money spent on irrigation and the like tended to enrich rather than impoverish the people.

The waste was mainly due to the heavy cost of despotism, and the heavy cost of the armies. The masses were bribed with "bread and circuses" in modern parlance, doles paid in kind. Fierce foreign enemies were bought off with subsidies. The official classes received more than their due from the proceeds of taxation. But military expenditure was the most crushing of the burdens under which the Roman Empire tottered and finally collapsed. At the last there was no money with which to pay legionsaries.

The increase of public expenditure and taxation in modern countries is in part inevitable and desirable. The community will receive services for a part of the money it has paid in taxes, and will reap the benefit in employment and comfort. Such taxation, if wisely imposed for sound objects, is not destructive.

It is a vicious circle. The poorer each country is, the more it is jealous of its neighbors, and the more disposed to arm against them; and the more it arms, the poorer it becomes. If this process were allowed to go on unchecked each country in time would cease to have the means to pay both for armaments and social services. Neglect of the latter would invite revolution. There is no way out of the vicious circle but by agreement to disarm—disarmament implying both the reduction both of weapons and or trade barriers.

ABOUT NEWS AND THE EDITOR

There are very few things in which an editor is interested more than in his important news events. So the editor is concerned, and the general public which he serves, news spoils very quickly as such.

Quite frequently young people slip off and are married secretly, and then when the matter becomes generally known they would like to have it written up with very elaborate settings. The matter is then news no more, and no editor can do the event justice.

With the death of members of a family, we frequently have the very hardest time to get the news and other matters of interest while it is news. Frequently a month or two later—when the matter is no longer of news value—long accounts, often with illustrations at home, are sent in for publication. Often this matter, less the poetry, would have been very welcome when it was news.

News dies very young. This is one reason why we seldom print country correspondence the next week if it is received late.

Some of our older correspondents have the correct idea of news. Some of the newer ones are getting into the way of it. A paper would be anything but a newspaper if it only printed what everybody already knows. —Licking Valley Courier.

THE TRIPLE BARREL!

SOCIAL SECURITY BOARD BRIEFS

Federal records show that about half the people in this country who are 65 years of age and older have no means of support. Many of them live with their children, relatives, or friends who can scarcely afford to take care of them. The rest are in poorhouses or on private charity or public relief.

The Federal government, under the Social Security Act, helps the states which take care of needy aged persons by making grants of money to those states which have plans approved by the Social Security Board in a state which has an approved plan, needy old people may receive through the state welfare agency monthly cash payments or old-age pensions. This is the "old-age assistance" program and is entirely different from the "Federal old-age benefit" program.

Under its old-age assistance plan, the State decides how much is to be given each applicant on the basis of his or her need. Whatever the state decides to grant, the Federal government, under the Social Security Act, contributes one-half—up to $15 a month—or a Federal-State payment of $30. The state may contribute more than $15, but the maximum Federal contribution is $15.

Under the Social Security Act an approved state plan must provide for the granting to any individual whose claim for old-age assistance has been denied in whole or part, or whose aid is withdrawn, an opportunity for a fair hearing before the state agency which administers the plan.

Music and amateur dramatics will be featured in the programs of 13 summer camps for 4-5 club members from about 100 Kentucky counties. J. W. Whitehouse, state club leader, announces. Co-operation agencies include the State Board of Health and the Mrs. Y. M. C. A.

Senate And House Argue Relief Bill

Motion Apparently Killed To Inhibit Heavier Burden On States and Cities

One of the strangest struggles of the congressional session culminated today in a refusal by the Senate to compel states and communities to bear a greater share of the relief current burden. The vote against the proposal, which would have required the governmental sub-divisions to stand 25 per cent of the expense of WPA projects if able to do so, was 49-34.

In favor, 24. Against, 34. The fight was unusual in that it aligned Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, majority leader, with Republican and Democratic circles of Roosevelt policies. He offered the 25 per cent amendment to the pending $1,500,000 relief bill.

