Citizens Committee Seeks To Secure Enforcement Of Dry Laws In Eastern Part Of County

Rowan County Judge Charles E. Jennings this week issued an order calling for a local option election in Haldeman precinct number 8 and Hayes precinct number 16 to be held.

The local option election order was granted after petitions had been submitted in open court by L. D. Kendall and Saturday, October 2.

Lacy Kegley. The Judge's order states that the petitions contained 25 per cent or more of the resident citizens and legal voters in each precinct.

Should they two precincts be voted dry it will curtail beer and liquor sales at approximately 15 stores.

A group of citizens at Haldeman and Hayes started the circulation of the petitions after the Attorney General handed down a ruling which was asked for by this county which was in substance that it was legal to take precinct votes on the question although Rowan County, as a whole, voted dry last year.

There is approximately 254 votes in the Haldeman precinct and 165 in Hayes.

Should the two precincts vote dry the sale of intoxicating drinks will be allowed for two months after the election. This is to allow stores to clear their shelves. Another vote cannot be taken in the precincts on the question for three years.

Last year Haldeman was one of the dry precincts in the county that voted dry. Hayes voted substantially wet.

MOREHEAD'S EDUCATIONAL FACILITIES UNLIMITED

Few cities the size of Morehead offer as many educational opportunities as are prevalent here. A child in Morehead may secure a college education and the most specialized training from the time he enters school until he is turned out with a degree with comparative little expense.

The fact that Morehead and Rowan County people have and still are taking advantage of this is manifested each year by the large number of local persons who graduated from the Morehead State Teachers College.

Morehead parents have their choice of sending their boys and girls to either of two modern and fully-accredited grade schools and high schools.

The Morehead High School with an enrollment of almost 500 has grown rapidly in both size and in the class of training offered. In keeping with the trend throughout the more advanced schools in the nation, the Morehead School, which is financed by the County Board of Education, has added department that give pupils vocational training and embark them on the first stages of a useful and specialized career.

Last year a manual training department was added at Morehead High. Although handicapped somewhat at first for lack of materials, this department has met enthusiastic support and with the passing of time should be able to offer a manual training course that would compare favorably with that at anywhere. This year, under the guidance of Mrs. Ethel Ellinger, a commerce and business course has been added to the curricula.

The Breckinridge Training School is without question one of the highest type schools of this kind in the South. With the most modern building and plant this school is offering training that is along the most modern lines and the students that it graduates are ample evidence of the high type of training that it offers Morehead boys and girls.

Breckinridge is in keeping with educational trends and is fortified with a staff of highly competent and specialized teachers. What the Morehead State Teachers College offers to Western Kentucky, Breckinridge gives Morehead.

To mention the Morehead State Teachers College is sufficient. The training that it offers with its one million dollar plant is not surpassed anywhere. In addition to making teachers this institution gives pre-medical and pre-law courses and other instruction that leads to useful careers.

A modern and complete plant of highly trained instructors and a curricula that is best suited to eastern Kentucky in brief describes this one of Kentucky's greatest institutions.

THIS FALL'S MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN MOREHEAD

Apparently Moreheadians have thought little of the municipal races that will come up for decision at the November 2 election. Most of the members of the present City Council and the Mayor have said they will not seek re-election.

Much has been accomplished in the last few years in this city. The council has guided Morehead wisely and safely. Economically and financially the city is better off today than it has ever been. The dreams of a tax-free city are on the threshold of fulfillment.

It is unfortunate that the present city council will not seek re-election. They have labored, and some of them four years, in the best interests of the city. Their work has been solely for the betterment of Morehead and no fair-thinking person could fail to give them credit for the forward progress that has been made.

It would seem that the operation of so small a city is negligible. Actually the job is an important one. Business experience plus common sense has ruled Morehead's municipal affairs for the last few years. The city owns its water plant, controls the gas system, has practically every street paved, has bettered its fire department, owns a modern city hall and has maintained adequate police protection. Taxes have been comparatively light.

The city of Morehead has more than kept pace. The people should consider carefully every candidate that seeks a place on our Council this year so that our forward progress may be maintained. Mayor Herman Blair and the council would be doing Morehead another civic favor if they should seek to hold their seats.

