act authorizing the formation of corporations. With no purpose of intruding my views on a subject on which you have the exclusive right of action, I venture to suggest, as a means of expediting the public business and of economizing your valuable time, that the general act authorizing the formation of corporations be amended, if necessary, so that it may fully provide for the necessities of such organizations without too heavily taxing the time of the General Assembly.

ROWAN COUNTY.

As the reputation of a community is often popularly judged by the conduct of its worst elements, so likewise is the law-abiding character of the people of Kentucky estimated by others, in a great measure, not from the general disposition of its citizens to obey the laws, but from the violent conduct of comparatively a few lawless individuals. If, from neglect or inefficiency, we fail to repress this lawlessness, or to bring the offenders to justice, we have no right to complain of the false estimation in which we are held by the people of other States.

Unfortunately, numerous acts of violence and defiance of law in several of our counties, have given color to the belief which extensively prevails, that we are not a law-abiding people. Recent events in the county of Rowan have notably served to encourage this erroneous opinion, and have tended to retard the material development of the State by lessening the confidence of capital in the protection of the laws.

For the condition of affairs in Rowan county you are referred to the accompanying reports of the Adjutant General, and of the commander of the troops sent last August to Morehead, by my predecessor, on the demand of the Circuit Judge, for the protection of the court. The situation may be summarized by stating that a difficulty has existed between factions in that county since 1884. Though composed of only a small portion of the community, these factions have succeeded by their violence in overawing and silencing the voice of the peaceful element, and in intimidating the officers of the law. Having their origin partially in party rancor, they have ceased to have any political significance, and have become contests of personal ambition and revenge; each party seeking apparently to possess itself of the machinery of justice, in order that it may, under the forms of law, seek the gratification of personal animosities. During the present year the local leader of one of these factions came in possession of the office of Police Judge of the town of Morehead. Under color of the authority of that office, and sustained by an armed band of adherents, he exercised despotic sway over the town and its vicinage. He banished citizens who were obnoxious to him; and, in one instance, after arresting two citizens who seem to have been guilty of no offense, he and his party, attended by a deputy sheriff of the county, murdered them in cold blood. This act of atrocity fully aroused the community. A posse, acting under the authority of a warrant from the county judge, attacked the police judge and his adherents on the 22d of June last, killed several of their number, and put the rest to flight, and temporarily restored something like tranquility to the community. For the details of this transaction you are referred to the accompanying report of the commander of the State troops at Morehead. The proceedings of the circuit court, which was held in August, were not calculated, according to that report, to inspire the citizens with confidence in securing justice. The recital of the unusual incidents which transpired in the court-room will excite your surprise and command your earnest consideration. The report of the Adjutant General on this subject also shows, from information derived "from representative men without reference to party affiliations," that the judge of the circuit court seems so far under the influence of the reputed leader of one of the factions as to permit such an organization of the grand juries as will effectually prevent the indictment of members of that faction for the most flagrant crimes. It is not in the power of the Executive to determine the truth or falsity of these views. The ample authority which resides in the General Assembly to investigate abuses will enable you, through your appropriate committees, to elicit all the facts connected with the violations of law in this disturbed district.

I earnestly recommend a thorough investigation of the whole subject, with the view of taking such action as in your judgment will be best adapted to enforce the laws and to maintain the dignity and impartiality of the judiciary. In expectation of your action, I have declined to exercise Executive clemency in regard to any of the applications from Rowan county, as I desire to act in harmony with the views of the General Assembly after they shall have fully examined the subject. For a like reason, any special recommendations for a solution of the questions involved in these difficulties, might be considered at this time premature.

ENFORCEMENT OF LAW.

It is the duty of the Executive to “take care that the laws be faithfully executed.” This duty can be discharged only through the officers provided for in the Constitution and by the laws. If they fail to discharge their duties, the Executive is powerless to remedy the evil. The lawlessness which pervades a few counties of the Commonwealth may be traced, chiefly, it is believed, to immunity from punishment, occasioned by a disregard of duty on the part of officers who are required to judge, prosecute and punish crime. It sometimes happens that judicial officers fail to issue warrants of arrest against persons charged with crime; more frequently the officers whose duty it is to effect the arrest, do not employ due diligence in pursuit of criminals; and applications are constantly made to the Executive department for the offer of large rewards as an incentive to the proper discharge of duties which these officers have already sworn to perform.