Against the amendment was a group determined to give President Roosevelt a continued free hand with relief funds. After the Robinson amendment went down, the Senate quickly defeated another by Senator Byrnes, Democrat, of South Carolina, to require 40 per cent contributions. The vote was 58 to 25.

Administration supporters, marshaled by Robinson's lieutenant, Senator Barkley, Democrat, of Kentucky, assailed the amendment as "unfair." Senator McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee, said Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, had directed an expenditure of more than $10,000,000 without congressional restrictions and asked "Why change a plan that has worked so well?" The thumbs down decision on the amendment cleared the way for the measure without additional amendments, including a two year extension of the Public Works Administration.

Rowan County to know who was handling the employment of men and teams for this work in our county. We all are sure that we know who it is, but I wanted the department to put this work to be frank and open about it so that the taxpayers can see how the program is handled and so that the persons responsible will be blamed or given credit, whichever they were entitled to receive.

"Morehead, Kentucky, March 20th, 1937.
"Mr. Cecil T. Williams, Commissioner of Rural Highways, Frankfort, Kentucky.
"Dear Sir:

"The Rowan County Fiscal Court wishes to make some very important changes in the road projects to be considered for work on the program in this county for the new year beginning April 1st, 1937.

"We are badly dissatisfied with the way the work was carried on here last year, and desire different management for this new year's work.

"The work was of very little practical value and was not under capable management. Furthermore, we are not willing to be blamed with the employment of the persons working on the Rural Highway Program in this county and we want to know who does the selection of the employees and how it is done so that we may publicly state this to the taxpayers of this county.

"In other words we do not expect or intend to be the 'goat' this year. It is our desire for a better understanding of the projects which will at least make some effort to, in some small way, supervise the work and would once during the year meet with the Fiscal Court and try to explain and help work out some of the problems.

"Answer of Mr. Williams is as follows:
"Frankfort, Kentucky, March 25th, 1937.
"Hon. Chas. E. Jennings, Judge County of Rowan, Morehead, Kentucky.
"My Dear Judge:

"We regret very much to learn from your letter of March 20 that you are not in favor of the Rural Highway work in your County last year did not meet with your approval. Our information has been that you were very capably done and the people were generally pleased with the program.

"I am in hopes your county will take advantage of Federal Flood relief funds available and match it with Rural Highway funds as part of your program for this year. That will give Rowan County double your allotment. Another advantage is the Highway Department will take the roads on which this money is used, over for maintenance.

"This matter will be discussed with you soon by our engineers.
"Very truly yours,
"CECIL T. WILLIAMS
"Commissioner of Rural Highways."

"The Rowan Fiscal Court has done all that is in its power to get the program for this year, we will not agree for the work to be done like last year. We cannot help it if the Rural Highway Department will not start work in this county. They have the authority to begin work. They could have started work insofar as the Fiscal Court concerned the next day after we signed the agreement, which is dated March 21st, 1937.

Dr. Fern Resigns As Church Pastor

been the payment of accumulated indebtedness. It was estimated, for instance, that more money was used in 1936 than had been raised in one year since the dedication of the present church building in 1925.

An eleven weeks campaign running from March 1 to May 10, of last year, all told, resulted in raising $857.70.

During the present ministry notes at the local banks have been paid, local business firms have been paid bills that were long ago due over, and the street paving bills, long past due, amounting to a considerable sum, have been paid. The indebtedness of the parsonage on Second Street has been reduced from $1,800 to $1,150. The indebtedness on the church building has been refinanced so that it will be reduced from now on at the rate of about $75 per month.

Another feature of recent months has been the improvement of the physical belongings of the church. Last summer, at a considerable cost, the church building was painted, decorated and varnished. The lighting effects in the main auditorium lowered which adds much to the beauty of the room and gives additional light. The parsonage has recently been completely papered and decorated inside and is now being painted on the outside.

