LESS THAN THREE THOUSAND HEAR RHEA DEFEND RECORD AT RALLY HERE FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Disappointingly Small Crowd Turns Out To Hear Candidate
DR. J. H. PAYNE TO BE HERE THIS WEEK

At a rally held here Friday, at which the expected crowd of from five to ten thousand dwindled to less than three thousand in all, Tom Rhea, administration candidate for the office of governor, told the small assemblage that he was loved by the people of Logan county, which was the reason he assigned for the abnormal vote which he received in that county. He galloped into a tirade against A. B. Haggerty and lambasted him from one end to the other. He defended himself as best he could from the charges that Chandler had made against the administration.

The News took a fairly accurate count of the people who went to the rally held in the Morehead State Teachers College Stadium. While the greatest crowd was there, which was at noon when the sandwiches were being handed out, there were by actual count 2,491 present. This number was arrived at by checking those who went in at both gates and checking off those who left by both gates. Some went through the gates both ways several times. Consequently it would be unfair to count only those who passed in and not those who passed out.

At the time of the speaking there were by actual count of three disinterested persons, 483 men, women and children in the stadium. On the ground there were between 800 and 1,000 persons. The stand has been moved back to a considerable distance from the stadium in order, apparently, to accommodate the immense crowd which failed to appear. The space remained largely vacant. A group was gathered up close to the speakers stand, but between the stadium and the stand, there was ample room for milling people, who apparently did not take the speech seriously.

Mr. Rhea was introduced by Representative Milan of Logan county who defended Mr. Rhea's character which he claimed had been assailed by Mr. Chandler. He also defended the Logan county aboriginal vote which exceeded by 54 percent that cast for Mr. Hoover in 1928. Mr. Milan was introduced by D. B. Canfield, who was introduced by Canfield, at present campaign manager for Mr. Rhea.

Mr. Rhea hurried his charges at the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times at Governor J. C. W. Beckham, at Billy Blair, at Judge A. Wallis and at all 2nd sundry who are supporting Mr. Chandler in his candidacy. He quoted figures which he claimed tended to show how fraud was planned in Harlan county, and defended the right of the Governor to use troops in that county to protect the election.

He denied that he and the administration had asked for a $9.00 per capita tax and stated that he would withdraw from the race if it could be proved.

He claimed that Happy Chandler was one of the first to advocate a Sales Tax and supported a Sales Tax in 1930. He agreed to resign from the race if it could be proven otherwise.

He claimed to be the original supporter of President Roosevelt in Kentucky and "pointed with pride to the fact that he was largely responsible for his nomination and election."

Following Mr. Rhea, Elam Huddleston, who previously had stated when he was a candidate himself that Mr. Rhea should be in the presidential, spoke in behalf of the Rhea candidacy.

A dinner had been prepared for Mr. Rhea and his campaign leaders at the Midland Trail Hotel, but as the Rhea party arrived late it was postponed until after the speaking. Following the speaking, the party drove straight through Morehead without stopping for dinner.

TWO MAJOR PROJECTS LIKELY TO BE APPROVED FOR COUNTY IN NEAR FUTURE

The following letter from the Kentucky Relief Administration will be of interest to our readers, since it deals with the question of Work Progress projects in the county and city. We publish the letter rather than an article dealing with its contents as it is more comprehensive.

Mr. Jack Wilson, Morehead, Kentucky, Dear Mr. Wilson: I take this means of expressing my appreciation to you for the past support of the Kentucky Emergency Relief Administration and to be speak of you a continued spirit of helpfulness for the new Works Progress Program now being launched.

Our new job is a big one. To employ the three Methodized workers on public jobs and to direct them into private employment is the goal set for us by the President. With the full cooperation of the Press and local governmental units in Kentucky, we believe we can accomplish the desired ends.

Morehead Boys Given Citations

There appears to be but little doubt that the three Morehead boys who are attending the Citizens Military Camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, are making a record for themselves that they as well as their friends may be proud of, judging from the numerous reports that find their way to the News office.

The three boys are Kenton Penix, James Stephens and Irving Hammett. Kenton was recently promoted to the rank of corporal. The boys have been making excellent soldiers, and were cited numerous times for their work both with the guns and around the camp.

Two of the Morehead boys have made the highest merit in the machine gun range, Penix with 174 and Stephens with 471. Penix has received six citations and Stephens five. Penix, with first order of merit and with the first highest honors, is in line for a commission in the reserve army, and Stephens holds third order in the same.

"BEEF AND BULL" PARTY AT STADIUM IS HUGE SUCCESS FROM CHANDLER'S VIEW

Funny things always develop when you are looking for them, and one of the funniest and most appropriate took place Friday afternoon at the Stadium grounds, where the Rhea Circus was scheduled to take place.

Lunch has been served in the form of sandwiches instead of barbeque, and the crowd was rapidly leaving. In order to hold them and entertain them while waiting for the approach, the management decided to give them a bit of music. They did.

They opened the program with a very appropriate funeral dirge. The victrola or whatever it is they carry with them tuned in on an "I'll cowboy song."

Through the loud speaker came the music and words. "We're Headed for the Last Roundup."

And so they are. The last roundup will come on September 7.

Circulating among the crowd Friday morning at the court house was an eye-opener to those who were interested. If a vote had been taken at that time among the Rowan county people present there is no question but that Happy Chandler would have been the victor by better than his usual majority of two to one.

Speaking of speeches, Tom was

Rowan Board Is Sued For Bonds

The county Board of Education Rowan, county, Ky., is named as defendant in a suit filed in United States district court at Catlettsburg Saturday by the W. C. Thornburgh Company, Inc.

