FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Additional county meetings for Morehead State University's Sheep Industry Development project participants have been scheduled.

The meetings will be held at 7 p.m. as follows:

Bath County, March 6, County Extension Office.

Menifee County, March 17, Clark RECC Building.

Carter County, March 18, County Extension Office.

Morgan County, March 19, County Courthouse.

Elliott County, March 20, County Courthouse.

"We face a momentous task over the next few months as we prepare for the arrival of the starter ewes from Texas," said Jim Akers, MSU sheep specialist. "Our March meetings will deal with the preparations that need to be made prior to the ewes' arrival," he added.

Also scheduled at 7 p.m. Friday, March 7, in Reed Hall 419 at MSU will be a meeting of the overall advisory committee to complete the selection of farmers who will receive sheep under the program.

Additional information on MSU's Sheep Industry Development Project, a joint effort of the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources and the Appalachian Development Center, may be obtained by calling Akers at (606) 783-2077.

MSU JAZZ CLINIC WINNERS: A PICTURE STORY

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Shelby County High School's jazz ensemble, Kenneth Byrdwell, director, took top honors in the 14th annual High School Jazz Clinic hosted by Morehead State University. In addition Brian Yount, son of Gary and Marcella Yount of Shelbyville, was judged the outstanding soloist in the competition which drew nearly 300 students from 16 high schools in Kentucky and Ohio. The student musicians not only listened to performances by MSU jazz groups, but also took part in various clinics conducted by MSU faculty members and guest artists.

Cutlines:

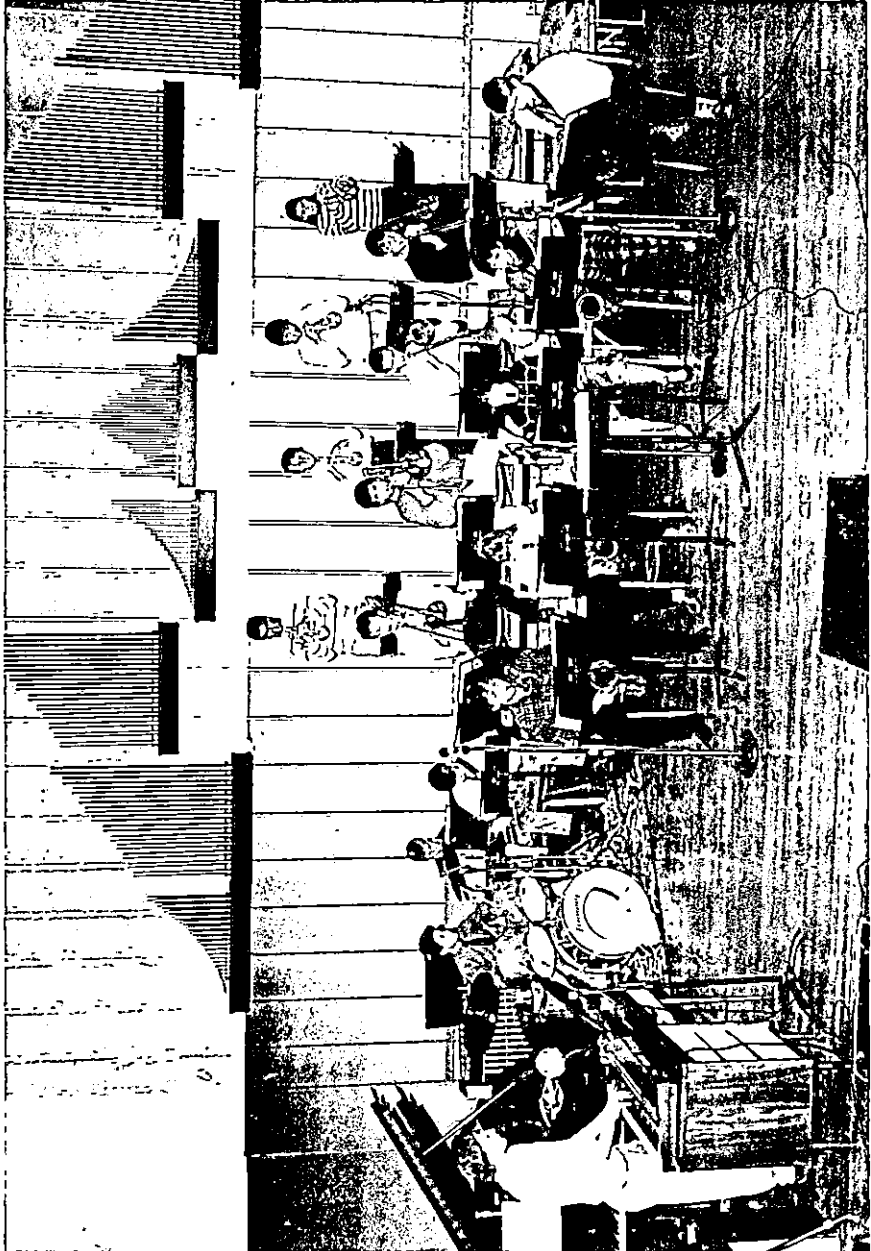

- 1--Performing onstage in MSU's Duncan Recital Hall, the Shelby County High School jazz ensemble--the "Outstanding High School Jazz Band" in MSU's 14th annual High School Jazz Clinic--showed off their musicianship. Among the student performers were Amy Mischler, Rene Bohannon, Mark Ellis, Kristin Holsen, Alan Zaring, on saxophone; Anthony Brown, Kevin Eddins, Chris Welch, Leonard Brown, trombone; Jamie Hackney, Anthony Beckley, Chris Young, drums; Brian Yount, Jeff Radcliff, Joh Megebben, Tina Bohannon, trumpet; Jacquelyn Totten, vibes; Jon Swindler, bass guitar; Becky Hanking, piano, and Andy Cobb, guitar. The winning band received jazz arrangements from the George Hurst Music Co. in Lexington.
- 2--Brian Yount of Shelbyville, a member of the Shelby County High School jazz ensemble, blew the clinic judges away with his trumpet solo to win the coveted title of "Outstanding Soloist" in the two-day jazz clinic. He received a tuition scholarship to a summer jazz improvisation camp.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University alumni and friends are invited to join the Kentucky Institute for European Studies for "A Taste of Grand Old Europe " this summer.

"It's the first time that the KIES has developed a tour designed especially for alumni and friends of its member universities," said Dr. Roger Jones, MSU director for international education. "In the past, KIES has emphasized student study programs in Europe," he noted.

The 16-day tour will take participants to six countries--England, Belgium, Germany, Austria, Switzerland and France--to view historic sites and breathtaking scenery.

"The group will travel in style on deluxe motorcoaches with professional guides and stay in four-star hotels for a first class experience," Dr. Jones said.

Departing from Nashville June 14 and returning there June 29, the tour will be hosted by Ken and Ellen Harrell of Murray State University. The cost, based on double-occupancy, will be $1,875 and includes a $75 tax deductible contribution to the KIES scholarship fund for students studying abroad.

Complete details and a brochure on the tour are available from Dr. Jones at UPO 1305, Morehead State University, Morehead, KY 40351, or by calling (606) 783-2763.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Morehead State University will hold a sale of qualifying bulls from the Northeast Kentucky Beef Improvement Federation On-farm Performance Testing Program at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 27, in the Richardson Arena at the University farm.

To qualify for the sale, bulls must meet requirements for frame size, adjusted yearling weight and reproductive development as well as passing an overall soundness and health examination, according to Phil Kenkel agri-business specialist with MSU's Appalachian Development Center.

Fifty-one purebred bulls recently completed a mid-test weigh-in as part of the KBKIF's second annual testing program. The resulting weight information was used to calculate the average daily gain and weight per day of age of the test bulls.

According to Dr. Andy Boston, MSU professor of agriculture, the bulls had an average daily gain of 3.2 pounds. Thirteen maintained a daily weight gain of more than 3.5 pounds and four other bulls gained over 4 pounds per day.

The bulls were consigned to the test program by cattle producers from 10 eastern Kentucky counties as well as from southern Ohio. MSU also has bulls enrolled in the program.

"We are extremely pleased with the quality and performance of the bulls on test," said Dr. Boston. "With a 60 percent increase in the number of test bulls this year, we are seeing daily weight gains which are nearly 10 percent higher than last year. The mid-test indicates that we have some very select young sires in the program. Our next step will be the final weigh-in on the sale day, March 27," Dr. Boston added.

