TEACHERS MEETING FOR FAIR ARRANGEMENTS IS SCHEDULED TO BE HELD FRIDAY MORNING

Complete Arrangements For Annual School Fair To Meet To Plan Fair Activities.

Final preparations are being made this week for the opening of the Rowan County School and Agricultural Fair Friday, October 4th, at the gymnasium of the Morehead City School.

Prospects for a great fair are encouraging, despite the fact that agricultural phases have been hampered by an adverse season. According to County Agent C. L. Goff, great interest is being manifested over the county both among the schools and community folk. Calls at the County Agent's office for information concerning the fair have been so numerous as to indicate enthusiasm in all departments.

The catalogue is definitely scheduled for delivery Friday morning at eight o'clock, when it will be presented to the teachers of the county who will then be assembling in an optional meeting at the City School.

Teachers will also be given entry cards with instructions to enter all exhibits in their respective schools, thus saving a great deal of time and inconvenience in registration.

B. H. Kazee, Secretary, will be in charge of registration. There will be three departments of registrars, corresponding to the three departments of the fair, with assistants enough to take care of the rush and to insure registration on time. Mr. Kazee has planned a new system of paying off prizes which will eliminate such details and misdirections as have been the cause of a headache containing the money. This matter will be presented immediately after the fair, at a booth designated "OFFICE" and tickets will be received and paid off according to the proper specifications.

Judges of all departments will be called into a special instructional meeting previous to the fair, where they will be given all the details necessary in judging prizes.

Mrs. Lester Hogge, President of the fair, will hold an official meeting some time this week for the purpose of setting in motion the final arrangements for the occasion. A limited number of concessions will be permitted on the fair grounds, and such advertising projects as can be adapted to the grounds.

Scholastic events will be held Friday.

Hogston in that election took 66 Democrats and 14 Republicans, and was the banner precinct of the county.

Morehead Number One voted only 15 Democrats and 10 Republicans. Morehead Seven had 21 Republicans and 48 Democrats and Morehead Ten showed a vote of 17 Republicans and 51 Democrats.

College Semester Opens For Session With 456

Enrollment at the Morehead State Teachers College which opened the fall semester on Monday of this week, had by Wednesday night totaled 456 students in the college department. Later enrollments are expected to further increase this total to a comfortable margin.

Enrollment in the training school had slightly increased over that for the same semester last year.

The college freshmen class was one of the largest ever to enroll in the college, an indication of further growth in the college.

Classes have gotten under way and the work is being organized to carry on through the semester.

BOY NEAR DEATH FROM CUT RECEIVED AT PLAY

Dewey Henry Blair, a pupil in the Johnson school of which Mrs. Glenn Fraley is the teacher, suffered a serious accident which almost cost him his life, last week, when he stepped on a broken glass jar in the school yard. The boy's foot was so seriously cut that he had almost died to death before he was brought to the doctor's office in Morehead by Mr. C. L. Goff, county agent.

Mr. Goff was passing the school house at the time and hurried the boy to town where medical attention was given him.

Drive 500 Miles To Confer Degree

Morehead Lodge No. 654 F. and A. M. enjoyed a great treat last Saturday when G. H. Catron of Missouri and four Master Mason from that state conferred the third degree upon Mr. Catron's brother Harris Catron, using the Missouri form of conference. The work was very interesting to Kentucky Masons.

Mr. Catron was invited to be present at the conferring of the third degree on his brother, and brought his friends with him. The visitors from Missouri were assisted by local Masons.

Lee Clay Plant Re-Opened Mon.

Lee Clay Products Company at Clearfield resumed work in several departments on Monday morning of this week. Previous to that time Mr. S. Bowne, manager of the plant, had sent notices to all of the former employees, announcing that the plant would open on that date and that they would be welcome to return to work under the wage scale of 30 cents per hour.

The following is a copy of the notice sent out by the plant management.

"Whereas, the employees of the Lee Clay Products Company, Incorporated, members of Local No. 1 of the United Brick and Clay Workers of America, through their Committee, made certain wage increase demands which could not be met by the Company, and in consequence hereof, these employees voluntarily quit their jobs June 7, 1935.

