FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Arts in Morehead (AIM) will present Jomandi Productions with "Voices in the Rain" as part of the programming for Black History Month at Morehead State University.

The performance is scheduled for 8 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 12, in Breck Auditorium and is partially funded by the Southern Arts Federation. There will be no admission charged.

"Voices in the Rain" is a musical drama recreating the history of black Americans through personal stories and vignettes. The production has been described as moving "with the pulse and excitement of a sermon and the dazzle of a cabaret."

Jomandi, Georgia's oldest existing black-owned and produced professional theatre, has toured from Houston to New York, appearing twice at New York's Lincoln Center, as well as Germany, Denmark and Sweden.

"We are quietly arrogant about the power of our work," said Tom Jones, co-director and performer. "People are moved by what we do; most love it, some try to elude the directness of the work, but never are our audiences apathetic."

Black History Month at MSU will also feature a lecture by former U.S. Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm at 8 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 20, in Button Auditorium.

MSU's Black History Month celebration is sponsored by the Office of Minority Student Affairs, the Office of Student Activities and Organizations and AIM, a joint venture of MSU and the Morehead-Rowan County Arts Council.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Academic-Athletic Center will be the site for an "Employer Showcase," Friday and Saturday, Feb. 7-8, featuring nearly two dozen special exhibits.

The showcase is a highlight of the Morehead-Rowan County Chamber of Commerce's project, Employer Appreciation Days, designed to salute area businesses and industries.

"This event, the first in a series of activities saluting our area employers, features manufacturers and health care providers," said Gary Blake, chamber president.

The exhibits will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Friday and from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Saturday.

"Our thrust for this project is two-fold," Blake said. "We want to show appreciation to our area businesses for their many contributions, but we also want to stimulate community pride in local products and services," he added.

"With the early evening hours on Friday, we hope residents will find it convenient to stop at the showcase on their way home from work or they can bring their whole family to the AAC on Saturday to learn more about our own local businesses," Blake said.

"We also are encouraging school teachers to bring their classes to the showcase on Friday," he said.

Group tours may be arranged by calling Peter T. McNeill, industrial development specialist for MSU's Appalachian Development Center, at (606) 783-2077.

Morehead State and ADC are co-sponsors for the program along with the Chamber and the following:

Morehead-Rowan County Industrial Foundation, Kentucky Department of Employment Services, Morehead Business and Professional Association, Morehead-Rowan County Tourism Commission, and city and county government.

Among the exhibitors expected are: SealMaster Bearings, Cowden Manufacturing, Richard White Wood Products, Rowan County Steel, Keiffer Furniture Works, St. Claire Medical Center, Morehead Clinic, Cave Run Clinic, Life Care Center and several MSU departments.

Special governmental agency exhibits will include: U.S. Corps of Engineers, U.S. Forest Service, Kentucky Forest Services, Kentucky Bureau of Rehabilitation, Kentucky Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet, Kentucky Labor Cabinet, Department of Education, Department of Arts, Department of Economic Development and the Department of Employment Services. The Morehead City and Rowan County governmental bodies also will be represented.

"We anticipate additional exhibitors to be added before the showcase opens," said Larry Breeze, vice chair of the Morehead-Rowan County Industrial Foundation.

In addition to the showcase, the activities include an appreciation dinner on Friday night, featuring smoked lamb, to which area manufacturers and health care officials are being invited and recognition at Saturday's basketball game between MSU's Eagles and Murray State University.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Eastern Kentucky's weavers, wood carvers and quilters of yesterday are today's inspiration for the Folk Art Collection, housed in Morehead State University's Claypool-Young Art Building.

The main focus of the collection is on Eastern Kentucky artifacts, according to Caroline Garrett, guest curator of the Folk Art Collection.

Garrett said she is very interested in the contributions and abilities of the local people, whose talents may range from painting to making musical instruments. Authenticity and aesthetic appeal are the main requirements of the artwork, according to Garrett, who is also an artist and a writer.

In an attempt to develop greater public awareness in the region for the collection, a weaving program has been started and other plans are being developed.

Several local residents also have volunteered their talents. Linda Lowe of Morehead has offered to help conduct a quilting bee each Thursday afternoon and plans are being developed for similar activities in other crafts.

"Part of the uniqueness of the collection is not only the artwork itself, but also the stories behind each piece," said Garrett.

