Fair Draws Big Crowd Friday

A fair day and a large crowd attended the annual Rowan County school and Agricultural Fair held here last Friday and Saturday. The parade was perhaps one of the largest ever held, with many schools competing for honors. The displays at the high school gymnasium were excellent, especially in the school department. The Agricultural displays were fewer and of lower quality than formerly, due largely to the bad growing season just past.

Autumn weather, autumn dress for the surrounding trees, and again Morehead is about to assume her rightful place among the beauty spots of the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

A glance at the surrounding hills, gives indication of the beauty about to be offered to the tourists and the local citizens. Here and there are acres of green. Apeard a spot of red and orange color, giving promise of great changes to come. Within the next two weeks these spots will increase in size and brilliance, until by the latter part of October the entire scene will be one of beauty and grandeur that beggars description. In about two weeks the beauty of the surrounding hills will reach its climax.

It is an actual fact that when autumn comes to Morehead, beauty comes along, the beauty of nature and the beauty of rich colors that tempt the colorists' speechless with amazement.

According to County Court Clerk, Vernon Alfrey, the time for final filing for city and school board tickets and candidates has been set at 15 days before the general election, on November 5. The present board of councilmen have filed their ticket intact, with the exception of one member. According to reports, J. C. Wells is planning on offering for the office of police judge and his place on the council has been filled by N. E. Kennard.

WAR TOUCHES US ALL

Nothing could more effectively demonstrate to everybody the fact that war or even the threat of war involving one of the major Western nations, touches the interest of all nations and of all of their people, than the excitement and concern now being exhibited in all of the world's capitals over the questions which have been raised by the advance of Italy upon Ethiopia.

Italy is more than 3,000 miles from the United States and Ethiopia is still farther away, yet the question of our own neutrality and of what our Government should do toward co-operation to prevent the war is a vital and important one. It is one thing to talk about prohibiting the sale of war supplies to one or both belligerents in a war. It is quite another thing to make such prohibition effective.

What are war supplies? Canada has announced that she will not dump her wheat reserves on the market but will hold them in the expectation of high prices, because of this war. Wheat is a war supply no less than bullets or gunpowder.

We earnestly hope that our nation will not become involved in any way that will further strain our relations with Italy and the rest of the world, but we believe it would be in the interest of every American for our State Department to lend all the moral support possible to the efforts which the other great nations are making to avert this silly and senseless war.

"CREDIT" INJURIES

The average human is most unfair to the merchant who has given him credit, for when he finds difficulty to paying his bills he almost invariably deserts that merchant and deals (usually for cash) elsewhere. The merchant who has been kind enough to give you credit certainly deserves your cash business. If you have a bill that you can't meet in full, the decent thing to do is to talk to the merchant whom you owe, explain your position, and make such arrangements as you can for the payment of the bill. Meanwhile your cash business ought to be going to the merchant who "carried you."

Another phase of "credit" places an entirely unfair burden upon the merchant who meets his bills promptly. You have sold, as an example, three merchants bills of goods. Two of that number pay their bills promptly, the bill of the third drags along and you, fearful that you will never be paid, accepts merchandise from that merchant in lieu of cash. And in so doing you penalize the merchants who paid their bills. By paying their bills they placed themselves in a position to deserve your patronage. Yet to protect yourself you had to deal with the man who had no claim upon you.

It's about time for the new calendars to begin to appear

People still insist on trying to beat the engines to the crossing.

We still maintain that paying cash is the best way to keep out of debt.

LONG DROUGHT CURTAILS TURKISH TOBACCO CROP

The Turkish tobacco crop has been seriously affected by the sustained drought which has occurred in the important tobacco-growing areas according to a report to the Louisville district office of the commerce Department. It is estimated locally that the tobacco yield from the current crop will amount to approximately one half of what was anticipated on the basis of the area planted. The Turkish Tobacco Monopoly has been active in the maintenance of high prices for Turkish tobacco, for the purpose of aiding the farmer, and it appears likely that the area planted next year will equal that of the current period. Prospects for the disposal of the 1935 crop at advantageous prices are very favorable, the report states. The new buying season will probably open in October. American companies operating in Turkey and purchasing agents for Swedish consuming firms are expected to take most of the best grades.

NEW FRENCH CARS

SHOW IMPROVEMENT

Many technical innovations and improvements in French automobiles are expected to be revealed in the Paris Automobile Salon which opened on October 3, according to a report to the Louisville district office of the Department of Commerce. Outstanding among these cars are new braking apparatus, a new kind of brakes, a modified spring of suspension, and changes in body size and shape.