With the hope of reconciliation, this Company appealed to and secured the services of the Conciliation Bureau of the United States Department of Labor. This Federal Government Agency for the mediation of labor disputes sent several representatives, who met with both the Committee for the workers and the management of this Company, to bring about the proposed reconciliation, but the Committee has to this day refused to conciliate the differences existing between them and the Company.

The management of this Company has done everything in its power possible and it has used every authorized public agency available to bring about a reconciliation. We have the kindest feeling for our former employees and know they and their families have suffered much through their unemployment. This Company has lost customers, contracts and even prospective buyers for its products. When we start up again, it will be like starting

Masons To Attend Meet At Ashland

Many members of the local Masonic Lodge are planning on attending the conference of the third degree on three members of the Poage Lodge 325 of Ashland next Saturday. Invitations have been sent to all lodges in this section and a large number of delegates is expected to attend.

All the work of the degree will be conferred with Past Masters of the lodge at every station.

Judge Bales To Address Audience

At the Morehead Ministers' Meeting of this week the matter of arousing our people to a vote on the proposal of the Seventh (Prohibition) Amendment to the Kentucky Constitution at the November election, B. H. Kazee was chosen as chairman of this rally, and the following plans were effected.

Judge Fred G. Bales of Ohio was asked to come and speak to a community mass meeting Wednesday evening, September 25th, at 7:30 o'clock at the Methodist church. The four pastors present all pledged themselves to back this meeting and to secure as large a crowd as possible.

Judge Bales was here on one or two occasions before; the last of which was attended by a very small crowd due to the fact that no publicity was given the meeting. His work as a speaker is so valuable that many thought he should invite him back and give him a good hearing. His famous lecture, "The Fiddler and the Fire" has been enthusiastically received by thousands both in Chattanooga and on the independent platform. Judge Bales speaks out of a court, and knows the problem of our youth as few others do. His speeches are illustrated by actual cases in which he has been involved as judge.

At this meeting there will be formed a committee who will sponsor another great occasion preparatory to the vote on the proposal of the Seventh Amendment. This meeting will be held Thursday afternoon, October 3rd, at some place to be announced later. The Kentucky State Citizens Committee is touring the

LOOKING AHEAD—YEARS AHEAD

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., head of General Motors, in a recent article, says that amazing changes and extraordinary wealth and prosperity lies ahead. It will come, he says when people start to adopt the changes which science has wrought in the last five years. Economic conditions have diverted their attention. They have ignored what is going on in the way of scientific progress. Changes in houses—the homes in which we live—which are as great and as revolutionary as the change from the backboard to the automobile are at hand. These changes are:

Air conditioning in homes, shops, factories and office buildings. Temperatures and humidity can and are being controlled by new devices. Disease, dirt and dust can and are being removed from the air one breathes. Many of the causes of discomfort and ill health can be controlled.

Houses of fabricated material which will be built in factories and shipped to the user in sections represent another revolutionary change. Not only can substantial and vastly improved houses be obtained this way, but the time required in present day building may be cut down. Also, it is claimed, the cost of homes can and will be materially reduced.

The type, speed and comfort of railroad trains is another revolutionary change which Mr. Sloan believes is coming rapidly. Already new type trains are being used in an experimental way. The changing of this equipment in itself will provide a vast army of workers employment. Science has not stood still in the last five years. Changes for better things have been planned. The up set in economics has merely postponed some of these changes which would have been well on their way to adoption, Mr. Sloan believes. One has only to know that the population of the United States is about 30,000,000 and that there are about 30,000,000 homes together with the fact that American people adopt changes for the better more rapidly and readily than any other in the world, to realize the significance of these statements.

Private industry and private initiative which have so courageously carried this country to leadership in the world will again lead it out of the economic doldrums if given a chance.

There are interesting days ahead. Our children and their children will accept as commonplace what we are now shaking our doubtful heads over.

WE MUST PRESCRIBE FOR OURSELVES

At the low point in a business depression, a man whose personal affairs were in bad order, said: "The big business leaders have made a horrible mess of things."

It did not occur to the man to accuse himself and exclaim: "I have made a horrible mess of things."

He had had six years of uninterrupted prosperity in which to put his house in order. He might have utilized the cream from those fat years. He could have paid off the mortgage on his house, retired his business obligations and accumulated a surplus to tide him over hard times. If he had done these things, and if several million others had been as frugal, the crisis that later distressed everyone might not have occurred.