"Granny" Toothman is there all week, spinning, weaving and telling stories about her life. She enjoys having people stop in to see the collection and watch her work and hopes to make it possible for those visiting to weave a yard or two themselves, with a nominal fee for use of the loom, Garrett said.

Future activities of the Folk Art Collection include "God, Man, and the Devil," an exhibition by American folk artists, in the main gallery of the Claypool-Young Art Building. Larry Hackley, a folk art enthusiast and collector from North Middletown, organized and curated the exhibition, which will run from Feb. 10 through March 7.

Currently, the collection is looking for funds to expand its program and its exhibitions, according to Garrett. "We want it to be a 'living museum,'" she said. "We think it will have regional and possibly national significance and that's why we are so enthusiastic about it. But, we need financial support from sources other than the university in order for it to succeed," Garrett said.

The collection is open weekdays from 8 a.m. - 4:30 p.m., and is available for tours from local schools and individuals by appointment. Other viewing times may be scheduled.

Anyone interested in volunteering their talents or participating in the Thursday quilting bee may contact Garrett at (606) 783-2765, Claypool-Young Art Building, MSU.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Belinda C. Stambough of West Liberty has been named to the cast for Morehead State University Theatre's production of Bernard Pomerance's "The Elephant Man."

Stambough, daughter of Carl and Marie Stambough, is a senior communications major and is active in MSU Theatre.

The production will be directed by Dr. Travis Lockhart, MSU Theatre coordinator.

"The Elephant Man" is the story of John Merrick, who suffered from a rare disorder that made his appearance hideous, but "never touched his kind, gentle spirit," Dr. Lockhart said.

"This is by far the most challenging production of the season," noted Dr. Lockhart. "The technical and creative aspects of this production are extremely demanding," he said.

Reserve tickets are available at $4 for adults, $2 for children, and free to MSU students with valid I.D. cards. Show dates are Feb. 25-28 and March 1. Performances are at 8 p.m. in MSU's Kibbey Theatre.

Capital College Caravan: A Picture Story

"We need money....We need money!"

Nearly 5,000 vocal supporters of higher education raised that refrain to let state legislators know how they felt about higher education's funding needs.

They were students, faculty, staff, alumni and friends from the state's public and private colleges and universities who converged on the state capital for the Kentucky Advocates for Higher Education's Capital College Caravan, a rally in support of higher education.

Morehead State University's contingent included about 500 supporters, many of whom came to the capital via a motorcade of buses, cars and vans.

Staged in the Frankfort Civic Center on Feb. 5, the rally was a combination political convention, pep rally and old-time tent revival, featuring balloons, pep bands, cheerleaders, pompoms, placards, and school mascots.

Former North Carolina Gov. James Hunt told the group that the state's recent emphasis on elementary and secondary education had sent a message to the nation.

"In the economic game of new technology, Kentucky intends to play and Kentucky plans to win," he said. "You're in a tough technological league," he warned. "In this competitive league, the key to success is new knowledge. This new knowledge comes from only one place--institutions of higher learning," Hunt said.

"Our colleges and universities are Kentucky's partners in progress," Gov. Martha Layne Collins told the crowd. "We must give them the tools necessary to move higher education ahead. We're often criticized for over-emphasizing athletes, so let's over-emphasize education. It's the best investment we can make," she said in closing.

- 2--Waving placards and pompons MSU's faculty, staff, students and alumni show their spirit at the rally.
- 3--Asking those who support quality higher education to raise their hand, Robert Bell, chairman of the Kentucky Advocates for Higher Education, accepted nearly 5,000 new associate members into the KAHE.
- 4--In a speech laced with sports analogies, former North Carolina Gov. James Hunt urged the crowd to "put on a full court press and fast break for education."
- 5--Calling the rally an unprecedented day in the state's history, Gov. Martha Layne Collins said, "With this unity of purpose and this spirit of cooperation, we cannot fail in our resolve to move higher education forward."
- 6--MSU's Eagle mascot (Ken Hackett of Cincinnati) and Gov. Collins join the rest of the stage party and audience in singing "My Old Kentucky Home" as a finale to the program.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Tammy Liles of Garrison was among those Morehead State University student teachers scoring in the top 25 percent on one or more sections of the National Teachers Examinations last fall.

Liles is a senior majoring in biology and a graduate of Lewis County High School.

The NTE measures student teachers' professional knowledge, general knowledge, communication skills and knowledge in their specialty.