The plaintiff, owner of 25 one thousand dollar negotiable coupon bonds issued by the defendant has obtained in interest payments on all bonds and has failed and refused to pay principal on four of the bonds which have matured. Judgment is the amount of unpaid interest and principal of the matured bonds is asked in the petition which was filed through the law firm of Nichols, Morrill, Wood, Marx and Ginter of Cincinnati.

The bonds referred to in the above were issued by the County Board of Education in 1929, and were refunding bonds. In view of the decision of the Court of Appeals, it was decided to make it take care out of the local bond issue, as the present board was uncertain as to the legality of the bonds.

If the case is decided against the local board, they are prepared to begin payment at once.

Neither Chandler Nor Milan Can Legally Put Men To Work Here

Considerable discussion and argument was afoot last week over the conflicting statements that certain political groups in Morehead were controlling the selection of labor at the P. W. A. Project in the construction of the power, heat and light plant at the college. Efforts had apparently been made to procure the selection of the labor out of supporters of Mr. Chandler and Rhea, by certain of his supporters. A thorough investigation of conditions however, has failed to reveal that any such effort has succeeded in selecting one man for a job under any contractor.

Men for several days flocked into Chandler headquarters, asking that the Chandler campaign committee aid them in obtaining work. These facts were rather clear. The campaign committee nor Rhea can assign labor. They were able to do anything about the labor that was put to work.

The labor situation under the P. W. A. is such that political groups enter into it in the slightest degree. Work cards are issued to all men in Morehead first who have been enrolled at any time under the Employment Bureau. These men are the first to be given a chance to work. When this supply of labor is exhausted or when all these men have been given a chance to work, cards will be issued to other men in other sections of Rowan county, who are then given a chance. If and when these men have been put to work, then men from other counties will be given an opportunity. This will hold true whether a man is supporting A. B. Chandler or supporting Tom Rhea or King Stowe.

The statement that the relief ration must be supplied with labor first, is not true. The labor will be selected from available men, whether they are on relief or not.

For the information of our readers, who may be interested in obtaining employment, the following is the system employed:

First see that your name is listed on the unemployment list in Ashland, Ky. If you have no registration card, do so at once. Second your card will be mailed to you from Ashland. All cards from Morehead have already been mailed and most of them received. If you have a duplicate card, go to Ashland or write and have your name in the active files. Some men who have had jobs sent to them only last month, may not be on the active files.

After your card has been sent to you, a duplicate card is sent to Mr. Deakins, who is the Federal man in charge of the local situation, where it is filed until men are called for.

Love and Legality

In his tirade of last Friday afternoon, Thomas S. Rhea, devoted a considerable part of his time to a defense of the Logan county vote the legality of which had been seriously questioned. The question arose out of the number votes cast in the county which totaled more than half of the population of the county. Mr. Rhea launched into his defense with his first word, scarcely waiting for the introduction to be finished. He was so over anxious that he could not wait.

But after all was it a defense? Or was it merely a state ment of the reason for the abnormal vote?

Mr. Rhea said in effect that the citizens of his county voted for him because they loved him. He said that "six hundred women and school children were on the streets all day going from one voting place to another." He did not say what they were doing. Judging from the results in the precincts that turned in 1145 votes they must have been voting.

He said they did it solely because they loved him. But he DID NOT say that they were honest voters. He did not say that they were legal votes.

It was more of an excuse than a defense.

He was somewhat in the position of the young fellow who was jammed into the jail for stealing cash in order to buy his lady love a present. The young man also loved the lady. But the law did not make any exception in his case.

Whether the people of Logan county loved Tom Rhea or not, was not the question. Granting that they did love him, was that any excuse for voting illegally the numbers that were voted. Was that any excuse for defiance of the election laws which plainly limit the number of votes a man may cast and explicitly deny Republicans the right to vote in a Democratic primary?

Love may be a reason, but it cannot be an excuse. Love may cause a man to steal but it cannot save him from the results of his crime.

Neither was Mr. Rhea so successful in explaining the Harlan county situation. He went back to 1926 and compared the Democratic vote cast for Crowe and Beckham with that of 1935. He very carefully omitted any reference to the Democratic vote cast for Roosevelt in 1932.

The facts were that in 1932 so many registered as Democrats that the Democratic vote in Harlan county was several thousand larger than the entire vote cast in August.

The facts are, simply, that there is no defense either for the Logan county vote or for the troops sent to Harlan Co. The following editorial from the Courier Journal explains this situation fully:

The apologists for Logan County's primary vote miss the point when they draw the red herring of Harlan County across the trail and seek to compare Harlan's 1935 vote with that in Democratic primaries back in 1923 and 1927. Harlan has been Democratic in the past two elections, and the primary vote should be compared with the highest Democratic vote cast, as it is fairly done in the case of Logan.

Here are the figures on Harlan omitted by those who are attempting to cover up an extraordinary circumstance in the home county of Mr. Rhea:

Harlan cast 7,788 votes for Governor Laffoon in 1931 and 8,461 votes for President Roosevelt in 1932. Yet the combined Democratic total this year was only 6,929, that is 10 per cent fewer than were cast for Laffoon and 24 per cent fewer than cast for Roosevelt. That is the natural tendency in primary elections and the ratio was carried out in practically all counties.

Logan County, on the other hand, cast 5,798 votes for Laffoon and 7,072 for Roosevelt, but the surprising total of 10,127 were counted for Rhea and 781 for his opponents. Rhea got 88 per cent more than Laffoon and 54 per cent more than Roosevelt—a circumstance rarely equaled.

