MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University's speech team placed ninth in the nation and first among schools of comparable size in the 15th annual National Forensics Tournament, according to Forensics Director Phil Martin.

The competition, held at Marshall University in Huntington, W.Va., April 24-30, drew teams from 120 colleges and universities from all over the United States.

"While it took the efforts of all nine members to achieve our high ranking, four students made outstanding contributions," Martin said.

Vonda Ramey, a sophomore from Morehead majoring in business, was fifth out of more than 200 entrants in the informative speaking event with a speech on gossip.

Winning fifth place in prose interpretation was Kevin Cockrell, Jeffersonville freshman, who presented a selection from the short story "Shooting the Chicken Out Narrows." A history major, Cockrell was among more than 300 speakers in the event.

Another freshman, Tara Lail of Cynthiana, was ranked among the top 12 national competitors in the poetry interpretation semi-finals with the selection "The Common Woman." The speech/theatre major competed against more than 250 speakers in the event.

A speech on the dangers of diplomatic immunity won Lisa Shemwell, a sophomore journalism major from Winchester, a quarter-finalist ranking in persuasive speaking, placing her among the top 24 of the more than 200 entrants in the event.

Contributing to the team's overall success in the national speech competition were:

"It truly was a team victory," Marint said. "I'm very proud of our students," he added.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University's reading faculty has named Lynda H. Cannon, an Ashland graduate student in education, as the first recipient of the William Curtis Hampton Distinguished Scholar Award.

Named for the late Dr. William C. Hampton, professor of education, the scholarship was established by his colleagues and friends in conjunction with his wife, Mrs. Colleen Hampton.

Hampton, a member of the MSU faculty from 1959 until his death last year, established the Reading Center and initiated the Reading Specialist Endorsement Program for elementary and secondary students in the graduate program.

The $500 scholarship will be awarded annually to a graduate student in the program who has excelled academically and exemplifies the educator's intellectual curiosity, dedication to service and diversity of interests.

Cannon, who has a dual emphasis in reading and special education, has been a full-time MSU student since Fall 1984 and has a 4.0 grade point average. She is a cum laude graduate of George Peabody College.

A Reading Center graduate assistant, she is active in the International Reading Association, Council of Exceptional Children, Southern Association for Children under Six and Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society. The Department of Education also selected her as its 1984-85 Outstanding Graduate Student.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Thirteen Morehead State University mining technology students will be the first students in the nation to take part in a two-week spring training program at the Federal Mine Safety Academy, Beckley, W.Va., according to J. Wes Blakely, MSU chairholder in mining, energy studies and reclamation.

Ordinarily the training site for mine inspectors, mining company officials, and other professionals, the Federal Mine Safety Academy is for the first time in its history involving students in its specialized training, Blakely said.

"Morehead State University is fortunate to have been chosen as the first school to send students to the Academy for this special training," Blakely said, "and the instruction they will receive there is unparalleled anywhere in the industry or in the academic world."

The special training program, which this year deals with roof control and mine ventilation, will start May 13 and run for two weeks, Blakely said, during which time the students attend classes, visit mines, and get hands-on experience in roof control and mine ventilation which are two of "the key areas of accident generation in underground mining."

Blakely, who arranged the program in cooperation with federal mine safety and health administrative officials, will visit the trainees at the Academy and participate in their evaluation. He holds MSU's MAPCO Chair in Mining Research and Technology, an endowed chair established in 1983 through a grant from MAPCO, Inc., a Tulsa-based energy corporation.

He said the MSU students were carefully selected for this project, and that those who are juniors will have an opportunity next year for a second training session at the Academy.

Topics for training in the spring of 1986 will be motive power and electricity, two other significant areas of underground mining accident generation, Blakely said.

"We hope that programs such as this one will get the concepts of safety firmly planted in the heads of our students even before they graduate from the University," Blakely said, "and certainly before they actually enter the mining industry to further their careers."

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- A Morehead State University junior will be among more than 20 young women competing for the queen's crown at the 54th annual Mountain Laurel Festival Thursday through Saturday, May 23-26, at Pine Mountain State Park.

