Department Asks Bids On Location

Apparently the Post Office department is planning on getting the construction of the new federal building and post office under way at the earliest possible moment, if the advertisement appearing in this issue of the News is any sign.

The advertisement is for the purchase or gift of a suitable lot in the city of Morehead that meets with the required specifications. The lot as stated in the advertisement may be either a corner lot or an inside lot.

The news of the selection of Morehead as a site for the new post office building came last Wednesday, just as the News was ready for the press. No details as to the size of the building were available at that time. Thus far, no plans or further details have come to hand, other than the advertisement for the purchase of the lot. Those who have lots available which they desire to sell or give to the United States government for the purpose should read the advertisement so as to learn whether or not their lot meets with the requirements of the government for the purpose.

Judging by the haste with which the advertisement was inserted, it is reasonable to suppose that construction work will be started at the earliest possible moment.

USE OF STADIUM FOR POLITICAL PURPOSES RECEIVE CRITICISM OF CITIZENS OF COUNTY

The fact that the Rhea barbeque or burgoon will be held on the stadium grounds with the crowd attending the use of the stadium, is creating considerable stir among the citizens of Morehead who feel that the stadium and only time that any part of the Morehead State Teachers College grounds or equipment has been brought into use for political purposes.

When Happy Chandler was here in May, some suggested that the arrangements be made for the use of the auditorium. Chandler's forces, however, agreed and believed that the Morehead State Teachers College should be kept completely out of the political situation then and at all times thereafter. They took the position that the schools of Kentucky were free schools, open to everybody and that they should not be made a political factory or ground. Evidently the Rhea forces are not averse to bringing the schools and colleges into politics with a vengeance, say the citizens, many of whom, including large numbers of Republicans are resentful of the high-handed manner in which the bid on the College is being conducted.

Changes To Take Effect At College

Warren C. Lappin, director of the Beckinghouse Training School, has returned from the University of Indiana, where he has been working on his doctorate. Chiles Van Antwerp, who acted in the director's place during the past year, has accepted the assistant headmastership of the County (Club Preparatory School for Boys in Kansas City, Mo. He will take up his duties there in September.

E. V. Hollis, head of the education department, has been granted a one-year sabbatical leave of absence by the Morehead Board of Regents. He will leave for Columbia University in September to complete work for the doctorate. In his absence R. D. Judd, extension department director, will act in his stead. No announcement has been made in regard to the replacement of Mr. Judd in the extension department.

DR. J. H. PAYNE RETURNS FROM EUROPE MONDAY

Dr. John Howard Payne, who has been traveling in Germany on a Carl Schurz Foundation award, sailed Friday, Aug. 16, from Hamburg, Germany, on S. S. Europa, a German liner and sister ship of the Bremen. Dr. Payne was accorded the privilege of piloting the latter ship for a full minute on the way to Europe. He is expected to resume his duties here Sept. 16.

Vacation Days Start At Morehead College

Vacation at the Morehead State Teachers College started last Friday, the close of the last summer term coming with the Commencement exercises which were held in the college auditorium Friday morning.

The commencement address was delivered by Dr. Edward Barlow Reiser, of Columbia University. Following the address by Dr. Reiser, Dean William E. Vaughan, acting president during the absence of Dr. J. H. Payne in Europe, presented the thirty eight graduates of the college with their degrees.

Most of the faculty members of the college have already left on their vacations which will continue until the opening of the fall semester on September 16.

As usual, when the college term is over, local people so far as possible, are also taking their vacations. Many of the homes are undergoing repairs, business places are being modeled and the atmosphere of hanges prevails.

WALTER CARR, FISHER, GETS WHALE OF CATCH

Walter Winston Carr, who, with Miss Nelle Cassidy and her brother Roy has been camping for the past week on Licking River, has returned home today, where he was the champion fisherman of Licking River.

Walter on one of his fishing trips caught what he believed to be a first cousin to a whale. When he landed the big fish he found it weighed six pounds.

EVERETT CASKEY GETS CHAUFFEUR POSITION

Everett Caskey recently received an appointment, as chauffeur at the narcotic hospital in Lexington and left the first of this week to assume his duties in that capacity. Mr. Caskey is one of the few civil service chauffeurs in this section and received his appointment through that division.

His brother Chalmers Caskey received a similar appointment two weeks ago and has been on duty since that time.

Nephew Of Local Woman Is Drowned

D. A. Cooksey of Ashland, a nephew of Mrs. W. L. Jays of this city was found dead in the Ohio River on Tuesday night last. Mr. Cooksey had disappeared from his home Saturday, leaving on his way to his work with the C. & O. and his parents became alarmed when he did not return at the expected time. Later his car with his clothing was found near the place he usually parked. It was thought at that time that he was drowned, when the body was found a trifle on his head led to the theory that he had met with foul play.

While Mr. Cooksey was not known personally, his mother, who is a sister of Mrs. Jays, was a frequent visitor in this city where she had many friends.

MISS LUCY DAY BREAKS ARM IN FALL SUNDAY

Miss Lucy Day suffered a broken right arm Sunday evening when she fell from a bunk to the floor. Miss Day's arm was bent under her in such a way that both bones in the lower arm were broken.

W. E. Proctor Makes Haul From County

At a special meeting of the Rowan County Fiscal Court held on August 5, claims in the amount of $368.90 were allotted to the credit of County Attorney W. E. Proctor. Most of the claims were for rentals on a building occupied by a number of pauper families, the old tin building on Railroad Street.

The following is the court order allowing the claims.

Claim of W. E. Proctor for house rent for the following families.

Mrs. Ed McGlothlin	$50.00
George McGlothlin	$95.00
Dick Gilliam	$10.00
Jim McMasters	$15.00
Allen Mays	$86.00

No statement was made as to the length of time for which the rentals were paid.

The motion to pay the claim was made by Square J. B. Rose, seconded by Squire W. F. Kegley and the vote was unanimous to pay.