Moreover, Logan's population is only 21,875, and 10,127 were recorded as voting for Rhea alone.

Harlan's population is 64,557 and only 6,929 votes were cast for all candidates in the recent Democratic primary. If Chandler had received the same ratio of votes in Harlan that Rhea received in Logan, Chandler would have polled 34,000 votes in Harlan.

Some of these figures have been published, but they will bear repeating, in view of the ridiculous attempt to compare with Logan.

Dismissed From Road Jobs Here

I, William Hart, being duly sworn, state for the past five years I have been employed as a member of the Maintenance Crew of the State Highway Department in Rowan County and that during that time my work or politics have never been questioned. In the last campaign I took no active part, but on election day I voted my sentiments which was to cast a vote for the man whom I considered to be the outstanding candidate in the interest of the people of Kentucky. A. B. Happy Chandler. The vote was, of course, by secret ballot.

On Friday, August 23, 1935, Hon. John Butcher, maintenance Supervisor for Rowan County came to me with a letter from the District Engineer in which he was ordered to discharge me from the crew. I asked Mr. Butcher the reason for my discharge. He said my work was entirely satisfactory and that he had no reason personally to discharge me from the job.

There is but one reason for my discharge; I voted for Happy Chandler. The fact that I had served them for five years satisfactorily had no bearing on the case.

I wish to state that I have nothing whatever against Mr. Butcher who has given me the utmost consideration and who I sincerely believe regretted the action he was ordered to take.

It has certainly reached a fine pass when a man is discharged from a job simply because he is a Democrat and votes.

I wish to urge all my friends to go to the polls on Saturday, September 7, and cast their vote for the man who will take the highway department out of politics, and who will give the people of the state a square deal when he is Governor.

Vote for Happy Chandler and get rid of the gang that is at present dictating who shall work and who shall be fired.

Bill Hart, and Jinx Davis and I know that the State Highway Commission never heard of us and even if they knew us personally, we wonder whether or not they would stoop so low as to fire a man from a $28.80 job. We happen to be victims of the Highway Department in Rowan County and that during that time my work or politics have never been questioned.

I wish to state in behalf of Mr. Davis and Mr. Hart that they were excellent workers and earned twice the paltry sum they received in compensation for their labor.

We, the three of us, are wondering if political differences and personal greed is in fact politics today. Personally, I think I shall leave the county if this unjust, unman political row continues for many more days.

Earl Barber, Morehead, Ky.

FROM GRAYSON, KY.

I have been employed by the State Highway Commission as a truck driver for the past two years and four months. I and all of my people are Democrats and have always loyally supported the party's nominee.

During the past primary, although my sympathies were for A. B. Happy Chandler for Governor, at my own request my boss made some contribution to Rhea's campaign fund, but I voted for Chandler. The boss of our county road work, the maintenance foreman, lives in my precinct, has done a lot of the highway employees, and it was with all the jobs at his command and all the promises that were made, that he would be able to carry his precinct by a handsome majority for "Sales" Tom, but to be behold, when the vote was counted in my precinct Chandler received a majority of the votes, Chandler also carried two other precincts in our town and tied Rhea in the Fourth precinct the home precinct of the man who professed to control the Democratic Party in Carter County.

There was a revolt of the voters against their high handed boss and in spite of all the money they had Grayson and Carter Counties went for Chandler by substantial majorities.

However, as soon as the primary was over it was notified that my services would not be needed for a few days, although I was assured that I was not fired. But it was an easy matter for this crowd to misrepresent matters to me, and this morning I received the following letter from J. Lytner Donaldson, chairman of the State Highway Commission, to wit:

State Highway Commission, Frankfort, August 16, 1935.

Mr. Ray Conley, Grayson, Kentucky, Dear Sir: This is to inform you that the State Highway Commission, in its meeting on August 16, 1935, entered an order relieving you, effective August 9, 1935.

Yours very truly, State Highway Commission, By J. L. Donaldson, Chairman; By W. H. Woods, Secretary.

Copy to Mr. E. P. Moyalhan, Pikeville, Ky. There will be other loyal Democrats who will get the ax and whose jobs will be taken from them because they will not sacrifice the principals of justice and democracy for a mass of postage and who will not let their right of suffrage be controlled or bought by a few corrupt politicians who seem determined to wreck and destroy the Democratic Party if they are not allowed to use it for their own selfish purpose; but thank God, there are enough courageous and loyal Democrats in Kentucky, who cannot be bought with a job or vain promises to assure the nomination of "Happy" Chandler on September 7.

Because of Rhea's high-handed methods in firing loyal Democrats like myself, Carter County and the State of Kentucky, will give Chandler an overwhelming majority in the next primary.

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL
By Dr. ALLEN G. REARD
New Price Six Cents and Postage Free

The third step I advise you to take in preparing your child for school is to consult your family physician or local health department regarding the "tuberculin test."

Perhaps you know it as the Mantoux test. It would be surprising if you are not already familiar with these tests and its values. The story has been told repeatedly in all the parents' and household magazines, newspapers, and over the radio. Many school districts have introduced it as a routine measure. And, unquestionably, many more will do so this year.

Remember what I said last week about overconfidence? Most parents are too sure when they think, "My child can't have tuberculosis." I say, "too sure" because seldom do you really know. You are merely guessing. The psychologist would say you are hiding a fear. Think that over, and see if it applies to you.

Now, being afraid and doing nothing about it is ridiculous. More than that, it's worst kind of neglect and inexcusable. If you fear tuberculosis, isn't it more sensible to meet it with every defense at your disposal? Bring it out in the open. Don't let it work in the dark! Don't

In short, be unprepared. And in the case of children, the "Tuberculin Test," is right at hand, it is simple, harmless, and very accurate.