"Two years ago, area purebred cattle breeders met with MSU personnel to discuss the need for a regional beef improvement effort," Kenkel explained.

KBKIF
2-2-2-2-2-2

"The cattlemen were concerned that cattle producers in our region were limiting the weight gain of their calves, as well as their profits by not utilizing superior breeding stock. That's how the NKBIF and the testing program came about," Kenkel said.

"Performance testing involves controlled weight gain and growth tests," Kenkel continued. "The ability to gain weight rapidly is highly heritable, so bulls who gain rapidly can be expected to pass these characteristics on to their offspring.

"Sire selection affects half of the genetic potential of the entire calf crop and within three generations, it can control 90 percent if heifer calves are saved for replacement," Kenkel said.

"Selection of a herd bull is the most important task confronting a cattle producer and his job can be made easier by using the performance testing program," Kenkel advised. "In fact, selecting a performance tested sire can increase the weights of the calf crop without other management or feeding changes."

"While there is no such thing as the perfect bull for everyone, the test data can help producers pick the best bull for their own operations," said Dr. Boston.

"Producers with small frame cattle may want to figure a reasonable birth weight limit into their needs, while those with an average or large framed herd might have more freedom in weight gain considerations," he said.

Cattle producers interested in obtaining mid-test performance reports or sales catalogs with complete pedigree information may write the NKBIF, Appalachian Development Center, Morehead State University, Morehead, KY. 40351, or call Kenkel at (606) 783-2077.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--A collection of video and audio tapes, photographs and news clippings--the results of the Vintage Fiddlers of Eastern Kentucky project--will be presented to Morehead State University's Camden-Carroll Library on Wednesday, March 26, at 3 p.m.

Seven of Eastern Kentucky's "elder fiddlers" were participants in the project. They included: Clela and Virgil Alfrey, Greenup County; Alfred Bailey, Flemingsburg; Clyde Davenport, Monticello; Annadeene and J.P. Fraley, near Ashland; Chillson Leach, Ashland; David Sizemore, Prestonsburg; and Hiram Stamper, Knott County. Each is over 65 years old, and the eldest is 93.

Some of their tunes are ones played before 1900, according to Marynell Young, former special projects coordinator at MSU's Appalachian Development Center.

"I located three times more fiddlers than the 12 I had in mind when I planned the project," Young said. "The region's traditional music is very rich. It's too bad I haven't been able to interview every fiddler. Some of them are now no longer around to be recorded."

Young did the interviewing, recording, and videotaping after obtaining grants from the Kentucky Folklife Foundation and the Kentucky Oral History Commission. David Bartlett took the photographs. Bartlett, a nationally exhibited photographer, is associate professor of photography in MSU's Department of Art.

The Vintage Fiddlers Collection consists of four VHS (video) cassettes of 120 minutes each; 29 audio cassettes of 60 minutes each, with oral history interviews and sample fiddle tunes; a bound volume containing guide sheets and news clippings; and a set of photographs.

"The goal of the project has been to preserve the older tunes, to record the fiddlers themselves, and to learn from their musical experiences," said Shirley Hamilton, assistant director for human services at the Appalachian Development Center. "We still hope to enlarge the scope of this important project to document greater numbers of the fiddlers who have done so much to establish our Appalachian musical heritage."

The presentation will be made to CCL's Special Collections on the fifth floor of the Carroll Tower and will be followed by a reception. Several of the fiddlers are expected to be present.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--For the ninth consecutive year, Morehead State University's speech team emerged as winner of the State Championship Speech Tournament.

One of six schools competing in the tournament hosted recently by Georgetown College, MSU won seven of the 10 competitions to bring home 50 of the 70 tournament trophies, according to Phil Martin, director of forensics at MSU.

"Every team member brought home a trophy and two of our students earned the distinction of representing Kentucky in national competition later this year," said Martin.

Kevin Cockrell, Jeffersonville sophomore, and Vonda Ramey, Morehead junior, won first and second place respectively in the state persuasive speaking division and will represent Kentucky in the National Persuasion Tournament to be held in Denver, May 2-4.

Ramey also was named the state's best overall speaker, while Cockrell came in second with Margaret Holt, Radcliff junior, as third best speaker in the state.