Further claims allowed Proctor at the same time were as follows:

Rental for storage space for K. E. A. material	$50.00
Expenses including in making trip to Frankfort to Highway Commission meeting	$61.90

The record did not show how many claims had been made or what was the expense item were for.

The payment of the above claims has created considerable comment among the citizens of Rowan County. Many appear to think that the payment of the claims to a man already holding a county office is contrary to the law, since it would seem to involve a contract with an office holder.

The law specifically states that no contract may be made with any incumbent of any office for any purpose whatsoever.

WALLIS BACKS CHANDLER AT PARIS RALLY

Gives Versailles Candidate Complete Endorsement In Introduction.

Paris, Ky.—Delegations from all sections of Kentucky greeted Leland G. A. B. (Happy) Chandler when he opened his campaign here Friday night. Frederick A. Wallis, third in line in the first primary, introduced Mr. Chandler and predicted he would be the next Governor.

For an hour, or more after the speech crowds filled the Bourbon Court House, pledging their support to the Lieutenant Governor and forecasting substantial gains for him in the run-off.

His address follows:

"Let me express my appreciation for the support which Mr. Wallis has rendered me in the run-off primary. Although our relations were as pleasant as could be during this primary that ended on August 3, I am sure that his decision was in no sense influenced by any feeling of friendship for me. During the campaign Mr. Wallis stood for certain ideas and ideals in the conduct of your government in Frankfort. I, too, stood for certain definite ideas and ideals of what ought to be done at Frankfort. It was gratifying to me all during the campaign that Mr. Wallis and I were in accord upon the principal issues of the campaign. I opposed the sales tax during the campaign that I had opposed it for more than three years while I served as your Lieutenant Governor at Frankfort. Mr. Wallis was opposed to the sales tax, charging as I had charged that it was the most unjust and unequal distribution of the tax since that could be thought of. He said that it was unjust and unfair to place the burden of taxation on those least able to pay it. I have held and now hold those same views.

"On the primary issue we were together when in 1934 a compulsory primary law was pending in the State Senate and in the vote, it was your Lieutenant Governor, I believe, my right to cast a vote on that legislation.

HON. GEORGE H. GOODMAN, HEAD OF KERA PROGRAM SAYS NO POLITICS ALLOWED

Reports have come to this office stating that many of the Rhea workers in this community have threatened the relief workers with the statement that if Chandler was nominated relief would be cut off in the state. That statement is false. It has been made in a deliberate misrepresentation of facts. Neither Mr. Chandler, Mr. Rhea nor Mr. Swope will have a thing to do with the carrying on of relief.

As a matter of fact the W. P. A. work when it is started in this county, will be absolutely kept out of politics. Any one who attempts to use the W. P. A. which is replacing relief in the state, for any political candidate is subject to a sentence of two years in the federal penitentiary, according to a letter from Hon. George H. Goodman, head of relief in Kentucky.

Anyone who is approached by any member of any political faction with such a statement should report it at once to Mr. Goodman who will investigate the matter with a view of enforcing the law. Mr. Goodman's letter follows:

August 13, 1935.

Dear Mr. Wilson

This will acknowledge your letter of August 10th and advise you that both the relief program and the proposed works program in Kentucky will not hinge on who may or who may not be a Democratic nominee.

All our employees are instructed to vote as they please and keep their mouths shut regarding politics—this because of the character of work we are engaged in. They have been instructed to advise the clients to pay no attention to promises or threats made by people claiming to represent any particular candidate or Party. The President definitely stated his position in this connection, and I am happy to say that it agrees with my own attitude.

I think you will understand that we should not be held responsible for the statements of irresponsible people, and in one way or another and at one time or another, every possible approach of a political kind seems to be made to our clients.

You will be interested to know that under the specific terms of the 1935 Emergency Appropriation Act, under which the Works Progress Administration is operating, political intimidation and promises are specifically prohibited and can and will be proceeded against in the Federal Courts.

Trusting, this satisfactorily answers your letter, I am, Yours truly,
Geo. H. Goodman, State Administrator.

BEEF AND BULL TO FEATURE PROGRAM AT RHEA RALLY TO BE HELD HERE FRIDAY

Circus Days are here again and Rowan County is not to be outdone by Huzenbach-Wallace-Sells For sale or Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey, Rowan county will stage a circus of its own here Friday afternoon, with no night performance.

The Rhea-Lafont big three ringed event will take place here on Friday afternoon. The circus will open with a parade of all the hirings and state employees who have already been notified to be present in numbers. Following the parade, the Jayne Memorial Stadium is scheduled to be the site of the big 10-0-0 parade will head for the grounds early enough to dish out the usual beef broth, which according to approval will not be burgoon but barbeque.

At noon they will feed them beef. And immediately after, while they are still in a sort of a semi-torpid condition the Congressman from the 17th District, Fred M. Vinson and Tom Rhea will feed em on "bull" for the balance of the afternoon. The question is which will be the most popular, Beef or Bull?

A large crowd is expected to be present. Why not? Its a chance for a free feed and anybody likes a free feed. We are seriously considering being present ourselves, do our share, if we have a share coming to us.

Go to it boys. Happy Chandler will say it with flowers in September.

Wonder how Tom will justify the troops in Harlan county? It is our opinion that the mountain people will seriously resent the action they took to prevent those Harlan county folks from voting for their choice for Governor. They will say it with ballots on September 7.

W. D. SCROGGINS FRESH FROM BROADWAY GAME

W. D. "Bill" "Cap" Scroggins returned Sat. from New York City, where he has been attending Columbia University for the past summer. Mr. Scroggins has been taking up his work in the physical education department at Columbia in order to better fit himself to carry on his work as freshman coach at the Morehead State Teachers College for the coming year.

College Registration Opens September 13

Registration at the Morehead State Teachers College for upper classes has been scheduled for Monday Sept. 16, according to Dean W. H. Vaughan.

Freshmen will be expected to enroll on Friday, Sept. 13, for special orientation exercises. Placement examinations for first year men and women will be conducted Saturday morning. Other features of the week-end program are a buffet supper, free picture show and variety services.