Afterward you will be able to sigh with relief and say, "Ah, that's better. Now I know where I stand."

REGA LEADER - RESIGNS POST AS MANAGER

Hodgenville, Ky., Aug. 29. — Because the Laffoon Administration at Frankfort is doing things that will endanger the success of the Democratic Party in November, Colin Judge Richard Howell has resigned as campaign chairman for Tyson E. Klum in Larue County, he announced today.

Judge Howell said his resignation was in protest to the firing of State employees who refused to vote for Mr. Klum in the August primary. He did not approve this procedure, he said, because it will weaken the ticket in November, no matter who is the nominee of the party.

Judge Howell was appointed county chairman of the Rhea organization last June. He worked for Mr. Rhea's success throughout the first campaign and intended remaining as campaign chairman for the runoff primary, he said, but decided to quit when the Highway Commission named a number of Larue County Democrats who supported Mr. Chandler.

There is considerable resentment here over the Highway Commission's action," Judge Howell said. "Even the Rhea supporters believe the party leaders should be giving thought to November. We cannot win in November if the commission kicks our efficient employes for no other reason than their support of Mr. Chandler in the primary.

I believe we need the votes of the Chandler supporters in November if Mr. Rhea is nominated in September. We kick them out will not help the party in the November fight. I was for Mr. Rhea from the beginning.

and will vote for him in the run-off. But I will limit myself to voting my personal preference. I could not have any part in an organized effort that in the end would weaken the party in November.

PROJECTS PLANNED

job needs, say ten men, he goes to Mr. Ebanks who reaches in the file and without seeing the names on the cards, draws out the cards. These names are then given to the contractor who posts the names on the bulletin board, telling the men to report for work.

It will be seen from that above that no one can get any man a job under any circumstances.

An investigation reveals that of the labor thus far employed, there are both supporters of Chandler and of Rhea, as well as of King Swope.

It must be thoroughly understood that this is one job in which politics positively plays no part. The result laws under which the project is operating has fixed some decided penalties for any man who even attempts to control the selection of labor from any one group of men or from any one party.

For Mr. Rice who has charge of the engineering of the work for the college, it would mean fifteen years in the federal penitentiary if he were to suggest to a contractor that he hire any one man. Mr. Rice can do one thing. He can tell the contractor what he thinks of the man's ability, providing the contractor asks him. But he cannot go to the contractor and tell him without being asked.

If the campaign chairman of Happy Chandler were to do the same thing, go to the contractor in favor of any man, he would be subject to from ten to fifteen years in the penitentiary.

If any contractor is found guilty of accepting the advice of any man in the selection of labor, he also is due a stretch in the federal penitentiary.

There is but one possible way in which anyone might get around the safeguards thrown about the works for the protection of the laboring man. A contractor could of course discharge all the men representing any certain group, and keep on the works only such men as belonged to another. However, they will be checked on this and when a number of men gets too large or too conscious, an investigation will be made immediately, and another term of years in the penitentiary will confront the contractor who is doing it.

It is our opinion that the P. W. A. project is safe from the hands of designing politicians who might desire to take advantage of the opportunity to reap a harvest of votes by throwing the labor on the project to supporters of any one candidate.

"Well," confessed Jones, "I can't say that I do."

"I thought as much," said the wise counselor. "The trouble with you is that you're like that other married man who said under similar conditions that when you'd run to catch a car you didn't need to run any more after you have caught it. Now, this is my advice to you: Turn over a new leaf. Start this very day. Begin paying your wife a little attention. Fuss over her just as you used to do when you were first engaged. Try to be a sweetheart to her instead of just a husband."

"By gum, maybe you're right," said Jones. "I'll do that very thing."

That evening, when he burst in the front door his arms laden with parcels, he planted a warm kiss upon the cheek of the astonished Mrs. Jones and in tones of a well worked-up enthusiasm he cried out:

"Dearie, this is going to be a big night for us! Here's a ten-pound box of candy for you and here's a dozen American beauty roses. Now I want you to slip into your best frock. I've got a table reserved at the Ritz-Carlton for dinner and I've ordered two seats for the opera. Why—what's the matter?" he added, seeing that her lips trembled.

"Well, to begin with," she said, "the cook quit today. Your Aunt Clara arrived unexpectedly for a visit and there's no telling how long she'll stay, both the children were sent from school, sick with bad colds and now—she burst into tears—"and now, to cap the climax, you come home drunk!"

WOOTON WILL BACK CHANDLER FOR NOMINATION

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 21 (Attorney General) Bailey P. Wootton announced today that he would support the candidacy of Lieut. Gov. A. B. Chandler for the Democratic nomination for governor in the September 7 run-off.

Wootton, who sought the Democratic nomination in the August primary, is the second candidate for that office to announce his support of Chandler. Frederick A. Wallis, of Paris, who ran third in the five contended races, pledged his support to the lieutenant governor several days ago.

Wootton said it was his belief Chandler had a better chance for success in the November election than Rhea.

"As chairman of the Democratic state central committee," Wootton said today in a letter telling of his support of Chandler, and as an individual Democrat I am more interested in the success of our party in November than in the success of any particular candidate.

"Having campaigned throughout the state and having had an opportunity to judge the temper and sentiment of the people in all sections, I am convinced that Mr. Chandler has a better chance to win in November than has Mr. Rhea and is equally qualified to fill the office of governor should he be elected.