Of the 58 MSU student teachers taking the NTE last fall, 31 percent scored in the top quarter on one or more sections, according to Dr. Stephen Taylor, director of academic assessment. Nearly 60 percent of those students scored in the top half nationally on professional knowledge.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Former U.S. Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm will speak at Morehead State University at 8 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 20, in Button Auditorium.

Mrs. Chisholm's campus appearance is sponsored by Arts in Morehead (AIM) in cooperation with MSU's Office of Minority Student Affairs as part of the University's Black History Month activities. AIM is a joint effort of Morehead State and the Morehead-Rowan County Arts Council.

AIM Concert and Lecture Series season ticket holders and MSU students with valid I.D. cards will be admitted free. General admission tickets will be available at $5 for adults and $2.50 for youth age 18 and under.

Elected to the U.S. House of Representatives from New York's 12th Congressional District in 1968, Mrs. Chisholm served on the Veterans' Affairs Committee, House Education and Labor Committee and the Rules Committee. She held the distinction of being not only the senior Democratic woman, but also the only woman and only black American to serve on the House Rules Committee.

In 1972 she waged an unsuccessful campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination and 10 years later announced that she would not seek re-election to Congress.

A frequent lecturer on civil rights, women's issues and education, she currently holds the Purington Chair at Mount Holyoke College.

Other Black History Month activities coming up include a discussion of "The Value of a Well-Rounded Education" on Tuesday, Feb. 18, at 7 p.m. in Breck Auditorium. The speaker will be MSU alumnus Wayne Miller, account executive with the Cincinnati Enquirer and co-chairman of Cincinnati's United Negro College Fund.

Maurice Strider, MSU professor emeritus of art, will present a slide-illustrated lecture on "Research for Preserving Black History" at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 19, in Claypool-Young 111.

An exhibit of Afro-American artworks from Strider's collection also will be on display in the alternative gallery in Claypool-Young through March 7. Gallery hours are from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays.

On Tuesday, Feb. 25, Dr. Betty Sue Griffin, educational psychologist at the University of Oregon, will speak on "Academic Excellence through Positive Thinking" at 7 p.m. in Claypool-Young 111.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Dr. Roger H. Jones, professor of art, has been named acting director of international education at Morehead State University.

Announcement of the appointment was made by Dr. Robert Morasky, dean of MSU's Office of Graduate and Special Academic Programs.

"Dr. Jones' primary responsibility will be coordinating our participation in programs for study abroad," Dean Morasky said. "Morehead State currently offers study opportunities abroad through the Cooperative Center for Study in Britain, the Kentucky Institute for European Study and Kansai Gai Dai University in Japan," Morasky explained.

"He also will be involved in developing new programs and other opportunities for our students in international education experiences," he added.

A member of MSU's faculty since 1965, Dr. Jones has traveled extensively in Japan, Italy, Greece, Egypt, Ethiopia, Kenya, Spain, Portugal, England, Scotland, Wales, Canada, Cuba and Mexico. He has conducted tours of Great Britain and Mexico, the latter being a country he has traveled and studied for three decades.

Dr. Jones holds the A.B. degree from Georgetown College, the M.A. degree from University of Kentucky and an Ed.D. degree from Indiana University.

Active in several professional organizations, he is a past president of the Kentucky Education Association and serves as Southeastern District area coordinator for Phi Delta Kappa.

He received the Distinguished Alumni Award in 1965 from Georgetown College and MSU Alumni Association's Alumni Service Award in 1981.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University alumnus Tim P. Rhodes has been named director of financial aid for the University.

The appointment, effective immediately, was announced by Dr. Gary Grace, MSU's vice president for student development.

"We are indeed fortunate to have someone not only with a vast background in the University's financial system, but one who is also as dedicated as Mr. Rhodes is," Dr. Grace said.

Rhodes, who assumed the post last month on an acting basis, has been on Morehead State's staff since 1972, when he joined the business office as head cashier. He later became loan officer and most recently was bursar.

"I am looking forward to continuing to work with our students and trying to meet their needs," Rhodes said.

Rhodes, the son of Joseph and Wilma Rhodes of Frenchburg, holds a B.B.A. degree from MSU. He and his wife, the former Cindy Gulley of Morehead, are the parents of a son, Paul.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Friends of the late Sue Lucke, Morehead State University faculty member, have established a memorial scholarship in her name.

Mrs. Lucke, an assistant professor of health, physical education and recreation, died Feb. 9 in a Lexington hospital after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage. Services were held Tuesday, (Feb. 11) in Morehead.