Too many of us are disposed to blame "the system" when we are in difficulties. The system under which we operate, is based on freedom of individual enterprise. Each of us is allowed a loose rein in the management of affairs. We may save money or spend it. We may work or loaf. We may insure our lives or take a chance on leaving our families destitute. The government and public opinion exercise only moderate control.

When everyone is happy and well fed, we hurrah for the genius of our business leaders. Some of the leaders believe that they are on top with cash and industry. They become raucous. The wise man, however, discounts such nonsense because he knows that all men are human and that excessive ambition leads to Waterloo.

Instead of relying on the wisdom of others, he puts his faith in his own common sense. If his earnings double and triple in good times, he takes the surplus and puts it where he knows it is safe. While others are borrowing money at the peak of prosperity, he is rapidly getting out of debt.

How many have the courage and foresight and independent judgement to follow this obvious procedure? History reveals that such common sense is rare. Too many men pay in hard times the debts acquired in good times.

It's no use relying on business leaders or government to save us from the consequences of folly. Each of us must be his own physician. If we will diagnose our condition and prescribe the remedy promptly, we can enjoy permanent economic and financial health.

Kennel Murder Case

BY S. VAN DINE

Copyright by W. H. Wright

Archer felt forward against the table, upsetting it and fracturing his ribs. Wrede was in a quandry. But again his sense of interloper invaded him. He looked round the room quickly, saw the dagger in the cabinet, took it out and...

So far, so good, said Markham. But what of Brisbane. Brisbane? Ah, yes. He was an unexpected guest. Archer had known nothing about it. As I see it, Markham, Brisbane had planned to get rid of Archer that same night...

Oh, it's quite simple, Vance went on. But before Brisbane returned that night, strange and uncanny things happened. The plot became cluttered with complications...

This is what had happened in the meantime. Archer, recovering from the blow of the poker, and not realizing that he had also been stabbed, went upstairs to his bedroom. The shades were up, and Wrede, from his own apartment could see him across the vacant lot...

remaining vitality. He started to get his bedroom slippers, but the black mist of death was drifting upon him. He thought it futile—the result, perhaps, of the blow Wrede had struck him over the head. He sat down in his easy chair. But he was not alone. Markham had been changed...

Good G—d, Vance! I see the horror of it, he said. Markham had been changed. Vance continued, as clearly indicated. But think what must have gone on in Wrede's mind when he looked out of his window and saw Archer in the yard...

Vance inhaled several times on his cigarette and broke the ashes into a small tray beside him. My word, Markham! Can you imagine Wrede's emotion? He killed a man; and yet he could look across a vacant lot and see this dead man acting as if nothing had happened...

Wrede had to start all over again. It was a delicate and terrible situation. He knew that he had thrust a deadly dagger into Archer Coe's body. But Archer was still alive and feeling better than might be expected. And don't forget that the lights did not go out in Archer's room. Wrede no doubt frantically asked himself a thousand times what he was going to do with those drawn shades...

Yes, nodded Vance, he came back. He had to come back! But in that infirmity of his indiscretion something unforgotten and horrible had taken place. Brisbane had returned to the house—he had returned steadily before himself in with his own key. He had returned to kill his brother! He went to the drawer of the table and took out the revolver. Then he went upstairs. Perhaps he saw the light through Archer's bedroom door. He opened the door...

Vance paused. I know, Markham I am inclined to think that Brisbane was prepared for any emergency. He had worked out a scheme for killing Archer, placing his revolver in his bedroom with the revolver in his hand, and then bolting the door from the hall, so as to make an escape as suicide. And when he saw Archer sitting in his easy chair, apparently asleep, he no doubt felt that the fates were with him, that his road had been made easy. I can see him tiptoeing across the room to the easy chair where the other sat. I can see him place the revolver against Archer's right temple and still the trigger—the impact of the bullet drove Archer's head to the left. Then I can see Brisbane place the revolver in Archer's hand and return to the door, where he carefully put in operation the mechanism he had worked out for bolting the door from the hall. My word, Markham, what a situation. Brisbane shooting a dead man, and then elaborately setting the stage to prove that it was suicide. Good G—d! breathed Markham. But during this tragic farce Vance went on. Wrede had arrived at a decision. He had decided to come back to Archer Coe and finish, for all time, the crime which apparently he had only started. He brought himself of the Ting yao vase he had broken, and perhaps fearing its ab-