A record-breaking enrollment is expected, due to the normal growth of the school and the higher standards for teaching, provided for in the revised school code.

COLLEGE GETS INCREASE IN FEDERAL ALLOTMENTS

Word received here from federal officials indicated that the allotment for 72 needy students of the Morehead State Teachers College would be provided by the National Youth Administration for the purpose of furthering the education of worthy students. The allotment is based on 12 percent of the previous fall enrollment.

MUDSLINGING OR VILLIFICATION?

Much capital is being made or being attempted to be made on the hue and cry of "mud slinging and villification" by Happy Chandler and his speakers in this and the recent campaign.

Just what is villification?

What is mud-slinging?

When a doctor pronounces a man ill with appendicitis, is that doctor slinging mud?

When he says the patient has a weak heart, is that villification?

When he pronounces the man or woman ill with tuberculosis, is he offending the patient by telling the truth?

Does the patient have leprosy, or gangrenous infection? If so, must the doctor politely say there is nothing the matter, that he is in excellent condition, that he will recover by following the same treatment, and living the same life under the same conditions as he has in the past?

Or if the doctor finds a cancerous growth on the breast of his patient, should he remain discretely silent and permit that cancerous growth to eat in and eventually destroy the very life of his patient?

Or should he, after carefully diagnosing a case call it by its true name and then set about destroying it to the best of his ability?

When the doctor does so diagnose a case and call it by its true name, is that doctor slinging mud at his patient? Is he villifying the one who has gone to him for a remedy and cure?

So it is with Happy Chandler. In his mind and the minds of his supporters, Kentucky is suffering from a dread disease from a complication of diseases. The cancer of Laffoonism is eating away at the breast of the Commonwealth of Kentucky. It is sapping Kentucky's life blood. It is gnawing at the very foundation of the vitality of the State.

It is villification for him to state in plain language that all may understand, what he considers to be wrong with the great Commonwealth?

Is it villification, is it mudslinging to state that the Laffoon-Rhea machine is the greatest danger that has ever threatened the citizens of the state?

Is it mud-slinging to tell the truth about the election frauds that apparently were practiced when over half of the voters in Logan county destroyed the respect for the election laws of Kentucky by voting in the recent primary?

Is it villification to resent openly and on the platform, the flagrant use of troops in Harlan county, where thousands were kept from the polls on August 3 by the Rhea-Laffoon controlled militia, for the sole purpose of holding down the Chandler majority?

Is it mud-slinging to place the parentage of the twin babies on the doorstep of the men responsible for their being?

Is it villification to resent the methods used in obtaining the passage of the Sales Tax, first by killing ruthlessly the attempts of Happy Chandler and the majority of the Democrats in the Legislature to pass any and all construction tax measures, and then, by making beggars of the school teachers of the state, that great body of men and women to whom we entrust the destinies of our children, force them to make a concerted drive on Frankfort beseeching that the Legislature give them their salaries even at the cost of the very children whom they teach?

Is it mud-slinging to bare the wounds of Kentucky that all may see??

Is it villification to fraud the misrepresentations of the Rhea forces with regard to Old Age Pensions, with regard to relief, with regard to the schools, for what they are?

Is it mud-slinging to say that the promises or roads and highways, jobs and what not, made for the sole purpose of gaining votes, promises which if kept would require that the present administration be kept in power for the next hundred years. Is it mud-slinging to state that those are precampaign promises and will be unfulfilled after the election? Is it villification to say that relief could have and would have been kept up if the Sales Tax had never been passed? Is it mud-slinging to say that other taxes were offered and refused that would have more than taken care of the expenses of the state had they been considered and passed?

We ask the people of Kentucky to decide the question. Is it mud-slinging to tell the truth, even though that truth bears conditions as they exist? Is it villification to show the scars left on the breast and through the length and breadth of Kentucky, by the present administration?

Again we ask, "Just what is mudslinging?"

And just what is villification?"

And the answer must be that if Ruby Laffoon and Tom Rhea had not created the mud by their acts there could be no mud to sling.

A Few Of The 'Wise Cracks' Of Will Rogers

Will Rogers left the world a rich legacy of spontaneous humor.

He expressed the hope a few years ago that his gravestone would bear this epitaph: "I joke about every prominent man of my time, but I never met a man I didn't like."

And when you come around to my grave, he added, you'll probably find me sitting there proudly reading it."

Some of his regarded "wise-cracks" follow:

"We landed at Cairo but I didn't go out to see that thing—what do they call it, the Sphinx. I figured anyhow I had just seen Cal Coolidge not long ago."

"The Republicans have a habit of having three bad years, and one good one, and the good one always happens election year."

"Argentina exports wheat, meat and gigoloes, and the United States puts a tariff on the wrong two."

"Describing the London naval conference of 1930": "We stood through one speech, ference of 1930."

"He was strongly opposed to formal attire and at dinner in Spain, Trinidad, he expressed his opinion of boiled shirts. Shortly afterward the Chinese minister to Cuba, who had disappeared during the discourse, returned wearing a silk suit."

"Commenting on Andrew Mellon's appointment as ambassador to the Court of St. James'":

"Why, a man, with as much money as Andy could be popular anywhere."

"Discussing world opinion: "If the weather isn't right, we did it. If there are too many debts, it is our fault. If the Prince of Wales doesn't marry, we are to blame."

Senator Paul Harrison of Mississippi relates that he warned Rogers of the dangers of flying.

He merely told me, the senator said, that I would be killed some time trying to hit a golf ball.

"When someone asked him what he did on a trip to several cities he replied:

Just blathered. You don't know what blathering is? Why, that's what, we are doing right now."

"To Mrs. Grace Coolidge: "Well, Grace, you can imitate 'ol' voice better'n' me, but look what you do to go through to leave it."

"Concerning Lady Astor: "Everytime she comes to and take I try to get her to stand up and take a bow, but she won't. And over in the house of commons they can't get her to sit down."

"The Mongolian attacked and abetted the Chinese."