WAR THREATS BRING BUSINESS TO EGYPT

Egyptian ports especially Alexandria and Port Said, are profiting from large Italian orders in connection with troop movements to Eritrea, according to advices to the Louisville district office of the Commerce Department. The Suez Canal Company has also increased its takings through canal dues. Purchases on the part of the Italian troops at canal ports include essential fruits, vegetables, potatoes, onions, and canned goods. A substantial demand has developed for trucks and road building machinery, it is pointed out. It is estimated that dealers in Alexandria and Port Said have benefited to the extent of about 1,000 chassis. Stocks in Egypt have been cleaned up and further orders called to New York.

CHREVOLET HAS NEW RADIO PROGRAM

A new all-star Chevrolet program featuring Rubinoff and his violin with his 30-piece orchestra, Virginia Rae, popular soprano, Jan Prenter, and a Graham McNamee will be heard over an NBC-WEAF network beginning Saturday, Oct. 19. The new weekly series will be heard each Saturday night at 9:00 o'clock, E. S. T.

While Rubinoff has been one of radio's most popular instrumentalists on the air and the screen and in theaters for the last five years, this will be the first time that he has been starred in his own night. One of the best known figures of the entertainment world, he has appeared in practically every theatre in the country in person as well as on the screen. In addition to numerous short subjects, he has just finished a featured role in "Thanks a Million" now in the process of releasing. Virginia Rae and Jan Prenter will co-star as the featured singers of the new program. Miss Rae is one of the most popular sopranos of the air whose following has been constant since the early days of radio. Jan Prenter, sensational Pacific Coast tenor, who was brought to New York this year as an NBC star, has a national following.

McNamee, whose name is synonymous with radio, is not only one of the most colorful figures and greatest of air reporters, but is recognized as one of the leading air salesmen, in which role he will be heard on the new Chevrolet program.

The World

There are times when we come under the conviction that the only sort of prayers that are worthy of the Heavenly Ear are those which spring spontaneously from souls crying aloud under the strain of a great emotion.

Prayer is a potent force in the affairs of men and is one of the bridges that take man to the Maker or the life span has been pleased. Prayer is a great help to the establishment of friendly relations on earth.

Prayer, says an old adage, changes things.

It surely does. The beautiful part of this fact is that it changes things for the better. Life is more inviting when a fellow views it from the knees. Folks are pleasant, prospects are rosier, affairs in general have a greater appeal, after they have been taken to God.

Prayer can be a means of conviction. Ask the fellow who has had to stop praying and make peace with his enemy before he could feel that the prayers were "going through to God." He knows. Well, why not more of prayer? More of public prayer, more of private prayer, more of family prayer, more of prayer in general.

"In offering our world-ourselves to God we are making a prayer that God will honor and respect.

You can learn about this by writing a personal letter to this newspaper or to the nearest Minister of the Gospel.

... Successful aid in PREVENTING Colds

OVER 30,000 KENTUCKY PEOPLE

OVER 30,000 Kentuckians owe their sole employment to the distilling industry in Kentucky. Over one hundred million dollars are invested in this same industry—enough to make a path of dollar bills over 10,000 miles long.

Unless you vote "Yes" to Repeal the State Prohibition Amendment on November 5, most if not all these 30,000 people will be deprived of employment, and a $100,000,000 industry will be driven out of Kentucky.

Why It Is Necessary to Vote on November 5

Prior to 1933, Kentucky was dry under both the Eighteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution, and a State Constitutional Prohibition Amendment.

In 1933, national repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment legalized the distilling industry only so far as the Federal Government was concerned.

National Repeal still left Kentucky with State prohibition laws which, under our State Constitution, could not be repealed until the November election of 1935.

Pending that date, the Legislature in 1934, passed an act known as the Liquor Control Act, which now permits (as an emergency measure) the sale of alcoholic beverages.

The Liquor Control Act, which is merely an emergency measure enacted pending the repeal vote, must not be confused with the State Constitution's Prohibition Amendment.

The Prohibition Amendment is a permanent part of our State Constitution unless the people of Kentucky vote to repeal it on November 5.

A vote for Repeal in November is NOT a vote to repeal the Liquor Control Act now in effect. It is simply a vote to put an end to Constitutional Prohibition in Kentucky, and to replace it with a system by which each county, city, town or precinct may determine for itself whether or not alcoholic beverages may be sold therein.

If you wish to help over 30,000 Kentuckians to keep their sole means of employment—if you wish to help keep thousands of honest workers off the relief rolls—

302,208 FOR 5,488 STATE CORN
 The Agricultural Adjustment Administration at Washington announces that on September 21 a total of $902,708 had been sent to Kentucky, as the first 1935 payment on 5,344 corn hog contracts. At that time, 1,265 contracts from 93 Kentucky counties had been accepted in the Washington office of the AAA. The second corn hog payment is due December 1.