CLEAN UP FUND

There is an answer to the problem the average man faces in the necessity of paying his way out of life, says the Insurance Field. It is the clean-up fund. Failure to provide that fund through life insurance has caused many estates to shrink heavily because of the forced sale of property or securities to provide the ready cash necessary to pay the cost of the last act.

The statistics back up the Insurance Field's statement. The average shrinkage of estates in administration, according to a survey made of 7,000 estates ranging in size from $2,000 to $10,000,000, is 20 per cent. In other words, if a man leaves $20,000, his heirs will receive but $16,000, unless he has a clean-up fund of sufficient size to meet the unavoidable expenses.

Unpleasant as it is to speak of death, it is an eventuality everyone faces, and inadequate protection of one's estate amounts to gross carelessness. Creation of a clean-up fund is simply one more of the many essential services that life insurance offers.

I wish Hon. Elam Huddleston would explain the cause in the change in his mind since his speech at Campton, Ky., in his own behalf when he said "A vote for Tom Rhea is a vote for King Swope."

Does he mean that he is going to be for King Swope in November? E. Telson, Campton, Ky.

tax. Only those in business paid. It was the tax that the chain stores wanted taken off the books, the bill that they offered Judge Young a million dollars if he would wipe it off. It was the bill for which Judge Young fought in the interests of the smaller merchants and for which he made the famous reply: "No, I'm getting pretty old and I don't know what I'd do with a million dollars. I guess we'll leave that law right where it is. I will not sell out my people."

Yes, Happy Chandler was for that bill. So was Judge Young. So were you. It was a just bill and a right bill. But Tom should have finished his story. It was the bill that was repealed to put on your backs the infamous Sales Tax bill of the present.

It was a trifle funny to hear Tom defend the Sales Tax as a necessity and then to hear him say that he would repeal the major part of it, the part that produces at least eight million of the ten million in revenue, the tax on food stuffs and necessities.

In the same breath he added that more taxes were necessary. And yet, he went right ahead and accused Chandler of not having a tax program to replace the Sales Tax.

Where is Tom's program? If he cuts off eight million in revenue where will he get money? We do not hear him say anything except that it would be provided.

Then along comes Elam who says that the Sales Tax is not an issue in the campaign since it automatically repeals itself in July of next year. If Tom is right, then Elam must be wrong. Tom and Elam should get together before they decide to speak from the same platform.

In 1926 the legislature passed a 5 cent gasoline tax. It was called an emergency measure and was passed for a period of two years. That law was never to our knowledge, re-enacted. Neither was it repealed. The tax is still being collected.

We have heard of these tax officials who automatically repeal themselves. We have never seen them perform. Personally we would feel much more comfortable if it were definitely repealed as it was by Chandler is elected.

We will gladly consider any project within our scope and it is my opinion, judging from your past cooperation, that you, personally, are desirous of seeing your community derive all the benefits possible from this program.

The number of workable men in your locality can easily be ascertained from the Relief Office. With this as a basis it will probably be easy for you to visualize constructive, permanent projects that, upon completion, will add to the wealth of your community and furnish the "back log" of future prosperity. It is assumed that the Works Progress Administration program will be completed in one year.

Again, thanking you for your cooperation and hoping you will see fit to immediately lend a hand to a program in which your community has all to gain and nothing to lose. I am

Kennel Murder Case

BY S. S. VAN DINE.

Copyright by W. H. Wright

I asked myself what was best for me to do, and decided that since no one knew I had returned to the house I would go away and come back much later that night. So I went to some friend's home. When I returned about midnight I made unnecessary noise, so that anyone in the house would hear me returning. After a while I came again into this library and looked around very carefully, for I could not understand what had happened that night. I found the poker lying on the hearth, and there was blood on it. I also found the dagger in the large Yang Cheng Ting yao vase on the table there. I had a definite feeling that both of these articles were left here for some special purpose. Then, the Chinaman continued, but I felt that it might be safer for me if I took the poker and dagger and hid them. I could see the possibilities of a case being built up against me if the weapons were found in the library, especially as it might be proven that I had been here at the time. Moreover, the dagger is Chinese, and it could be easily ascertained that I was not in sympathy with the means Mr. Archer Coe used in depriving my country of its rightful antiquities.

You are quite right Mr. Liang. I think that both weapons were left here in order to involve you. I did not quite understand the situation, the Chinaman continued. But I felt that it might be safer for me if I took the poker and dagger and hid them. I could see the possibilities of a case being built up against me if the weapons were found in the library, especially as it might be proven that I had been here at the time. Moreover, the dagger is Chinese, and it could be easily ascertained that I was not in sympathy with the means Mr. Archer Coe used in depriving my country of its rightful antiquities.

Yes, nodded Vance. That was no doubt the intention of the murderers. And so when you had the opportunity, you placed both weapons in the room upstairs?

That is true, Liang admitted. I placed them there when the butler sent me to Miss Baker's room the next morning. Perhaps if I had realized how serious the situation was and had understood all of its complications, I might have acted differently. I do not yet understand the mechanism of the crime. The physical misunderstanding, so to speak, between Mr. Wrede and Mr. Archer Coe took place in this library, and yet his dead body was in his bedroom upstairs.

There was no possibility, inquired Vance, that Mr. Wrede could have assisted Mr. Coe upstairs, after the melee?

Oh, no, Liang was quite emphatic. Within a few moments of the encounter here in the library, Mr. Wrede came through the kitchen surreptitiously, and departed through the rear door.

How can you be sure it was Wrede, Mr. Liang, if you did not see him? Vance asked.