Mona Sabie, a biology major, is the daughter of two MSU faculty members, Drs. Mohammed and Layla Sabie, professor of health, physical education and recreation and associate professor of education, respectively.

The four-day festival will open officially at 7 p.m. Thursday, May 23, in Laurel Cove Amphitheatre with a welcome by festival association president Tom Mills and the introduction of the queen candidates.

Gov. Martha Layne Collins will crown the queen in ceremonies set for 2 p.m. Saturday, May 25, in the amphitheatre. U.S. Sen. Wendell Ford, grand marshal for Saturday morning's festival parade, also will be master of ceremonies for the coronation.

Festival activities will include tennis and golf tournaments, arts and crafts exhibits, mine rescue competition, a band concert and balls.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Joe Phelps, a senior music education student at Morehead State University, was recently initiated into Phi Kappa Phi, an interdisciplinary honor society which recognizes excellence in all academic areas.

Phelps, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Phelps of Georgetown, is a member of Pi Kappa Lambda Music Honor Society and serves as president of the International Trombone Association.

These initiates are all MSU alumni, seniors, juniors, or faculty. To be eligible for election to membership, seniors must be in the academic top 10% of their class and juniors must be in the academic top 5% of their class. Alumni and faculty who have "achieved scholarly distinction" are eligible also, according to Margaret D. Patton, MSU associate professor of sociology.

Patton founded Chapter 148 of Phi Kappa Phi on MSU's campus in 1972.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- A three-day workshop on "Artificial Insemination and AI Management Training" will be offered at Morehead State University May 14-16.

The classes will be held in Derrickson Agricultural Complex and taught by Fischer Harned, a Kentucky Artificial Breeding Association (KABA) field supervisor since 1969.

MSU's Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources and KABA will co-sponsor the workshop, which may be taken for college credit. Graduates also will be certified as KABA technicians.

According to Phil Kenkel, agribusiness specialist in MSU's Appalachian Development Center, only three to five percent of beef cattle in Eastern Kentucky are artificially inseminated. "The old assumption that AI is too expensive and time consuming is wrong," says Kenkel. "It is now feasible to own AI equipment for herds as small as 20 cattle."

Cost of the AI workshop is $200. A $50 deposit will reserve space. Additional information is available from the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Morehead State University, Morehead, Ky., 40351. Phone: (606) 783-2662.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- When Congressman Hal Rogers turned the first ground for a new vegetable processing facility near Beattyville, a year of work by a Morehead State University staff member moved a major step closer to visible service to seven counties.

Phil Kenkel, agribusiness specialist in MSU's Appalachian Development Center, has been involved from the beginning in the formation of Kentucky Mountain Farms Cooperative, a vegetable growing cooperative which expects to process 400 acres of bell peppers and cucumbers during 1985.

The April 27 groundbreaking in Lee County marked the beginning of construction of the cooperative's processing plant which will sort, clean, and pack locally-grown produce for shipment to Georgia Vegetable, whose markets cover 40 states.

According to Kenkel, the vegetable producers themselves contributed more than $40,000 of the initial funding, and a $66,000 community block grant provided the balance. Kenkel, who has an M.B.A. degree and an undergraduate degree in agriculture, coordinated the financial analysis and projections which are part of the Kentucky Mountain Farms business plan.

"Farm operations are not being forced to function as businesses," said Kenkel. "The financial analysis programs we now have at the Appalachian Development Center set up on personal computers will help any business--including agriculture--better plan costs and potential income. The service is available to anyone or any business. We have, over the past year, helped many potential or existing business operators better plan their financial operations," he said.

According to Jerry Gouge, manager of the Kentucky Mountain Farms Cooperative, Kenkel and others at MSU also helped with member surveys, grant applications, and organizational efforts.

"Tobacco is on the decline in Kentucky," said Gouge. "Eastern Kentucky farmland and farm methods are ideally suited to vegetable production. No one producer can afford a processing facility, so a cooperative was the only solution," Gouge added.

"There is a statewide program--the Kentucky Agricultural Marketing Cooperative--with a processing plant in Lexington and we may deliver some of our produce to it. The Appalachian Development Center at Morehead State has been an active participant in all aspects of this new development," the cooperative manager said.