YOU CAN LEAD A HORSE TO WATER

Henry J. Eustace, speaking before the Oregon State College Economic Forum recently pointed out that continuance of mass production of agricultural products is dependent upon mass consumption in the urban, industrial areas. He likewise pointed out that if Western and American agriculture is to compete in the Eastern markets, cost of distribution must be held down.

It is easy enough to boost prices sky high, through laws that penalize low-cost merchandisers, legalize price-fixing, and eliminate various economical selling methods—but you can't make a recalcitrant consumer buy. When prices rise faster than incomes, families buy fewer and cheaper products. Consumer resistance has been felt heavily at times in recent years, notably in the case of meats. During a time when meat prices were zooming, sales fell off—the consumer bought substitutes.

The upshot of this is clear—the farmer finds his markets dwindling. He may get a little higher price—but there is no profit in that if his total sales are materially cut. Today progressive farm groups, warned by past experience, are among the most aggressive opponents of legislation that penalizes low-cost merchandising systems, and pampers inefficient distribution methods by legal fiat. They know that such laws hit at the pocketbook of every farmer in the land—as well as every consumer.

Prices should and do rise, from natural impetus, in a period of recovery. The farm and manufactured goods price level should and does keep pace with increases in the national income and purchasing power. But we should be continually on guard against measures and policies that reduce honest competition, and widen the cost spread between producer and consumer. You can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink—and you can force prices up by artificial means but you can't make a man buy.

"SAFE" DRIVERS CAUSE ACCIDENTS

Ninety per cent of traffic accidents are caused by experienced, supposedly safe drivers, not by the inexperienced motorist, said Ralph Lee, safety expert of the Western Safety Conference. He cited a California survey which showed that 75 per cent of traffic fatalities in that state were chargeable to drivers with an average of eight years experience and who had never had a previous accident.

Finally he said, before accidents can be prevented, the popular belief that the great bulk of traffic accidents are caused by a relatively few congenitally reckless or incompetent persons, must be corrected. It is no longer true.

Over-estimating safety factors has turned many a driver who used to be careful, into a dangerous menace on the highways. When the cars of a few years ago gave you a thrill at 40, the cars of today do 60 and 70 with ease. That makes for comfortable motoring when all goes well—but lack of vibration and motor smoothness doesn't help when you careen head on into another car at a mile a minute clip. And the fact that today's highways are safe, from an engineering point of view, when compared with the roads of yesterday, doesn't help when you experience a blow-out while you're hitting top speed around a curve to find the road blocked and insufficient to stop.

It is the average, experienced "safe" driver who is causing today's accidents. This is the driver who must be appealed to by safety campaigns that go to get results.

"LEND A HAND"

This year Fire Prevention Week will be observed from October 3 to 9. The slogan for the week, featured in posters and news releases issued by the National Board of Fire Underwriters is "Lend a Hand."

This slogan is particularly apt. For if fire is to be prevented and controlled—and the hundreds of millions of dollars and thousands of lives fire destroys each year, are to be saved—all of us must lend a hand. Fire is largely an individual problem—each one of us, with the exercise of a little effort and care, can easily eliminate the common hazards on our property.

Fire Prevention is not a short time away—but no one need wait for it. It is a simple matter to put on an individual fire prevention period of your own, starting today. How long has it been since you cleaned out basement and attic—old newspapers, furniture, clothing and other odds and ends that are prolific source of fire? In a few months maximum demands will be made upon your heating plant—before they, have it inspected by an expert, and if necessary, repair and replace parts. Remember that amateur electrical repairs may be the cause of turning your home into a heap of ash and wreckage, unless properly installed and inspected.

"Yes, it's always time to 'Lend a Hand' when fire is involved."

INSURANCE THAT FITS

Life insurance is a necessity for the foresighted man or woman—but then every life insurance policy is good for every buyer.

Buy life insurance that fits—even as you do a pair of shoes or a suit. Top quality goods and problems may be entirely different from those of Bill Smith who lives next door. And the policy that suits John to a "T" might be entirely wrong for Bill.

In recent years the qualifications of life insurance agents have risen greatly. Today's average agent is far better fitted to advise policies that meet your needs and ambitions. Don't buy any policy without serious consideration and the advice of a trustworthy agent who has studied life insurance exhaustively.