MSU also had two other team members ranking as "best speakers," Lisa Shemwell, Winchester junior, in fifth place and Jeff Ray, Owingsville senior, in sixth place.

"These outstanding students and their coach should be very proud of their record," said Dr. Richard Dandeneau, acting chair of MSU's Department of Communications. "It takes a great deal of hard work and discipline to be competitive and even more to be winners in this form of academic activity," he added.

Individual wins included:

Ramey, first place in poetry interpretation and rhetorical criticism; second in persuasive speaking; third in prose interpretation, informative speaking and dramatic duo. She is a business and speech major.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Vic Carter, co-anchor of Action News This Morning in Atlanta, will be Black Scholar-in-Residence Thursday and Friday, March 20-21, at Morehead State University.

An MSU alumnus, Carter will discuss his career in television news at 8 p.m. Thursday in Claypool-Young Art Building 111. His campus appearance is sponsored by the Office of Minority Student Affairs.

On Friday he will meet informally with students in broadcasting classes on campus, according to Jerry Gore, MSU's director of minority affairs.

Carter graduated magna cum laude from Morehead in journalism with emphasis in radio/television. For the past four years, he has been a newsman for the WSB-TV.

Prior to his assignment with WSB, he worked as a reporter for WRAL-TV in Raleigh, N.C. A seven-year veteran of broadcast news, Carter has received several honors.

In November, 1985, Vic Carter's coverage of the earthquake in Mexico City was ranked Number One by the Atlanta Association of Black Journalists. During the summer of 1984, his work was ranked the best in the country by the National Association of Black Journalists for coverage of poverty in Georgia.

In Raleigh, Vic received broadcasting's most coveted award from the George Peabody Society for a 1981 documentary and the First Place Award for Spot News Coverage from the Radio-Television News Directors Association of the Carolinas.

Currently, Vic is a member of the Atlanta Association of Black Journalists, a member of the Board of Directors for the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, and a brother of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc.

He is a Big Brother with the Metropolitan Atlanta Big Brothers and Big Sisters Association, and an active member of Friendship Baptist Church.

MOREHEAD, Ky.--Representatives from 41 school systems in 11 states will participate in Morehead State University's Teacher Recruitment Day on Wednesday, April 2.

They will interview prospective teachers--current teacher education students and graduates of MSU's program--from 2 to 5 p.m. and again from 6 to 8 p.m. in the Cragger Room of Adron Doran University Center.

"The number of schools participating has increased considerably from last year," Dr. Michael Hopper, MSU's director of career planning and placement said. "This is a good indication that the teaching job market is opening up again, I believe," Hopper noted.

"The recruiters are looking for teachers in just about every field, with special education, mathematics, chemistry and physics still being very hot fields. A number of the schools are looking for foreign language teachers as well," Hopper said.

"Appointments for interviews must be scheduled with my office and credentials need to be on file there as well," Hopper added. "Interviews with more than one system may be scheduled."

School systems from the following states will be conducting interviews: Georgia, South Carolina, Florida, Ohio, Illinois, Texas, Louisiana, West Virginia, Indiana, Kansas and Kentucky.

Interviews may be scheduled now by calling (606) 783-2233.

CLEARFIELD FIFTH GRADERS VISIT MSU: A Picture Story

Students from Marie Moore's fifth grade class at Clearfield Elementary School visited Morehead State University recently to share some of their favorite stories with students in a children's literature class taught by Shirley Blair, elementary education clinical and field experience coordinator at MSU. Each of the 20 youngsters made creative presentations. Some students used puppets or different hats to delineate their characters, while others brought dioramas or illustrated their stories on the blackboard.

Cutlines :

- 1--Pausing for a moment as she tells the story of "Goldilocks," Gabby Wagoner created her dramatic effects with a diorama and puppets.
- 2--With eraser in hand, Lisa McKinney prepares to "blow away" a house made of straw as she relates the misadventures of the "Three Little Pigs."

MOREHEAD, Ky.--"Understanding, Counseling, and Coping with Dying Patients" will be the topic for five regional workshops sponsored by Morehead State University's Department of Nursing and Allied Health Sciences.