Rehabilitation Program

Plans to expedite the rural rehabilitation program in Kentucky whereby farm families are being taken off relief rolls and helped to economic independence were announced today by the Resettlement Administration, Homer H. B. Mask, of Raleigh, N. C., Regional Director. Rural Resettlement, also made public new regulations to govern extension of rehabilitation loans. Farm families now on relief rolls, of farm families which have exhausted credit sources in an attempt to keep off relief, are eligible to apply for rehabilitation loans. Families will be selected on the basis of experience character and ability to conduct farming operations.

The purpose of these rehabilitation loans, said Mr. Mask, "is to provide employment and to assist farm families in making their own way. We are extending loans to families which satisfy the Resettlement Administration of their desire and ability to become self supporting if Wrede was noted, he picked out a superficially similar vase from his own small collection and carried it back to the Coe house. The hour, I should say, was around ten o'clock. Wrede opened the gate of the hear yard, and left it ajar; and it was then that the Scottie followed him on its dark errand. He went in the rear door of the Coe house, leaving it open—and the Scottie followed. Everything was black and still. He went through the dining room into the library and placed his own interior vase on the teakwood base where the Ting yao vase had stood. He took the dagger from the vase in which he had hidden it, and moved toward the hall. Vance raised himself a little in his chair. And when he reached the door, Markham, he saw a figure coming down the stairs from the second floor. There was a light in the library; but it was not sufficient to make possible an absolute recognition of the figure on the stairs. T. Wrede that figure was Archer. (Archer and Brisbane, you'll recall, were of the same height and general build, and they did not look dissimilar). Wrede stood behind the portieres at the library door, the dagger grasped in his hand and waited till his opportunity came. The shadowy figure came down the stairs and walked toward the closet door at the end of the hall. Brisbane was no doubt going back for the overcoat and hat which he had left there on coming in. But Wrede, with his inflated imagination, assumed that Archer was preparing to leave the house to tell some one of the attack—to report him to the police, perhaps. He couldn't be sure, but only knew that it spelled danger for himself. And he was more thoroughly determined than ever to put an end to Archer.

given some small assistance in the form of a loan with which to carry on farming operations. Funds which the Resettlement Administration is advancing must be repaid." In Region IV, comprising the states of Kentucky, North Carolina, Virginia, 19,358 farm families are homeless. Virginia, and West now receiving such aid through the rehabilitation program formulated last year by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration. Families accepted under the past program have been transferred to the Resettlement Administration, and will continue to receive loans in accordance with previous agreements. Additional applications for rehabilitation loans are now being considered. Careful investigations are made of each applicant's assets and record before action is taken on the application.

"The nature of this program," Mr. Mask said, "demands close attention to each family's problem. It is hoped that the extension of a loan will make it possible for these families to become self supporting. In each county the farm and home demonstration agents are available to work out a sound management plan which will offer the best opportunity for profit. Loans will be extended only after all details covering the investment of money, and of a plan of repayment, have been worked out. If their individual farm plans require it, farmers will be financed with loans to purchase farm tools, livestock, feed, fertilizer, building material, and other needed equipment. What is necessary, loans may also be utilized for the payment of land rent, farm labor and breeding fees, as well as for needed food and clothing.

"We are not going to extend loans to help families try to make a living on submarginal land," Mr. Mask emphasized. "Good farmland is the first requisite in carrying out a practical farm operation such as these rehabilitation plans constitute."

Rehabilitation loans will be extended for terms probably ranging from two to five years. Five percent interest will be charged. Amortization plans in general will provide for retirement of the principal in two to five equal installments.

COMMON CAUSE OF BALDNESS

One of the chief causes of premature gray hair, falling hair and other conditions is lack of circulation in the scalp. The remedy is to keep the scalp supplied with blood to permit the hair roots to receive the nourishment they need. The scalp is the most important organ of the body. Thousands of small blood vessels supply the scalp. If these vessels are clogged, the hair will fall out and the scalp will become itchy and sore. Janene Oil costs but little at any drug store. It is the only hair restorer in existence. Write Dept. J. The Youth Association, 110 West 43rd Street, New York.