Sunday School Lesson SEPTEMBER 19th LESSON

CHOICES AND THEIR CONSEQUENCES IN A NATION'S LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Deuteronomy 11:1-2, 16-17, 22-23. GOLDEN TEXT—Choose you this day whom ye will serve.—Joshua 24:15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Our Country. JUNIOR TOPIC—Choosing Sides. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Importances of Our Choices. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—My Part in Making Up the Nation's Mind.

Nations as well as individuals are responsible before God for the manner in which they live. They enjoy the blessings of right living and suffer the penalty of wrong moral choices. While it is true that national leaders may not always reflect the true character of the people, it is generally true that there is a sort of national character which over a longer period of time accurately represents the moral condition of the people as a whole.

Many thoughtful men and women believe that the United States of America stands today at the crossroads of national and moral decision. There has been an unquestionable decadence of true religion, of home life, of social purity, and a growth of moral indifference and outright wickedness which causes men who think to cry out for a revival of old-fashioned spiritual and moral standards ere it be too late. The most effective way to bring that about is a revival within the church of Christ, and a resultant renewal of its service in winning men to Jesus Christ as their Saviour and Lord. A 24-page tract, "Lessons in Soul-Winning," by Dr. Will H. Houghton, will be sent to any writer without charge, upon those requesting it. If possible enclose a 3 cent stamp.

Our lesson brings before us a part of one of the discourses of Moses rehearsing before the people God's goodness toward them, and admonishing them to obedience as well as warning them of the dangers of disobedience.

Right Choices Result in Blessing (vv. 8, 9). Making the right choice is in fact a simple matter, for it means only obedience to God's commandments. God is the author of the moral law. He alone can and does judge men as to right and wrong. Man need not determine, he is he equipped to decide that question. He can and must regulate the details of his life to the law of God. How important it is then that he properly understand the will of God, why it is to neglect the study of God's Word, where the commandments of God are made known unto men.

Choosing God's way means for both men and the nations which they make up, the best of all things. In the final analysis, man's and other individuals see me—the assurance of God's blessing is preparatory.

God Encourages Right Choices (vv. 10-12).

One God is the great and unifying "giver of every good and perfect gift." We need but to lift up our eyes and look at his handiwork, or stir up our memories to recall his goodness, and we know that he and all his blessed words encourage us to do right—to live right.

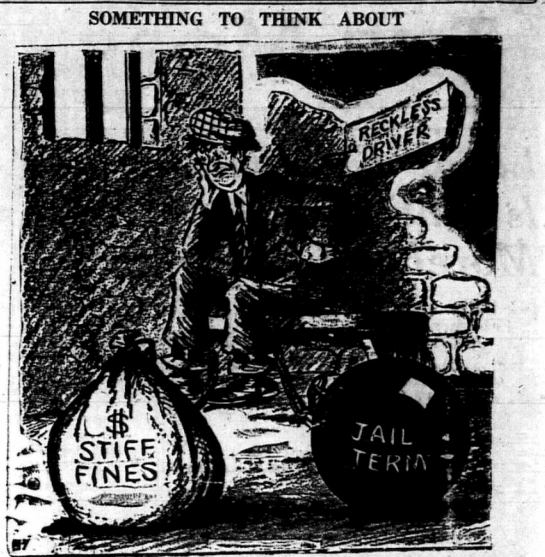

But, alas, all too often God's chosen gifts are perverted, and are used to bring the very opposite result. The most beautiful flowers and naturally delicate soundings are used for resorts and clubs which all too often lead men to moral destruction. Parents almost everywhere are dismayed to find that their daughters may be too attractive, for the world, the flesh, and the devil are constantly out "snooping" for beautiful women whose very God-given beauty may be used to glorify sin and lead others into disobedience to God.

Right and Wrong Are Fundamental and Eternal (vv. 26-28).

It needs to be repeated over and over again in these callous and indifferent days that there is laid down in the very constitution of the entire universe a moral distinction between right and wrong. Right is always right, and wrong is definitely and eternally wrong. There is no moral twilight zone, where things are neither white nor black, but a neutral gray. Christian workers need constantly to bring the truth to bear on those to whom they minister. To do so they must first set an example of consistent Christian living. The Lord's work is often hindered by those living which nullifies Christian profession.