KENTUCKY RURAL CHURCH COUNCIL TO MEET

Affairs of the country church will be discussed at a meeting of the Kentucky Rural Church Council at the Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville October 22, to which are invited all pastors and interested laymen. It is announced by Dr. W. D. Nicholls, the secretary of the council, Prof. E. B. Bryant, dean of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture will speak at chapel exercises in the morning, and afternoon speakers include Dr. Frank Powell and Dr. J. W. Dimock, head of the seminary and Prof. N. R. Elliott of the College of Agriculture.

HOG CHOLERA PREVENT IN STATE

Reports to the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture indicate that hog cholera is prevalent in the state this fall.

The fact that hogs are a good price, and probably the most valuable livestock at this time, should stimulate interest in inoculating them against cholera, was the comment of Dr. W. W. Dimock, head of the department of animal pathology at the Experiment Station.

Vaccination is cheaper insurance against cholera this year than in years when hog prices are low, he pointed out. With a 200 pound hog worth $20 or more, he said he considered it good business to invest 50 to 40 cents having it inoculated against cholera, especially when the disease is as widespread as it is this fall.

The heavy movement of hogs at this time is largely the cause of spreading cholera over the state, he said. The animals pick up the infection in stock yards and pass it along to other hogs on farms to which they are taken for fattening.

Hogs should be vaccinated immediately upon reaching the farm and held in a separate pen away from other hogs for at least 14 days.

THE FARM AND HOME

Surveys indicate that turkeys weighing 11 to 14 pounds are preferred by consumers, especially in cities. Second choice is for birds of 8 to 10 pounds, and third choice is for heavy ones of those weighing 13 to 20 pounds. Prospects are good for prices this fall.

Tests by the U. S. Department of agriculture failed to produce any iron seed meal poisoning in dairy cows, even where 10 pounds of the meal was fed daily for 10 months. Cottonseed meal is one of the cheapest sources of protein in many parts of the country.

Common bluestone will control moss in ponds, when used at the rate of 4 pounds to a million gallons of water.

Write to the Experiment Station, Lexington, for directions for estimating the amount of water in a pond and for using bluestone.

It is usually better to level off and tramp ensilage as it is put into the silo, although the moisture of the corn may make this unnecessary. Dry corn should be distributed tramped and properly watered.

Morehead Loses By 19-0 To Georgetown Saturday

Strong Tiger Team Measures Eagles In Gridiron Tussle.

GEORGETOWN. Playing in rain that fell throughout the afternoon, the Georgetown Tigers gained a victory over the Morehead Eagles Saturday afternoon by the score of 19 to 0. The game was the first S. L. A. A. test for both Georgetown and Morehead and marked Morehead's entrance into the conference throughout the contest, driving Morehead a back into the shadows of the goal time after time. Morehead, however, played its best ball, within the 20 yard line, capturing Georgetown's touchdown drive with valiant stands.

Led by Patrick and Hawkins, Georgetown began the scoring early in the first quarter and scored a touchdown in every quarter except the second, depending mainly on quarterback sneaks and line buckles.

Both the lines of Georgetown and Morehead played in and out ball throughout the game. The Morehead backfield often crashed through Georgetown's line only to be broken up by an alert secondary with little gain. Morehead played loosely in midfield, developed great strength when its goal was threatened.

Captain Ryan of Morehead won the toss and elected to receive. Georgetown kicked off and the ball was returned to the Tigers 33 yard line. On the second play of the game, Dale fumbled and Patrick recovered for Georgetown on his 40 yard line. After turning at the line, Georgetown punter punt to Morehead who was unable to penetrate Georgetown's defense.

At this point Georgetown began its first touchdown drive. Patrick received a Morehead punt on his 25 yard line and was downed in his tracks. Griffin, starting his first game for Georgetown, went around left end for 31 yards. Patrick in two tries took the ball back a first down. Griffin crashed through left tackle for 13 yards. Hawkins carried the ball up to the Morehead 30 yard line in a sneak through Ryan. On the 30 yard line, a touchdown. Shaller failed to convert. After Georgetown kicked off the ball was held in midfield for the remainder of the quarter.

In the second quarter the Tigers gave their best exhibition, by tying the ball on long marches up the field four times during the quarter and each time being driven back or held for downs by a defense Morehead eleven. The entire period was contained in Morehead's territory, but Georgetown was not able to

King's Jesters Start Practice

The King's Jesters, school dance band, has been successful in getting in shape for the coming dances. The orchestra was organized on the campus last year at the beginning of the first semester.