The workshop will be presented as follows:

- April 2, Paul B. Hall Medical Center, Paintsville
- April 3, Appalachian Regional Hospital, Hazard
- April 4, Breathitt County Library, Jackson
- May 1, Highland Regional Hospital, Prestonsburg
- May 2, Methodist Hospital of Kentucky, Pikeville

The workshop will explore current perspectives on death, death's impersonal aspects, techniques for counseling patients and their families, the nurse/patient relationship and the effect the care-giver's attitudes on death may have for the patient.

Each session will begin with registration at 8:30 a.m., followed by classes from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3:30 p.m.

The faculty will include Dr. William J. Weikel, MSU professor of education and American Mental Health Counselors Association's Counselor/Educator of the Year (May sessions only); Dr. Daniel S. Thomas, MSU professor of education (April sessions only); Ellie Reser, registered nurse and associate chaplain at St. Claire Medical Center; Geri Hall, regional coordinator of the McDowell Cancer Network, and Pauline Ramey, MSU's coordinator of continuing education for nursing and allied health sciences.

The series of workshops is partially funded by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services through the Public Health Services. Participants will earn MSU-approved continuing education units and six contact hours approved by the Kentucky Nursing Board.

There is a $10 registration fee. Additional information or registration forms may be obtained by calling Ramey at (606) 783-2635.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University's Chamber Singers will perform at New York City's historic Carnegie Hall on April 30 in a "Celebration of Youth" concert.

The 20-member MSU chorus will join five other collegiate choral groups and the American Symphony Orchestra, directed by Peter Tiboris, for the performance, one of a series featuring student performers.

Highlighting the concert will be a performance of Chopin's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E minor featuring the 16-year-old Greek prodigy Dimitris Sgouros as soloist.

MSU's Chamber Singers will join choruses from Anchorage (Alaska) Community College, Mars Hill College, Memphis State University, University of Tennessee at Chattanooga and Western Kentucky University to create a choral ensemble of more than 400 voices for Kodaly's "Te Deum of Buda Castle." Joining the ensemble for Nielsen's "Hymnus Amoris" will be the Cincinnati Boy Chorus.

The Chamber Singers, under the direction of James Ross Beane, coordinator of MSU's voice and choral studies, also will present a 15-minute concert on April 29 at St. Bartholomew's Church on Madison Avenue.

"Our Carnegie Hall appearance will be an excellent learning experience and an exciting challenge for the students involved," said Beane. "Seldom are college students offered the chance to sing with a major symphony in one of the world's most glamorous music halls," he added.

Student members of the Chamber Ensemble include: Beth Bivins, Lexington junior and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Bivins; Madelyn Bryant, Olive Hill junior and daughter of Dorothy Moore; Terry Cain, Paris senior and son of the Rev. and Mrs. Ben Cain; Jeff Caswell, Falmouth senior and son of Lena Caswell;

Fred Horn, Ashland senior and son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Horn; John Little, Ashland sophomore and son of Delmar Little Jr.; Evert Windland, Ashland junior and son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Windland; Kelly Virgin, Oldtown junior and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Virgin; Jane-Ann Taylor, Catlettsburg junior and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ison; Tom Stephens, Maloneton sophomore and son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stephens;

Thomas Stafford, Camp Dix senior and son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stafford; William H. McIntosh, Shelbyville graduate student and son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. McIntosh; Drew McNeill, Flemingsburg sophomore and son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter McNeill; Jeannie Langman-Kirtley, Morehead graduate student;

Helen Bowen, Union City, Ind., graduate student and daughter of Anna Bowen; Louanna Fillmore, Friendship, Ohio, junior and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Fillmore; Becky Hopper, Lewisville, Ind., graduate student and daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Gerald Collier, former Knightstown, Ind., residents; Kathy Kingham, Troy, Ohio, junior and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kingham.

March 24, 1986
FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Morehead State University has received federal funds from various Eastern Kentucky Head Start Agencies to continue offering training for Child Development Associates.

A Child Development Associate (CDA) is a person trained in meeting the physical, social and intellectual needs of young children.

MSU, as one of the five CDA training sites in the state, received $40,872 to continue the program through August 1986.

The director of MSU's CDA program, Debbie Mattingly, said that the program is individually designed to meet the needs of each trainee and is offered in Head Start Centers in the region.