Kenkel also has been active in creating another agricultural cooperative, the Northeast Kentucky Beef Improvement Federation, which is now in its second on-farm performance test. "Agriculture is one of Eastern Kentucky's major industries," said ADC Assistant Director for Business Development Wilson C. Grier. "The role we can best play is financial analysis and help with planning. Our services are offered to the region at no cost, part of the University's commitment to regional service," Grier said.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Jane Davis Howell has been appointed personnel officer at Morehead State University.

Howell, who previously held a similar position at Rio Grande (Ohio) College, assumed the post earlier this spring, according to Ron Moss, MSU personnel services director.

Howell earned the B.S. degree in personnel management with emphasis in finance from Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. She began her career as assistant to the personnel coordinator at Rio Grande in 1982 and was named personnel officer for the college the next year.

As MSU personnel officer, Howell will be responsible for monitoring the University's fringe benefits package, modifying and upgrading it when feasible. She also will be the liaison between the employees and insurance carriers and will design training and development programs for the staff.

"I'm pleased to have her on the staff," Moss said. "With her skills and background, she will be able to provide more assistance to our employees and to the operations of the University as a whole," he added.

The daughter of Alonzo E. Howell Jr. of Oak Hill, Ohio, she is a member of several professional organizations, including the College and University Personnel Association and the American Society for Personnel Administration.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Garry Barker, Vicki Cole, G.S. Mullins, and Jeanette Stone were the top four winning writers in the 1985 spring edition of Morehead State University's literary magazine "Inscape."

The magazine is published under the direction of Dr. Marc Glasser, MSU professor of English, and features poetry and prose submitted by MSU students. A committee screens the entries for publication. First and second place winners receive a cash prize of $50 and $25, respectively.

Garry Barker, Flemingsburg graduate student, placed first in the magazine's fiction contest with his short story, "Big Game." The Appalachian Development Center communications coordinator also has written a short story collection entitled "Fire on the Mountain," and his novel, "Copperhead Summer," is en route to the publishers. Barker received his bachelor of arts degree from Berea College. He is married to Anita Barker.

Vicki Cole of Hamilton, Ohio, a sophomore psychology major, won first place in the poetry contest with her poem, "Autumn Day Symphony." She is a member of the "Inscape" staff, the MSU Marching Band, the Honors Program, and Gamma Beta Phi, the Honor Society in Education. Cole is the daughter of Donald and Dorothy Cole.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University has moved to further reduce administrative costs by abolishing its Office of Community Services and transferring the functions to other campus agencies.

As a result, Keith Kappes has been assigned the additional duties of director of conferences while retaining his responsibilities as assistant to the president for university relations. Supervision of the MSU Speakers Bureau has been shifted to the Division of Academic Affairs and management of Button Auditorium has changed to the Department of Communications.

MSU President Herb. F. Reinhard said the action would save at least $30,000 yearly by eliminating two full-time staff positions, both of which were vacant at the time, but will not affect the "essential" functions of the former Office of Community Services.

"In addition to reducing our costs, this new arrangement will be more efficient and will allow us to give conferences a higher priority by making a cabinet officer directly responsible for the use of our facilities by external groups," Dr. Reinhard said.

Persons interested in scheduling a conference or other event at MSU are invited to call (606) 783-2031.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- A historian who has done extensive research on Appalachia and a professor of geography are the recipients of Morehead State University's top faculty awards for 1984-85.

Dr. Stuart Sprague, professor of history, was selected for the "Distinguished Researcher Award." The Distinguished Faculty Award went to Dr. Gary C. Cox, professor of geography.

Dr. Sprague, a member of MSU's faculty since 1968, holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Yale University and a doctorate from New York University.

Dr. Sprague, a native of Connecticut, has written numerous articles for professional journals and magazines on Appalachian history and is considered to be one of the pioneers in this field.

He has received several grants, including a Kentucky Humanities Council Grant for a project called "Kentucky Yesterdays," a series of local history articles published in numerous Eastern Kentucky newspapers. He has written six books.

Sprague is a member of the Southern Historical Association, Kentucky Historical Society and Society of Historians of the Early American Republic (charter member).