Note that the difference between right and wrong was to be the same "on the other side of the Jordan." Time and place have no power to change moral law. What was right or wrong for your great-grandfather is right or wrong for you. What was right in your home on the farm is right in the city where you now live, or vice versa. The passing of the years or a change of location does not alter that law of God.

May God help the people of our nation, and all the countries of the earth, to remember that

Government Helps Farmers Unable To Obtain Seed Loans

Many Mortgages Lifted From Land And Adaptable Payment Methods Devised

The rural rehabilitation supervised loan program will continue as heretofore, under the newly established Farm Security Administration, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Clarence W. Cobb, Cobb County Supervisor in charge of rural rehabilitation work in Rowan, Carter and Elliott counties announced early this week from his office in Morehead, Ky., following assurances received from George S. Mitchell, Regional Director of the Farm Security Administration in Raleigh, N. C.

Mr. Cobb stated that the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act, which the Farm Security Administration will administer, provides for the continuation of the rural rehabilitation and farm debt adjustment work which he represents in this section and that he has been instructed to carry on substantially as before, under the new agency.

Rehabilitation loans, accompanied by farm and home management advice from County Supervisors, are made by the government to financially distressed farm families who hold out hope of making a comeback, whether on their own land or on rented land, but who are unable to secure proper credit from other sources to make a crop or to purchase needed livestock and equipment.

In addition to the rural rehabilitation program which will be continued as an important phase of the new agency, the Farm Security Administration will conduct the tenant loan program as provided in the Farm Tenant Act, for the purchase and improvement of farms for "selected" tenant farmers, and will complete unfinished farmstead projects, including those started by the Resettlement Administration and those turned over to that organization from other agencies.

Details concerning the handling of applications for the new tenant loans will be announced later by the Regional Office, Mr. Cobb has been advised.

Land use planning and sub-marginal land purchase activities, further provided for in the Bankhead-Jones Act, have been entrusted by the Secretary of Agriculture to the Bureau of Agriculture Economics. This means that former land utilization work and that to be carried out under the new act will be continued through a Land Utilization Division under the Bureau of Agriculture Economics, while the Farm Security Administration will conduct the tenant purchase and rural complete farmstead projects now under development. Thus, the functions of the former Resettlement Administration and those added by the Farm Tenant Act have been divided between the Farm Security Administration and the Land Use program of the Bureau of Agriculture Economics, according to the statement re-

Revenue Offices Mail Not Prepaid

Department of Revenue officials announced today that hundreds of pieces of mail are received each month on which postage is due. Many of these, they said, contain remittances in the form of law payments and information required to be filed with the Department on certain dates. Commissioner Martin announced that the Department budget did not include funds for the payment of several hundred dollars of additional postage every few months, and said that the Department was discontinuing the practice of receiving such mail. He advised that postage due mail would be returned to the person sending it and that, if by reason of such return a taxpayer became delinquent in filing a report or paying taxes, the usual penalties would apply.

THE HOOSIER SINGERS
Like the voice of the birds at morning so the Hoosier Singers. Comes the tones of sweet music to lighten our care. Then they sing, forgotten, real joy doth appear. And the world seems a place of pleasure most dear. We listen entranced, thinking oft of the pilgrim below the home of the soul.

At Mt. Hope, Kentucky, one bright summer day. We heard two girls singing a sweet joyous lay. Their voices so lovely, were borne to the listening hundreds assembled there. That mellow cheer till our pilgrim-erger ends, And we'll never forget those girls from Vincennes.

The songs that they sang had a wondrous appeal, They thrilled one with hope because they were real. The message they brought was one that will bless And comfort the wanderer in his distress. They told of a land where friends never, one lonely, Where no cares ever come, far beyond human ken.

Perhaps we may never be privileged to hear, Such bearers of joy, those singers from Vincennes. For the future is veiled in uncertain glim, And we're all on our way to the cold, silent tomb. But yonder, in heaven, the home-land is fair, We're hoping to hear them again over there. —L. Edgar Hamm, Wallingford, Ky.

THOSE KITCHEN "MUSTS"
Not long ago I was talking to that exceedingly capable home economist, Betty Crocker. Our chat turned to kitchens and I asked her just where she thought the average cook fell down of, least and hardest. I thought she'd answer right off—pies, biscuits or maybe even roasts. But she didn't. Her answer was—"equipment."