Contributions earmarked for the Sue Lucke Memorial Scholarship may be made to the MSU Foundation. The scholarship will be awarded to a student majoring in health, physical education and recreation, according to Bill Redwine, director of development.

Described by her colleagues as a "people's person," Mrs. Lucke was known for her enthusiasm and concern for students, according to Dr. Earl J. Bentley, her department chair.

"She cared about her students and her influence will continue through the lives of these students," said Buford Crager, assistant professor of HPER.

A member of the faculty for 17 years, Mrs. Lucke also had taught in the Adair and Rowan County school systems. A former MSU women's basketball and tennis coach, she had coached high school and college teams in North Carolina, Virginia and Tennessee as well.

Mrs. Lucke taught modern, social and folk dance classes on campus and in the community. She was a cheerleader sponsor and student adviser and also served on various departmental committees.

She earned the bachelor degree from Radford (Va.) University and a master's degree from Morehead State.

Survivors include her husband, Edward James Lucke, also a member of MSU's HPER faculty; a son, Harry Vance Lucke of Russell; a daughter, Jamie Day Lucke of Birmingham, Ala.; her parents Mr. and Mrs. John Benjamin Norris Sr. of Hillsborough, N.C.; two brothers and a sister.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University's speech team placed third in a field of 17 teams from seven states during a speech tournament held recently at Ohio State University.

MSU's team ranked behind Bradley University--the nation's number one team--and OSU, who took first and second places, respectively, in the competition, according to Phil Martin, MSU forensics director.

Individual student wins included:

Vonda Ramey, Morehead junior majoring in business and speech, who placed second in rhetorical speaking and in sales speaking. She was also named the second best speaker overall at the tournament.

Margaret Holt, Radcliff junior majoring in radio/television, took fourth in persuasive speaking and fifth in informative and impromptu speaking events. Holt was judged fourth best speaker overall in the tournament.

Kevin Cockrell, Jeffersonville sophomore majoring in history and speech, placed first in persuasive speaking.

Rondell Meeks, Morehead freshman majoring in speech and theatre, finished fourth in prose interpretation.

Also contributing to MSU's finish in the top three teams were Jeff Ray of Owingsville, senior radio/television major; Mike Breeze of Morehead, freshman radio/television major, and John Burchett of Morehead, freshman speech major.

The team will compete next at Georgetown College in the State Championship Tournament, Feb. 28- March 1. MSU has won the state tournament for the last seven years, according to Martin.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Seminars and tours of broadcast, recording and advertising facilities will highlight a field study experience in New York City scheduled May 19-26 by Morehead State University.

Three hours of undergraduate credit will be available to participants in the course (R-TV 379), offered through the Radio/Television Program in MSU's Department of Communications.

"Special arrangements may be made for those students wishing graduate credit," said Thomas Yancy, Radio/TV Program coordinator. Yancy also said that enrollment in the field study is not limited to program majors.

The cost for the study tour is $560 for undergraduates, who are in-state students; $782 for undergraduates from out-of-state; $614 for in-state graduate students and $938 for out-of-state graduate students.

The fee includes airfare, hotel room (shared accommodations), a ticket to a Broadway musical and backstage theater tour. Also arrangements are being made for participants to attend the David Letterman Show and a rehearsal of Saturday Night Live.

According to Yancy, enrollment is limited so reservations should be made soon. A nonrefundable deposit of $100 must be made by March 1, followed on April 1 by a payment of $210. The balance of the fee is due May 15.

Additional information may be obtained by calling Yancy at MSU's Department of Communications (606) 783-2134 or writing him in care of UPO 791, Morehead State University, Morehead, KY 40351.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--The Kentucky White House Conference on Small Business, a prelude to a national White House Conference, will be held Tuesday, Feb. 25, at the Hyatt Regency in Louisville.

Area small business owners or operators interested in attending the forum on issues confronting small businesses today may obtain additional information from Dr. Ray Bernardi, professor of business education at Morehead State University, (606) 783-2744.

In addition to such issues as government regulation and paperwork, taxation and payroll costs, the state conference agenda will include election of 18 delegates to the national conference scheduled Aug. 17-21 in Washington, D.C. An additional 10 delegates will be appointed by the governor and the state's congressional leaders.

The Feb. 25 conference is open to the public, but to vote for or run for a delegate slot, participants must be owners, partners or corporate officers in a business employing fewer than 500 people. The registration fee is $35.