Earl King Senff, history department instructor, was president of the organization and will lead the band this year. Under his direction, the group became one of the outstanding musical units in Eastern Kentucky last year. The band is exceptional in that it features both instrumental and glassclub arrangements.

Last year the King's Jesters numbered ten pieces, this year the number has been increased to fifteen. Two new men have been added to the brass section. Paul Bogardus is playing second trombone and Henry Rice is playing third trumpet. "The Three Queens" group is a new feature this year. These girls have a pleasing style of harmony that should prove quite an asset to the unit. The "Queens" are Leola and Virginia Candill and Pauline Waugh, a newcomer from Ashland.

The personnel of the orchestra is as follows: Saxophones, Tommy Paul, Earl King Senff, Harold Blair and Dick Wilson; Trumpets, Joe Marshall, Roger Candill and Henry Rice; Trombones, Paul Young and Paul Bogardus; Bass, Oscar Palmer; Drums, Jack Lewis; piano, George Young, and the "Three Queens."

Many special arrangements have been added to the library of music and it is to be assured that the King's Jesters will have one of the best college bands in Kentucky this year.

to mark up a touchdown. Morehead made its only first down of the half on a 7 yard crash through tackle by Taylor.

Both teams came back strong in the third period, but neither was able to make much headway until near its end. Georgetown was held back seriously penalties, while Morehead was the victim of only one 3 yard penalty. Near the end of the quarter Patrick received a punt from Dale on the 50 yard line and carried it to Morehead's 31 yard stripe. Hawkins gained twelve yards on a tackle for eleven yards, Georgetown was penalized fifteen yards for holding. With Griffin and Patrick alternately toting the ball Georgetown advanced to Morehead's 47 yard line, where Patrick went through for his second touchdown. Turner placed kicked the extra point and Georgetown led, 13 to 0, as the quarter ended.

Morehead unfolded its passing attack in the closing quarter, but to little avail. The Evanses again dominated the play and were in possession of the ball during the greater part of the period. The Tigers scored their last touchdown in the last four minutes of play when Dale, attempting to punt from his 10 yard line, got off a slow kick which was blocked by Day, giving Georgetown the ball there. After Patrick went through for three yards, Hawkins crashed through for the touchdown. The attempt at extra point was blocked by Noe.

Georgetown scored fourteen first downs to Morehead's two and had the ball in Morehead territory for the greater part of the game. Georgetown attempted ten forward passes, only one of which was completed for a gain of twenty yards. Morehead completed two for seventeen yards. Georgetown was penalized eighty-five yards to twenty for Morehead's errors.

Eaglets To Meet Georgetown Here

Bill Scroggins freshman will entertain the Georgetown Cubs from Georgetown College on Friday of this week, the game being called at 3:00 p. m., according to Mr. Scroggins.

Georgetown is reported to have a strong yearling squad this season and the fur is expected to fly when the locals attempt to revenge the defeat administered to their opponents last week. The freshman squad here, made an excellent showing against the University of Kentucky freshmen two weeks ago, while Georgetown has already won two games.

The varsity here has an off week with no game scheduled, a fact which will give them an opportunity to brush up on their work and rest for the next snowman. Dale was the local expert to revenge the defeat administered to their opponents last week. The freshman squad here, made an excellent showing against the University of Kentucky freshmen two weeks ago, while Georgetown has already won two games.

COLLEGE BAND GIVES PROGRAM

A well-balanced program was offered by the band at their initial concert given Wednesday evening in the auditorium.

The program opened with two marches by the band, "Robinson Grand Entree" and "Woody Van." A french horn solo, "Moreau de Concert" was next presented by Howard Eckels, first french hornist of the band.

The string quintet, composed of William Toran, first violin; Evelynne Thompson, second violin; Virginia Harpurn, third violin; Christine Taw, viola; and Evelyn Harpurn, cello, played a Minuet by Haydn and "Ave Verum" by Mozart.

Paul Young, accompanied by the band, played a trombone solo, "Boreas" from Joseph. Three marimba numbers were offered by Ralph Schwartz, first "Cosaque Revals" by Tschekoff, "Nok" by Arndt, and "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Youth Charms" by Moore.

The band followed with two more marches, Basley's "National Emblem" and another favorite by Sousa, "U. S. Field Artillery." The school song, "Morehead, Morehead" closed the program.

From The State Capital

If King Swope is expecting any organization of "bolters" to stop "Happy" Chandler he ought to tell them that they are in Eastern Kentucky where the Republicans must get their majorities "Happy" seems to be on his way.