"When he was being seriously considered for the presidential nomination in 1931:

"A comedian can only last till he takes himself serious or his audience takes him serious and I don't want anyone to take me serious."

"Announcement made this week of the death of Patricia Ann Young of Mr. and Mrs. Z. T. Young.

"Mrs. Zora Pearl Foreman and Mr. Roosevelt Crosswhite, of Paragon were united in marriage at the home of Mrs. R. Alfrey at Mt. Hope on Sunday evening with Rev. Alfrey officiating."

"The marriage of Miss Louise Coleman Oreat to Thomas Grubbs Hoffmann was solemnized at 8 o'clock Thursday evening at the First Baptist Church in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends."

"Prof. and Mrs. C. O. Peratt and daughter, Frances returned to Morehead Tuesday night after having spent the past year in New York City, where Prof. Peratt has just completed the residence work on his Ph. D. degree."

"Miss Thelma Allen entertained the members of the Bridge Club Monday evening at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Allen."

"Mr. and Mrs. Russell Meadows and Miss Edna McDaniel entertained a number of friends at a lawn party at the home of Mrs. Meadows parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Caudill, last Friday night."

"The three new councilmen elected by the governor are M. C. Croxley, P. Wheeler and J. H. Pettry."

"John B. Deems, 80, a prominent Olive Hill resident and former merchant, died at his home Monday morning at 11 o'clock from a heart attack."

A Washington Snapshot

Maybe you are not familiar with the word "chemurgic." It is the latest creation to stir Washington, and you will hear more about it. For it is a coined word symbolic of the most recent effort to bring some sort of economic equilibrium to the farmer. Much will be written about it in the next few months.

Quietly for months an expanding effort has been going forward to form a new economic triunity, agriculture, industry and science, dedicated to the time, honoring farm hardheaded business men who prefer to deal with facts rather than fancies, who seek to help the farmer without resorting to alluring panaceas, by appealing to Washington for legislation, or by pointing glittering generalities which usually have as their goal votes rather than real and lasting aid to the farmer.

Briefly the movement is intended to advance the industrial use of farm products through applied science as the connecting link, to make the farm something more than a food factory. It seeks to increase farm income not by tricky schemes which always break down in the end, but by making profitable use of surplus and surplus crops. "Chemurgic" is a coined word from "chemistry" and "ergon" meaning work. When combined it literally means chemistry at work. The word was known only to a small group of scientists until a remarkable meeting of 300 prominent business men and industrialists who met a few weeks ago to seek a way out for the farmer without restoring to politics.

Excessive use of hot water tends to destroy the fiber in tooth brush bristles. They should never be boiled. Soaking in a strong solution of cold salt water for two or three hours will help make the bristles flexible and pliable.

That alfalfa depletes fertility is indicated by top-dressing tests at the Western Kentucky Experiment Station. Top dressing with superphosphate increased the yield by 5-82 pounds in three years, and adding potash to the phosphate jump the yield still more.

The revival of work horse and mule breeding is said to be the greatest in 10 years with the estimated production of 900,000 foals this year. Even this is 200,000 less than the yearly death-rate of farm work stock.

 DR. N. C. MARSH
 CHIROPRACTOR
 Sun Heat and Electrical Treatment

May I assume that you heeded my advice last week? If you didn't I know that your child is partly ready to be educated. His nose and throat are normal. His teeth are in good condition. His vision is good, and his ears are not plugged with wax.

There are two more things you should do. One of them I shall discuss next week. This time may I strongly urge you to have your child vaccinated against diphtheria, small pox, provided of course, he is not already protected.

In addition to parental neglect, which I mentioned last week, we get into this sort of thing because there is a tendency to think, "Oh that won't happen to my child." It is nice to be optimistic, but it isn't always being practical. We realize this when disease strikes suddenly, and we're not effective as preventive measures. Only wise action brings security.

Our second fault, altogether too common, is to believe that smallpox and diphtheria have disappeared before the march of science. True, science has shown us how we may conquer these diseases, but it remains for us to take the necessary steps. The future remains in the hands of parents, and these terrible diseases can be wiped off the record forever. As long as you don't, your children are in danger.

I can give you no better advice than this, "Consult your family physician or town health officer, and do it before school opens."

Sad. Sad indeed Vance. My heart bleeds for you, don't you know. Still, there's some simple explanation. It's a deucedly complicated puzzle—a cryptogram with apparently meaningless words. But once we have the key letter, the rest of it will fall into place. And the key letter may be the Scottie. I'm hopin' for the best. You might confide in me exact condition of the Coe canine tonight.

There's little to confide, Markham told him acerbically. Heats has done the usual things and gone home. However, he's left two men on guard, one the street and one at the rear of the house. Grassi has remained in his room all day—Heath's last report to me was that the gentleman had gone to bed. The lock on his door, by the way, has been fixed so he'll probably live the night through. Miss Lake came in just as the sergeant was going. By the way, she took the news of Grassi's stabbing rather hard.

Vance looked up quickly. I say, that's most interesting. The Chinaman did not leave the house, Markham continued, and Heath is preferred to remain until the guilty person has been brought to justice.

I do hope he hasn't too long as Vance sighed, but it's just as well if Liang stays, but it's just as well that he's going to be most helpful to us anon. And you, Markham, old dear, what have you been doing? Milk investigations, I suppose, and committees of eminent men who wish to uplift the drama—and interviews with aldermen.

That's about all, Markham confessed. What would you have suggested?

Really, Markham, I hadn't a suggestion today. Vance leaned back in his chair. But tomorrow— You're so helpful and satisfying, Markham snapped.

At nine o'clock the following morning Vance called at the office of the American Kennel club, and explained to the secretary, Mr. Percy B. Rice, the nature of the information he sought. Mr. Rice introduced him to Mrs. Del Camp, the head of the show department. Del Camp, when Mr. Rice explained to her what Vance wanted, found the marked Englewode catalogue. Turning to the Scotch terrier section, she ran her finger down the list of Puppy Bitch entries until she came to the winner of the class. The owner's name was given as Julius Higginbottom, and the name of the dog itself as Miss Mac Tavish. They followed the A. K. C. Standard Book number and the date of birth, November 20 of the preceding year. The sire of the bitch was given as Champion Grassi, and the dam as Lauriston Lovelace. The breeder was Henry D. Vance made a note of these data, and expressed his admiration for the A. K. C. system.

