ROWAN COUNTY TEACHERS HOLD MEETING FRIDAY TO PERFECT PLANS FOR SCHOOL FAIR OCT. 45

School And Agricultural Fair Arrangements Are Completed.

The Pre Fair Teachers' Meeting was held Friday, September 20, in the Morehead High School Gymnasium. T. F. Lyons had charge of the Devotional exercises; Rev. B. H. Fern presiding. All the teachers of Rowan County Schools were present.

The morning session of the meeting was given over to the following: Rev. T. F. Lyons, in charge of the Devotional exercises; Rev. B. H. Fern explained registration of Fair exhibits; and County Agent C. L. Goff discussed the agricultural side of the Fair. The afternoon session included short talks by G. W. Dillon, Lillian Messer, and Frank C. Laughlin, each explaining some phase of the Fair.

The Declaratory Contest was held also at this meeting, with Fern James of Elliottville winning first place. Leveina Flanery of Slaty Point second, and Evelyn McCoy of Sharkey third. Fern James will represent Rowan County at the State Tournament to be held in Lexington on November first and second. The winners in the other scholastic events held Friday will also go to the State Tournament.

The teachers voted to contribute one dollar each to the School and Agricultural Fair. They then voted unanimously that this county join the K. E. A. one hundred percent. All teachers are enthusiastic about the Fair and predict a bigger and better exposition than ever before. The interest is growing from year to year.

At the close of the meeting rural teachers received checks for their first month's teaching services.

Judge Swope spoke here yesterday in opening his campaign in this county. As the time for his speech it was necessary for the report to be published in the next issue.

With Circuit Court just around the corner, the number of late and unusual number of killings and felonies are rounding up, so that there appears to be but little doubt that the October term of the court will see not only as many murder cases on the docket as has been the case for a number of years.

Mrs. Bess Day will be on trial again, for the killing of Oscar Williams last spring. Buddy Alfrey has given up in the killing of Everett Sweeney, of which he was accused. Wilson is being held for grand jury action over the killing of Harvey Fuiz. Marion Smith was found dead last Saturday after having been run over by the C. & O. train at Haldeman, under circumstances that have led officers to

And so it goes. If all the cases coming up are brought before the court and tried, the lawyers and court will both have a busy time clearing the docket.

Politics have a habit of getting warm about this season of the year with the opening of the party campaigns. Not that they haven't been a trifle heated ever since last May when the political arena was cleared for the multiple Democratic primaries in August and September.

The Democratic family squabble however has become history and the Democrats are preparing to present a united front to the community enemy the Republican led by King Swope.

Happy Chandler Visits In Morehead Saturday

Hon. A. B. "Happy" Chandler, Lieutenant Governor of Kentucky and Democratic nominee for governor, spent an hour in Morehead Saturday morning, visiting friends and meeting supporters in the city. He was accompanied by Mrs. Chandler and was on his way back home from Washington, and points in West Virginia, where he has spent a brief vacation.

Mr. Chandler expressed himself as deeply grateful for the large majority given him in Rowan county, and predicted that the Democratic ticket would have no trouble in winning in November.

While here, Mr. and Mrs. Chandler spent a few moments at the home of Mrs. Allie W. Young. He also visited Chandler headquarters.

Marion Smith Is Killed By Train

The mutilated body of Marion Smith of Haldeman was found early Sunday morning on the C. & O. Hall way tracks near that place. Possibility of foul play caused coroner James Brown to call a coroner's jury into action Monday when it was reported that shots had been heard about the time Smith was said to have gone up the road. Tracks and blood were reported as found in several places.

The coroner's jury, however was unable, according to reports, to find any conclusive evidence of foul play, as the body had been so torn and mutilated that no evidence of wounds could have been located had they been present. There was left one verdict for them to return, that he had met death when he was run over by the freight train that passed there early Sunday morning. Two shots had been fired out of Smith's gun, according to reports. He is said to have been in Morehead earlier in the evening Saturday and later to have stopped and asked some neighbor near Gates to take him on up to his home.

Civic Chorus Holds Organization Meeting

Twenty five singers met for the Morehead Civic Chorus Fall organization meeting in the College Auditorium Tuesday evening. Students, faculty, former students, alumni and a very gratifying number of Morehead citizens made up the personnel of this group. L. H. Horton, director of the chorus, urged each singer to bring at least one other singer in the next rehearsal, suggesting that if this plan were repeated the result would be a chorus of one hundred voices which is the goal set for the group this Fall.

It was decided to order a cheap edition of the oratorio, "The Messiah," which is the major work on which the chorus will work this Fall. The edition in question contains choral parts of the oratorio and omits the solos. It will cost between fifty and sixty cents and this will be the only expense which chorus members will have. In addition they will own (Continued On Page Four)

Candidates Visit In City During Past Week

Walter Allen Crockett, candidate for State Senator from this district on the Democratic ticket was a visitor in Morehead Tuesday of this week. Mr. Crockett is optimistic about his race this fall, and predicts a Democratic victory for the entire state.

Hon. Ernest Shannon of Louisa was also a visitor in the city on Tuesday. Mr. Shannon is Democratic candidate for the office of State Auditor. He stated there was no question but that Lawrence county would give the entire state ticket an overwhelming majority.

Old Book Owned By O. L. Palmer

The following article appeared in the current issue of "Industrial Education Magazine." The cuts for the illustrations were loaned to the Rowan County News through the courtesy of the Industrial Education Magazine and Mr. J. T. Mays.

Through the efforts and thoughtfulness of J. T. Mays, professor of industrial arts of the Morehead State Teachers College, Morehead, Kentucky, this magazine has been given an opportunity to express a very interesting and service worth a look on carpentry. From its title page, one learns that this old book "The British Carpenter," by Francis Price, Fig. 1, was printed in 1735. It is "a Treatise on Carpentry, containing the most concise and authentic Rules of that Art, in a more Useful and Extensive Method, than has been made Publick." This copy is the second and enlarged edition of an earlier work by the author.