In that vast territory at the headwaters of the Licking, the Big Sandy, the Kentucky and the Cumberland, "Happy" will be running side by side with Judge Swope when the votes begin to fall in November. A week of campaigning through the Republican strongholds demonstrated Mr. Chandler's hold on the people of the mountains, Harlan, Letcher, Perry, Johnson, Morgan, all gave evidences of greatly reduced Republican majorities. Wolfe, Mays, Menifee, Bath, Rowan, and Montgomery showed signs of increased majorities for the Democratic ticket.

If there is to be a bolt, it still is carefully hidden. If it remains a bolt of ambition, it will be of little importance, limited to the personal bitterness of a few men. But on the surface all is serene as far as the Democratic ticket is concerned, with Mr. Chandler stronger now than at the end of the first or the second primary.

There are signs that Gov. Ruby Laffoon has not abandoned hope completely of defeating Mr. Chandler. This week he visited the State Welfare Board to discuss Dr. E. H. Busby, superintendent at the Hopkinville Hospital, because Dr. Busby supported Mr. Chandler. However, he clung to his office by virtue of a suit to prevent his removal. Eighteen highway employes in the Second Road District were dismissed because they were for Mr. Chandler.

If one of the road districts The Commission held a meeting of probably 100 of his employes, at which their future course was discussed. They were bound by the unit rule, but adjourned to meet later to consider again which way they would go.

The Rhea organizers from various sections have been invited to a "testimonial dinner" in his behalf at Louisville next week. There is a definite plan to make Dr. E. H. Busby get under way at the dinner. Rhea headquarters at the Seelbach still are open, and have been since since primary.

Voter Shows No Discontent. These are the outward signs. But among the great mass of the voters there is no sign of discontent. To be sure, there is here and there a touch of soreness, but it is isolated, limited and represents the personal disappointment of an individual rather than a symptomatic condition.

If Mr. Rhea and Governor Laffoon planned to bring about Mr. Chandler's defeat and to restore the Democratic control of the government at Frankfort they made last week the one move that would stop them from attempting to put their plan into execution. There is a definite belief that the reaction to their slap at the President illustrated from their literally thousands of their primary admirers, and followers.

The Democrats in the mountains could not see why Mr. Rhea would offer affront to the President and the leader of the party merely because the President's secretary had erected a barrier between Mr. Rhea and the President. In fact, the secretary had done what Mr. Rhea charged.

If the barrier actually had existed, the President tore it down, threw open the door and invited Mr. Rhea to come to see him. Mr. Rhea refused. The Democrats in the State cannot understand why Mr. Rhea would refuse to go to see the President of the United States because a primary election in Kentucky did not go to suit Mr. Rhea. Governor Laffoon's refusal to see the President had less to do with Mr. Rhea's. The Governor said he would not talk to the President because Mr. Chandler's friends were saying they did not want the Governor's support in the November fight. That was in the fact of Mr. Chandler's personal telephone call which the Governor would answer, and the persistent efforts of Chandler leaders at Democratic headquarters, to procure the Governor's support.

Mr. Rhea and Governor Laffoon lost many of their primary supporters when Mr. Rhea failed after reasonable time to congratulate Mr. Chandler. Others began to express regret that they ever had given their aid to Mr. Rhea. He and the Governor would give the ticket only nominal support at the best.

When another week brought word that Mr. Rhea and the Governor actually were toying with the idea of defeating Mr. Chandler and giving control of the patronage from Mr. Swope through a Democratic Legislature, several thousand Rhea admirers during the primary turned away in disgust.

Some of those who would not believe the report, kept their faith in him. Then, with the telling blow, Mr. Rhea and the Governor made, their purpose clear—they telegraphed blunt refusal to the National leader of the Democrats even to visit him for a conference.

Primary Supporters Stunned. Out in the State the Rhea and Laffoon primary supporters were stunned. They had not believed that Mr. Rhea would hit at the President that way. And by the week it has been evident that the petulant move Mr. Rhea and the Governor had made had just about rebuffed them of any opportunity to put together a plan to defeat Mr. Chandler.

There was no mistaking the action. Rhea organizers flocked to the Chandler meetings they they got up in open meeting to pledge their support. They didn't do it half-heartedly. They made it plain that they were not a part of any move to hamper the President this year or next year.

County campaign managers for Mr. Rhea sat on the platform with Mr. Chandler, leading the applause. Political leaders in the various counties, aligned with Mr. Rhea in the primaries, got up in front of the Chandler meetings.