A Radical Difference Noted

By IRVIN S. COBB

A FRIEND of mine has a friend who has a friend who, according to his other two friends, went abroad while Victoria, the beloved, was still on the throne of Great Britain.

In London one night the traveler saw Missie Bernhardt play in 'Anthony and Cleopatra'. The scene came where Cleopatra receives news of Mark Anthony's defeat at Actium. Bernhardt was at her best as Egypt's sexy queen that night. She abated the unfortunate slave who had some the tidings to her, stormed, raved, frothed at the mouth, wracked some of the scenery in her frown and finally, as the curtain fell, dropped in a surprising convulsive heap.

As the thunderous applause died down, the American heard a middle-aged British woman in the next seat remarking to her neighbor in a tone of satisfaction:

"How different—how very different from the home life of our own dear queen?"

THE CHURCH AND SOCIAL WELFARE

B. H. KAZEE
Pastor, Baptist Church

The church is not a social organization. It is a spiritual organism. It is the body in which Christ is to dwell here on earth through the Holy Spirit, and through which He is to do that work which He desires among men. While saving the world is His chief objective, this salvation includes the saving of lives as well as souls. Thus the church is committed to social betterment.

Its best work is done perhaps, not through alliances with world groups as a body, but through godly expression in the lives of its members. For example, while the church as a body should refrain from political alliance, it should so affect the hearts of its people as to direct their vote to the social betterment of our people. Thus, by creating spiritual impulses and by teaching the law of righteousness from the world of God, the church can become the most powerful influence for good in any community.

RELIGION BETWEEN SUNDAYS

H. L. MOORE
Pastor, M. E. Church, South

The test of our religion comes between Sunday's. Sunday is only one seventh of the week. Religion lived on Sunday only is a one seventh religion. A religion too good for everybody use is only a fine spun theory that will not stand the practical test.

"Religion between Sunday's" affects the non-Christian. The Christian is often the only Bible the non-Christians read. It also affects the standards of week day thoughts and actions. To the average observer, a religion left out of week day relationships, is hypocrisy. It also affects our spirit of worship. Unless we practice religion during the week sincerely as on Sunday we cannot approach God's house and say with the Psalmist: "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord."

THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH

THE CHURCH

The church is the divine institution which separates from the world, and consecrates the people of God into a spiritual fellowship; having laws, ordinances, manners and customs derived from the Great Founder, Jesus Christ the Savior of the world.

Christ and the church are inseparably associated and connected with the Bible. The Bible, or the Old and New Testaments, in Hebrew and Greek, contains a full and perfect revelation of God to man. In that perfect revelation of God to man, Jesus, in speaking of the greatness of service said: "I am in the midst of you as he that serveth". The church in the service of the community becomes the community's greatest helper. The church adds value to real estate and personal property; under girds sobriety; honesty, virtue and equity; exalts and protects the home, womanhood and childhood; inspires man to strive for the purest, the highest, the best and the holiest of this world and of the world to come.

The church of today calls unto the men and the women the boys and the girls of today, and the answer and response determines destiny.

Gilbert H. Fern, Minister
First Christian Church.

WHY WE SHOULD GO TO SUNDAY SCHOOL

T. F. LYONS
Pastor, Church of God

God is Omnipotent; God is Love. We learn of God in Sunday school. The seed of righteousness is sown in the tender heart of the child in Sunday school which often germinates and grows and brings forth the fruit of a rich and powerful life.

Science and invention has accomplished much for the human race; knowledge of God more. Attending Sunday school strengthens the finer emotions, increases the capacity to love and the power to serve, and enables us to know and have fellowship with God. It is in Sunday School we learn about God.

CHURCH ATTENDANCE
GILBERT H. FERN

Pastor, Christian Church

"How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe, in him whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher?" (Rom 10:14). "It was God's good pleasure through the foolishness of the preaching to save them that believe" (1 Cor 1:21). Paul said, "Woe is unto me, if I preach not the gospel!" (1 Cor 9:16), and I believe the Scriptures bear out the statement "Woe is unto me, if I hear not the preached gospel!" Yes "the life cometh of hearing, and hearing by the word of Christ" (Rom 10:17).