MSU MAY COMMENCEMENT, A Picture Story

Under sunny skies, a crowd of more than 7,000 people watched Morehead State University's spring graduates receive their degrees. The ceremony, held in Jayne Stadium Saturday, May 11, was the first outdoor commencement in the University's history. MSU President Herb. F. Reinhard conferred degrees on approximately 650 graduate and undergraduate students.

Cutlines

- 1 --Breaking the traditional solemnity of commencement, many MSU graduates decorated their mortar boards with special messages to family and friends in the stadium.
- 2 --President Reinhard urged the graduates to be proud of earning a degree as it was an achievement "still unique in our society." He also challenged them to strive for "excellence in all you do."
- 3 --MSU Board of Regents Chairman Robert M. Duncan of Inez cautioned the students not to let their quest for knowledge end with graduation.
- 4 --Student representative Rebecca R. Giles of Carrollton asked her classmates to join her in using "what we learned in the past and what we will learn in the future to have a positive impact on society."

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University's 1985 Summer Writers Workshop will offer participants credit in either creative or technical writing, according to Dr. Eugene O. Young, associate professor of English.

The workshop, scheduled for MSU's first summer session, June 5 - July 3, will feature South Carolina poet Bennie Lee Sinclair, Texas scholar Clinton Machann and his wife, editor Ginny Machann, as guest lecturers. Also on the guest faculty will be Danny Wright of IBM's technical writing division, and John Hickman, author of "For God, Country and the Hell of It."

The Machanns will provide information on writing, preparing and presenting articles for publication. Sinclair will discuss the creative process and Hickman will offer insights into publisher-writer relationships. Dr. Rose Orlich, MSU professor of English, will be in charge of the creative writing sessions. Young will head the technical writing section.

Another workshop highlight will be instruction in word processing with hands-on experience on Apple computers.

The workshop, which offers three hours of undergraduate or graduate credit, will meet from 1 to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Teachers and anyone interested in writing are encouraged to enroll in the workshop, Young said. It is also possible to enroll for only one week of the program and earn one hour of credit.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Alabama, the popular music group, has an album and a single currently on country music's "Top 20" charts and a Morehead State University alumna can claim a share of the credit.

MSU graduate Lisa Palas collaborated with songwriters John Garrard and Will Robinson to create Alabama's latest hit single, "There's No Way," released from the group's "40 Hour Week" album.

A former Miss Morehead State University, she is a Richmond native. The daughter of Ernest Palas and Nancye Thornberry, she earned a bachelor's degree in music composition and a master's degree in music with emphasis in higher education at MSU.

After working for two years in the MSU Admissions Office, she moved to Louisville, joining the Louisville Children's Theatre: Stage One as a writer and arranger. Three years ago she decided to move to Nashville to advance her songwriting career. She began working in the copyright office at the Nashville Songwriters Association and continued to pursue her dreams.

"I didn't really take my writing seriously until four years ago," said Palas. "But, I began working at it when I was a freshman in high school."

Her aunt, Dr. Louise Hickman, MSU coordinator of informational sciences and professor of business education, remembers music has always been a part of Palas' life.

Palas

"Even as a child, she would compose music for plays that she and her brother, sisters and cousins would put on during family gatherings." "It seems like there was never a family get together that Lisa didn't have something planned," said Hickman.

Palas says her education at MSU really made it all possible. "President and Mrs. Adron Doran were big influences on my life - even when I was a child - and they made it possible for me to attend MSU," she said. "So much of what I'm able to do today is from what I learned there."

Dr. Frederic Mueller, professor of music, was her private teacher and helped her in writing and composition. "When she came, she had marvelous ideas, but didn't know how to put them down. She soon learned and there wasn't anything she couldn't do," said Mueller. "Lisa had a tremendous 'imagery' of music and could recall it very well. She would write a composition in her mind at night and put the notes down on paper the next day," he said.

At MSU Palas performed with the Stage Band and wrote many of the compositions it played. She wrote her own song for the 1971 Miss Kentucky pageant. "Without so much support from the Music Department, especially Dr. Mueller, I wouldn't be where I am today," said Palas.