But significant as those things were, the real reaction was evident in the crowds among the people who are not politicians but who pick up the great mass of the votes. That is the reason Mr. Swope had better get word to any "bolters" to get their heads together before the Chandler sentiment runs so high nothing can stop it.

Evidence Shows Strength Greater. There was simple evidence during the week that Mr. Chandler is stronger with the mass of voters now than he was at the end of the September run-off primary. The movement toward him was obvious, then, but the primary had been strenuous and many expected it would leave widespread disaffection.

Announcement

TO THE VOTERS OF ROWAN COUNTY:

At the request of many friends and parents interested in better schools for their children, I have consented to make the race for a member of the Board of Education.

I propose to stand firmly as a non-partisan candidate who is opposed to consolidation of schools; I favor leaving the schools as closely as possible to the pupils.

I believe the strictest economy should be used in the administration, and special efforts be given to making comfortable surroundings for the teachers and pupils.

I promise to do all I can toward securing the equalization fund to pay the teachers, and raise their standards for use according to their qualifications and ability. If elected I will faithfully do my duty, honestly and fairly as I can between man and man.

Hoping that I merit your support, I am,

Very truly yours,
OSCAR S. HALL.

That turned out to be as expected as the prophecy that the run-off vote would be much lighter than in the first primary. The crowds that went to hear Mr. Chandler this week were larger than the crowds that greeted William J. Fields in 1923, J. C. Beckham in 1927 and Governor Laffoon in 1931.

Beyond the swing of Mr. Chandler as his official record and personality, the stage was set for him when he entered the Democratic primary. A tax load that had been placed on thousands upon thousands of voters who had never paid direct taxes before had been levied. The right to select party nominees in a primary rather than a convention had been restored to the people.

On those two questions of broad sweep that any others Mr. Chandler's official record was "natural." He had fought the sales tax from beginning to end. The very fact that in fighting it he had to oppose the party leaders, both Democrats and Republicans, emphasized to the

seen. Late entering the fight, he already lined up with his opponents. The rest of the story is known. United as a campaigner, he swept from one end of the State to the other, winning votes from the stump. Behind this demonstration of ability his friends built an organization. When the first primary was finished he was within striking distance.

When he really got going on the stump, during the run-off people flocked to hear him in increasing numbers. It was difficult to analyze his hold on their imaginations.

He made no effort at oratory. He has yet to indulge in anything resembling word painting. In five months of campaigning he has not told a joke. His illustrations he draws from his own life, or from the lives of the people he talks to.

He has fewer of the tricks of political speaking than any others who have campaigned in Kentucky in twenty years. He is extremely unorthodox on the platform. His speeches are not argumentative. He never attempts to convince by piling up a set of facts.

His speeches would seem organized if taken down and transcribed. He jumps about a bit too much for the ordered procedure of a lawyer, even a jury lawyer. He seems to avoid by studied effort the gathering together of a lot of "facts" to prove a point. Actually he never tries to prove a point. He merely states a thing on which he and his audience agree, and then he tells them how he always has stood that way on that issue.

For instance, he never argues the sales tax, never tries to say why a voter should be against it. He never reasons why. Because they have said and done against it from beginning to end, and will repeat it. He lets it go at that.

When he discusses the primary, he says the people wanted it. He never reasons why. Because they wanted it, and were entitled to it, he gave it to them. That seems to satisfy the listeners.

ed three years to come out against the sales tax, oppose it when he thought the Democratic nominee would be a man who was for it and now is being supported by those who have been for the sales tax for three years.

Tells of Long Fight. "The people of Kentucky know my position, I fought it in 1932 for ten weeks, I fought it in 1933 through eight weeks of special session. I fought it for ten weeks in the 1934 regular session, and I fought it for five weeks in the 1934 special session.

"There never was a day from early January, 1932, to this hour that I have not opposed the sales tax by every honorable means I could command. Mr. Chandler continued. "Between sessions I spoke in all sections of the State against the sales tax. "What was King Swope's record during all that time? Not once during all those three years did King Swope say a word against the tax. He did not make a public statement during all the terrible battle. Not once did he lend a word of encouragement to us who were bearing the brunt of the fight.

his political opposition to the sales tax very seriously. The people will be asking King Swope if he is so great a champion of the people why he couldn't do something to help them defeat the tax.

One Vote Needed to Kill Tax

"There were eight Republican Senators down at Frankfort about to vote for the sales tax, if we could have gotten one of them to vote against it the tax would have been defeated. There were seventeen Republicans in the House about to vote for the sales tax, if we could have gotten one of them to change, the tax bill would have been beaten.

