The Controversy for the re-served and the second s ply of the Courier of that city, to the legal ply of the Courier of that city, to the tega opinions, relied on by Mr. Kendall, to show that O'Reilly has no right to construct a tel-egraph line from Louisville to New Orleans, via Nashville, &c. We feel some interest in the controversy, We feel some interest in the controversy.

We feel some interest in the controversy, as our elizzens have recently taken stock in the proposed line of Kendall and others, from Wheeling through this place, Lozing-ton, &c., to New Ofleans,—and this must be our apology for making an inqury or two of the "Courier," for we have not seen the contract, but should like to co so very much

The following clause of the contract is

The following clause of the contract is quoted by the Courier: "As preference is to be given to the party of the first part and his associates in the cou-rarction of comercing of to prevent an extende the presence of the second part, of a line from Builds to connect with the Lake towns at Erie, nor to prevent the construction of a line from Second Part, or a lin

Courier, have a very different meaning when taken in connection with the remainder of the clause. For, if we are not very much at fault, as to the plain purport of the language used, the point sought to be guarded against by the patentees, in the clause referred to, was a possible objection on the par of O'Rielly to connecting the New Orleans line of the patentees, with "Western towns" through which O'Rielly's line passed, without an express recervation of that right; and in this construction we are borne out by the context, for immediately following the reservation, is a provision guarding against an attempt on the part of the patentces to connect "Western cities or towns," already connected by O'Rielly's line. It