When we arrived at the district attorney's office on the fourth floor of the criminal court building, Markham was in conference with Sergeant Heath. Swacker, the district attorney's secretary, ushered us immediately into Markham's private office.

Things are moving, Vance said, and took out of his cigarette case. I have just come from the American Kennel club and have discovered a most interesting information. The wounded Scottie, Markham, belong to none other than Julius Higginbottom. And who might he be, Vance? And why does the fact interest you? I have met Higginbottom. He's a member of the Crestview Country club, and he has a large country estate at Mount Vernon, where he spends his entire time living what he imagines to be the life of a country gentleman.

Heath sat forward in his chair. It was the Crestview Country club at Mount Vernon, the interested where Miss Lake and Grassi went to a dance Wednesday night.

And that's not all Sergeant, Vance sprawled luxuriously in his chair and took a deep inhalation. Higginbottom knew Archer Coe very well. Several years ago Higginbottom inherited, from an aunt, a very fine collection of early Chinese paintings, many of which Coe bought from him at a preposterously low price. Higginbottom is something of a grey-bird—the sporting type of man—and knew nothing of the value of the paintings. After he had sold them to Coe he learned from a dealer that they were very valuable, and there was consequent talk, in certain New York art circles, to the effect that Coe had put over a shrewd and somewhat unscrupulous deal on Higginbottom. Higginbottom, as I know, took the matter up with Coe, but without any success, and there has been a certain amount of bad blood between them ever since. Higginbottom was a major in the World War and is a hotheaded sort of a chap.

Markham beat a nervous tattoo on the desk. Well, where does that get us? asked. Are you implying that Higginbottom come down from Mount Vernon with his dog and murdered Coe?

Good Lord no! Vance made a slight gesture of annoyance. I'm not implying anything. I am merely saying that I find the relationship reported in my findings. But I must return to the Scottie and Major Higginbottom and Archer Coe a bit later. I'm motoring immediately to Mount Vernon, where I hope to have polite and serious—and, I trust, illuminating—intercourse with the major concerning Miss Mac Tavish. Would you care to hear the result of my special endeavors?

I'll be here all afternoon, Markham answered promptly.

It was a pleasant drive to Mount Vernon, in the brisk October air. We had little difficulty in finding the Higginbottom estate, and we were lucky enough to find the major sitting here in the big colonial front porch. He welcomed Vance effusively and invited us to sit and have a high ball.

To what do I owe the honor of this call, sir? He spoke with hospitable good nature. I am really delighted. You should come oftener. I'd be charmed, Vance sat down beside a small glass table, but to-day, Major, it's just a bit of business here in a little matter of business. The truth is, I'm dashed interested in a Scottie bitch belonging to you, Miss Mac Tavish—who was shown at Englewode.

At the mention of the dog's name Higginbottom gave a loud cough, pushed his chair back with a scraggly sound, and glanced over his shoulder to the open window leading into the house. His tone seemed deeply perturbed, and his nose of voice and his manner, when he answered, struck me as most peculiar.

Yes, years of cough he muttered, rising and walking toward the front steps. I rarely go to tog shows any more. By the way, Mr. Vance, I want to show you my roses. And he walked down the stairs toward a small rose garden at the right. Vance lifted his eyebrows in mild astonishment and followed his host.

Farm And Agriculture News

In the past few weeks have been discussed measures for all winter storage of those vegetables that may be so stored. Today, emergency methods for saving for a time those crops which, because of their nature, cannot be stored for long periods will be covered. They are tomatoes, peppers, the melons, beans, Chinese cabbage and celery.

At frost time, every year many gardeners use late tomato plants heavily laden with fruit that has reached good size, but which is still green, or perhaps at the "white" stage. The obvious thing to do is to pick whatever tomatoes are large enough to use and spread them out on windowills to ripen, but this is messy. A better way is to use the hot bed or the cold frame, usually uncoupled at this season, spreading a layer of straw over the bottom, then the tomatoes, no more than three deep, and then loose straw, covering the whole with the sash. Following either of these methods, the fruit, particularly the larger specimens, will take on the color of ripeness, but in quality and flavor.

A way to save tomatoes and really ripen them, is to pull the entire set, and hang them to ceiling rafters in the farm building, or strutting in the barn building. The sap of the plants will be drawn into the fruits which will ripen quite satisfactorily with a minimum of manure and with much of the fresh tomato flavor retained.

Peppers are another crop that present the same kind of difficulty, their period of heaviest bearing coming just as frost threatens. A "warm" crop, even a mild frost will destroy them. Any of the methods just enumerated for tomatoes will serve to keep peppers, but inasmuch as peppers need not be "ripe," but may be utilized still green, the problem is simplified to the extent that only winter or freezing need be guarded against. Putting them in baskets or boxes in a cellar or other room where the atmosphere is not excessively dry and where temperature below freezing does not occur. If they lose turgidity they may be restored by wrapping them in damp cloths, or immersing them in water.

The melons, too, are warm crops, ripened by even light frosts. While it is true that melons fully ripened on vines are the best, they are ripened quite satisfactorily off the vine, by plugging them in boxes of sand or fine sawdust, observing the precaution that they do not freeze. Watermelons will ripen, almost whatever their size, but cantaloupes must have reached their "half ship" stage, recognized by half of the stem breaking clean and leaving a scar when the stem is snapped. Another gauge is the netting; the veins should be full.

The last planting of beans is some times caught by frost, and the beans may be stripped and the vines brought under cover, they must be properly used. This is not always desirable or even convenient. Beans may be saved at least to the extent of lengthening their using time by putting the pulled vines in circular piles, built in layers, the tips toward the center of the piles. Turgidity is preserved by the means drawing the sap of the plants and even growth may take place.