Attendance upon the worship and the work of the church is to the Christian church life what the sun is to the solar system or the north pole is to the magnet. Remove the sun, take away the north pole, and the solar system and the magnet are destroyed. Those who neglect or refuse to attend the services of the church thereby impoverish their souls. "Not forsaking our own assembling together" is the standing exhortation of the ages. YOU need the church, and the church needs YOU. Remember, as a free moral agent, you are the captain of your soul and the master of your fate. Make it a rule and practice of life to attend the worship and the work of the church.

Farm And Agriculture News

Last week, was pointed out the necessity of taking account of stock, and covered particularly were the vagaries of the season just ending, with a view to preparing in another season against their recurring. There is another phase of looking backward over garden activities, that having to do with vegetable varieties, for, only, the proper vegetable varieties are important to gardeners' tools.

Every year, new varieties "come out", and many persons are intrigued into trying a few. Sometimes, these novelties are real finds; many times, they are not, but merely old varieties renamed. Sometimes, they are the revival of varieties that should have remained in limbo, and using them may spell catastrophe for a gardener who depends on them. By this it does not mean, however, that old varieties should be used, for many of the newer sorts are improvement over the old. This every gardener should do, though, whenever he uses new varieties, he should make observations and keep fitting records of what he finds. He should record planting dates and first harvesting date and the amount harvested. By comparing these records with those gathered of other varieties he has used, he can determine whether or not he has effected improvement by changing. Then, he may change back, if need be. Such a record puts him in position to plan with efficiency for, knowing the duration of each variety, he will find it is possible to sandwich in a crop or two possible to include if only old standby sorts were used.

Through observing behavior of varieties, his acquaintance with his vegetables becomes complete enough for him to determine causes for their misbehavior, particularly, because of soil disease. Some of these are merely temporary, and may be controlled by proper rotation. In this, the duty of greater length, however, in a part, will help. Others, also caused by failure to "change ground" from year to year, are of a more permanent nature, controlled by rotation, of greater length, however, in a part, will help. Others, also caused by failure to "change ground" from year to year, are of a more permanent nature, controlled by rotation, of greater length, however, in a part, will help.

It is here that "novelty" varieties are of real assistance; the only way out in fact. The soil diseases combat by using new varieties are the blight of tomatoes, cabbage and watermelons. There are quite a few of these varieties, but not all are suited to the climate in the various parts of Kentucky, as many gardeners have found to their cost. Inasmuch as the only control for the wilt of these vegetables is to use the new wilt resistant sorts, it behooves gardeners to try them, but to keep record so as to be able to discard those not suited, and to adopt those that behave satisfactorily, and then to stick to them until better ones appear. Several gardeners may combine in experimenting, but, always, after the season is done, and before the results have become stale, notes should be compared, that is to say, account of stock taken, and armed with exact knowledge, real decision may be made.

The argument that turns a fellow's head sometimes flutters through his pocket.

National Forests

The Cumberland National Forest contains approximately 400,000 acres of land under purchase agreement. These lands are now rapidly being paid for and deeded to the United States, following title clearances.

Some of the improvements made in the Cumberland National Forest include:

114 miles of graded roads of which 62 miles are surfaced with crushed limestone.

135 miles of telephone lines.

13 steel fire towers and observation ranging from 40 to 100 feet in height.

Timber Stand Improvement work has been carried on with a total of 8,000 acres (this work consisting of the removal of trees interfering with the growth of trees selected as final "job trees").

20 radio sets are being installed for a working range of about twenty miles.

Inner Tower Radio Communication forms an interesting and important link in the fire protection set-up.

Fire Prevention Week Observed

In about a month, Fire Prevention Week will be observed again. Starting on October 6, the week will run through the 12th.

The week is usually inaugurated by Presidential proclamation, Governors of states and mayors of cities follow suit. Fire marshals, fire departments, insurance organizations and other public and private groups cooperate in seeking to spread the ABC's of fire prevention and control to the general public, which has most at stake, and which must accept the responsibility for almost every fire, large or small, that occurs.

During the week every citizen will have a chance to learn, easily, thoroughly and painlessly, the simple lessons that will enable him to keep his home and other property safe from fire. He will be told of the menace of old and improperly done wiring. He will learn the need for periodic inspections of his heating plant, one of the most prolific sources of fire. He will be shown the vital necessity of fire-resistant building and of modern municipal building codes. He will hear of the tragic school, hospital and other major fires which have destroyed thousands of lives, and property valued at millions, which were absolutely necessary.