The remedy for this lax condition of public morality in officials rests with the General Assembly. Not only can they prescribe the duties of officers, but they can affix to their neglect such severe penalties as will force an observance of duty, and can provide for a more effectual prosecution of delinquent officers, with a view of judicially ejecting from office such as have been faithless to the trusts confided to them by the people.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE.

To accomplish the necessary object of more effectually enforcing the observance of law and bringing offenders to justice, it is earnestly recommended that the office of Attorney General be converted into the Department of Justice, under the direc-

Ordered, That the Public Printer be directed to print two hundred copies of the list of said committees for the use of the Senate and House of Representatives.

Mr. Hendrick read and laid on the table the following joint resolution, viz:

WHEREAS, It has been made known to the General Assembly, through the message of the Governor and the report of the Adjutant General and Captain Macpherson, that there are reasonable grounds to believe that the Judge of the Fourteenth Judicial District has been guilty of corruption in office, by subverting the ends of justice in criminal prosecutions in the Rowan Circuit Court; therefore, be it

Resolved by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, That a committee of eight members of the General Assembly—three from the Senate and five from the House of Representatives—be appointed by the respective Speakers, to fully investigate said charges, by going to the said county of Rowan and taking the evidence, in writing, of such witnesses as the committee may deem expedient, which evidence, together with a full and thorough report, shall be submitted to the General Assembly at the earliest practicable date. And said committee is hereby given full power and authority to summon witnesses and compel their attendance for the purpose of giving their testimony before said committee, and to cause the production of such papers and copies of documentary evidence as may be necessary for a full and complete investigation of said charges.

Which, under the rule, lies over one day.

Mr. Triplett then moved to dispense with the rule of the Senate requiring joint resolutions to lie over one day.

And the question being taken thereon, it was decided in the affirmative.

The Senate, according to order, took up for consideration the joint resolution proposed on yesterday by Mr. Hendrick, entitled Resolution to provide for an investigation of certain charges against the Circuit Judge of the Fourteenth Judicial District.

Said resolution reads as follows, viz:

Whereas, It has been made known to the General Assembly, through the message of the Governor and the report of the Adjutant General and Captain Macpherson, that there are reasonable grounds to believe that the Judge of the Fourteenth Judicial District has been guilty of corruption in office, by subverting the ends of justice in criminal prosecutions in the Rowan Circuit Court; therefore, be it

Resolved by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, That a committee of eight members of the General Assembly—three from the Senate and five from the House of Representatives—be appointed by the respective Speakers, to fully investigate said charges, by going to the said county of present law. This should be done in justice to the clerks and litigants.

Which was twice read and adopted.

Mr. Gilbert, from the Committee on the Judiciary, who, under a resolution heretofore adopted by the Senate, was directed to report as to whether the present General Assembly could, under the provisions of the Constitution, repeal the act "creating and organizing Rowan county," submitted the following report, viz:

To the Honorable, the Gentlemen of the Senate:

Your Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred a resolution, "Whether the present General Assembly can, under the provisions of the Constitution, repeal the act creating and organizing the county of Rowan," beg leave to report that we have had said resolution under consideration, and are unanimously of opinion that there exists no constitutional inhibition against the exercise of such a power upon the part of the Legislature, if they deem its exercise expedient.

The ablest text writers and the highest courts of the country are alike agreed that a county is but the agent of the State in the performance of certain public functions, and the existence of which is subject to the will of the law-making power.

Judge Cooley, in his Constitutional Limitations says, in speaking of counties and their right of an existence independent of the State: "Usually their functions are wholly of a public nature, and there is no reason to imply any contract between them and the State in their organization as corporate bodies, except that which requires that the property they shall acquire by local taxation or otherwise, for the purposes of their organization, shall not be seized by the State and appropriated in other ways." (Fifth edition, page 296.)