As would be expected, it is printed on hand made paper. It bears the imprint, "London: Printed by C. Ackers in St. John's Street." On opening the book, one immediately stops at the dedication page, Fig. 2, and admires the engravings, the type, and the composition. Then, as he turns the next few similar pages and notes the varied and effective use of ornaments, initials and title type, he begins to appreciate the fine typographic art of that London printer of two hundred years ago.

At the end of the volume is a list of illustrations of Palladio's Orders of Architecture and "appropriate ornaments for doors and windows." Throughout the book, one is aware (Continued On Page Four)

REPUBLICANS PICK CAMPAIGN MANAGER

At a meeting of the Republican County Committee held at the court house on Friday of last week, Hugh B. Caudill, Cashier of the Postoffice Bank of this city was chosen as campaign chairman for the coming state campaign for Judge King Swope. Other names had been suggested but Mr. Caudill was chosen by the majority of those present.

ELECTION OFFICERS FOR NOV. NAMED AT MEETING OF BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS ON FRIDAY

EAGLES TO OPEN THEIR SEASON ON SATURDAY

Morehead College will play the season's opener here Saturday when they meet Rio Grande College of Ohio in a gridiron contest. The game is called for 2:00 p. m.

The Eagles have been working out for the past two weeks and have been rounding into form, in spite of the handicap of a small squad.

Charles Crum Dies In Lexington Hospital

Charles Crum, who was wounded on September 6 while resisting arrest and who since that time has been in a Lexington hospital, died on Sunday night of this week. Crum, who was reported as recovering and who was expected to be released from the hospital within a few days, is said to have been awakened when a delirious patient was brought into the hospital and to have jumped out of bed and run down the hall. It is said that he was only about half awake and that his highly nervous condition at the time was responsible for his act.

His remains were brought to Morehead Monday night. It is thought that his act in jumping from his bed to open his wounds and caused his death.

L. C. Tackett Out For A. B. Chandler

The following letter was received by Lyle C. Tackett in response to a letter written by him to Lieut. Gov. A. B. Chandler following the Chandler primary in September:

My Dear Friend: Please pardon my delay in answering your letter of September 14th, but I have been away for a slight rest after the strenuous campaign. I am now ready to begin the campaign for the November election.

Regardless of the fact that you did not support me in the primary I hold claim you as one of my supporters and I greatly appreciate your intention to do all that you can for me in the coming campaign. It is very good of you to write me as you did and I shall always be proud of your valuable and cordial support.

The outlook for the Fall campaign is very encouraging and I am confident our ticket will be victorious if our friends and supporters are active in the campaign.

Sincerely,
A. B. Chandler

AS A MAN THINKS

Observance of certain notable days should remind us of the obligations which those dates suggest. Nothing is more important than the focusing of attention on the needs of our world. It is highly important that people think, think seriously, think aright, and that their thinking shall prompt their actions and give color to their days.

The popular form of government is that in which people do their own thinking, elect their own officials and crystallize the sentiment that makes the laws. But we too must and too often emphasize thinking en masse. It is splendid if we can have majorities for ushering in of every reform. But many a reform is obtained, through an invincible personality—one person doing and saying what he thinks is right and standing by his guns though the heavens fall.

As a man thinks, so is he; so is his neighborhood; so is his community; so is his nation. One man has often set in operation a train of influences that never spent their force until the desired reform was won.

The wisest man is he who changes his mind and does different thinking today from that of yesterday, if convinced that he was in the wrong yesterday. It is not only important that we have firm convictions, but it is equally important that we have reasons for our convictions. Many a person, to take his word for it, does not know why he belongs to a certain church or votes a certain ticket. He has never thought through to its logical conclusion the philosophy to which he subscribes.

As a man thinketh, so does a nation think. As a nation thinks, so is it. The nations of the world thought for years in terms of militarism, commercial rivalry, jealousy, suspicion and intrigue. The most destructive war the world has yet known seemed necessary in order to change the thinking of the world.

Now our civic responsibility and humanitarian obligations tell us that we must think in terms of arbitration, love, service, and universal peace.

Let us continue to change our thinking. It is time our thoughts leaped from armaments to the personal needs of The unemployed, the tired, the hungry, the illiterate must be helped and saved. Crime must be overpowered. Children must be given the right to live the best of lives.

The contagion of sound thinking, of sincerity, and moral courage can save our civilization.

OFFENSIVE AGAINST SIN

General Evangeline Booth, of the Salvation Army, has issued a Manifesto to the members of her organizations in ninety countries declaring a new offensive against sin throughout the world.

It may be interesting to readers of the Rowan County News to have a list of the sins that General Booth thinks should be wiped out. Here they are: greed, shynopsis, immorality, gambling, blasphemy, malice, hatred, murders, thefts, cant, jealousy, cowardice, fashion, pride, conceit, selfishness and lying.

DO YOUR TRADING AT HOME

The commercial growth of a community depends largely upon the extent of the stocks kept by its merchants. People do not come to a town to buy what the merchants do not sell. No merchant can enlarge his stocks until there is a demand for the goods. Merchandise bought from peddlers fails to create any demand.

Every local citizen should buy everything at home that is possible. Dollars sent away by money orders, or checks, seldom get back to home circulation. The carpenter who buys his tools by mail seldom thinks that a better business for the hardware merchant might mean more building activity. Every woman and man, working for a living in Morehead, depends upon the money kept at home for payday prosperity.

FROM THE STATE CAPITAL

BY HOWARD HENDERSON
From The Courier-Journal

A fortnight away from the Democratic run-off primary and six weeks before the November election the electorate of Kentucky is beginning to show signs of favoritism for the Democratic nominee, Lieut. Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler, over the Republican standard bearer, Judge King Swope.

To say that it is to say that Mr. Chandler's election is "settled" and that Mr. Swope has no chance of victory. It is to record an obvious impression, widely shared by both Democratic and Republican politicians, that at the particular time, a month and a half away from election day, Mr. Chandler enjoys a pronounced advantage.

This advantage grows out of a number of more or less disconnected situations. One of these is the belief in Mr. Chandler's vote-getting ability that grew out of his surprising large margin in the Democratic run-off vote. Another is a conviction shared by many Republicans even, that this year in Kentucky, is a Democratic year.