"Women who have had long experience know that it's true economy to choose kitchen equipment of enduring quality," she said. "Dishes should be useful for several purposes, and should occupy the smallest possible amount of storage space." Here is Betty Crocker's list:
For Measuring: a set of standard measuring spoons; 2 measuring cups, 1 of glass and 1 of metal, for dry and liquid ingredients; a tablespoon and a straight case knife or lumber spatula for "leveling off."

For Mixing: A large open flour sifter with a fine screen (this kind "aerates" the flour properly); a nest of mixing bowls; 1 rotary egg beater and 1 flat wire whip; a wooden spoon with long handle for creaming and stirring sauces; a rubber scraper for cleaning batter from rolling pin and bread or pastry board with cloth covers (a child's white ribbed stocking with the foot cut off will do for the pin and a piece of canvas for the board) and a pastry blender for cutting shortening into flour.

For Baking: Baking pans should be of good heavy material that will hold heat and distribute it evenly—heavy tin, aluminum or tin, heatproof glass, enamelware, etc. Two biscuit sheets; two 8-inch square pans; two 8-inch square pans. One 8-inch square pan 2 1/2 inches deep. One deep tube center pan 10 inches in diameter. One oblong sheet pan by 12 inches. Loaf pan 2 by 4 1/2 inches; muffin pan with medium sized cups; one 6 or 7 inch pie pan and one 8 or 9 inch; a 2 quart casserole; a roaster; 6 custard cups; a heavy wire cake cooling rack; a portable oven thermometer set on an oven tray.

Top Stove Cooking: Choose pans with smooth surfaces, flat bottoms, rounded corners and comfortable handles. Satisfactory materials are heavy aluminum, enamelware, heavily tinned steel, copper, heat resistant glass, cast iron. You need at least four saucepans with close fitting covers—one in 2 qt. size, two heavy frying pans with close fitting covers—one in 10 inch diameter. . . one 6 to 7 inches. A tea-kettle, coffee pot, tea pot, double boiler, large kettle with steamers to fit, deep fryer, basket, thermometers for deep fat and icings.

Shelving, bread box, cookie jar, cake box, set of refrigerator dishes, jars or cans for staples; salt and pepper shakers; dish pans and drainer; 3 dish cloths. 3 dish towels; soap dish, small scrub brush, vegetable brush, waste basket, garbage can and sink strainer.

Miscellaneous: two paring knives, one long knife, several straight knives, teaspoon, tablespoons, two-tone fork with long-handle regular, case fork, kitchen scissors, bread slicer, bottle opener, wire strainer, food grinder, biscuit and cookie cutters, pan-saw, rubber lemon squeezer, small funnel, clock, pastry brush, molds, corkscrew, bottle opener, grater, potato masher, oil-lender, wooden chopping bowl and chopper, apron cover and holders.

The above list is designed to equip a family of 2 or 3. For a larger family more pans—particularly in the larger sizes will be needed. Take stock in your own kitchen—for some of the articles you find missing may easily be the work which will make your work infinitely easier and give your cooking that expert touch that distinguishes perfection from "passing good."

KEY MAKEUP AND CLOTHES TO TRUE PERSONALITY COLOR
Thousands of pretty youngsters from sixteen to twenty are wondering how to while away the next few days, till they go to college or take a job. They'll play, of course, but they want to make their time count, too.

Here's advice from a girl who has discovered most of the secrets of success—whether it's in business or on the stage or just in adapting one's personality to happy everyday living. It's lovely Pat Peterson (Mrs. Charles Boyer) who is starred in Walter Wagner's "Mad Street."

"Girls," she says, "ought to mobilize their spare time to make the most of themselves—to work out an individual plan for beauty." "Perhaps not all actresses have had hard and fast theories about beauty and personality, but I believe most successful ones do. My own ideas all center about my eyes! In other words, I think one of the best ways to tell the story of one's personality in their own animation, shape and color; I think they are the best in the way of how to show women the way to attractive dress and makeup."