So in Field on Corporations, page 42, it is said: "And it may be affirmed as a principle based upon the soundest public policy, that where public or municipal corporations are created, the special powers conferred upon them for local government are not vested rights as against the State, but may be changed at pleasure by the Legislature."
This doctrine may also be found in 2 Dillon on Corporations, section 37, page 149: "The power of the Legislature to alter and abolish municipal corporations in the place of the old; to add to the old, or to carve out of the old a new corporation; or the power to divide and dispose of the property held by such corporations for municipal purposes, is not defeated or affected by the circumstance that the corporation is by its charter made a trustee of a charity, or of other private rights and interests." (See also Layton v. New Orleans, 12 La., 515; Philadelphia v. Fox, 61 P. St., 169.)

This power in the Legislature to control all local governments by towns and counties is announced by the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of State Bank v. Knoops, 16 Howard, 369, where it is said: "Otherwise, there would be numerous petty governments existing within the State, and forming parts of it, but independent of the control of sovereign power."

The tenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States provides, that "the powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States, respectively, or to the people."

And in construing the validity of an act of the Congress of the United States the rule is, that an authority for the act must be found in the Constitution itself, otherwise, it falls within the provision of the amendment, supra.

But when we are asked to ascertain if a proposed act of a State Legislature be constitutional, the inquiry becomes very different, and to render such legislation nugatory, it must be shown to be prohibited by some provision of the State Constitution. (Griswold v. Hepburn, 2 Duvall, 24.)

That no authority exists in the National Legislature to legislate upon the question under consideration seems unquestioned, and that being so, the authority exists either in the State Legislature or is prohibited by the Constitution of the State. There is no provision of our State Constitution directly bearing upon the subject; much less is there any express prohibition against such legislation, and a county having, as we have seen no vested right to be, its continued existence is a question of public utility or of State policy, and not of constitutional authority.

Respectfully,

G. G. Gilbert,
Chairman.

Which motion was simply entered

Mr. Hendrick, from the Special Joint Committee, appointed to investigate certain charges against the Circuit Judge of the Fourteenth Judicial District and lawlessness in Rowan county, laid before the Senate two reports, together with the testimony given before said committee.

Said reports read as follows, viz:

MAJORITY REPORT.

To the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

Your Committee, appointed and acting under the following resolution, viz.:

"WHEREAS, There are charges of official misconduct against the Circuit Judge of the Fourteenth Judicial District being circulated, and which have received notice in the Governor's Message to us; and whereas, it is due both to the Commonwealth and to the party charged that such charges should be investigated; therefore, be it

"1. Resolved by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, That a committee of eight be appointed, three from the Senate and five from the House, to investigate said charges. Said Committee shall be appointed by the Speakers of the respective Houses, and shall have power to hold their sessions in Frankfort or in Morehead, or in any other place within this Commonwealth they may determine to be best for a full sifting of the facts. They are given full power to send for persons and papers, all of which papers they shall return to this General Assembly when they make their report, and they shall also return, with their report, all of the evidence taken by them, whether documentary or otherwise; and it shall be the further duty of said Committee to investigate, as far as practicable, the feuds, riots and lawlessness in Rowan county, and the causes thereof; and said Committee shall have power, in its discretion, to investigate said matters separate from or in connection with the charges against the Judge of the Rowan Circuit Court; but in reporting to this General Assembly, it shall be the duty of said Committee to report separately on said charges against the Judge of said court and the other matters directed to be investigated under this resolution, and said Committee shall report fully and in writing what action should be taken by this General Assembly in reference to the matters hereby directed to be investigated.—'

Respectfully report, that, in pursuance of the above resolution, they visited Morehead, in Rowan county, on the 8th day of February, 1888, accompanied by a stenographic reporter, the employment of whom was authorized by a resolution of this General Assembly, after first having notified Judge A. E. Cole of the time and place of the meeting of the Committee, and proceeded to take the testimony of numerous witnesses, each witness being first duly sworn, and then thoroughly examined by the Committee, and cross-examined by the attorneys representing Judge Cole. The Committee, while at Morehead, thus took the testimony of fifteen witnesses, represented to the Committee as being among the most reputable citizens of the county. The records and papers of the Circuit Court Clerk's office were also thoroughly and minutely examined, after which your Committee adjourned to meet in the city of Frankfort on the 14th day of February, 1888, at which time and place the Committee met, and in the same manner took the testimony of thirty-three other witnesses, making in the aggregate forty-eight witnesses examined by the Committee. The testimony of these witnesses, when reduced to print, is very voluminous, covering, as it does, some eight hundred pages of legal cap paper, besides a vast amount of exhibits and documentary evidence, making it impracticable for your Committee to give an extended synopsis of it.