An outstanding feature of Dr. and Mrs. Fern's ministry with the church here aside from raising money and paying indebtedness has been the gradual increase in attendance and the number of additions to the church. So there had been in about fourteen years prior. The additions have come at the regular services, no meetings or revival campaigns having been held. In the eleven weeks financial campaign of last summer there were seventeen additions to the church.

Haste Urged For Securing Numbers of April. The report further shows that for the period ending June 1, 1936, the Division of Public Assistance has made grants to 197 individuals in Rowan county, for a total of $1,877 in monthly assistance.

Commenting upon the work of the Public Assistance Division, Dr. Lloyd recently said:
"In conformity with increased living costs during the winter months the statewide average per recipient was gradually raised from $7.43 in August, to approximately $10 per recipient at the end of the year. Grants are made on the basis of need, living costs, and other conditions, with only the most destitute aged individuals receiving the maximum grant."

Over 30,000 Aged People Pensioned

Ohio and 337,215 from Kentucky.

Benedict Crowell, regional director, explained that workers may continue to obtain blank application forms from the post office after the June 30 except in cities where the Board has established field offices. But that the actual assignment of account numbers in Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky will be made through designated field offices in the following 14 cities:

- Ohio—Akron, Ashland, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Lima, Lorain and Toledo.
- Michigan—Dearborn, Detroit, Grand Rapids, and Marquette.
- Kentucky—Ashland and Louisville.

Mr. Crowell stated that the reasons for requesting all wage earners in employment covered by the Federal old-age benefits plan to apply for account numbers without delay are:

- First, because it is essential to the subsequent setting up of their accounts, which are used in determining the benefits to which they may ultimately be entitled.
- Second, because it will simplify the employer's task when he hires new employees if these employees can give their account numbers; and
- Third, because it will be helpful in keeping the records maintained by state unemployment compensation administrations.

Governor Lauded By Merchant Body

Chandler Commended By Anti-Sales Tax Group For Abolishing Measure

The directors of the Anti-Sales Tax Association, in called meeting, assembled for the purpose of consideration of certain Legislative acts sponsored and made a part of our statutory law at the instance of Governor A. B. Chandler, desire

First, to express our gratitude to a man whose entire record in public life is one of unselfish allegiance to the people. Never since the repeal of the obnoxious sales tax, which this organization attacked as a purely unjust levy upon our common people, and entrusted to our Governor as the Commanding officer of our Army the full and complete command of methods in carrying out its repeal, has he ever betrayed a trust.

The Sunday doubleheader against the Bees and the night game against the Pirates are the feature events. The twin bill comes on a day designated as "Dayton Day" in recognition of the fans of that city who have been so enthusiastic in their support of the Reds all these years.

At the night game Pie Traynor, manager of the Pirates, and one of the greatest third sackers who ever lived, will be honored by the people of Brookville, Ind., and surrounding territory. Traynor lives in Brookville.

It is estimated that between 4,000 and 5,000 fans from Dayton will move down here for "Dayton Day," including Mayor Brennan, City Manager Eichelberger, Harry Mack and other notables. The city will be honored officially at home plate preceding the game.

For the night game one of the best programs of the season is scheduled. Four bands will furnish music, there will be a mammoth fireworks display, a bell and toe relay around the bases headed by Sebastian Linehan, and other features.

Cincinnati Outfit Climbing In League

Two very important events are scheduled at Crosley field in the next week. The Boston Bees will pull into Cincinnati Friday for a four-game series that will culminate with a doubleheader Sunday afternoon starting at 1:30, and the Pittsburgh Pirates are due for a night game Wednesday, June 30, after opening the series with a day game the preceding afternoon.