The Chinaman gave a slow smile. In my country the senses are more acute than in the Occident. I had heard Mr. Wrede move about this house too often not to know his step and sense his presence! Liang paused and looked at Vance. And may I be permitted now to ask a question of you.

Vance bowed acquiescence.

Ask me any question you care to, Mr. Liang, and I will try to be as frank as you have been.

How, then, did you know that I was aware of the crime on the night it was committed?

There were several indications, Mr. Liang, Vance replied; but it was you yourself who told me as much, by a slip of the tongue. When I first spoke to you, the next morning, you mentioned a tragedy; and when I asked you how you knew there had been a tragedy, you replied you had heard Gamble telephoning—while you were preparing breakfast.

Liang looked at Vance for a moment, a puzzled expression in his eyes. Then a faint smile appeared slowly on his mouth.

I understand now, he said I had already prepared the breakfast when the butler telephoned, for he discovered the crime when he was taking Mr. Coe's breakfast to him. Yes, I give myself away, but I took a clever man to grasp the error.

Vance acknowledged the compliment.

And now I shall ask you another question Mr. Liang. Why were you pretending to work in the kitchen at three o'clock yesterday morning, after the attack on Grassi?

The Chinaman looked up speedily. Pretending?

The ink was quite dry on the papers you had so neatly arranged on the kitchen table.

A slow smile again spread over Liang's astetic face.

I was afraid, afterward, he said that you might have noticed that. The fact is Mr. Vance. I was standing guard. At about half past two that morning I was awakened by a slight sound. I sleep lightly—and I am sensitive to sounds. I listened, and some one opened the door and passed through the kitchen into the butler's pantry and the dining room, and on into the library.

You recognized the footsteps?

Oh, yes. The person who came in so softly was Mr. Wrede. I naturally did not trust him; knowing what I did, and I hoped that I could trap him in some way. So I rose, dressed, turned on all the lights in the kitchen, and took my post at the table as if I were a waiter. Fifteen minutes later, I heard Mr. Wrede come back softly into the butler's pantry and then retreat again toward this room. I knew that he had seen the lights in the kitchen and was afraid to enter. I did not hear the front door open—which is the only other means of egress except the windows, and I decided to stand my ground.

A little later I heard Mr. Grassi call out, and then I heard the butler telephoning. Even so, I thought it best to remain in the kitchen, for it occurred to me that Mr. Wrede might still be hiding in the house, waiting for a chance to escape through the rear door. When you came into the kitchen and informed me of the attack on Mr. Grassi, I could not see how else Mr. Wrede could have come out of the house.

CHANDLER FOR $12 PER CAPITA

Richmond, Ky., Aug. 22.—Definite pledges of a $12 per capita school appropriation, relief from the sales tax burden and a more economical administration of the State Government, were made by Lieut. Gov. A. B. Chandler before two Madison County audiences.

Mr. Chandler, in resuming his run off primary campaign in Central Kentucky against Thomas S. Rhea for the Democratic nomination for Governor was introduced by Frederick A. Wallis, one of Mr. Chandler's opponents in the first primary. Several supporters of Mr. Wallis took part in the afternoon meeting at Berea and the night rally here.

Assurances that supporters of Mr. Wallis would join him in backing Mr. Chandler in the second primary were given by the several speakers, so far as their commitments were.

Mr. Wallis polled the third highest number of votes in the August 3 primary County Judge W. O. Keller and Mrs. Thomas E. Roberts who managed Mr. Wallis' campaign in Christian County, said Mr. Chandler will receive 98 per cent of the vote cast for Mr. Wallis in the August election. Christian County, turned in a substantial lead for Mr. Wallis.

After calling attention to the fact that the Eastern State Teachers College is a Richmond institution Mr. Chandler reassured the people they need have no fear that he would neglect the schools, either State or county institutions. He pledged adequate support to the University of Kentucky and normal schools and a $12 per capita for the grade schools.

The people of Kentucky are able and willing to support the schools and penal and charitable institutions Mr. Chandler asserted, but cannot afford graft and waste that has piled up an enormous State debt.

H. O. Potter, attorney, presided. Another on the programme besides Mr. Wallis, Judge Keller and Mrs.

Roberts was Mrs. Grant E. Lilly, clubwoman, who formerly supported Mr. Wallis. The meeting was presided by a dinner for Mr. Chandler arranged by Shirley Parke and Grant Robinson.

In acknowledging his introduction by Mr. Wallis, Mr. Chandler said he would have supported Mr. Wallis had their positions been reversed. He expressed appreciation for the support of both Mr. Wallis and Attorney General Bailey P. Wootton, one of the other unsuccessful candidates in the August primary.

After outlining his attitude on the sales tax, reorganization of the State government along lines of economy and other subjects on which he previously had expressed himself, Mr. Chandler said he would be guided by the advice of such men as former Gov. J. C. W. Beckham and Mr. Wallis.

Mr. Chandler said he considered Governor (Beckham) the greatest Governor Kentucky has had within recent years and in the event of election, would attempt to give the State a similar administration. The speaker, in reference to alleged statements he was too young to be Governor, pointed out he would be the same age on inauguration, should he win, that Governor Beckham was when he retired as Governor.

If you are satisfied with the bipartisan government you have now, vote for Mr. Rhea, Mr. Chandler said. Before you do that, I want you to make an investigation of the records at Frankfort so you'll know what you are getting into. You now have Ruby and Tom and if you vote for Mr. Rhea you will have Tom and Ruby running the State government.

Farm And Agriculture News

So plan the company meal that not more than one dish will have to be prepared at the last minute, such as frying the steak, making croquettes, or arranging the salad. Simple meals are best, the kind that do not worry or tire the hostess.