Your Committee find, from the evidence, that the feuds and lawlessness in Rowan county commenced in August, 1884, and grew out of the election of W. Cooke Humphrey as Sheriff of the county. On the day of the August election one Solomon Bradley was killed in a street fight, and a dispute arose as to whether Floyd Tolliver or John Martin did the killing. Said Bradley was a Republican and a friend and partisan of said Humphrey; and from the date of that killing, and for some months afterwards, the feuds partook of a political nature, Cooke Humphrey and his followers representing a Republican faction, and Craig Tolliver and his followers a Democratic faction.

On December 2d, 1884, Floyd Tolliver was killed in a bar-room difficulty by John Martin, Martin at the time being a member of the Humphrey faction.

On December 10th following, John Martin was assassinated at Farmer, in Rowan county, while in charge of the officers of the law, under a forged order to bring him from the Winchester jail, in Clark county, to Morehead, to stand his examining trial.

From that time forward open murders and secret assassinations followed in quick succession until June 22d, 1887, when the principal leaders of one faction of the marauders and murderers were killed in an attempt to arrest them.

From August, 1884, to June 22d, 1887, there were twenty murders and assassinations in the county, and sixteen persons wounded who did not die, and all this in a county whose voting population did not, at any time, exceed eleven hundred; and during this period there was not a single conviction for murder, manslaughter or wounding, except for the killing of one Hughes, who was not identified with either faction.

In addition to felonies, we find that a great number of the most odious misdemeanors were committed, such as carrying concealed deadly weapons, selling spirituous, vinous and malt liquors without license, selling the same to minors, disturbing religious worship, breaches of the peace, etc. The Circuit Court docket showed that a great many persons were never arrested for the offenses charged against them; that in a great majority of cases, where arrests were made, either worthless bonds were taken or the parties were cleared by the petit jury. It appeared from the record that there were some cases, even when a conviction was had, that the parties escaped the penalties of the law. Many of the cases of conviction appeared to have been obtained by reason of the absence of the defendant, leaving the impression upon the minds of the committee that any effort to defeat the law seemed generally successful. It appeared from the record that there is now due the Commonwealth on straw bonds many thousand dollars that will never be collected.

According to the proof, the petit jurors were a fair average of the men of probity and integrity in Rowan county, and the failure to convict seemed to be either that the people, from long accustomed association with deeds of violence or crime, or from a want of appreciation of law and order, or from intimidation and fear, were unduly tolerant of crime.

We find that, although some indictments were found against parties guilty of felonies and misdemeanors, there were several instances in which the most cruel and cowardly murders were committed, and no indictments were found by any Grand Jury of Rowan county, although it was generally known or suspected by the entire community who the parties were that committed the murders. The Grand Juries in Rowan county since August, 1884, in several instances, not only failed to discharge their duty in investigating and ferreting out the parties who were guilty of the most horrible crimes, when it was generally known and suspected who had committed those crimes, but used their functions to instigate and set on foot prosecutions founded upon the most worthless evidence, and in several instances failed to indict officers of the law when the knowledge was brought home to them of crimes and misdemeanors committed by said officers. According to the proof, the Grand Jury, like the petit jury, was a fair average of the men of probity and integrity in Rowan county.

Your committee find that the county officials were not only wholly inefficient, but most of them in the warmest sympathy with crime and criminals; in some instances not only suppressing the knowledge of murder, but giving support so far as to rescue criminals from the custody of the law, being totally oblivious of their duty to the Commonwealth, and seeking notoriety of censure and adverse criticism rather than shrinking from it.
Law and order can not and will not be maintained in Rowan county with the present county officials, nor did we find while at Morehead a healthy public sentiment to uphold and sustain the enforcement of the law. Whilst your committee was at Morehead parties were openly engaged in selling whisky in one of the most public places of the town without license, and had been doing so since June, 1887; and this known, too, by the officers of the law, and no effort made by any one to suppress it.