Taking up first the widespread belief that this is just naturally a Democratic year in Kentucky, there are several facts that convince the politicians that it is so. Few Republicans, for one thing, believe the Roosevelt popularity has waned sufficiently to offer the Republicans such hope in a normally Democratic State.

Mr. Swope himself gives evidence of sharing that opinion to some extent for reports from close to the Lexington jurist indicate he wants to keep the fighting on State questions. He was absent this week from the Republican gatherings in Louisville to honor Col. Frank Knox, prospective candidate for the Republican nomination to oppose President Roosevelt next year.

Limits Attacks to State Role
It may be giving undue emphasis to his absence to attribute it to his disinclination to inject anything into State issues into his campaign. But heretofore, in his speeches both before and since he received the Republican nomination, he confined his attack to criticism of the State administration.

If, as the campaign develops, he sticks to State issues, with careful avoidance of National subjects, it will evidence a conviction on his part and that of the administration had best be let alone if he wants to be elected Governor of the State. And that is what he is reported to believe.

Mr. Chandler on the other hand seems willing to mix the two, with renewal of his attack on the sales tax, promise of primary nominations rather than convention named tickets, and a linking together of the State and National problems that are a part of President Roosevelt's social security programme.

This was evident this week, when, from Washington, Mr. Chandler said he welcomed the discussion of President Roosevelt's programme in the Kentucky campaign this year. Mr. Chandler reported too, that various democratic speakers would be brought to Kentucky to discuss the link between the State and the Washington Government in the broad programme for recovery.

Chandler Would Link Issues
There can be but one meaning to the different viewpoints of Mr. Chandler and Mr. Swope, and that is that each believes the Democratic ticket in the State will be strengthened by the National Administration for that reason Mr. Chandler wants to tie the two together. Mr. Swope wants to make his own attack on Frankfort alone, not on Washington.

Mr. Chandler's margin over Thomas S. Rhea in the September run off was not as wide as Former Gov. A. O. Stanley established in 1918 when he created the nomination from the then dominant Democratic organization. But 26,000 majority for Mr. Chandler was something which the politicians still are talking about.

Had been less, say 5,000 or 7,000 it would not have been so conclusive. But for the 37 year old candidate to best so decisively a seasoned politician like Mr. Rhea gave Mr. Chandler a big lead for the November fight.

It works out something like the Democratic contest began to effect of Mr. Chandler's showing in the August primary had on the results in the September run-off. If Mr. Chandler in August had trailed far behind Mr. Rhea, it would have been widely accepted by politicians as indicating an almost hopeless task for Mr. Chandler in September.

Vote For Chandler in Running
But when, in August, Mr. Chandler ran only 13,000 behind Mr. Rhea, it really put him in the running for the September battle. By the same token, outdistancing Mr. Rhea by a few thousand in September, Mr. Chandler would have failed to demonstrate any big lead for the November battle. But running his margin over Mr. Rhea past 26,000 gave him a big "push" for his November battle.

The man on the street has accepted the primary result as meaning just that Mr. Chandler's demonstration ability to beat cannot win. It is a dangerous psychology from Mr. Swope's standpoint, which he must overcome or watch the chances fritter away for no better reason than a popular belief that he cannot win.

It is the same problem that many men previously have faced in political contests, watching their own campaign languish because the people, concealing in some instances the particular candidate's superior ability and fitness, have not conceded him a chance to be elected.

It is not the purpose of this analysis to say that Mr. Swope is facing inevitable defeat. It is the purpose of the analysis to point out that the impression has gained ground steadily for two weeks that Mr. Chandler will win in November, and that Mr. Swope must reckon with that in the development of his campaign strategy.

If he does not, or if he cannot solve it speedily, it could grow to such proportions that issues would amount to little if the fact of a popular conclusion that he was making a losing fight.

Meanwhile, with Mr. Swope's formal opening completed today, and the Democratic opening date and place not even set, the actual campaigning has barely started, mid October may see the tendency of September accentuated, or Mr. Swope may have stopped the Chandler trend.

During the week the soreness of

Kennel Murder Case

BY S. S. VAN DINE

Copyright by W. H. Wright

Brisbane, as I now see it, had just placed the strings which he had used for bolting Archer's door, in the pocket of his top-coat, when Wrede came silently upon him from behind and thrust the dagger into his back. He collapsed immediately, and Wrede pushed his body, which he thought was Archer's entirely into the closet and closed the door. He went back to the library; and it was at this time that he probably stumbled over the Scottie, which had followed him in. He decided that it was safest to get rid of her immediately. She may even have barked, or made some sound when he stumbled over her; and he was in no frame of mind at that moment to meet new emergencies logically. He dropped the dagger back into the vase and picked up the poker. Then he struck the Scottie over the head, it was the simplest and most direct way of dealing with an unexpected circumstance when there was no time for thought. The presence of the dog was unexpected, incalculable.

There can be little doubt that the man was in a panic. And with sufficient reason. He did not even switch off the lights in the library. He went home through the rear door, thinking that he had left Archer's body in the coat closet. Then when Gamble summoned him the following morning, he found that Archer was bolted in his bedroom, behind a studded door. The man must have felt that the whole world had gone insane. I imagine he rushed to the hall closet to check his sanity, so to speak; and then he saw the dead body of Brisbane. Some of the truth, at least must have dawned upon him. He had killed his friend, his ally, by accident. What mental torture he must have suffered! And there was also in his mind the terrible problem of Archer's death. I wonder the man stood up so well when we arrived. The cold desperation of the final moment, I suppose.

Markham moved about the room restlessly.

I see it all, he muttered, as if to himself. He stopped and went round. But what of Wrede's attempt at murder of Grassi.

That was logical and keeping with his character, said Vance. Wrede's complete victory over the out of his lucky rival. Wrede thought he had successfully pulled the wool over our eyes, and the fact gave him confidence. He knew exactly where the dagger was; he knew the domestic arrangements of the Coe house; he had a key to the rear door; and he doubtless knew of the broken lock on Grassi's door.

He had probably brooded over his loss of a wealthy bride until he could no longer resist the urge to follow up his—as he thought—successful murder of Archer by the carrier of Grassi. He would thus acquire a complete victory over the forces that had temporarily defeated him. His frustrated ego again.