Fall is an ideal time to paint, preferred by many persons to any other season. Weather conditions are usually good, and there are few gnats and other insects to bother. Two thin coats are better than one thick coat or even two thick coats.

Many fruit growers follow the practice of sowing a cover crop of rye, barley, or oatmeal which grows in exceptionally good crops of other small fruits. A rye wheat combination has been found satisfactory on the Experiment Station farm at Lexington.

Bullets eat more and more grain as they grow older, even though much is kept before them. If changes are to be made in the ration, it is better to lay down a ration that will be made when some time before birds may not be disturbed after they are laying.

Apple sauce may be made and canned from windfall or green fruit. Pack boiling hot, completely sealed and process containers in boiling water for 15 minutes.

Tomato juice is easily prepared and canned at home and is an excellent food product to have for winter use. It may be used as a substitute for fruit juice for breakfast, as a cocktail at the beginning of dinner, lunch or supper, as a basis for sauces, soups, conserved salads, or as a beverage to put in the lunch box.

A little ingenuity in seasoning tomato juice, by the use of a little onion or lemon juice, a few cloves, peppercorns or a piece of bay leaf, the addition of bouillon cubes, beef broth or other vegetables liquid gives variety so that it can be used frequently without becoming tiresome.

Tomatoes including tomato juice should be used two or three times per week during the winter months and if oranges or other citrus fruits are not used, it should be included in the diet more frequently.

The following recipe may be used in canning tomato juice: Select firm ripe tomatoes. Wash and remove stem end. Cut the tomatoes in quarters and heat in a covered kettle until the juice flows freely. Strain quickly and pour, while hot into hot sterilized jars. Add one teaspoon of salt to each quart. Seal completely and process for 30 minutes in a hot water bath. Omit the salt if the juice is to be used for infants.

W. M. Insko, Jr. of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture gives a few simple rules to follow in culling poor layers from the poultry flock.

An experienced poultry man can walk into the flock, glance about the yards and houses and determine almost immediately which birds should be culled.

These birds are definitely different from the rest of the flock in that they have yellow shanks, yellow beak, a comb which is shriveled or lacking in color, and occasionally a heavy condition around the head.

Contrast this with the bird that is in production. She has a pale beak, scarcely any color whatever; shanks which are very pale, cream color or white; and a head that shows an alert eye and in which there is no fat present.

On closer inspection, it will be found that a bird that is in good production has a pliable skin, little or no fat in it, exceptionally good color in the eyelid or around the condition.

The bird out of production, on the other hand, will show more fat, will have yellow around the vent and in the eyelid, and should be marked because a bird that is out of production at this time of the year will not come back into production in time to produce eggs which will be profitable.

WHAT WE THINK

That reminds me, the fact that women smoke to the extent that they do is due to the Cigarette advertisement writers. It is a tribute or testimony to the power of advertising suggestions. When the publicity has been given and a little later not one of the first advertisers merely the same picture with an attractive woman. Later on the '60 friend came into the picture smoking the advertised brand. The next step showed the young lady lighting the boy friends cigarettes. As time went on the attractive young lady finally got the package of cigarettes in her hand and a little later not one in her mouth. The change was most gradual. The advertisement writers sought to keep just a little ahead of the reading public and in most instances were successful. In the later advertisements the young woman is an accomplished smoker and the same skillful advertisement writer has succeeded in carrying the impression and the conviction to the young women of the land that smoking cigarettes is smart. Once they get that idea across their work is over except that they must still convince the young that it is to be especially smart, one must smoke only the smart cigarette.

I have a neighbor who is regularly employed at a job that requires ten hours a day of his time. He has quite a family and the salary he receives will hardly cover all the needs. To supplement his salary he raised this year a large garden. To care for it properly requires most of the leisure time my neighbor has. He gets up early in the morning and works until dark. Already his wife has put up by the cold pack method several cans of peas, beans, beef, corn and tomatoes for the winter. He tells me he expects to supply most of his table wants the coming winter from the cellar. I cannot help but contrast him with another neighbor who is on relief. He made no effort to raise a garden of any kind. He and his family live from hand to mouth. They always have. The spare time that he has he spends doing nothing.

How much better it would be for this man if he would make the same effort to help himself. How much better it would be for his self respect and how much better he and his family could live.

My observation is that the average small town does a poor job of supporting its home industries. In my town we have a high class home bakery equipped with the latest machinery and owned by a progressive and aggressive young baker, yet there is three times as much out of town bread sold in my town as there is of the local product.

I think of this anytime some one gets up in the town meeting and proposes that the town go out after other industries. No town is justified in going out after more industries until it learns to support those it does have.

Billroys To Be Here Sept. 10

So many beautiful girls that you can hardly count them; the famous Palais Royal Orchestra direct from Miami, dozens of noted vaudeville artists, a dramatic cast of prominent players from stage and screen, and last but by no means least Daphne, "The Queen of Fan Danzers," comprise the entertainers who will visit Morehead on the night of Tuesday, September 10, playing but one engagement here. So massive is the attraction that a caravan of more than thirty-five large trucks, cars and busses is required to move the show, yet it is neither circus nor carnival but is recognized everywhere as being a recognized example of a clever combination of drama, vaudeville cabaret, and revue. In the words of the advance representative, it is "the greatest show on earth for the money." Presented under a huge tent with a seating capacity of more than 4,000 the huge and spectacular attraction is offered to the theatre goers of Morehead at popular prices, and on this one night engagement ladies will be admitted free when accompanied by one adult male.