Chinese cabbage may be stored in the same manner in which ordinary cabbage is kept, but only for a short time. A good way for a short time to store Chinese cabbage is to re-set the plants carefully lifted deep, with the roots, in boxes of earth, or into the earthen cellar floor direct, and watering copiously, but only the roots. If the cellar is dark or almost so, a lovely bleached product will result. The same method may be followed in storing celery, particularly of the short season variety, which keep poorly in "trenches," the orthodox manner of storing.

Wallis Position Is Cleared Up In Address

To the Democratic voters of Kentucky:

I am deeply appreciative of the confidence reposed in me by the nearly 40,000 Democratic voters who so loyally supported my candidacy for Governor in the recent primary. This generous expression of confidence voluntarily accorded me by the Kentucky voters, representing the best citizenship of the State, imposes upon me the obligation to use what influence I may have to bring about the nomination of that candidate whom I believe will more honestly carry out those ideals and principles of State government for which I stand and hold essentially fundamental.

My dominant desire and passion for Kentucky is that she may have a clean, constructive and economical business administration. I have only begun to fight for measures that I am sure will result in the greatest benefits to the citizens. Furthermore, I am not unmindful of Kentucky's strategic position in pointing out the way for the success of the Democratic Party in the forthcoming national campaign. A Democratic victory in Kentucky in November is extremely important for the reason it will point the way to renomination and re election next year of our illustrious President, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

I have given serious and conscientious consideration to the course I should pursue in the run-off primary on September 7, and I am convinced that the best interest of the people of Kentucky will be more adequately served by the nomination and election of Lieut. Gov. A. B. Chandler. I believe he will be thousands of votes stronger in November than would be his opponent, because he favored the compulsory primary law and consistently and courageously opposed the unjust and discriminating burden of the sales tax. Therefore, pledges Mr. Chandler my active support in this gubernatorial campaign.

BEEF AND BULL

(Continued From Page One) were not cheated out of their promised per capita. Ask him who it was forced over the present per capita of $11.60.

After you have asked him these questions, and after he has answered you will then be able to go to the records and see for your self that the school per capita is now $11.60 solely because the Chandler forces forced it over.

It would be possible to go on indefinitely with the argument. But if Tom answers the question proposed above honestly, there will be little else for any thinking person to do, except vote for Happy Chandler.

WALLIS BACKS/CHANDLER

(Continued From Page One) sation. I voted for a compulsory primary law. A year later when the rising tide of sentiment throughout the State was demanding that the State Committee call a primary election rather than a convention for the selection of the State ticket, Mr. Wallis openly favored the primary.

Against Chvencation

"When the committee met at Frankfort, Mr. Wallis was there appealing to the voters in private conversation and in a formal speech to give the people what they were demanding—the right to select their business in a primary. When the campaign got under way, Mr. Wallis and I stood on the same platform on what we conceived to be the principal issues of this campaign. He was against the sales tax. He favored the primary law, and I favored the primary law, it was for establishing an efficient and honest business administration, and so was I.

You can understand then how gratified I am that because he favored these things, as I favored them he now favors my nomination by the Democracy of Kentucky. Mr. Wallis and I both can find a gratification in the fact that our combined vote exceeded that of the candidate who passed the sales tax and attempted to force a convention by Mr. Rhea.

Use Of Troops

"In the primary which was held on August 3, Mr. Wallis and I watched two happenings in far apart sections of the State which had been eliminated would have caused me to be militant in his support; and, he being eliminated compelled him to be for me. Mr. Wallis could not approve the use of troops in Harlan County any more than I could. He could no more excuse the padded and fraudulent election in Logan County than I could. I say to you that the Democrats of Kentucky should settle these two issues in the September primary. If they don't, the Republicans will face us with them from every stump in Kentucky in November. It is important that these two questions be settled and settled in such a way that they will never be raised by the enemy in November.

"Three days before the August primary at a meeting in Rhea headquarters in Louisville, the plan to send troops into Harlan County to intimidate the voters of that county was hatched and perfected. General Denhardt left Rhea headquarters and went to Frankfort.

"Two nights later he set out from Frankfort with 700 soldiers of Government, armed with pistols, army rifles, bayonets and riot clubs. When he reached Harlan County, he sent closed through the Federal Link these soldiers in groups of from six to fifty to the various precincts of the county. There they unlawfully invaded the election booths, shook the ballot boxes, examined the ballot books, stationed themselves within the voting rooms in open violation of the law. They stayed there all day, armed to the teeth, taking the name of every voter who approached to exercise his suffrage.

Flagrant Violation

"Can you think of any more flagrant violation of the constitutional rights of the citizens than for armed soldiers to station themselves at the voting booths inside the voting room and demand of each voter his name? What was the purpose of that? ...

"Is the answer to be found in the fact that the Harlan County vote was 20 per cent under the vote it gave to President Roosevelt in 1932? "Did Mr. Denhardt have in mind when he left Frankfort with 700 armed soldiers that possibly he could keep the election officers in several precincts from holding the election? "What is what happened and I believe that is what was wanted to happen, what he planned to happen and the voting rooms in violation of the law.

"Now at the other end of the State thirty-five miles from where Mr. Denhardt lives, a far different thing happened on that election day. In Logan County, Mr. Rhea's home county, there were other happenings that bore every indication of having been well planned. But let me stop to tell you a minute about Bourbon County and Woodford County. Wallis lived here and was popular here, there was no outrageous increase in the size of the vote. In Woodford County, where I live, there was no unexplained increase in the size of the vote. Bourbon County's vote and Woodford County's vote was slightly less than the vote polled for President Roosevelt, in 1932, but in Logan County the vote polled two Saturdays ago exceeded the Roosevelt vote of 1932 by more than 68 per cent and was 4,000 more than had ever been polled in Logan County for any candidate for Congress or Senator since Logan County has been a part of the State of Kentucky.