AGREEMENTS REACHED: BUSINESS ON UPSWING

Although labor disturbances brought uneasiness in business circles, the trend of retail trade throughout the country maintained a consistent upward trend, according to Department of Commerce reports from 37 key cities for the past week just received by its Louisville District Office. In some cases strikes directly hampered transactions but these losses were made up elsewhere and indications of a strong buying undertone were evident. Wholesale trade likewise rendered a good account of itself. Chicago mail order houses reported business steady.

Louisville reported that with summer apparel in strong demand, retail sales showed volume 12 to 15 per cent over a year ago. Substantial gain in dry goods orders featured wholesale trade.

Romantic Cinema Is College Show

Story of Girl Who Married Orchestra Leader, Scheduled Friday

For Friday, June 25, the College brings to the screen a great drama of a high type featuring Elizabeth Bergner. The story, which gives a very faint idea of the intense human interest imparted by Miss Bergner's artistry, tells of "Gabby," the girl wife of an orchestra leader.

She falls in love at first sight with a famous violinist, a friend of her husband. They become ardently in love and decide to go to the husband and tell him the truth about it, but the husband falls seriously ill, and the girl wife keeps silent and nurses him devotedly.

The violinist is on an American tour. He is unable to keep away from her, she is so exhausted with the strain of caring for her husband and the suspense of her secret, that she is bewildered and throws herself in the river. Miss Bergner is the center of the whole picture. Her acting is a masterpiece.

'Love Is News' Is Feature At Theatre

Newspaper Story Is Best Of Fering of This Week At Cozy

The standardization that has taken place in a good many of the characters—especially in the newspaper reporter, a type which Tay Garnett, director of the Twentieth Century-Fox hit "Love Is News," opening Friday at the Cozy Theatre declares he has done his best to get away from in this comedy of news and publicity.

"The trouble with screen newspapermen," says Director Garnett, "is that they have taken just one rare type out of the city room and ignored the rest. The cynical, worldly-wise, iconoclastic member of the Fourth Estate is not at all representative of his fellows."

Get rid of itching fungus, rash, with NEVER FAILS TO ERADICATE COMPLETELY the deodorant-scorcher that gets into the pores and kills infection.

ANTHILIN FOOD

The average reporter, according to Garnett, could quite easily be mistaken for a doctor, head of business man, but, he adds, if these newshawks were pictured on the screen as they really are, audiences would be quite disappointed.

"However," declared Garnett, "the 'Love Is News,' which stars Tyrone Power, Loretta Young and Don Ameche, we've made several steps toward realism without sacrificing too much of the romantic stereotype."

New Policy To Be Adopted By State Security Officers

Sworn Statements Required After July 1; New Blanks Will Be Furnished

A new policy that will require all applicants for Old Age Assistance to submit a sworn statement as a part of their application, will become effective July 1, according to an announcement made this week by Dr. Lloyd Lloyd, Director of Public Assistance, Frankfort.

An entirely new and different application blank has been prepared, the Director's statement says. "It could not be used in the past because of the assistance program in Kentucky due to the vast number of aged persons who desired to file applications for aid; but now, with upwards of 40,000 applications reviewed and approved and many others investigated and rejected because they did not meet the requirements of the present law, the new-type application form can be introduced."

This new feature in connection with Old Age Assistance administration in Kentucky is expected to aid materially in cutting down the number of applications filed by ineligible persons. It will also enable the Public Assistance Division to enforce penalties provided for false statements in connection with applications for Old Age Assistance.

Besides containing a sworn statement, the new application form also includes several additional features not found in the old form in use since the beginning of the program in Kentucky. It will require information pertaining to age and residence, and an agreement to reimburse the Commonwealth of Kentucky for assistance given.

Another feature of the new policy is that each and every applicant for old age assistance must fill out his application in the presence of a notary public, a field worker of the division of public assistance, or some official authorized by law to acknowledge oaths. The applicant, after answering all of the questions required on the application form, must make a sworn statement and correct to the best of his knowledge and belief, and he must make a sworn statement that his answers are true and correct to the best of his knowledge.

ment that his answers are true and belief, and he must then sign his application in person, using his signature or his mark as it will appear on checks or other legal papers.