Registration will be conducted at the Louisville Hyatt from 5 to 8 p.m. Monday, Feb. 24, and resume at 7 a.m. on Tuesday with the first conference session scheduled for 8:30 a.m.

The state forum is sponsored partially by the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce.

MSU INSTRUCTOR GETS 'CREAMED'

What looks like a replay of a Three Stooges' move, is actually the result of a lighthearted fund-raising effort conducted by Cardinal Key student leadership honorary at Morehead State University. The students sponsored a "Pie-in-the-Face" contest in which votes were cast for contestants by purchasing pieces of pie. The three most popular faculty and staff members received pies in the face. Mike Leach of Morehead, left, MSU senior majoring in computer science and math, may have realized the fond hope of many students as he "creamed" Bob Callahan, instructor of business and economics and top vote-getter. Second and third place winners were Dennis Bothel, director of Mignon Tower, and Frank Osborne, professor of psychology.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--In a speech at Morehead State University, former U.S. Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm warned that social change is falling victim to complacency.

Chisholm's campus appearance, sponsored by Arts in Morehead's Concert and Lecture Series, was part of the University's Black History Month celebration.

"How sad it is that in this country after 200 years, we still have to have a special month set aside for special celebration and ceremonies for one segment of our people," Chisholm said earlier in her speech.

"Here in 1986 instead of moving along, we see a retrogression of some of the gains made by women and blacks in this country," said Chisholm, who now teaches at Mount Holyoke College.

"Back in the 60s and 70s, we saw people who were perturbed about things," she said. Those were the beginnings not only of the Civil Rights and Women's movements, but also of the Anti-Vietnam movement and environmentalism, according to Chisholm.

"People went beyond self; they had an interest in humanity," she said. Chisholm, who served in Congress from 1969 until 1982, recalled that the battles of what she labeled the "Second Civil War" were fought in marches, sit-ins and boycotts. "The white men had the dogs and fire hoses, but we had our belief that the Declaration of Independence should apply to everyone," she said.

Exhorting the members of the audience not to be "placid armchair recipients" of whatever convention decreed, Chisholm said, "Change never comes from shrinking violets. Change comes from those with the nerve, courage and guts to stand up.

As thousands of jobs are exported overseas, Chisholm said, the "middle class is becoming the lower class. The danger signals are there," she said, citing problems in education and the American farmer's plight.

"We sit back and we don't do anything. Or if we do, we only put a Band-Aid on a festering sore," she continued.

"I hope you wake up before it is too late," she concluded.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Mozart on Fifth, a jazz/chamber ensemble, will be heard in concert at 8 p.m. Tuesday, March 4, in Duncan Recital Hall at Morehead State University as part of Arts in Morehead's 1985-86 Concert and Lecture Series programming.

Admission will be by series membership or general admission tickets, $5 each, which will be available at the door. MSU students with valid I.D. cards will be admitted free. Half-price tickets will be available for other students age 18 and under.

Composed of three musicians who sing and play clarinet, bassoon, saxophone, flute, piccolo and banjo, Mozart on Fifth is an unusual ensemble that performs everything from ragtime and swing to popular and classical music.

"Their music and program is so varied that there is something to appeal to everyone," said Dr. Glenn C. Rogers, series committee chair. "March 4 promises to be a delightful evening, one that the entire family will enjoy, he added.

Over the past seven years, Mozart on Fifth has toured North America, playing at colleges, music festivals, conventions and clubs. The ensemble has performed with symphony orchestras and shared billing with such stars as Count Basie. The group has appeared on the "Today Show" and been heard over National Public Radio on "A Prairie Home Companion."

One critic recently wrote, "Such was the power of this group's elegant style that it soon began to feel perfectly natural to move, without pause, from a Mozart aria to an urbane, sophisticated 'Moonlight Serenade' and from a meditative, unhurried reading of the famous Pachelbel 'Canon' to a zesty, swinging version of 'As Time Goes By.'"

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University currently is conducting registration for a free workshop for Kentucky long-term care ombudsmen and other volunteers who work with the elderly.

The one-day workshop, "Volunteer Voices," will be March 19 at the Adron Doran University Center and is sponsored by MSU's Appalachian Development Center in cooperation with the Division for Aging Services, Department of Social Services, Kentucky Cabinet for Human Resources.

"We are pleased to have Marge Brock, state director of aging services, as our keynote speaker," said Shirley Hamilton, assistant director for human services at ADC.