"Are you blue-eyed?" Miss Peterson asks. "That's a lesson from that exceedingly clever and charming woman, the new Duchess of Windsor. If you've read any of the numerous stories about her tresseau, you know that most of her frocks are blue, to match her lovely eyes." It follows just as logically that soft flesh powder and a cool rose rouge and lipstick would be most becoming to her. This theory holds equally true in the case of women of the other major eye types. Take the brown-eyed girl type—browns, reds, yellow, orange, vivid green—these are her colors. Her lipstick should be a glowing red; her powder warm and creamy; her eye-shadow green. Hazel and grey-eyed girls should follow the same experiment, each choosing clothes and makeup by the color of their eyes.

PARNELL

THE STORY THIS FAN:
 Captain Willie O'Shea induces his estranged wife, Katie, living with her aunt in England, to ask the aunt for two thousand pounds to pay his Irish election expenses as a member of Parliament under the veiled threat of settling down to live with her again. And then, to aid him politically, urges her to ask Parnell to dine with them. When Katie meets the great Irish leader, she learns that he had seen her at the opera and his interest has been aroused. He, who never went to dinners or parties, accepts her invitation eagerly.

voice that evoked an equally unemotional reply. She introduced her aunt.
 "How do you do, Mr. Parnell? You've lost me ten pounds—to the Irish Party funds. I never thought I'd be subscribing to that except, of course, through Willie." Mahon, hastened to cover Captain O'Shea's discomfort at the thrust. "It's great work you're doing these days sir, though I doubt the Phoenix Park murders won't help you in any way."

Katie introduced Parnell to her aunt and her sister.

Chapter Four

LOVE—AND A MURDER CHARGE

The Irish servants at Eltham were in a twitter of expectation and nervousness at preparing a dinner for the great Irish leader, Katie O'Shea, in a white dress, with white roses at her breast, was not much more composed. She made a few trifling changes with the table arrangements and then went into the drawing room, a worried look on her face.
 "Is anything wrong, Katie?" asked Aunt Ben.
 "The kitchen is like Bedlam. The Irish messiah is coming for dinner and they're practically all hysterics."
 "They'll be completely so when he doesn't turn up."
 "He will come—though I almost wish he wouldn't."
 "Stage fright, my dear?"
 "Not exactly," said Katie, and felt she had equivocated. What had happened between her and Parnell to make her long for him to come and yet dread it? What was going to happen to them?
 "We're having a bet, your aunt and me, whether he'll show up. Mrs. O'Shea, said the O'Gorman Mahon. "I've laid ten pounds that he will."
 "The winnings to go to the Irish Party funds," Aunt Ben was saying as the butler appeared at the door and announced the Irish leader. Parnell took a few steps towards Katie, his eyes going at once to the white roses she wore.
 "It was very nice of you to come," she said in a cool, social Katie's sister, Clara, who she had just introduced to Parnell, took up Mahon's cue gushingly: "Aren't they the most dreadful things you ever heard of? The new Chief Secretary, Lord Frederick Cavendish, an Englishman and a visitor, murdered in Dublin in broad daylight!"

 "A gesture against the English," said Willie.
 "A most brutal, cruel and senseless gesture," said Parnell in a voice that was as savage at this new obstruction to what he was striving to attain for his suffering country. "The blow may have been directed at the English but it slabbled the Irish Party in the back. It shall lay a stain forever on the name of Ireland."
 Katie had moved to the piano while Parnell was speaking, and rearranged a vase of flowers. Captain O'Shea followed and spoke to her so low as not to be overheard. "This is a jerry. Not a funeral. I asked you to be nice to him. You might at least pay attention when he is talking." He ceased speaking as Parnell, who had left the other guests, approached Katie at the piano. Then he slapped his chief on the back. "Glad to see you here, sir. Nice of you to come." He gave his wife a meaning glance and left them together.

 "Was I very late, Mrs. O'Shea?" enquired Parnell.
 "I'm afraid it's dinner that's going to be late. The kitchen servants are all Irish and so excited about your coming, I shouldn't wonder the dinner will be like, if it even materializes."