Rapid Voting

"There are 3,297 men, women and children, black and white, Democrats and Republicans, in the town of Russellville. Six voting precincts in Russellville polled 4,862 votes on Saturday, two weeks ago. There are two Magisterial Districts in Logan County which take in all of the city of Russellville and much of the nearby outlying territory. The 1930 Federal census was that there were 6,866 men, women and children, black and white, Republicans and Democrats, who lived in these two Magisterial Districts. The six voting precincts in Russellville extend out into the county like the two Magisterial Districts extend out into the county. In the six voting precincts in Russellville there were 4,862 votes cast. In one precinct in Russellville 1,145 persons voted in the primary."

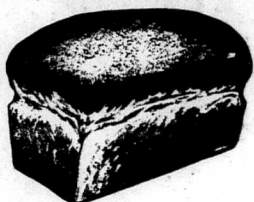

"That means that every thirty-two seconds the clerk of the election in that precinct had to write the voter's name at the top of the ballot, write his name at the stub at the bottom of the ballot, and write his own, the clerk's name, across the back of the ballot, the voter had to enter the booth, cast his ballot, return, tear off and make way for another voter.

"In another precinct, 1,046 persons filed through the election room in Logan County and voted that day. That vote in these two Logan County precincts sets a new all-time high record for precinct votes in Kentucky.

"But there is another glaring illustration of the fraud that was practiced in Logan County. Men who were candidates for minor offices, some of whom never set feet in Logan County in their lives, who were not known to fifty men in Logan County, are credited by the election returns from that county with having received more votes than Franklin Roosevelt received there in 1932 when he was a candidate. These strangers are credited with having received more votes than Governor Laffoon polled there in 1931 when he was a candidate for Governor.

"Is there anyone who believes that such a record is a true record and an honest vote? Does anyone believe that the election in Logan County was straight, proper and honest and that it reflects the wishes of the citizens of Logan County? I repeat that we had as well have these things settled in this Democratic Primary as to let the Republicans use them against us in November."

Let's All Go To Kentucky's Greatest Show

Unquestionably the Kentucky State Fair is Kentucky's greatest show of interest to all Kentuckians. More particularly is it for the farmer, the stockman, the horse fanciers and the women of the state. The Horse Show is the acknowledged world's greatest array of blooded horse flesh ever gotten together. Same may be said of the show of colts known as the American Saddle Horse and Breeder's Futurity Show.

In every way the State Fair this year will be so fine a show for everyone that all who can possibly do so should attend. There is no place in all the world where so many Kentuckians can get together for annually meetings and greeting their old friends and making new ones.

Come and let's all have a good time together. It's your Fair - B. There. Garth K. Ferguson, Secretary, KENTUCKY STATE FAIR, in Louisville, September 9 to 14.

Canned Foods Met All Tests

Proceed Lifesavers on Voyages Around the World

HOW the crew of the "Seth Parker" fared on an exclusive diet of canned foods for more than seven weeks, and ate them all around the world is reported by Constantine Flink, the ship's navigating officer. The "Seth Parker" is the famous four-master which was named after the commander of the radio character after which it was named.

The ship's voyage took it through the furnace heat of the equator and the freezing cold of the North Atlantic in mid-winter, but the canned foods carried stood up through all changes of temperature and proved lifesavers throughout the trip.

Seven Weeks Without Fresh Food

"We expected," said Flink, who has been on sailing ships for over thirty years, "to eat the several hundred miles from Panama to the Galapagos islands in about a week, but like the 'Ancient Mariner' we were becalmed in the doldrums and it was well into the sixth week before we reached the islands. After the first two weeks out of Panama all of our fresh food was exhausted, and we had to rely exclusively on our canned supplies."

"Fortunately we had brought along some canned tomatoes, peas and canned tomato juice. There was never any shortage of our crew of that dread scourge of the seas, scurvy, which was so prevalent in the old days of sailing vessels that British ships were called 'lime juicers' because they were required by law to serve lime juice to the crew to ward off this disease.

"But even if we had not had such a plentiful supply of the loganberry and tomato juice, as we have had, we could have canned spinach, beans, carrots, peas and other vegetables which are equally good and preventative. We also had such meats as canned beef and frankfurters, and such fish as canned clam chowder and codfish cakes. These latter foods were luxuries because you can't catch fish at sea, you know, except once in a long while a stray dolphin.

And Then Mostly Canned Foods

"At the Galapagos Islands we caught a big haul—two tons—of fresh fish, but we couldn't get much there. It was the way of fresh vegetables and fruits. We got a large supply of wild berries, but that was all in the way of fruit, and for fresh meat we killed two wild bulls.

"It really wasn't until we reached the Marquesas about a month later that we could get a plentiful supply of fresh foods, so for nearly three months the chief part of our diet consisted of canned foods. And we all kept healthy and liked it. We had some things which are not usually canned put up in tins to preserve them at sea through varying temperatures. Shredded wheat for instance. And we had powdered milk and malted milk, as well as evaporated milk. As a matter of fact, we had almost largely on canned foods during the entire voyage."

The State And National Significance Of Kentucky's Second Primary

From Kentucky Post Editorial.

As Kentucky embarks upon its new electoral experiment, the runoff primary, citizens will do well to make sure that they appreciate the full significance of the campaign just beginning.

Liest, Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler and Thomas S. Rhea are pitted again in the race for the Democratic nomination for governor, with the difference that three other candidates who got some 55,000 votes in the first primary are out.

The issues are the same, the hope of better government represented by Chandler and the continuation of the discredited Laffoon administration in Rhea.

While the issues are the same, it is even more important that every Democratic voter go to the polls again and vote on Sept. 7, not that they want or approve of a second primary but because that is the only way they can nominate a good candidate this year.

The record vote cast in the first primary was a great victory for "Happy" Chandler and his supporters, even though Rhea got 15,000 more votes throughout the state. Chandler represented an ideal. Rhea represented a solidly entrenched political machine with fabulous campaign resources.

Now, in the second primary, Kentucky's political picture becomes even more significant.

Republicans leaders are saying openly, "We can beat Rhea." They delight in a divided Democratic party. The burden of responsibility for the party's division rests squarely upon Thomas S. Rhea, Governor Laffoon and their henchmen.