To learn this, the citizen will have to contribute a little of his time. He will have to look at exhibits, read editorials, news reports and pamphlets. He will have to listen to a radio address or two. He will have to keep his mind open and his memory awake a lesson that is not retained, is obviously useless.

In return for this small expenditure of time, he will receive knowledge that may be the means of saving his property from destruction and his loved ones from violent and horrible deaths. It is worth it to you.

Railroads Improve Public Services

Time and again during recent years the public has challenged the railroads to improve service in many ways, and every time the rails have met the challenge, as Dr. C. S. Duncan, Economist, Association of American Railroads, recently pointed out. The people want speed. Every year witness faster travel between major points, and developments in the direction of diesel and electric power, coupled with stream-lining promise much for the future achievement.

They want safety. According to the National Safety Council, railroads have one fatality for each 400,000,000 passenger miles as compared with a fatality for each 11,000,000 passenger miles on our highways.

They want comfort. Few homes or hotels are as comfortable as the modern, quiet running, air conditioned, perfectly balanced railroad car. They want dependability. They have it now, interruptions in railroad service, no matter what the climate of the operation conditions, are very rare.

They want adequacy. The capacity of railroad carriers is not half met today. They have abundant tracks, equipment, terminal facilities and a network of lines embracing every part of the nation.

They want economy. Railroads provide the cheapest available form of mass transportation, both for persons or goods, comfort, and service considered.

So it goes, all down the line, the rails are not only meeting the public needs and wants, they are anticipating them. Railroad progress is never ended, and the march toward better, more flexible, more inexpensive service knows no halt.

When a man feels that he has outgrown his old friends he has not grown at all.

Under the Wagner bill the employer still would be permitted to watch the wheels go round.

Aside from disease, poor posture seems to cause parents more worry than any defect of children. For that reason I want to stress again one step in the treating of poor posture, which every mother can take.

If I let a stone fall from my hand, it drops to the ground. In this, you recognize the force of gravity. Precisely the same force is acting on the bones of the human body.

The correction is found in proper foods for strength and in sleep. The best strength giving foods are milk, fruit, vegetables, eggs, lean meat, fish, bread and butter.

At The Theatres

COZY THEATRE

Skies brighter and the happier for Rosina Lawrence. The Lawrence is one of the very lucky few who came up through the ranks in Hollywood and now finds herself on the way to stardom.

A short year ago Rosina Lawrence was a stand in for Sally Eblery; a few months ago she was one of thousands knocking at the gates of fame, and now, with her featured role opposite James Dunn in "Welcome Home," at the Cozy Theatre, studying singing, dancing and drama hoping for the "big break."

Rosina Lawrence's success is not merely a lucky accident. Although only twenty, she has spent years studying singing, dancing and drama hoping for the "big break."

James Tinsling directed the picture which features Raymond Walburn, William Frawley, Charles Selton and Charles Ray in the supporting cast.

Her chance came when Fox Film Corporation assigned her to the in-charge lead in "110 Rates," a shorty afterward named her as one of the four Fox Debutantes of 1935.

In "Welcome Home," Miss Lawrence shares feminine honors with Arline Judge. The picture is a laugh filled story of the boy who returned home as the village hero, then turned out to be a swindler, much to the villagers' distress.

COLLEGE THEATRE

Coming as an special event in the history of film entertainment, Pioneer Pictures' much heralded "full color feature," "Becky Sharp," has its local premiere, at the College Theatre Friday night.

Perfectly enacted, expertly directed, by the gifted Rouben Mamoulian, and lavishly produced, it is a masterful dramatization of William Makepeace Thackeray's immortal fiction classic, "Vanity Fair."

Miriam Hopkins, starring in the title role, rises to heights, in her characterization of the lovely, vivacious and successful coquette. She has invested her role with life and understanding, to make the beautiful, wayward, Becky a character to linger long in the memory.

"Becky Sharp," as most lovers of literature know, is the story of a willful and clever beauty, who uses her loveliness to advance her social position and make a sweeping conquest of the hearts of men. True to Thackeray's story, the picture deals with the sins of the London society of the early nineteenth century.

Other great productions to be shown at the College include: "Thunder in the East," "Top Hat," and "The Steps."