And had it not been for Liang's perspicacity—which Wrede underestimated—and the shift of Grassi's arm, he would have succeeded.

But what, asked Markham, first gave you the idea that Wrede had committed the murder.

The Scottie, Markham, answered Vance. After having found she belonged to Higginbottom, I ascertained that he had given her his name. I was told in the Belle Maison. And once I had followed the Scottie's tracks, I knew that she belonged to the Delaford apartment.

Next door. I made a bit of an investigation. I learned from a perfectly honest Irish maid that both Higginbottom and his lady fair—a Miss Delaford had been having a farewell dinner at the time Coe was murdered. Yes, I had thought perhaps that some blond lady with a Dupux lipstick had admitted the Scottie into the Coe house earlier in the evening.

But although Miss Delaford used Dupux lipstick and had undoubtedly called on Archer Coe last past seven, it is not the lady who had let the Scottie in; for the little dog was in the Delaford apartment after nine o'clock that night, and had disappeared some time between then and half past ten, at which hour the maid instituted a search warrant for her.

Moreover, I learned that the Scottie had entered the Coe house only if some one had unlocked the gate between the Belle Maison and the rear yard; further learned that there was no way for the Scottie to escape from the Belle Maison, except into the rear yard. Only some one who had unlocked the gate and opened the rear door of the Coe residence would have given her the opportunity of entering the house. And Wrede was the only person who could have done this.

The following year Hills, Lake and Grassi were married, and the alliance seems to have been highly successful. Vance became the owner of Miss MacTavish. He had become attached to her during the day he had nursed her back to health, and the romance (if one may call it that) between Higginbottom and Doris Delaford ran on the rocks shortly after the lady's return from Europe. After her break with the major she showed little interest in the dog; and Higginbottom, in appreciation of some nebulous favor which he considered Vance had done him, made him a present of the bitch. Vance placed her in his kennels, but she did not seem to be happy there;

Fertilize the lawn now and cut the grass high the rest of the year. Have the mower blade at least half an inch higher than was used in the summer. This will enable the grass to store plant food in its roots and also to act as a winter mulch.

A year of heavy rainfall in many Kentucky counties has increased in tending to prevent erosion and in draining bottom lands. Reports indicate an unusually large seeding of rye and other cover crops over much of the state.

Make jelly in small lots; use a large flat bottomed saucepan; carry the entire process through promptly. This is the advice of experts who have studied the action of fruit juices and sugar when combined to make jellies.

Baked honey apple sauce recipe: Wash, dry, core and slice crosswise 6 large tart apples. Place them in a baking dish and pour over them a mixture of three quarters of a cup of honey and a quart of a cup of water. Bake slowly for an hour.

Good egg production during fall and winter, when prices are high, requires proper feeding. This means a mixture of grains that contain egg making materials. Skim milk or butter milk may be fed to advantage where plentiful on the farm.

Precooking makes hard varieties of peas easier to pack in cans. Peel, cut in halves, cover and cook in boiling medium syrup for 8 minutes according to size. Pack in hot containers, concave side down. Cover and process containers of all sizes 20 minutes in boiling water.

THE GARDEN Killing frost cannot be far off; at least, the calendar says so. With the ending of the season imminent, thought should turn to putting the garden in shape best to pass the winter.

The best way for a garden to go through the cold, rainy and snowy months is under the protection of a cover crop. Those gardeners who have neglected until now to protect at least part of the garden in this way may still do so, for, even when late into October, has splendid prospect of making quite an early crop for turning under in the spring.

In the southern half of the state, where the winters are somewhat less severe than in the northern countries, barley may be substituted. In fact, barley is to be preferred where it can be grown, for its straw is finer than that of rye and it breaks down more easily.

If a gardener wishes to amplify both land preparation and seed sowing, he may use Siberian, winter hardy kale, or Seven Top turnips. They make less growth than rye or barley, but whatever there is better than nothing. Cover crop greens should be sown without delay, so they may become established before really cold weather comes.

If a cover crop is not to be used, and if the garden has level enough not to wash, it should be broken in the late fall after there has been several severe freezes. Breaking at this time performs several good offices. First, the humus in the vegetable tops is turned back into the soil; the humus question is a serious one with many gardeners. If crop remnants are left lying where they fall, the temptation in the spring is to clean them off before breaking is done, and thus valuable and he finally took her to his apartment. He still has her, and she has been "pensioned" for life. Sometimes I think that Vance would rather part with one of his treasured Cezannes than with little Miss MacTavish.

humus material is lost. Another advantage of late fall breaking is that insects are destroyed, and so go deep into the soil for the winter, their bodies turned to freeze, and those that take shelter in garden debris, turned under deep enough to smother.

Further, in a broken garden, left over rains are absorbed and rains are held to melt, in such a garden there is greater moisture reserve than in a bare garden left unbroken.

If the garden is only moderately sloping, late fall breaking is still to be recommended, but the plowing should be across the slope, to reduce washing and gullying. Where slopes are pronounced, breaking should be deferred until a month or so before the garden is to be put in, so that at least the late winter rains will have been caught.

This matter of how the garden is to spend the winter is important to consider. May it be left at this? If possible, sow a cover crop, preferably one that will do some growing throughout the winter, but at least one that may do some growing before severe weather comes. If there is to be no cover crop, which would be regrettable, and if the garden is level or only slightly sloping, it should be broken as soon as cold weather has definitely come, plowing across the slope to minimize soil washing. If slopes are so severe that there is danger of washing or gullying, plowing should be delayed until early spring, but still early enough for the breaking down of turned under vegetables tops to take place before the garden is finally prepared for seed sowing.

All these are good ways to winter a garden, and any of them will improve the prospect for any garden in 1936.

fade. The Rhea forces, unsuccessful in their effort to nominate Mr. Rhea at the head of the ticket, placed on the Democratic ticket for November two of their "split" in the September run off, and three in the August primary, or the subsequent with draws.

"Split" Ticket Aids. This resulted in a "split" ticket, with four Chandler men and five Rhea men as Democratic nominees. As far as the November fight is concerned, the "split" ticket helped heal the wounds of the party conflict.