Laffoon and Rhea passed the sales tax by embracing most of the Republicans in the Senate and combining with a minority of the Senate Democrats.

The desire for good government is broader than party lines. A large section of the citizenry, like the Post is independent, politically. Such citizens look for names, not party emblems, when they cast their ballots.

"Happy" Chandler is a Democrat and he believes his party record is better than those of the bipartisan machine politicians who are supporting Rhea. But "Happy" Chandler is this election.

He represents the hope of decent government, elimination of waste and the halting of the growth of state debt. He represents the people burdened with sales tax which accompolished none of the things its sponsors claimed it would accomplish. He represents their hope of escaping this unjust tax.

The late senator James Breathitt, who died shortly after the 1934 legislative session, stood up in the Senate one day during the 1934 session, after the Laffoon-Rhea machine had used its bipartisan steam roller to block the wishes of the people and said, with tears in his eyes:

"I regret that I am present today at the funeral of the Democratic party in Kentucky."

Senator Breathitt said that day an entrenched political machine that had strangled the primary, passed the sales tax, and handed the governor or ripper bill with which to complete the job of eliminating all in his administration who opposed him and Rhea and their policies.

Without a primary, Senator Breathitt saw no hope of the people and his party overcoming the machine.

But something has happened since the late Senator Breathitt spoke.

Chandler called a legislative session which passed the primary law. He came before the people with an appeal for decency in state government.

His appeal was heard and the people answered him in the first primary to a degree that has profoundly shaken the Laffoon-Rhea political machine.

Because the second primary is decreed (by wishes of Laffoon and Rhea), the people will have to go to the polls in even greater numbers on Sept. 7, to vote for Chandler and show the entrenched machine that two primaries elections will not stop them from expressing their choice and driving selfish plunderers from power.

What father would like most to get out of his new car is the rest of the family. Responsibility is put on the shoulders of those who can bear it.

PUBLIC CONFIDENCE RESTORED BY BANKS

American Bankers Association Describes Its Activities to Create Better Understanding Regarding Banks

NEW YORK—Right different lines of activity through which the American Bankers Association is constantly striving to promote better public understanding and opinion in regard to banking and the attitude of banks toward legislation are described here by R. S. Hecht, president of the association.

The aim, he says, is "to strengthen the real basis for good opinion in regard to the banks," through fostering informative bank advertising in newspapers and in other ways. The statement was issued in reply to a nationwide public educational program in regard to "The business of banking and its place in the life of our country."

Mr. Hecht declares that "we have tried very hard to convince the public that the banking fraternity has truly profited by the lessons of the past, is determined to approach all questions of banking policy from the broad viewpoint of public welfare and is prepared to carry its full share of the burden in connection with all efforts to re-assure prosperity in this country."

Get Rid of Poisons

Produced by Constipation
A cleansing laxative—purely vegetable Black-Draught—is the first thought of thousands of men and women who have found that by restoring the downward movement of the bowels many disagreeable symptoms of constipation promptly can be relieved. Write for a free booklet, "How to Get Rid of Poisons," by Dr. J. M. Mansfield, of Clinton, N. C. Have found that Black-Draught is very effective in the cleansing of the system. When attacked by the dull head, nervous depression and lassitude caused by constipation, I take Black-Draught. It is natural, purely vegetable laxative.

Farm Mortgage Loans Are Cash

The proceeds of all farm mortgage loans made through the Morehead National Farm Loan Association and the Federal Land Bank of Louisville are now paid in cash instead of bonds as heretofore, reports J. A. Lewis, Association Secretary. Treasurer A. Morehead. "This procedure has now been effective for several days," said Mr. Lewis, "and simplifies the handling of loans, particularly where made for the purpose of refinancing the debts of farmer-borrowers."

For the past year and a half loans closed through the Federal Land Bank and the Land Bank Commission have been paid principally in bonds of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation. In refinancing debts the agreement of the creditors was requested in advance to accept bonds rather than cash. Certain items such as taxes and insurance and fractional amounts of debts, meanwhile, have been paid in cash. Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation bonds are guaranteed by the Federal government but, as to payment of principal and interest, and have met with a ready acceptance, with the result that now there will be no proceeds of their sale may be difficult in selling them, so that need in making Federal land bank and Land Bank Commission's loans in cash.

One of the principal reasons for using bonds in lieu of cash in the first place was to obtain a widespread distribution of these securities throughout the country and small towns as well as in cities. This has been done through the nearly half a million loans that have been closed since the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation was organized. During most of this time Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation bonds have sold above par. The most recent issue bearing but 2-4-4 per cent interest is quoted currently at around 101 1-2, the 3 per cent issue at 102 1-2 and the 3 1-4 per cent bonds at 104.

SEPTIC TANKS

Although the method of disposing of sewage by means of a properly designed septic tank is approved by health authorities, the discharge should not be considered harmless. Under certain conditions it will contaminate a well stream, or other source of water supply. Care should be taken to place the discharge of the tank where there is no danger of such contamination.

Beware Of Termites

The prospective home builder should thoroughly investigate the termite situation and methods of protection. In some districts infestations of these pests, special types of construction should be used, and the home builder should know his house is built of one of the many termite proof types.

CLOSET FLOORS

If the floor of the closet is raised above the level of the room floor, it will be much easier to sweep out and keep clean.

The Strange Ways of the Farm

By IRVIN S. COBB

A GENTLEMAN-ABOUT-TOWN strayed far away from town. He got lost in the wheat belt. He was city-fed and he knew not the ways of the ruralists. Also he was without funds. In this emergency he secured a job with a farmer, to manage his crop stand.

In need of harvesting. At four o'clock next morning, in accordance with the ancient custom, the proprietor awakened the new hand who whirled to see his new employer crossing the dooryard with great strides and evidently heading for the open space.

"Hey," shouted the farmer, "come on back and get your breakfast before you go to work."

"Work, hell!" answered the departing one. "I'm going to look for a place where I can stay all night."