This is the 12th Anniversary tour of the Famous Billroy Comedians and in celebration of this anniversary event, Manager Wehle has completely reconstructed his famous show which has been making history for the past twelve years and is one of the most popular attractions on the road. This year, in keeping with the trend of the times, he has carefully selected a large cast of noted stage and screen players who will present the three act farce comedy which provides the vehicle for a great array of talent. Interspersed throughout the program will be more than a score of outstanding vaudeville acts, including the sensational and exotic offering of "Daphne" the queen of fan dancers, whose fresh youthful beauty lends a charm that is both inspiring and compelling. Scores of lovely girls, the pick of the Florida night clubs will be featured in numerous dance routines. All beautifully, albeit somewhat scantily clad.

Yet, there is absolutely nothing to offend the most fastidious, as Billroy's Comedians, during the past twelve years, have built up a tremendous following among the women and children of the best families in the various cities regularly visited; present the three act farce comedy and if would obviously be suicidal for manager Wehle to present anything but the finest type of performance. The doors to the huge tent will open at 7:15, with the overture by the Palais Royale orchestra following at 7:30 and then the curtain will rise promptly at 8:15. As above stated popular prices will prevail. One night only in Morehead, on Tuesday, Sept. 10, the show grounds being located at Bradley show lot, on Mill St. between Midland Trail and railroad.

In a program to remove surplus dairy products from the market and also provide food for relief purposes, the Agriculture Adjustment Administration has begun the purchase of more than 8,900,000 pounds of butter, cheese and dried skim milk.

A Rack for Hangers Has a Practical Place in the Modern Clothes Closets

THE clothes closet is coming into its own in home modernization programs, with brightly paneled walls, painted shelves, and doors and hat hooks in harmony. One feature of the wardrobe filing system, however, has remained behind with all its original glamor and impracticality. The old clothes hanger bar under the shelf stays with us, a temptation to untidiness. Bright party frocks and the master's linen suits are placed between topcoats and golf jackets and their freshness crushed from them as their hangers are pushed in first one direction and then the other.

Simple to make and pleasant to the eye after installation is this clothes closet hanger rack and automatic separator. It is made of a piece of 3/16 inch pressed wood five inch strip can be sawed. It comes in large strips and most dealers usually have "shorts" in stock. At the same time obtain 2 pieces of quarter round moulding with which to brace the rack against the shelf. After sawing out the pressed wood section with an ordinary saw, nail it in a hanging position to the bottom of the shelf, placing one piece of the quarter round on each side and nailing them into position against braces. Pressed wood has many uses in tidying up your closet. It can be used for shelves, or hat or shoe racks. It is made by exploding chips of strong wood under pressure then compressing the resulting fibres under tremendous pressure into thin, hard board. It is grainless and equally strong in all directions and has a smooth, pleasing texture. Its color is a rich brown, and can be used in its natural state, or painted to fit into the closet-decoration program. Pressed wood will not warp like natural wood but will not split, chip, or crack under normal conditions.

dealer a section of pressed wood 3/16 inch thick, from which the five inch strip can be sawed. It comes in large strips and most dealers usually have "shorts" in stock. At the same time obtain 2 pieces of quarter round moulding with which to brace the rack against the shelf. After sawing out the pressed wood section with an ordinary saw, nail it in a hanging position to the bottom of the shelf, placing one piece of the quarter round on each side and nailing them into position against braces. Pressed wood has many uses in tidying up your closet. It can be used for shelves, or hat or shoe racks. It is made by exploding chips of strong wood under pressure then compressing the resulting fibres under tremendous pressure into thin, hard board. It is grainless and equally strong in all directions and has a smooth, pleasing texture. Its color is a rich brown, and can be used in its natural state, or painted to fit into the closet-decoration program. Pressed wood will not warp like natural wood but will not split, chip, or crack under normal conditions.

Barrymore Studies Art of Blood Transfusion for His Latest Role
Lionel Barrymore had to experiment with lancet and tourniquet, vein-cleps and arterial apparatus. He even took a practical course, under an experienced physician.

When he operated, and gave a blood-transfusion, before camera and microphone. Barrymore's surgical incursion was in his new role in "Public Enemy Number 1," gripping drama of the underworld of the secret service in combating criminals and gangsters, which comes Wednesday and Thursday, August 28 and 29 to the Cozy Theatre.

In the new Merton-Goldwyn-Mayer picture he gave a transfusion, Chester Morris donated the blood, and Joseph Calleia, as the gangland overlord, received it.

Not a drop of blood was transfused, of course, but Barrymore had to learn the details of the operation, under the tutelage of Dr. Harry Anderson, Culver City police surgeon, and Percy Coleman, nurse at the studio's emergency hospital, just as painstaking as any senior in medical college.

The operation, as was the case with every other detail in the picture, was carried out with absolute authenticity of detail. The story is based on actual police, secret service and newspaper reports. The story by J. Walter Ruben and Wells Root a veteran newspaperman, was directed by Ruben, and is a perfectly accurate cross-section of crime problems and their beneficiaries. This startling statement as to the magnitude of the institution of life insurance in the United States was made today by William A. Law, president of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company and a former president of the American Bankers' Association.

In 1933 and 1934, Mr. Law said, the life insurance companies in the United States paid out an average of $7,945,000 a day, including Sundays and holidays, in settlement of life insurance contracts, annuities, surrenders, dividends and other benefits to policyholders and their beneficiaries. "Assuming that it will take a year and a half for the full expenditure of the $4,000,000,000 work relief appropriation," he said, "the average daily expenditure under the program will probably be considerably less than has been the average daily payments to holders of life insurance policies and their beneficiaries.