Since in Nashville, she has had several songs recorded. Country music artists like Tammy Wynette and Charlie McClain have recorded songs written by Pallas, but the first big break really came last spring when Billy "Crash" Craddock recorded and released one of her songs "Tell Me When I'm Hot."

Palas
3-3-3-3

In June 1984, Palas signed an exclusive contract with Alabama Band Music and the Maypop Publishing Company. "I had to shake myself and I still sometimes forget it's not a dream," she said. "Working with veteran songwriters John Garrard and Will Robinson has helped me to learn a lot," she added.

Palas still writes for the Louisville Children's Theatre and one day a week she does volunteer work for a Methodist church prayer line in Nashville.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Physical examinations for youngsters who wish to attend the 1985 National Youth Sports Program Camp at Morehead State University are scheduled May 25 and June 8, beginning at 9:30 a.m. in Laughlin Health Building.

The five-week day camp, sponsored by the federal government and the Rowan County school system, will open July 1 and continue through Aug. 2, according to Dr. Earl Bentley, MSU Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department head.

The camp is open to young people ages 10 through 16 without regard to race, color, sex, handicap or national origin. The program includes instruction and competition in a variety of sports activities, including tennis, basketball, swimming, soccer, canoeing, backpacking and volleyball. It also features special enrichment programs on health issues and job opportunities.

The camp is free to selected participants, Bentley said.

May 21, 1985
FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University's campus radio station, WMKY-FM, will celebrate its 20th anniversary in June with special activities on June 13, 15 and 29.

Launched from a student's term paper as a 10-watt, 4-hour-a-day station in Combs Building, the station today is a 50,000 watt, 18-hour-a-day operation serving 12 Eastern Kentucky counties and providing MSU radio/television students with hands-on broadcasting experience.

At 8 p.m. Thursday, June 13, FM-90 will present a special broadcast, highlighting events and programs from the past 20 years.

On Saturday, June 15, the station will hold an open house and dinner for its alumni. There will be audio and video exhibits, scrap-books and other memorabilia on display.

Scheduled Saturday, June 29, at 7:30 p.m. in Button Auditorium is a concert by Trapezoid sponsored by WMKY-FM in conjunction with MSU's Appalachian Celebration. Tickets are $5 each.

Trapezoid is nationally-recognized for its innovative playing style of American and British folk tunes. The group has appeared at the Kennedy Center, the National Cathedral, the Philadelphia Folk Festival and the Kentucky Music Weekend in Louisville.

Additional information on WMKY-FM's anniversary activities may be obtained by calling (606) 783-2001.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University President Herb. F. Reinhard Jr. will speak at Fleming-Neon High School's graduation program Monday, June 3, at 7:30 p.m. in the Roy T. Reasor Memorial Gymnasium.

He will be introduced by David D. Jones, school principal. Class valedictorians will be Darla Engle of Payne Gap and Beth Hall of Fleming. Both students have maintained a four point grade average.

Diplomas will be presented to 85 graduating seniors by Letcher County Superintendent of Schools Jack M. Burkich. Also, several scholarships will be awarded to graduates during the program. Senior Emmitt Quillen of Rockhouse will receive a Perfect Attendance Award.

Dr. Reinhard, a native of Covington, Ky., is completing his first year as MSU president. He came to the University last July from Slippery Rock University in Pennsylvania where he had been president since 1979. He previously was assistant to the president of Florida A&M and had held various administrative posts at the University of Tennessee, Western Carolina University and Florida State University.

He earned his doctorate in higher education from Indiana University and holds master's and bachelor's degrees in psychology from Florida State.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- The Claypool-Young Art Building at Morehead State University appears to be decorated with paper airplanes, but in reality its modern sculpture and part of the exhibit currently enriching the local MSU scenery.

"Plane" is a sculpture by Greely Myatt, an artist from Tupelo, Miss., and connected with the Mario Villa gallery of New Orleans, La. and the Art Couth gallery of Washington, D.C.

Made of vacuum-formed plastic and monofilament, "Plane" is a site related sculpture and valued at $2,000.