Explaining the new policy in connection with applications for Old Age Assistance, Dr. Lloyd's statement says in part:

"In the past considerable difficulty was created for the Division of Public Assistance, due to the fact that many applicants for assistance permitted some friend or relative to sign their applications. This, of course, was not in conformity with the rules and regulations of the Division of Public Assistance which require that the actual legal signature of an applicant shall be submitted. To meet this situation, the Division had to provide a special signature card to supplement the application blank. The new application form, by securing the actual signature of the applicant, will eliminate this difficulty."

"By having each applicant for Old Age Assistance submit a sworn statement as a part of his application, the Division of Public Assistance will be able in the future to enforce penalties provided for persons attempting to file statements of false information for themselves or for some other person. The number of such applications that have not been large in the past, but it is expected that they will be entirely eliminated in the future."

"The Division of Public Assistance is doing everything within its power to assure that every eligible needy person in Kentucky shall receive the assistance to which he is entitled under the existing law, and at the same time protect the taxpayers of the state from being called upon to provide for those persons not needy, who are ineligible for other reasons. The cooperation of all respectable citizens in every community is earnestly solicited in the administration of the McCarty-Ramey Old Age Assistance Act."

Kentucky Day Set By Cincinnati Nine

Patronage and Good Will of This State to Be Honored At Cincinnati

Tribute to the Commonwealth of Kentucky will be paid at Crosley Field in Cincinnati on Sunday, July 4. The Reds meet the St. Louis Cardinals in a doubleheader on that day, which has been officially designated as "Kentucky Day."

Governor A. B. Chandler of Kentucky will be the honored guest. A former baseball player, Governor Chandler still works out with the Reds and has agreed to don a uniform for the occasion. He will participate in the pre game drills held by the Reds and Cards.

As a special feature, a concert will be provided. Only Kentucky tunes will be played. Kentucky residents playing on both teams will receive special recognition when the ceremonies take place at the home plate before the start of the first game. Among the players now living in Kentucky is Lee Grissom, current pitching sensation of the National League. Grissom lived in Erlanger for a couple of months preceding his jump to the training camp.

While there he met and married a Kentucky girl. The Grissoms now live in Bellevue.

Frank Lane, assistant to the general manager of the Reds, and W. P. Bramham, assistant secretary and treasurer, also are Kentucky residents. They live in Fort Thomas.

There are reasons for the widespread popularity of PWA projects. First, the projects originated by the local taxpayers. They knew what they needed. PWA never has tried to "sell" a project...

While the emergency work for which PWA was instituted is not yet completed, it is hoped that the paths that have been pioneered and the lessons that we have learned will not soon be forgotten.

Arthur Jones, Chairman

Waterworks and sewer construction are of the best examples of ultimate public credit accumulated under the PWA program.

Under PWA's policy of making grants of less than the balance at 4 per cent or reasonable service, we furnished a market for municipal bonds when others had failed.

These projects are now in daily service and hundreds of others are rapidly nearing completion.

As the Public Works Administrator this week begins its fifth year, there are thousands of completed PWA projects in operation...

HALSEY RAINES

THE STORY THUS FAR:
 When America enters the war in 1917, Fred Willis, a stalwart, hard-fisted young circus barker, volunteers, while Jimmy Davis, a sensitive, high-strung boy who faints at his first bayonet practice, is drafted. The two become close pals in military camp. By the time Jimmy arrives in France he becomes calmer and bolder; he leads a successful charge to wipe out a machine-gun battery and