"Katie, if we aren't going to be interested in women. The picture of you as you sat that night is burned into my memory. There's not a detail that I don't remember."
 "I can't imagine why, she" fenced.
 "I don't know why, either. But I do know that I shall carry it with me until the day I die."
 At his earnestness and the simplicity of his words, she glanced up at him, and her look was caught and held by something beautiful and compelling in his eyes. The voice of the butler announcing that dinner was served broke the spell, recalled Katie to her duties as hostess. She paired off her guests, retaining Mr. Parnell to take her into the dining room. Willie managed to whisper a sly: "Thank you, Katie. That was nicely done," into her ear, only to receive from her a look of hatred that chased away the smile of satisfaction from his face.
 Seated at the table, the conversation became general, devoted to the social commonplaces of such affairs. Hardly had the soup plates been removed when Nara, the maid, caught the butler's eye and whispered something to him which that functionary repeated to Mrs. O'Shea.
 "Your secretary has come, Mr. Parnell," she said to the guest of honor. "He says the matter is urgent."
 The leader made his excuse and was gone for several minutes. When he returned his face was set in grave lines. "Mrs. O'Shea, I have to ask you to excuse me. I must return to London."
 "But can't you finish your dinner first?"
 "I'm afraid not."
 "But look here, sir," protested Willie. "You can't—"
 "Willie," interrupted his wife, "I'm sure Mr. Parnell wouldn't leave now if it were not imperative." It was the look she gave him, more than her words, that shut Willie off and earned her a glance of gratitude from Parnell.
 "Thank you," he said to her and to Willie: "I'm sorry, O'Shea. I hope you'll ask me again."
 Willie was restored to good humor. "Delighted. Good night."
 Katie made her excuses and accompanied their guests. She shut the dining room door after them. She faced him, anxious. "Something is wrong. Very wrong."
 "Yes, I'm afraid so. I want to ask a favor of you. Tomorrow morning in the paper you will read something. I want to ask you not to believe it. It accuses me of . . . I can't tell you now, but I do ask you to be kind. This year's fair attracted large numbers of well-bred and highly fitted dairy and beef cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry, and complete departments of crops, vegetables, fruit, canned and baked foods, clothing and house furnishings. Other features of the fair included a style revue, a livestock judging contest, and athletic events.

 Bob McConnell, Jr., Woodford county, won the grand championship of the beef cattle show, with cattle from Garrard, Woodford, Jessamine, Bourbon and Fayette counties.
 Best in the sheep show was J. D. Thornton, Owen county, and in showing hogs, F. S. Daisei, Jr., Bourbon county.
 In the dairy cattle show of 60 animals from six counties, Boyle ranked at the top, followed by Shelby, Fayette, Campbell, Jessamine and Garrard. Clark county furnished the best judging team. Gladys Bowles, Shelby county, won the grand championship in foods; Frances Morgerson, Fayette county, in canning, and Lorraine Harris, Fayette county, in clothing. Style revue winners were Helen Jean Dailley, Clark county, and Marjorie Ann Mattmiller, Fayette county.
DRUG STORE TOBACCO SALES STILL GOING UP
 Average daily sales of chain drug stores in July, 1937, were 4.3 per cent higher than in July, 1936.
 "Why do you tell me this?" "Because you are honest, I believe you are."
 "Then won't you believe my honesty when I tell you that I love you? Do you?" The light in his eyes, something honest and straight-forward, caused her to yield unresisting as his arms slowly encircled her and his lips were lowered to her responsive lips.
 "Please, please," she said, releasing herself, "go now."
 All but trembling with suspense and dread, Katie O'Shea was first to get the next morning's paper. Rapidly she glanced in at the headlines. There it was—in the last column! "Grave Charges Against Charles Parnell, Phoenix Park Murders Laid at His Door." "Sir Letters, Printed Below, Reveal Complicity."
 A cold hand appeared to clutch and squeeze her as she read the Copyright 1937—Loew's, Inc.