Ken Johnson, slated for Rhea for Lieutenant Governor, and running mate for Mr. Chandler, came to Democratic headquarters this week to take charge of the publicity work for the Democratic ticket.

From all sections of the State the men and women who made Mr. Rhea's organization for the August and the September primaries announced their acceptance of the results and declared their acceptance of the ticket in the November election.

These expressions came without any word from Mr. Rhea, whose thanks to his followers contained no hint of his intentions. He has not offered his support to Mr. Chandler since the primary, though, in fairness to Mr. Rhea, he declared many times during the primary that he would support the nominee.

Made Issues Of Loyalty. In fact, Mr. Rhea made something of a point of his life time loyalty to the party, and his whole-hearted purpose to support it this year, no matter who was nominated. His failure to offer his support promptly—any evidence his love of appointment in a life time ambition.

Without word from Mr. Rhea, and with Gov. Laffoon still undecided whether to call a special session of the General Assembly, Democratic leaders went forward with plans for the Democratic campaign. No announcement could be made, however, until Mr. Chandler returned from his fall vacation and conference in Washington.

The selection of a campaign chairman will be taken up Sunday night at a conference of the nominees for State office. There is a possibility that State Senator Robert F. Humphrey, Marfield, who served as Mr. Chandler's vice primary chairman, may be asked to remain at the head of the organization.

Mr. Humphrey's demonstrated his ability as an organizer in the result in Graves County in the August primary, and again in the September run off. He is a member of the Democratic State Central Executive committee, which will be called next soon to set up the party organization for the November election. Attorney General Bailey P. Wootton, who is chairman of the party committee, indicated this week that he would call the committee as soon as the candidates had decided on their choice for leaders of the campaign.

With that part of the organization work out of the way, Mr. Chandler and his associates will determine when and where he will open the campaign. A chairman of the Speakers Bureau will be named and then organization work will be directed to the various counties.

This week, according to advice from State headquarters, will be made around the Rhea and Chandler organizations throughout the state, so that the party can present a united front in November.

FIELDS HALL GIRLS BUY ART WORKS

The two oil paintings which were purchased by the women of Fields Hall under the sponsorship of Fields Hall Student Council from Stanislas Warnie, a prominent artist of Brussels, Belgium, have arrived in the United States and are being sent to Morehead through the Louisville customs office, according to word received by Curraleen C. Smith, dean of women and sponsor of the Fields Hall Student Council. As soon as they are received, suitable frames will be purchased for them and they will be placed in the lobby of Fields Hall.

Arrangements for the purchase of the paintings were made by Ralph M. Hudson, art instructor, while he was in Brussels this summer.

The largest of the two paintings represents a typical Belgian landscape scene with a pond, stumpy, bushy willows and a golden field of grain in the distance. The other oil painting is a seascape painted by Mr. Warnie at Zeebrugge.

doubt that the Democrats will have patched up their little differences fairly well and will be able to go forward under the leadership of A. B. Happy Chandler, who was chosen to head the ticket. In Rowan county there appears to be but little difficulty in this direction.

A meeting for the purpose of reorganizing the committee to include all the Democrats of the county is being arranged for the near future. It is hoped and planned by the Democrats who supported both Chandler and Rhea that the organization for November will include leaders in both factions of the party and that they will go forward as a harmonious whole toward the goal of electing the entire state ticket in November.

Naturally the hope of the Republican hosts is that the rift, if it could be called a rift, will be widened and that the disgruntled ones will help to carry the Republican banner to victory.

The majority of the Democratic leaders as well as the voters themselves have already declared themselves as satisfied to let the majority rule and to unite in support of the ticket chosen.

One advantage in the state Democratic ticket is that both factions are well represented. A. B. Chandler of course heads the ticket with a Rhea man, Keen Johnson in the second position. The same holds true throughout the entire ticket. This should serve to unite the Democrats to a considerable extent.

A large delegation of Republicans attended the Swap, opening at Lexington Saturday. They reported a large gathering, the estimates varying from 3,500 to 10,000. The most reliable were between those two figures.

VIKINGS TO PLAY OLIVE HILL ON FRIDAY

The Vikings of Morehead High School will play their first football game of the season, when they encounter the Olive Hill Comets at the Jayne Stadium Friday afternoon, September 27, at 2:00. The game should prove interesting, since a number of last year's players are back on the team this year.

The chapel period at Morehead High School was turned over to a pep meeting in which candidates for cheer leaders gave try outs. The following cheer leaders were elected: Monie Fraley, Decatha Hatchinson, and Ruth Porter were selected.

Jack Carter, Morehead High School Senior, was elected president of the Student Council by a ballot vote on Thursday, September 19.

The Seniors and a number of their friends enjoyed a winter roast at Roubidoux Hollow Tuesday evening, September 24. About 35 people attended. They were cheered by Anna Jane Day, sponsor of the Senior Class.

To Demonstrate Land Values

There are three major areas in Kentucky in which the Resettlement Administration's Land Utilization Division plans to concentrate its efforts to demonstrate the value of the proper use and conservation of the state's natural resources according to James M. Gray, of Raleigh, N. C., Regional Director in charge of this work.

Gray, who has spent 25 years studying the land problems of this region, listed the mountainous area and adjacent lands, the hilly tobacco region, and the cut-over timber sections as areas in this state in which major adjustments in land use are necessary.

"This does not mean," Gray pointed out, "that all the land within the designated areas should be retired from cultivation. For instance, the purchase of woodland and steep eroded slopes for administration as public forests is advocated in some sections, while the remaining farm land would continue in cultivation. "It may be desirable to shift some of this land from its present use, but I want to emphasize that the long term program of this phase of the settlement work is to provide opportunities for farmers to withdraw from these ill adapted areas and to settle where it is possible to produce a more satisfactory living."

"In general, the withdrawal of families from these problem lands would have to be accomplished gradually, as the opportunity arises or are created, rather than by a rapid, large scale change. There are, however, certain areas of acute distress that may require immediate action of an emergency nature. The Land Utilization division and the Rural Resettlement division are working out this part of the general program cooperatively."