"The program has been developed to assist people who work with the elderly on a volunteer basis and will focus on the state's Long-Term Care Ombudsmen Program which was mandated by congress under the Older Americans Act of 1981," Hamilton said.

The program will begin at 8 a.m. with a continental breakfast and registration, followed by welcoming remarks at 9 a.m. and the opening address by Brock.

"How can I, a volunteer, be a voice for those who can not speak for themselves?" is the theme for the workshop. Topics to be addressed during the morning sessions include valuing the aging process, meeting challenges and the recruiting, retaining and rewarding of volunteers.

After lunch, the workshop participants will be divided into small groups for discussions dealing with the role of the ombudsman, the role of volunteers and how to handle complaints.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Are you feeling the symptoms of stress, anxiety, and even all-out panic when you think of federal income tax forms?

Then tune to WMKY-FM 90.3 on Sunday, March 2, at 3 p.m. for the "1986 Radio Tax Clinic," a live two-hour national call-in designed to cure income tax return maladies with simple answers to questions.

Heard nationwide over National Public Radio, the program will be hosted by Noah Adams, co-anchor of "All Things Considered." He will be joined by IRS experts as well as a prominent private tax consultant who will answer questions concerning the latest tax changes and how these changes will affect individual taxpayers.

Recent changes to be discussed are new taxes on some Social Security benefits, new rules for tax shelters and new limits on charitable contributions. In addition, the program will delve into elderly taxpayer issues and shed light on how changing categories (e.g. getting married, getting a raise, etc.) will affect your taxes.

Listeners will be able to call in on a toll-free line which will be announced on WMKY.

Information on other WMKY programs and on how to become a WMKY subscriber may be obtained by calling Judy Flavell at (606) 783-2001.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Real Estate Studies Program has been awarded a grant of $18,879 from the Kentucky Real Estate Commission for 1985-86 operating expenses.

This year's grant is one of the largest the University has received for the program since MSU was designated as one of the state's four Regional Centers for Real Estate Studies in 1978 by the KREC, according to Beverly McCormick, assistant professor and program head.

During the program's start-up years, the KREC grant included some salary supplemental funds, but currently the University underwrites the faculty salaries.

The funds from the Louisville-based KREC are used to support the program with graduate assistantships and student workshops, as well as maintaining a real estate library for use by both students and the public, McCormick said. The grant also supports professional development for faculty and seminars offered to the community.

MSU's Real Estate Studies Program is housed in the Department of Business and Economics and has 132 students enrolled currently.

Students may work toward either a B.B.A. degree with emphasis in real estate or a two-year degree. A minor in real estate study also is available, according to McCormick, who joined MSU's faculty last August.

An attorney, McCormick previously was in private practice with her husband and worked with Northeast Kentucky Legal Services in Ashland.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University's Folk Art Collection will feature Ethel Carpenter of Beloit, Ohio, as "quilter-in-residence," March 3 - 7.

Carpenter will be at the Folk Museum's quilt rack weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Claypool-Young Art Building.

A native of Soldier, Carpenter has been quilting for approximately 10 years and has sold many of her quilts. She has volunteered her time and talent to the collection, according to Caroline Garrett, guest curator of the Folk Art Collection.

Carpenter will quilt the batting and lining for a design by Mrs. Wallace Horton of Danville. Everyone is invited to participate in the quilting and Carpenter will give instructions to those who join her, Garrett said.

"If you want to watch, that's fine," Garrett added, "but the main idea is for people to come in and take part in the quilting. Just bring your own thimble."

Once the quilt is completed it will become part of the Folk Art Collection. "It will be displayed as a quilt made by the people of this area," Garrett said.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University will celebrate National TRIO Day with an Open House in the Office of TRIO Programs located in Allie Young 220 on Friday, Feb. 28, from 2 to 4 p.m. All University faculty, staff, and students, as well as members of the community are welcome.

A concurrent resolution proclaiming Friday, February 28, as National TRIO Day has been introduced in the United States House of Representatives. The action was initiated by Congressmen William D. Ford (D-MI), Louis Stokes (D-OH), and Silvio Conte (R-MA).

Kentucky Congressmen who have agreed to support this resolution include Carl C. Perkins, Ramono L. Mazzoli, Carroll Hubbard, Jr., and Harold (Hal) Rogers.