Upon completion of the program, the trainee will receive the Child Development Associate credential, recognized nationally by child care professionals as evidence of the associate's ability to provide a healthy learning environment for young children.

Additional information on the CDA program is available from Mattingly at (606) 783-2896.

MOREHEAD, Ky. --- Several Morehead State University Department of Art faculty members and alumni have art work on display in area museums.

During two recent art competitions, panels of judges chose winners, honorable mentions and works to be exhibited.

Steve Graves, a 1985 MSU graduate from Athens, Ohio, received an honorable mention in Exhibition 280: Works on Walls competition for his painting, "Unlimited Red."

Those works chosen for display during this competition were:

"In Morehead Valley," a relief etching by Robert Franzini, MSU associate professor of art.

"Unlimited Blue," a painting by Graves.

"Mrs. Hichele Cuts the Lawn While Mr. Hichele Watches," a photograph by Michael A. Lucas, 1984 MSU graduate from Athens, Ohio.

"Curtain of Life," a painting by Tom Sternal, MSU Department of Art chair.

Works chosen for display in the 1986 All-Kentucky Art Exhibition were:

"Portal II," a charcoal drawing by Janelle Delicata, MSU instructor of art.

"My Favorite Chair," a lithograph print by Caroline Garrett, MSU guest curator.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University's Camden-Carroll Library will host the Eastern Kentucky Student Library Association conference on April 2 in Reed Hall Auditorium.

Approximately 150 high school library club members are expected to attend from the Eastern Kentucky Education District, according to Faye Belcher, MSU library consultant, who is coordinating the conference with assistance from Mary Littleton of East Carter High School.

The program will begin at 9:30 a.m. with registration, followed by welcoming remarks by Larry X. Besant, MSU director of libraries, and Dr. Roberta Anderson, vice president for academic affairs.

Highlighting the morning program will be a "Jesse Stuart Presentation," featuring selected readings from Stuart's work by Joyce LeMaster, MSU associate professor of English, with music by Lucretia Stetler, MSU assistant professor of music, and art work by Doug Adams, a former MSU art faculty member.

Also scheduled are a talent show, and competition in art, poetry and short story writing as well as election of officers and general business session.

Current officers are Pat Houck of East Carter, president; Beverly Jones of Bath County, vice president; Sheila Albright of East Carter, corresponding secretary; Windi Kouns of Elliott County, recording secretary; Tina Tussey of Elliott County, treasurer, and Rusty Gray of Bath County, parliamentarian.

Schools expected to attend include East Carter, Bath County, Rowan County, Paul G. Blazer of Ashland, Elliott County, and Lewis County.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---"It helps you like yourself more."

That's how one Rowan County Middle School student describes "Project Charlie," a special program for sixth graders at the school.

On Thursday afternoons in the last period of the school day--the "Exploration Period"--a group of Morehead State University students joins the sixth graders for informal discussions of problems encountered in relationships and peer pressure as it relates to drug abuse.

The next day then, the regular classroom teacher, who normally isn't present during the student-to-student chats, follows up with additional discussion of the topic explored.

"The program is totally unstructured and even our more quiet students become animated as they join the discussions," said Pam Martin, sixth grade teacher. Giving the program high marks she added, "It is great for their self-concept."

"Charlie," stands for chemical abuse resolution lies in education, according to MSU sophomore Ken Hackett of Cincinnati, who organized the project here after being involved in it in his hometown for four years.

In an attempt to reinforce in the youngsters' minds that they are individuals of worth, the words "You are somebody special" are written on the blackboard at the outset of each session.

While self-awareness and communication are the immediate goals, "Project Charlie's" long range goal is to develop self-esteem and a sense of identity within the youngsters so they don't fall victim to peer pressure, according to Hackett. "We hope they will become so secure that they will say no when approached about drugs," he said.

Those are Hackett's thoughts about "Project Charlie;" however the youngsters express theirs a little differently.

"It helps you like yourself more," was the observation made by Craig Baldrige when asked about what he thought of the program, while Tammy Ball said it "teaches us about feelings."

The student volunteers range from psychology and social work majors to students in elementary education and business management. "Project Charlie" also is a service project of MSU's Chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

March 28, 1986
FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Gov. Martha Layne Collins will be the featured speaker for Morehead State University's Founders Day Convocation and Awards Ceremony scheduled for 10:25 a.m. Thursday, April 3, in Button Auditorium.