In portions of the mountainous area, Gray said, the widespread withdrawal of some of the arable farm land in the roughest areas, for conversion to some constructive use, such as forests, will be necessary. This will be followed by the institution of constructive management of forest lands. An increase in the size of farm units in the less broken areas would be advocated to permit larger pasture acreages, poultry and smaller aggregate areas of crops. Introduction of erosion measures in the better farming areas would be one of the land conservation measures necessary.

A program of widespread, but not general, withdrawal of some of the arable farm land in the hilly tobacco region would also be necessary, Gray said. The land withdrawn would be converted to some constructive use, such as forest, game preserves, or recreational areas. Erosion control and constructive management of forest land would be necessary in this area.

Two major adjustments are advocated in the cut-over timber region, the better management of forest land so as to assure a re-growth of timber, and the widespread withdrawal of some of the arable farm land. In some sections, there will be little necessity for the withdrawal of farm land as more constructive use of the forest land would furnish additional sources of income for farmers now living in these sections.

There was a guy that had just finished the works as a surveyor, and he was just out of school. He had a lot of ideas about rights and such things. He marched right up to the contractor. of the author's extensive knowledge of geometry as applied in the buildings of that period. The binding of the book, too commands attention—full leather, hand tooled on both front and back in the typical refined ornaments of that period.

While this old book should appeal to every worker in the arts and every appreciator of the typographic art, because of its workmanship there is an added interest in it because of its records of ownership down through the years. On the inside cover is written in clear, accurate, deliberate style, "John Adams His Book, May 3 day 1758-Price, 1L, 0s, 0d. Philadelphia Bought. On the same page at the end of the book are other records of ownership and various die markings. The backs of some of the plates of illustrations have been used for keeping accounts. Concerning these records of ownership Professor Mays says:

"Oscar Palmer Sr., school carpenter and electrician at Morehead State Teachers College is the owner of the book. He tells me that the book has been in his family since 1825, and that he has owned it for 40 years. The tradition in his family relative to the John Adams mentioned in the book is that he was a Philadelphia and did a great deal of real estate dealing in and around building. Mr. Palmer says that the signature in the book has been compared by many, with the signature of the president by the same name and that they are identical."

"The Palmer family came here from Virginia. During the time they lived in Virginia, the book was used as a record book by one of Mr. Palmer's great uncles, who operated a ferry near Lynchburg. The book has been handed down in the Palmer family to the son who showed talent in the field of carpentry."

Modernize with Uncle Sam's Help

Right now is the time to put that dream of yours into actuality. The depression is over and though everybody knows it, they haven't come out of the habit of thinking how awful it is. And still there's the almost unheard of possibility of using money for a long period loaned by the Federal Housing Administration at amazingly low prices.

Add to the advantage of money at your disposal, the fact that labor and material prices are still at extremely low levels, and you have a situation that probably shan't be equalled again in many, many years. Real estate experts will back up that opinion of they've come out of the gloom of the depression sufficiently to see more than a week ahead. Come in and talk it over with us. ### Milk Important Food In The Diet.

Milk is the one food that does not have a substitute and should be included in the daily diet of everyone, declares nutrition specialist at the College of Agriculture. It is the best source of calcium, which is essential for the development and hardening of bones and teeth. In fact, it is difficult for the mother to supply sufficient calcium in the diet of her children unless a generous supply of milk is used daily.

Milk is also a good source of protein or muscle building material. One quart of milk daily will furnish from one half to two thirds the amount of protein needed by the growing child. The butterfat of milk is an excellent source of vitamin A, which has been found to be necessary for the normal growth of children and the health of both children and adults.

Recent studies have shown that milk is a good protective food against beriberi.

Every growing boy or girl should use four cups of milk daily and every adult two cups. If the individual does not want to drink milk, it may be used in the preparation of other foods, such as vegetable soups, creamed and other vegetables, meats, pudding and other desserts.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Written each week by Rev. S. H. Kazee, Pastor of the Baptist Church.

SUBJECT: JOHN (The Minister And His People.) III John.
GOLDEN TEXT: "Beloved, follow not that which is evil, but that which is good. He that doeth good is of God; but he that doeth evil hath not seen God."

John was the son of Zebedee and brother of James. The implication is that his father was in easy circumstances, for he had boats and hired servants. A disciple of John the Baptist, this John had most valuable training. He was called to follow Jesus as a disciple, through which relationship he became personally known to Jesus and was then appointed an Apostle. Only those having passed the test of discipleship were eligible for apostleship.

John was reserved in his manner, referring to himself as the "disciple whom Jesus loved" or "that other disciple." He was thoroughly masculine, "a son of thunder." Though Christian art portrays him otherwise, he also had a rare gift of penetrative insight. He was intolerant of irregular service, reporting to Jesus one whom he (John) had forbidden to cast-out words because this one was not following with them. Aroused by inebriated treatment of Jesus on the part of some Samaritans, his righteous indignation showed itself in his flashing command that the Master call down fire from Heaven and consume the offenders. John's care of Christ's mother shows him in his intensive love for his Master.

Of the Epistles which John wrote, three in number, we can look at only the third. It gives us a look into the early church life and also a picture of the aged Apostle but filled with the care of churches, zealous for the spread of the gospel, rebuking the disturbance of the peace of the church, and praising and encouraging those who faithfully ministered for his Lord.

The Epistle is addressed to Gaius, a brother in Christ, with the fervent wish that his temporal prosperity and physical health may be in proportion to his spirituality. We wonder if most of us would like to put it in that order. He praised Gaius for hospitality which he showed some traveling evangelists.

In spite of opposition of a certain prominent member of the church, Gaius had received the preachers into his home. One of the best ways to help the truth is to show kindness and hospitality to its messengers.

The day of this practice is too rapidly dying.

The rebuke of Diotrephes is also a part of the aim of this letter. Diotrephes was a typical "church boss" who refused to receive these traveling evangelists and expelled them from the church those who had received them into their homes. He even maliciously attacked John, the beloved pastor.