"King Swope held a responsible position in the Republican Party. His counsel and advice might have saved the day, at least the people would have understood if he had tried to help them, but he stayed an hour away in Lexington and watched the fight against the people.

"King Swope never asked Hiram Brock or Ray Moss or Jack Richardson or Frank Lloyd or William Mehler or Walter Flippin or Will Isaac or Samuel Ray to vote against the sales tax. He never asked the Republican members of the House to vote against it," the nominee declared.

"He watched as loss a fight he could have helped us to win and he never said a word or lifted a hand to aid us, he let the people lose, he let the tax be levied, he watched the people pay for ten months with no protest from his lips.

Took Politician's Stand, Charge

"Then he became a candidate, He took a politician's stand. He decided it would be politically-wise to oppose the tax. Then he got not against it, the Democratic primary surprised him and he got cold again. After the election he would get as quiet as he was for three years.

"But the people will not let King Swope get away with that. The sales tax advocates are lining up for him. Before this is over they will be about the only votes he will get. He will lose thousands of Republicans who have had to pay the tax as soon as they see the sales tax crowd getting behind Swope.

"The people," Mr. Chandler asserted, "are going to see why King Swope why he never begged Miriam Brock to vote against the sales tax. They will start asking King Swope why he never talked to Moss or Isaac, or Richardson, or Liers, or Flippin, or Ray, or Mehler to vote against the sales tax. "And until King Swope can explain that, nobody is going to take

Claypool Organizes Student Art Club

Plan Trip To Cincinnati To Visit City's Art Museums

Some twenty students interested in art formed an art club. Monday night, Naomi Claypool and Ralph Hudson, will sponsor the organization.

As outlined by Mrs. Claypool, the purpose of the club will be for each member to do what he wants to do in the art field.

The club plans a visit to the art museums of Cincinnati at an early date. Requirements for membership will be interest in art and a standing of one.

A prize of one dollar will be awarded the member suggesting the best name for the club. A committee was appointed to draft a constitution.

Linus A. Fair, instructor in mathematics and physics, was elected president of the Morehead chapter of the American Association of University Professors at the initial fall meeting held in the faculty dining room of the cafeteria on Thursday evening, Oct. 10, Mrs. Ernestine Toomey, director of physical education for women, was elected secretary-treasurer.

The next meeting of the organization will be held in the faculty dining room on November 21.

An economics club was organized last week by students interested in the subject. The club is under the sponsorship of Neville Finzel, assistant professor of economics.

Alice Hall was elected president; Roy Canfield, vice-president, and Joe Pigg, secretary-treasurer.

The purpose of the club is to further interest in economics and it plans to study economic magazine articles. A committee, composed of Harry Davis and Bernie Hope, was appointed to select a topic for the next meeting.

A name for the club and a time for meeting will be announced later.

Howard Moore was elected president of the Y. M. C. A. at the regular weekly meeting Monday night. Other officers elected were John Rossion, vice-president; and Lawrence Carter, secretary-treasurer.

Dr. J. D. Falls, dean of men, spoke at the aims and benefits of the Y organization.

The association is putting on a drive for new members and approximately fifty men turned out Monday night.

Another Time Saving Treat

BROWN BETTY PUDDING is a new product in cans which has just been offered to housewives under a popular brand by a nationally-known distributor. The pudding is a mixture of apples, bread, raisins and shortening seasoned with spices and sugar. There are four individual puddings in each can, and they come out in flat circular form when the can is opened. The directions for using them are refreshingly simple. "Heat in cups to oven," they say. "Serve hot with hard sauce or whipped cream." If you have ever made Brown Betty pudding yourself, making the time and labor saved when all you have to do about it is to heat it a few minutes in the oven and serve it. Even the hard sauce or whipped cream are not necessary. The puddings come out moist and light, and one housewife found them very good served with a simple oyster sauce.

Nervous, Weak Woman Soon All Right

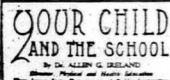

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders of Paragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time and I would have to go to bed after my first bottle of Cardui. I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt wonderful." Mrs. Sanders says that her daughter who is now the same condition and that thousands of women suffer Cardui should consult a physician.

REGISTRATION REACHES 3,142 AT U. K.

Enrollment figures which are second only to the peak year 1931-'32 at the University of Kentucky, were recorded Monday, September 30 at the state's largest registration for higher education with the registration reaching 3,142 at the close of the entrance period for the first term of the 1935-'36 school year.

A total of 114 out of the 120 Kentucky counties are represented in the University of Kentucky enrollment, with 37 states and five foreign countries listed among the home addresses of students enrolled. Besides the 3,142 students registered for University work, there are 216 elementary students and 156 high school students registered in the University of Kentucky Training School, making a grand total of 3,550 attending the University and the Training School.