This year MSU will observe two special anniversaries on Founders Day as it celebrates its 64th anniversary as a state institution of higher education and its 20th birthday as a University.

"Gov. Collins' appearance at the convocation makes this day even more special than it already is," said Allen Lake, retired MSU faculty member and chairman of the Founders Day planning committee. "We are delighted that she accepted our invitation to speak to the campus and the community at this time."

The governor will be introduced by former Gov. Louie B. Nunn, chairman of MSU's Board of Regents, who will preside at the convocation.

The program also will include presentation of the Founders Day Award for University Service. The award, given to individuals who have served the University in superior fashion over an extended period, will be presented by MSU President Herb. F. Reinhard. The award was initiated in 1978 by MSU's Board of Regents.

MSU's Chamber Singers, directed by James Ross Beane, MSU associate professor of music, will sing the Alma Mater and perform selections from their upcoming appearance at Carnegie Hall and St. Bartholomew's Church in New York City.

Several other activities in addition to the convocation are planned for the celebration. The day will begin with a 7 a.m. fellowship breakfast in the Crager Room, Adron Doran University Center.

(MORE)

The formal program, beginning at 7:30 a.m., will feature MSU alumnus James Stuart, Greenup County Board of Education chairman and brother of the late author Jesse Stuart, as speaker. He will be introduced by Joyce LeMaster, MSU associate professor of English.

Presiding at the breakfast program will be Kelli Abner of Morehead, a student member of the planning committee. The invocation will be given by the Rev. Harold Tackett of the First Christian Church of Morehead. The Rev. David Hilton, pastor of Morehead's United Methodist Church, will give the closing prayer.

The 20th anniversary of university status will be the focal point for the Founders Luncheon at noon in the Crager Room, ADUC. Special guests at the luncheon will be legislators who were active in the passage in 1966 of House Bill 238 which granted university status to MSU, Murray, Eastern and Western.

Former State Rep. Sherman Arnett of Clearfield, one of the bill's sponsors and a retired MSU administrator, will give the invocation.

MSU Alumni Association President David Bolt will preside at the luncheon. "The program will include recognition of several individuals for their support of MSU's legislative and fundraising activities," Bolt said. Music will be provided by George T. Young, retired MSU political science faculty member.

The luncheon will be followed by an Open House, beginning at 1:30 p.m., at the Folk Art Museum, Claypool-Young Art Building.

Founders Day events were planned by a committee which included campus and community representatives. Dr. Frances Helphinstine, professor of English, is vice chairman.

Other members of the committee include Dennis Karwatka, associate professor of industrial education; Don Young, director of alumni relations; Tami Blong, planned giving officer, and Dwayne Tutt of Louisville, Tom Rodgers of Cynthiana and Serena Hammack of Owingsville, student members. Representing the community is Phil Pack, Morehead businessman. Keith Kappes, assistant to the president for university relations, served as liaison from the President's Office.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University's Department of Music will present pianist Timothy Shafer of Charleston, W.Va., in a Franz Liszt Commemorative Recital on Thursday, April 17, at 8:15 p.m. in Duncan Recital Hall.

The program is free and open to the public.

At age 25, Shafer has been the recipient of many honors. While a student at Oberlin College, Shafer won the Charleston Symphony Young Artists Competition (1979), Oberlin's Rudolf Serkin Outstanding Junior Pianist Award (1981), the First Annual Senior Piano Honors Award Competition (1982), and the Faustina Hurlbitt Outstanding Senior Performer Award (1982).

He has been an active chamber musician and soloist, and toured many cities in the United States. In 1985 Shafer won the Indiana University Annual Piano Concerto Competition and as a result, played Tchaikowsky Piano Concerto No. 1 with the Indiana University Concert Orchestra. Currently, Shafer is touring the mid-western United States performing and discussing Franz Liszt's Annees de Pelerinage in a centennial commemoration of the composers death.

Over a 10 year period of teaching, Shafer has taught beginning to advanced level students and hold a Suzuki Teacher's Certificate. Formerly on the Oberlin College faculty, he currently is an associate instructor of piano at Indiana University, where he is completing work on a Doctor of Musical Arts degree and is a student of Michel Bloch.