Finally, his commendation of this letter, shows his recognition of the work of God and wrong, and his Demetrius, remains the bearer of sense of fairness which made him humble toward those who were rich and heretically opposed to the wrong.

OUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND
Director, North Carolina State Department of Public Instruction

Every well-informed parent today knows that growing children need these fall meals a day. They also know that school work calls for as much nourishment as a day of active play. As a result we find great attention being given to the school lunch problem. Not only are mothers providing better box lunches, but school boards are accepting their responsibility. Attractive lunches are being added. Competent cooks and dieticians are being employed for the large schools. Even the smallest school now has a real electric plate or an oil stove.

Equipment, however, is not the most important thing. It is what the child gets to eat that counts. Next to that we should think of pleasant surroundings and a congenial atmosphere for luncheon at school.

For most children who are compelled to remain at school over the noon hour, the school lunch is one of the three daily meals that fact needs emphasis, for it is one often overlooked. It means that we should give just as much thought to the selection of food and the arrangement as to any meal of equal. Leftovers such as cake and bread thrown into a bag don't supply the all-around nourishment the child needs. With little more effort, the essentials for body building, energy, and health can be provided. In brief, some fruit every day, vegetable, tomato for sandwiches, a jar of milk, soup or custard, and a tasty sauce.

Vary Your Pies

APPLE PIE: apricot pie, berry pie, chocolate pie, cherry pie, lemon pie, peach pie, pumpkin pie, rhubarb pie! Oh, isn't there a new pie particularly appropriate for the summer months which will vary from all these good old standards? Yes, there is. Pineapple pie.

Pineapple grows in a land where it is perpetual summer and looms large in the tropical diet which it enters there. No need to tell you that it's delicious, but what we can tell you is the way to make a fine pineapple pie. So, here goes:

With Another Tropical Fruit

Pineapple Banana Meringue Pie: Mix one-half cup sugar and one-fourth cup cornstarch, add syrup pressed from the contents of a No. 2 can crushed Hawaiian pineapple, and cook until clear and thick, stirring constantly. Add one tablespoon butter. Then add two slightly beaten egg yolks, cook again in double boiler until thick and cool. Add the drained pineapple and two-thirds cup banana pulp, and pour into baked pie shell. Cover with meringue made by beating two egg whites and then beating in one-third cup confectioner's sugar. Bake in oven—350 degrees—in a golden brown, about fifteen minutes. Makes one large pie.

Fashions by THERESE

Although the new sport length in skirts for day time wear has been sponsored by several modistes in Paris, all of them are not unanimous on this score, so that if the longer skirt is more becoming to you, you may continue to wear it.

The stature silhouette is all the thing in Paris. Couturiers seek to reveal and accentuate the feminine figure rather than shroud it. Horizontal draperies are used by some, and false draperies made by using striped or shaded materials are used to achieve this stature effect.

One very lovely formal evening gown has a full skirt with alternating lines of lace and sheer velvet. No petticoat and lace hose are supposed to be worn with this.

Shorter dinner dresses have been launched by Mainbocher. They are as short as your real dressy after-noon frocks.

Contrasting yokes of mesh cloth on the new clothes may give some of us ideas about fixing over old frocks.

The majority of dressy afternoon coats are of the slim fitted type, made of a dark shade of duvetyne for broadcloth, an shaving fox fur for trimming.

45 FROSH OUT FOR FOOTBALL Meet Held At CCC Camp

Approximately 45 men were reported to coach W. D. Scroggins for freshman football. The boys have worked hard for the past week and are fast rounding into shape.

In contrast to last year's team, this year's aggregation is much lighter in the line and backfield but both divisions are considerably faster. Competition for positions is very keen and spirit is running high. The prospect is favorable for a fighting team.

The Frosh schedule is not complete but will probably include the University of Kentucky, Eastern and Transylvania.

Last year the Morehead Frosh had one of the best teams in the state, and this team will have to go far to equal their record.

COMMON CAUSE OF BALDNESS

One of the chief causes of premature loss of hair is the use of hair oils. The majority of hair oils and pomades are made of mineral oil, which is a clogging substance. It prevents the hair from getting the oxygen and food it needs to grow. It also causes the hair to become brittle and break off. The only safe and effective hair oil is the one made by the U. S. Rubber Company. It is made of natural rubber and is completely non-toxic. It keeps the hair soft and pliable, and prevents it from becoming brittle and breaking off. It also keeps the scalp cool and moist, and prevents the hair from becoming dry and falling out. It is the only hair oil that is safe for the hair and the scalp. Instructions in combating forest fires, as well as the prevention and detection of fires, featured a 2 day conference on forest fire problems held Monday and Tuesday at the Pine Ridge CCC Camp, attended by the State Forester of Kentucky members of the State Forest Service, Army officers in command of the various CCC camps, and the Supervisor of the Cumberland National Forest and members of the U. S. Forest Service.

The conference was given a practical demonstration of the new radiophone communication system now employed on the Cumberland National Forest. Addresses were made by State Forester, Kenneth McConnell, C. L. Graham, Supervisor of the Cumberland National Forest, Don Beck, the Assistant Supervisor and George Kramer, Regional Inspector of the U. S. Forest Service at Washington, D. C., a neck forest fire. The personnel attending the conference were divided into two crews and sent in different fire areas. State Forester McConnell, C. Y. Bell of the State Forest Service and W. R. Tiplan, Project Superintendent of the Pine Ridge CCC Camp, formed a committee to check the work of the two crews.

To teach the benefits of fire prevention, both to the residents of forest areas as well as the sportsmen and campers, the State Forester vice and the Cumberland National Forest will work out a joint educational program for this winter. It was stated at the conference that approximately 80 per cent of the fires were due to carelessness, C. L. Graham, Supervisor of the Cumberland National Forest, presided at the conference.

News From The Training School

BY PAULINE BUTCHER

The Fifth Grade under Miss Paulson are reading stories of the Arabian Nights. They have made posters to illustrate them.

The Seventh Grade has a larger class than ever before.

The Sophomores organized their home room Tuesday, with the following officers:

- President . . . . . Bruce Rollan
- Vice Pres. . . . . Dorothy Caudill
- Secretary . . . . . Frances Flood
- Treasurer . . . . . Pauline Tomlinson

The Training School held their first assembly Wednesday, Mr. Lapin, who presided has just returned from a year's leave of absence.