Fortunately for the Commonwealth, some of the murderers of Rowan county, who have brought so much disgrace upon the Commonwealth, were dispatched on the 22d day of June, 1887; but there yet remains in Rowan and adjoining counties some of the parties who have been participating in the murders in Rowan county, and the prevalent opinion of men thoroughly conversant with the previous lawlessness and bloody history of Rowan county is, that as soon as this General Assembly adjourns, again will begin the bloody scenes of violence, murder and assassination which have since August, 1884, marked and blackened the history of Rowan county.

In regard to the causes of the troubles in Rowan county, your committee find—

First. That the county officials, excepting a very few, are not only inefficient, but are totally corrupt and depraved.

Second. The want of a healthy moral public sentiment.

Third. That the portion of the community which seems attached to law and order, has so long been domineered over by the criminal element and corrupt officers, that they are incapable of rendering any valuable assistance in maintaining the law save a few exceptions, and these few so greatly in the minority in the class desiring law and order, that a reformation can not be hoped for if left to their own resources.

Fourth. That during all the social chaos since August, 1884, spirituous liquors have been sold, with and without license, in nearly every part of the county, adding fury and fire and venom to the minds and hearts of murderers, and dragging into the terrible vortex of drunkenness and crime and murder even those who were not originally in the feuds; the proof showing that crimes and murders were committed in the various precincts in proportion to the number of places where whisky was sold.
sold. The evidence of many of the most prominent and intelligent men of Rowan county was, that the only cure for all the evils that have afflicted Rowan county and disgraced the Commonwealth is the abolition of the county and remanding it back to the counties from which it was erected; and this, in the opinion of your committee, is the only intelligent solution of the difficulty; and we therefore recommend the repeal of the act by which the county was erected, and that the respective portions of the territory be given to the counties from which they were taken; and we herewith file the evidence upon which the opinion is based.

Reporting separately as to the charges against Judge Cole, we can not say from the testimony that he has been guilty of corruption in office, nor has he been guilty of official misconduct in a legal or criminal sense; but your committee are constrained to say, however, that Judge Cole unwittingly allowed himself in some measure to be influenced by partisans of one faction, and allowed officers of his court, without apparent censure from him, to remain in discharge of their official duties after misconduct upon the part of said officials of a highly criminal character which the court knew, or by the exercise of reasonable diligence might have known, had been committed by said officials, and ought to have brought down the severest condemnation of the Judge in his charge to the Grand Jury and otherwise; but, so far as the proof shows, received no official notice or attention from the court. And his social relations with these parties continued to be apparently friendly and cordial.

But while we feel forced under the proof to say these things, we do not believe from the testimony that any Judge in the Commonwealth could have enforced the law in that county, and we believe, moreover, that the criticism to which he has subjected himself is due more to his kindness of heart and his unsuspecting devotion to his personal and political friends, than from any disposition to side with either faction, or to shield the criminals that were around him.

The proof shows that in every other county in his district his private character, as well as his official conduct, are above reproach. The lawyers and other citizens of his circuit, so far as examined, universally testify both to his high character as a citizen and his unblemished conduct and character as a Judge.

JOHN P. NEWMAN,
CHAS. BLANFORD,
ARTHUR M. WALLACE.

MINORITY REPORT.

To the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

While concurring in the report concerning Rowan county signed by the majority of your Committee, I am forced to dis agree as to the charges of official misconduct against the Judge of the Fourteenth Judicial District.

The resolution under which your committee acted directed an investigation of definite and positive charges. In prosecuting our inquiries, the testimony will show that every legal rule of evidence was disregarded in order that the Committee might have the widest possible information as a basis for their conclusions. With this great mass of nearly one thousand pages of testimony, certainly Judge Cole is proven guilty or not guilty. It is not enough to say that he has not been guilty of official misconduct in a legal sense, or that no Judge in the Commonwealth could have enforced the law in Rowan county, and then shadow a vindication by statements that, if true,
prove the charge we were appointed to investigate.

I call your attention to the report of this Committee respecting Rowan county, and submit that, if it is true, the conduct of Judge Cole, unimpeached by a word of testimony, deserves our heartiest praise instead of censure.

In my judgment, the testimony is conclusive that the official conduct of Judge Cole has been impartial and above reproach.