Myatt stated that the sculpture was created with the "desire to activate the ariel spaces between buildings or other urban structures," and that the "paper airplane shape seemed appropriate because it would not seem odd flying through the space."

This unique piece of sculpture was chosen from 150 others by artists from 10 different states, as far as New York and New Mexico. Slides of the sculptures were submitted on the request of Tom Sternal, head of the MSU Department of Art, and were reviewed before the final 16 sculptures were chosen that are now on loan to MSU.

The exhibit is the first of its kind in Eastern Kentucky and will remain in place at various sites across campus through Sept. 15, 1985. The exhibit is open to the public.

Sternal felt the exhibit's creation was necessary because "we (the Department of Art) have a responsibility to educate the campus and community to diversity in art," he said. He also stated that, "the exhibit will expand people's attitudes and impressions of what art is and particularly what sculpture is."

The sculptures are diverse and all extremely unique. The exhibit itself represents American sculpture of today and Sternal hopes "it will make the Department of Art more visible on campus and throughout the region."

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- William H. Walker Jr. of Washington, D.C., has been appointed university attorney at Morehead State University.

In the new cabinet-level post, Walker will report directly to MSU President Herb. F. Reinhard. He is the first attorney to be employed full-time as the University's staff legal counsel.

"Mr. Walker's background in business and government law and teaching made him an ideal appointee for this important post," said President Reinhard. "We are delighted that he has accepted this position."

Currently staff assistant and legal counsel to the Congressional Subcommittee on Census and Population, Walker is a former East Chicago City Civil Court Judge and assistant city attorney for Gary, Ind.

Listed in "Who's Who in American Law" and "Who's Who Among Black Americans," Walker was an assistant professor of law at Grand Valley State College, Allendale, Mich., from 1981 to 1983. He later became legal counsel and legislative analyst for U.S. Rep. Katie Hall of Indiana.

At Grand Valley, he coordinated the legal administration program, taught various law courses and developed a student internship in the state and federal court systems.

Walker holds a B.A. degree in philosophy from Michigan State University and a law degree from DePaul University where he was an honor student. He has done post-graduate study at Harvard University.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University has added more than 65 undergraduate and graduate classes for educators to its previously announced Summer I schedule.

"As a number of the region's elementary and secondary schools are in session later than usual this year, we have scheduled these additional classes to start on June 10, rather than on June 6 with other first session classes," MSU Department of Education Head Paul McGhee said. "Also they will meet on two Saturdays, June 15 and June 22," he added.

Additional courses will be available in educational administration, early childhood, elementary, secondary, special, adult and higher education and in psychology.

Some will be strictly classroom lecture, while others will be offered on the basis of directed research or independent study.

Teachers and other students may register for these classes from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Adron Doran University Center on June 5 or in the Office of the Registrar, Howell-McDowell Administration Building, on June 10.

EVENT: Ninth Annual Appalachian Celebration
DATE: June 24-29
SITE: MSU Campus

Morehead State University's biggest and best ever Appalachian Celebration will be here before long. The official dates are June 24-29, but there's a special sneak preview of contemporary Appalachian craft works on Sunday, June 23, at 7:30 p.m. in Claypool-Young Art Gallery.

Events scheduled range from workshops and exhibits to demonstrations of the region's traditional crafts and a variety of concerts, all designed to celebrate the mountain heritage and culture.

This packet contains news releases for your use on many of the events and an activities calendar to help you plan your coverage. For those of you in the electronic media, there's a 30-second Public Service Announcement which I hope you will air.

If I can be of any assistance, please don't hesitate to call my office. In fact, if you plan to be on campus, I hope you will give me an opportunity to get acquainted with you.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- A log house will be constructed on Morehead State University's campus during the upcoming Appalachian Celebration as part of a special summer workshop.

Basic introduction to log building will be open to 20 students. There is a $350 tuition fee. The class may be audited for a nominal fee. Classes begin June 22 and run through July 6, combining hands-on experience with lectures and films. Bill Peyton, an instructor from the B. Allen Mackie School of Log Building, Prince George, B.C., will teach the two-week course.