"All right, it will quit you," said Rose with a little smile. She was oblivious to the presence of other men in the ward as she bent over and touched his cheek. Her only mental image was of Fred. Perhaps five miles closer to those bombing guns.
 Suddenly there was a commotion in the room. Occasional other beds had by no means been all asleep.
 "Oh, nurse!" called one. "Don't forget papa's turn."
 "Second up," echoed another voice.
 "I'm on the list too," protested a third. "No favorites in this man's army."
 In laughing embarrassment, Rose looked around. Jimmy, ignoring the others, fell back on his pillow. As Rose sat there the lines on his face relaxed. Within a few minutes he had drifted into a peaceful slumber.
 It was hours later when Rose, having returned to his bed after making the rounds, there came the first sinister booming in two days of the giant guns. Rose clenched her hands as she thought of Fred's parting words. "You'll probably be hearing the guns."
 How ironical! The words beat in her ears, keeping time with the hoarse roud reverberations from the front. Everyone in the room, save a few who were still asleep, was reacting, some with tense, twisted faces, some with affected indifference.
 "It's the offensive," whispered one soldier.
 Jimmy's eyes opened, and he stared out and grasped Rose's hand.
 "Duffy, I love you," he said in a pleading, child-like voice. "I don't want to go out there."
 "Rose was not listening."
 "Say it," he continued. "Say it to me. I love you. Just tell me that much. Please. The ordeal was over... the honors had been done."
 Later in the day Jimmy was strolling about the town, surrounded by admiring groups, when a black-headed photographer dashed up to him.
 "Peetre, Monsieur," an artificially nasal voice cried. "Peetre for ze Paris Daily Bugle and Gazette."
 "No, no," said Jimmy, beaming with pleasure. "I don't want any publicity."
 "Oh, but Monsieur!" came back the other. "Hands across ze sea, M'sieur."
 Jimmy struck a pose. The photographer bustled back and forth under his cloak. In badly creaking French he ordered the subject to bend to the right, then to the right, to tip back his hat, to pull up his chest. Finally, when he had everything in a row, he threw back his hood. The grinning face of Fred, bronzed and ruddy, was revealed.
 "Fred!" gasped Jimmy. "We all thought you were killed!"
 "Not as often as I was captured," replied the returned casualty. "Come on and buy me a drink."
 On the way to the nearest cafe Fred explained how a dozen or more Germans had plunged down on him in a shell-hole and taken him in tow. Weeks of detention in an enemy camp followed, until one night when he was able to use a wine bottle on the head of his prison guard, and make a getaway.
 Jimmy took one of his two medals and offered it to Fred. "No, thanks," said the other laughingly. "Save 'em for after the war. The home town girls will go for em like gundrops."
 A Mention of the home town girls brought another thought uppermost in Jimmy's mind.
 "Wait till Rose hears about this!" he cried. "She'll go crazy. You can be best man, after all."
 "What was that last crack?" asked Fred, stopping dead in his tracks.
 "Rose and me!" cried Jimmy happily. "Soon's the war's over she's promised to marry me!"
 Fred stared, at first incredulously, then with stunned realization of the truth.

Vikings Hoping For Strong Team

Out at the Morehead High School aren't looking for a conference champion football team this year, but they do expect to have a club that will cause plenty of trouble ere the smoke clears from the 1937 battle scene.
 Roy Holbrook, the old maestro of Viking grid outfits, will again pilot the Green and White ship and when Holbrook is handling the steering gear there's always hope. Holbrook accomplished much at Morehead High last year, besides the club out of the drums and instilling once again the spirit of combat—something that had been lost the previous season.
 The material is not present as yet for another great Viking club. A football team cannot be built in one year, and although Roy has set his mind on constructing a winning eleven from the ruins, it is doubtful if he can do it in one year. As a matter of fact, he doesn't expect that kind of a club.
 Holbrook does have hopes of, and all indications are that his ambition has a good chance of being fulfilled, producing a team this year that will be a credit to themselves and to the school.
 One new team will be added to the Vikings card this year. It is the opening game, September 24, at Louisa. All the teams that will be met are in the Ekay conference.
 The schedule:
 Sept. 24—Louisa (there).
 Oct. 6—Raceland (here).
 Oct. 15—Wurtland (here).
 Oct. 22—Boyd County (there).
 Oct. 29—Olive Hill (here).
 Nov. 3—Open.