The resolution is designed to call attention to TRIO's important educational achievements and to emphasize that such achievements will become less likely, if not impossible, if Congress does not take action to avert the automatic spending reductions triggered by Gramm-Rudman-Hollings.

Betty Moran, director of TRIO Programs at Morehead State University, explains that "the goal of the TRIO Programs is to offer support services to enhance the chance of success for those individuals who have the potential to succeed in postsecondary education, but lack the academic preparation or financial resources to do so."

TRIO Programs have been part of the federal strategy aimed at advancing equal opportunity to all in postsecondary education for over two decades. The 1,295 Educational Opportunity Centers, Special Services, Talent Search, and Upward Bound programs presently assist more than 464,000 youth and adults to attain the upward mobility afforded by higher education. Included in that number are more than 10,000 individuals served by TRIO Programs in Kentucky; approximately 1,000 of whom are served by the Special Services, Talent Search, and Upward Bound programs provided at Morehead State University.

(MORE)

TRIO

According to a report released recently by the National Council of Educational Opportunity Associations (NCEO), the impact of TRIO Programs on the educational and economic structure of our country has been profound. National studies have demonstrated the following results:

1) College students who participate in Special Services Programs are more than two times as likely to complete their first year of college as those who did not receive these counseling, tutoring, and instructional services.

2) Ninety-one percent of Upward Bound graduates enter postsecondary institutions, and are four times as likely to earn a baccalaureate within four years as similar students who did not participate in these programs.

3) In recent years, Talent Search Programs served over 200,000 students in our nation and 37 percent of those entered postsecondary institutions; Educational Opportunity Centers served over 127,000 clients, and 27 percent were placed in postsecondary institutions.

The NCEO also reports that here are thousands more individuals that could benefit from the services of the TRIO Programs, and project that due to proposed cuts, over 300 colleges and universities could lose TRIO Programs, eliminating services to over 300,000 individuals.

For more information about TRIO Programs in the region, contact Betty Moran, director of TRIO Programs, Morehead State University, Allie Young 220 or call 783-2005.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--A Morehead State University senior is one of five Kentucky college and university students who are recipients of the Kentucky Beef Cattle Association's prestigious Smith T. Powell Scholarships.

Ira Scott Kilburn, a native of Hazard who now resides in Salt Lick, was nominated for the honor by MSU's Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources, according to Dr. Andy Boston, professor of agriculture.

The scholarships, given annually by the KBCA, are earmarked for outstanding seniors who have demonstrated an interest in beef cattle production. The award includes a $100 check to the student and a $100 check to his department. Dr. Boston said the University's check will be earmarked for a scholarship for an incoming freshman in Fall 1986.

An honor student at MSU, Kilburn has worked at the agricultural farm complex and is vice president of Delta Tau Alpha agriculture scholastic honor society.

"Young Kilburn is an outstanding young man who has demonstrated ability and dedication to cattle farming," said Dr. Judith Willard, chair of MSU's Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources. "We are proud to see his accomplishments recognized by others," she added.

Kilburn, who lives with his wife Ambie in Bath County, is a member of the Bath County Young Farmers Organization and serves on the board of the Bath County Dairy Committee. He is a licensed artificial insemination technician.

Since spring 1984, he has been responsible for the day-to-day operations of Comb's Farm, including formulating feeds, managing the labor and milking, breeding, culling decisions, selecting replacements and agronomic operations.

He has also worked for a livestock trader as a co-op student, doing feeding, transporting, buying, culling and making marketing decisions. Last spring, Kilburn and his wife attended Bath County's Young Farmer Management School and are now serving on the planning committee for this year's school.

Bath County extension agent John Wills has described him as "intelligent, energetic and enthusiastic in all of his activities," and noted that Kilburn had already "made a very positive impact" on the Bath County Extension Program.

The award was presented at the KBCA annual meeting held recently at the Campbell House Inn in Lexington.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University's Department of Music will host its 14th annual Jazz Clinic on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 28 - March 1.

The Clinic, open to all high school Jazz Ensembles, will begin on Friday morning at 9 a.m. at Baird Music Hall. Some 300 students from 16 high schools in Kentucky and Ohio are expected to attend.

The opening host concert will be given at 10 a.m. in Duncan Recital Hall by the MSU Jazz Ensemble II under the direction of David Anderson, assistant professor of music and coordinator of Jazz Studies.