Cheer leaders were elected. The five nominees were Helen Holbrook, Jimmie Clay, Pauline Butcher, Frances Flood and Elizabeth Blair. Helen Holbrook and Jimmie Clay were elected. They will have charge of the chapel program Friday.

The Junior and Senior glue clubs were organized Thursday morning at 9:20. There is a senior high mixed chorus.

The present enrollment is larger than the total for the first semester last year. The chief gains have been made in the senior high school.

CLARK SWAMPS PINE GROVE IN SOFTBALL, 9 TO 5

In the hardest fought battle of the year, Clark Swamp came out victorious over Pine Grove Thursday September 19. This means that Clark is the district champion of zone No. 1. They will play for zone championship Friday Sept. 27.

Tennis Tournament May Be Held This Year

Despite the excellent weather that we have been having, very few weathers of the racket have been seen on the tennis courts. If courts are in fair condition and if enough interest is shown, in all probability a fall tournament will be held.

A tournament was held last fall and John "Duffy" Watson was announced the college champ. He conquered Paul Holman in a four set duel. Watson is favored to repeat this year but several good players are enrolled in the college. Hadley, Kessler, Fern and Caudill showed up to advantage in the tourney last year and should give some stiff opposition.

The college may have a tennis team next spring if enough interest is shown in the sport. Earl King Senff, history instructor, and former University of Kentucky net captain, will coach the team.

DR. MILLER HAS ARTICLE IN KENTUCKY JOURNAL

The last issue of the KENTUCKY SCHOOL JOURNAL contains an article, "Evaluation of Teaching Procedures," by Dr. Frank B. Miller, instructor in the education department. This is the third of a series of articles which Dr. Miller has contributed to the educational guide.

Breck Loses To Grayson

A touchdown in the first quarter, and another in the last, gave Prichard High School of Grayson a 14 to 0 decision over Breckinridge High School here Saturday afternoon, in the first football game of the season. Breckinridge was playing their first game under the direction of Bobby Laughlin, new training school coach.

Breck made a try for a marker in the first period which was stopped before it got places and Grayson came back to drive through for a six point lead, which was converted to seven when their try for point was good.

The second and third quarters were in the nature of rest periods with neither team being able to work the ball into scoring position for the needed touchdown.

Grayson came back with a strong drive in the last period pushing over the final touchdown and making good on the try for point to run their total up to 14 to 0 for the game.

Prichard of Grayson and Prichard of Morehead both showed good work. Murphy, Hendrix, and Burton were also outstanding for their day's work.

Fraleigh, Tatum and Young, as well as Prichard were also good. Breck played Raeland at Raeland on Saturday of this week. The boys while small are rounding into shape and hope to make a showing at the neighboring town.

Both Breck and Morehead High are handicapped by scarcity of material and practice scrimmages tans for this week. The first one have been arranged between the two was held Tuesday afternoon. It is hoped that the scrimmages will be a help to both teams, as neither can muster enough men by itself to put on a real sure-nuff scrimmage.

Nearly ten years ago, Cooper heavily worked enough to keep himself alive—working as a movie extra. He finally got a part in a Western reeler, opposite Eileen Sedgwick. The Samuel Goldwyn office needed a young man to play the part of Abe Lee in "The Winning of Barbara Worth" and Cooper was selected from a group of one hundred applicants for the job, which paid $75 a week—big money for Cooper then.

A actress, he soon appeared in "Wings" and then with Clara Bow in "It" and "Children of Divorce." "The Covered Wagon" was followed by a wave of Westerns and Holly Cooper could ride a horse and handle a pistol and rifle. Paramount Pictures called him a star in the "Big" talkies. "The Virginian" which comes Sunday and Monday to the Cozy Theatre.

After his success in his first talkie, Cooper made a long series of successful Westerns, which were followed by his performance in "City Streets." A polished actor and a full fledged star, he took the leading roles in "Seven Days Leave," "The Bachelor," and "A Bachelor's Dream."

He had been working too hard and a doctor told him he needed a rest so, in the fall of 1931, he joined a big game hunting expedition and sailed for Africa. Brimming with energy, he returned to Hollywood and went on to greater triumphs, the latest of which is "Lives of a Bengal Lancer."

On Friday, Sept. 27, the College brings to the screen the lovely Grace Moore in "LOVE ME FOREVER," the picture so many Morehead people have been wanting to see. Stagnant beautiful musical numbers by the lovely Miss Moore and Leo Carrillo, this picture will recall the great producer of last year "ONE NIGHT OF LOVE" which was liked so well.

In the development of the plot Miss Moore, an impoverished society girl, is forced to sell her home and at the sale she meets Carrillo, a gambler and night club owner who gives her a position as singer in his club. She proves a failure here on account of the low type of patrons and he pays a more elaborate, swanky life and employs great separate coaches to make her a success, spending fabulous sums of money.

He arranges for her debut at the Metropolitan Opera Company, but his hopes turn to sorrow when he learns that she is in love with Robert Allen. He then drinks, and gambles, losing his entire fortune and is unable to meet a $15,000 gambling debt. At this time Miss Moore comes to his assistance and the story moves forward to his conclusion.

For Friday, Oct. 4th, Charles Boyer is presented in a stirring story of love and war in "THUNDER IN THE EAST," featuring Merle Oberon. Charles Boyer, Merle Oberon and John Leder share stellar honors in this powerful adaptation of Claude Farrer's novel, "The Battle," which tells the gripping love story of a Japanese naval commander who placed patriotism above his personal honor and sacrificed his lovely wife to a young English officer in the hope of learning the secret of the superiority of British naval strategy.

The handsome young officer succeeds in fascinating the little braggart, although the Japanese commander wins his prize secret, his tactics wreck the lives of all three. Nicholas Falukas directed "Thunder in the East," while Robert Stevenson is responsible for the dialogue. The stunning photographic efforts are the work of Roger Harbert and the music is by Andre Galliard. The film is an Alt Lichtman presentation released through United Artists.