FARM YOUTH HOLD AGRICULTURAL FAIR
 Exhibits of livestock, crops, fruits and vegetables and articles of the home, all owned and contributed by farm youth, met the Central Kentucky 4-H club district fair at Lexington one of the most unique institutions of its kind.
 "Of course I will believe in you."
 "Thank you. I must go now, but first I want to thank you for letting me see you in your home. It is . . . your home, isn't it?"
 "Yes."
 "It's very beautiful. A frame for you. I'm glad to have seen you in it. It tells me I was right." At her questioning look, he explained: "About you. The woman wearing white roses. This is her home . . . He doesn't live here!" It was more statement for the slow shake of her head. "Nor with you?" That question was direct. She flushed but again shook her head. "Then perhaps I have the right to ask you to believe me in one more thing: that I'm in love with you."
 "I am—and I've never said that to anyone before. Why do you suppose I came here tonight, except for you—because you asked me."
 "Wait! I want to be honest with you. I asked you, yes, but it was he who made me ask you—to serve his purpose, his ambition."
 "Why do you tell me this?" "Because you are honest, I believe you are."
 "Then won't you believe my honesty when I tell you that I love you? Do you?" The light in his eyes, something honest and straight-forward, caused her to yield unresisting as his arms slowly encircled her and his lips were lowered to her responsive lips.

Stanwyck, Robert Taylor Have Leads

"This Is My Affair," To Open Friday At Cozy Theatre

Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck have used art scouts and, so consequently, they are preparing to sponsor an exhibit by their new discoverer.

The artist is Mrs. Roy Potts, whose unusual ability with pastel crayons was discovered during the filming of "This Is My Affair," the Twentieth Century-Fox production opening Friday at the Cozy Theatre.

Mr. Roy Potts, operator of the sound "boom" on this film set against the background of the McKinley era, had brought to the studio a number of his wife's past studies of flowers and the still life, planning to buy frames for them during the noon hour. The noted film studio however, obligated the necessity for buying frames when they purchased all seven of the pastels.

Potts revealed that his wife always had enjoyed working with pastel crayons, but had never had opportunity to develop her art until the last year or so, when her children were grown up. Taylor and Stanwyck have arranged the arrangements for a public exhibit of her works.

Marines Like Duty In War Torn China

Qualified Young Men May Now Enter Service Of Country

The Marine Corps Recruiting Station in Cincinnati, Ohio, has received requests from young men of Morehead, who desire to enlist in the Marines for duty in China.

While there are some 2,500 Marines stationed in the Far East, 1,200 of which are now enroute to China, the Marine Corps is recruiting officers of the District of Cincinnati, which embraces requests from young men that after enlistment they will be sent to the Marine Brigade at Shanghai, or to the American Embassy Guard at Peking, North China.

Young men are enlisted for general service. Those upon request of enlistment at Cincinnati, are transferred to the Marine Barracks at Parris Island, South Carolina, for special training.

On completion of recruit training, which usually takes about three months, recruits are transferred to posts and stations within the United States, Marine detachments aboard battleships and cruisers, or they may be transferred to Cuba, Canal Zone, Hawaiian Islands, or the Philippine Islands.

Many, too, are transferred to the Marine units in China as replacements for those men who have completed their tours of duty on foreign soil. In this connection, however, no promise is made ahead of time as to where a man will be sent. Marines are ready to go anywhere, any time and the exigencies of the time determine the place of duty of the individual or the fully organized unit.

Further education, the opportunity to travel, and the variety of duty make the life of a marine an interesting one. Young men desiring information concerning the Marines are asked to call or write to the Marine Corps Recruiting Station, Cincinnati. Full information and literature will be sent upon request.

SPORT SPOTS

A great deal hasn't been written this year about Tim Wyant, elusive back of Morehead team. He's going to make a lot of those six pointers this season.

We predict that Donald Fair will give Cincinnati football fans a taste of punting, the like of which they may not have seen since Ralph Griswold booted them from one end of the field.

KENTUCKY'S RIGHT TO BOONE'S BONES PROVEN

A copy of a document he said verified Kentucky's right to the bones of Daniel Boone, famous pioneer, was made public this week by Walter Multry, secretary to Governor Chandler, dated July 17, 1848, and signed by William Boone and Thomas Cauden.

The document, Multry said, was an agreement between a committee of the Frankfort Cemetery Company and Harvey Griswold for removal of the body to Kentucky. The document was sent to the governor by Dr. A. Arnold Griswold, descendant of Harvey Griswold of Marshallville, Warren county, Mo., whom Charles Curtis originally was buried.

A Grayson county farmer raising 13 pigs on tansage and cracked wheat expects to have 1 1/2 tons of pork at 5 1/2 cents month. Several meetings have been held in Campbell county to demonstrate ways of culling poultry.