Other host concerts on Friday and Saturday will be as follows:

|----------|------------|--|
| Friday | 12:30 p.m. | MSU SHOW CHOIR, under the direction of Vasile Venettozzi, associate professor of music. |
| | 1 p.m. | MSU GUITAR ENSEMBLE, under the direction of Raymond Ross, assistant professor of music. |
| | 4 p.m. | MSU PERCUSSION ENSEMBLE, under the direction of Frank Oddis, assistant professor of music. |
| Saturday | 10 a.m. | MSU JAZZ VOCAL ENSEMBLE, under the direction of Jay Flippin, assistant professor of music. |
| | 3 p.m. | MSU JAZZ ENSEMBLE I, under the direction of David Anderson, assistant professor of music. |

The feature concert of the clinic will be given by "Sternwheel Drive," one of the U.S. Navy's show groups. The 18-piece musical organization, formed in April 1976 under the direction of Chief Petty Officer Carl R. Wolfe, is composed entirely of Navy personnel serving on active duty, all of whom are graduates of the Armed Forces School of Music at Little Creek, Va. The group will perform at 8 p.m. Friday in Duncan Recital Hall.

On Saturday morning, guest instrumental clinicians will be presenting sessions for trumpets, trombones, saxophones, keyboards, guitars, bass, and drums. MSU faculty clinicians will be Jay Flippin, Ray Ross Jr., and Frank Oddis.

Special guest clinicians will be:

Larry McWilliams, assistant professor of musical performance and director of Jazz Studies at Ball State University School of Music, Muncie, Ind. McWilliams has been a member of the Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey Orchestras, performed with the Letterman, The Temptations, and Glen Campbell, and is currently a member of the John von Ohlen Jazz Orchestra of Indianapolis.

Dr. Thomas Streeter, professor of brass instruments and director of Jazz Programs at Illinois Wesleyan University. Dr. Streeter was a bass trombonist with the famed USAF "Airmen of Note" for four years prior to joining the university staff. While at Wesleyan, Dr. Streeter has been featured trombone soloist at the International Trombone Workshop, held national office in the International Trombone Association and has been summer camp director-coordinator for the National Association of Jazz Educators.

Carl R. Wolfe, jazz saxophone clinician, tours throughout the country performing clinics of improvisation techniques, stylization, and the chronology of saxophone stylization. His talents have won him acclaim at several major musical conferences and conventions, including the prestigious International Saxophone Symposium in Washington, D.C. Wolfe performed for four years with the U.S. Navy Band in Washington, D.C., where he was featured as a soloist with the Navy's premier jazz ensemble, "The Commodores."

On both days performances will be given by each of the high school jazz ensembles in attendance. The outstanding jazz ensemble will receive free jazz arrangements from George Hrst Music Co. in Lexington. The outstanding soloist will receive a tuition scholarship to Jamey Aebersold's Jazz Improvisation Camp at the University of Louisville. Participation certificates will be given to all registered ensembles.

All concerts are free and open to the public.

Performing on the Pi Kappa Lambda recital series will be Dr. Earle Louder, associate professor of music, euphonium; Robert Pritchard, assistant professor of music, flute; and Lucretia Stetler, assistant professor of music, piano.

The program will consist of works by Mozart, Clinard, Ravel, Hanson, and will feature the "world premier" of Dr. Christopher Gallaher's Sonata (1986), for euphonium and piano.

Dr. Gallaher, who is the chair of the Department of Music is also an extensively published composer/arranger.

When asked to comment as to how the Sonata came about he said:

"As Dr. Louder has such exceptional performance skills on the euphorium, I felt a work which showcases these skills would be both challenging for me to write as well as challenging for the euphonium and piano to perform. I am very pleased with the rehearsal I have heard. In short, I like the Sonata and hope others will feel the same."

MOREHEAD, Ky.--A Morehead State University home economics faculty member has been elected president of the Kentucky Home Economics Teacher Education Council.

Jane C. Ellington, assistant professor, was elected at the Council's recent meeting in Owensboro which was held in conjunction with the University Coordinating Council and Kentucky Office of Vocational Education-sponsored Conference on Vocational Education.

Ellington joined the MSU faculty in 1981, having previously taught in Kentucky and Ohio public schools.

A Kentucky native, she earned the B.S. degree in home economics from Morehead State and her M.S. degree from the University of Kentucky. She also completed the Ohio Vocational Education Leadership Training at Kent State University.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Margaret C. Cook of Georgetown. The new Council president and her husband William David Ellington are the parents of a son and reside in Sharpsburg.