Registration will be conducted Saturday, June 22, from 2 to 5 p.m. in the lobby of the Appalachian Development Center. At 7 p.m., in Laughlin Health Building Room 215, there will be a slide and tape presentation which is open to the public.

This course is a cooperative effort among Frontier Housing, Inc., the Kentucky Housing Corporation, and MSU's Appalachian Development Center.

The log building constructed during the class will be moved and completed by Frontier Housing and sold to a low income family through a Kentucky Housing mortgage. Also, a number of full scholarships will be provided by Frontier Housing to train local workers to build homes from logs.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Registration is under way for summer computer camps offered by Morehead State University's Mathematics Department.

Five one-week camps, including a special day camp program, are scheduled for beginning computer students and two for advanced students, according to Dr. Glenn E. Johnston, MSU Mathematics Department head.

Enrollment will be limited to 24 students in each session in order to provide individualized instruction, Johnston said.

MSU math instructor Ted Pack will conduct the camps which will feature hands-on experience with computer programming in Basic language.

Campers will be introduced to commands available in Basic and will explore the logic and sequencing of programming, Johnston said. Also, they will have a chance to play some computer games and various special activities are scheduled for the evenings, he added.

Any youth with little or no experience in programming may attend the beginner camps. Those enrolling in advanced sessions should have prior camp experience or programming knowledge, Johnston said. The final session for advanced campers will be on programming in Pascal language.

Computer Camps will be conducted as follows:

June 9-14 -- Beginners Only Day Camp, Grades 6-9.

June 16-21 -- Beginners Residential Camp, Grades 7-9.

Computer Camps

EVENT: Martiki-MSU Mountaintop Agriculture Complex Field Day

DATE: Thursday, June 13, 1985

Dear News Media Representative:

Nearly three years ago many of you stood on a surface-mined reclaimed mountaintop nine miles southeast of Inez where the Martiki-Morehead State University Mountaintop Complex project was announced.

The project was conceived as a model for reclaiming surface-mined land for agricultural production. It is a joint effort of MSU, Martiki Coal Corporation and Pocahontas Development Corporation, a subsidiary of Norfolk-Southern Corporation.

We invite you to see firsthand the success of this vital program which has surpassed our original expectations. The complex includes acres of pasture land, fruit orchards and swine and poultry facilities.

On Thursday, June 13, we will host a Field Day at the complex. A number of federal, state and local agriculture officials, mining industry officials and community leaders from a 28-county area have been invited. The program includes a tour of the facility, lunch, an explanation of the project's significance and a brief news conference.

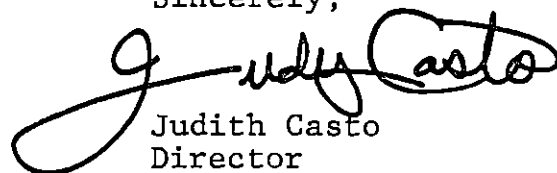

Transportation from MSU's campus will be provided. We will leave from Adron Doran University Center at 7:30 a.m. and return there no later than 6 p.m.

In order to plan transportation, we request that you call our Office of Public Information at (606) 783-2030, as soon as possible but not later than Friday, June 7.

If you live in the Inez vicinity or otherwise prefer to provide your own transportation, please let us know so we can arrange to meet you.

We hope you will join us for this exciting event.

Sincerely,

Judith Casto
Director

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Todd Thomas, a Morehead State University graduate, has been appointed executive director of the Corbin Tourism and Convention Commission.

A native of Corbin, Thomas will be the commission's first full-time director. He will assume the duties June 1.

In addition to developing tourism and convention trade in the Corbin area, he will manage the community's new Civic Center and assist in establishing a community theatre program.

"It is not often that one is offered such a challenging professional opportunity in his home community," Thomas said. "I believe the Corbin area has the potential for dramatic growth in its tourism program and I look forward to working with the civic leaders to further this development," he added.

Thomas earned his Bachelor of Arts degree in communications from Morehead State. He is a theatre graduate student at the University, where he has been a part-time staff member in the Office of University Relations for the past year. He also has worked with theatre companies in Texas, Ohio and Kentucky as a technician and actor.

Thomas is the son of Marion and Marie Thomas of Corbin.