Hammond Never Ceases Fighting
 Morehead Athlete Assured Of Starting Berth On 1937 Team
 That is what they yell from the sidelines to inspire football players to do their best. When their back is to the goal line or they need a score to win the game, the fans take to that chant.
 "Fight! Fight! Fight!"
 Sometimes we wonder if it really helps a team for the rooting sections to blast out that call.
 On Morehead's team next year there is a player who fights, fights, fights and then fights some more whether the cheering section booms out the urge or not. We speak of Freddy Hammonds, the tightest, tightest player Morehead College has ever had.
 Opponents oftentimes accuse Freddy of fighting too much. Referees and umpires have been known to penalize the Morehead team on the assumption that Freddy puts too much fight in the game. Last year they ordered him off the field in a game.
 Hammonds is not a dirty football player as college performers go. He simply knows all the tricks and plays football on the assumption that if I don't get the other fellow first he'll get me. No matter what argument you may hear about football, it is indisputable that it is exactly what football is. Getting the other

"I don't want to get well," broke began Rose, looking up at Rose happily, while she sneered him around. "I'm in love with a beautiful nurse."
 "Remember that night the guns started, what you said?" asked Jimmy.
 "That was part of my job," answered Rose. "But you're getting better now."
 "I don't want to get well," broke out Jimmy again.
 "Sax, hurring across the court, called out Rose's name. In her hand was a paper, a printed sheet that had been awaiting with baited breath. It was the list—the official list—from headquarters of the officers and men who had returned from that last ferocious combat at the front.
 Silently, Rose reached out and snatched it away. Her eyes devoured every name. There were many she recognized... but the one that had to be there was missing. With an heroic effort she controlled any show of feeling, but the paper dropped from her limp hand to the ground.
 "Rose, what's the matter?" called Jimmy, started.
 In another moment he had mustered the necessary will-power to speak.
 "Fred didn't come out of the lines," she said.
 "Fred?" cried Jimmy, clutching at his throat. "I never thought they'd get Fred. He was the world's champ to me. If he's dead what's left in the world that's really alive?"
 Rose desperately trying to hold herself back, still refused to show her feelings.
 "Well, what are we going to do about it?" she exclaimed, spinning about to face him. "Go crazy?"
 "You did know what Fred was like, didn't you?" pursued Jimmy, studying her face.
 "Yes, I knew," said Rose, wondering how she could stand there and continue to talk. She wanted to run, but she began slowly to wheel him away. It meant something to have some physical duty to perform.
 "Maybe, after the war," he went on, "it mightn't be so bad if you and I were to stick together and help each other."
 Rose said nothing...
 Time sped by. Back of the lines, in the public square of a French village, a crowd had gathered. Troops were massed under the joint command of a French and American general. The band was playing a gay and martial air. It was the day for the award of military decorations.
 "Sergeant James Davis, a Company B, Battalion trois cent dix," drew out the orderly.
 "Jimmy stepped forward. He

WHY?

Once on a common day
I found in the dip of a dell
A gold cup and a green plume
And a carved coral bell;
The air was honey clear;
A bee bowed on a clover;
A bird upon a blossomy bough
Gave one call over and over.

A hill stood north and west,
A thicket east and south,
A brook went by with a leaf on its breast
And a silver flute in its mouth;
There was dew on the rim of the cup.
And a sheen on the frothy feather.
A wind fluttered the coral bell—
They are chinned together.

The song that the water made
It had made for a thousand years.
There was old moss on the blis-
somy bough;
My eyes were full of tears.
Why should a mortal weep
In a hollow under a hill
For a yew fern and a robin's cry
And a yellow daffodil?