Among those registered from Rowan County are: Martha Woodley Hall, Morehead; Virginia Elizabeth Riley, Morehead; Thomas B. Nantz, Stanley; Asa W. Adkins, Jr., Morehead.

THE TEACHER'S ETHICS There came to hand recently a code with the title "Ethics of the Teaching Profession." It is a product of the National Education Association, and deserving of careful study, not only by teachers but parents and school board members. I note that the teacher is expected to be "impartial, just, and professional." And I am happy to say that most of them are. Many of the others would be, if they were not concerned by favor-seeking parents of influence.

"Partisan politics, personal gain, and selfish propaganda" are taboo, and rightly so. Instead, the code emphasizes qualifications, worthiness, and professional growth as standards by which to measure a teacher's right to promotion. It's the familiar battle cry over again: "It's what you DO that counts, not what you or your political friends say."

With special pleasure, I read that "intelligent cooperation between the home and school" is urged. When we realize that aim, we will have the great school we like to talk about. Teamwork between parents and teachers is the missing link in education, missing but not unknown.

One provision of the code I wish to quote in full, for my words would add to it justice. It is this: "A teacher's own life should show that education does enable." The success which the American public school enjoys is a tribute to the teachers who live by that rule.

HOUSING HINTS

TIPS ON HOW AND WHAT TO IMPROVE

DECORATIVE PLASTER

If you are building a new house or remodeling an old one, investigate the possibilities of decorative plaster over mantels. Often a picture over the fireplace will overbalance the wall. An attractive design in relief left the same color as the remainder of the walls will add interest to the space above the fireplace, but will not overemphasize it.

Many attractive designs are executed for this purpose. Among the interesting subjects used in a modern room are a relief map of the state in which the house was located.

KITCHEN CLOSE

Add an appliance closet in the kitchen. Here all the smaller mechanical equipment—mixers, toasters, waffle irons, etc.—may be placed on shelves designed to accommodate them. On the door, place a row of hooks and paste white labels above each one. The electric cords which fit each appliance may be hung here and the name of the appliance placed above it. This will prevent cords from becoming tangled, and they will be easy to locate. Paint the interior of the closet a color which contrasts with the main kitchen wall color.

SELECTION OF TREES

In selecting trees for planting about a residence, take care that those chosen combine the greatest natural beauty with a hardiness and freedom from disease and insect pests in the location where they are to be planted. Native trees are usually advisable for the reason that they are known to flourish under the soil and climatic conditions of the region.

PREVENT HEAT LOSS

In western-framed houses, the studs are not stopped at each floor but run up through the full height of the house. If these spaces are open either to an unprotected attic or basement, or both, the rising air through these openings will decrease the efficiency of the heating system by transferring warmed air into the attic. Close these spaces at the basement and attic floor levels and considerable savings will be effected in heating bills.

CHAPTER TWO

"Look here, Alan — can't you see this?" He stopped as he caught a view of Gaskell's face. "You look as though you'd seen a ghost!"

"I have," said Gaskell quietly. "With the Kin Lung standing well out to sea, Gaskell had time at last to remove the physical evidence of his three-day spree ashore. He was standing in his cabin, shaving the last bit of black stubble from his face, when he heard his cabin door slam."

"It's the girl friend, 'Toots,'" said China Doll.

He glared blackly as her face appeared in his mirror.

"I know it's hard to get things through your head. But when I told you to stay out of there, it wasn't any Einstein theory."

"That's right," she said viciously. "You don't have time to fool around with passengers."

"Is your own fault. You wanted to be one."

She affected not to have heard him as he came out to join her.

"Except maybe with that snooty English dame," said China Doll vindictively. "I saw her when she came aboard. And Alan I also had a thing of you when you moved her into the Royal Suite. Why didn't you lay out a red plush runner?"

"Just a throwback to my old manners," Gaskell's remoteness left him armored against her sharp challenge. "The lady happened to know me when I acted that way for the sheer joy of it."

"China Doll was elaborately casual. "A home town lasse, eh?"

"You don't have any home town when you're in the service, I met her in Gibraltar."

"She married?"

Was then, said Gaskell shortly. He's dead now.

What'd she do break a cricket bat over his scalp.

The callous, jeering words crashed into the tenderness of Gaskell's memories. His calm was deadly with suppressed fury.

"Don't start spouting any of your waterfront jokes about people who happen to look civilized. China Doll walked toward him, sat together. At the captain's table transparent in her jealous directness.

"She wasn't in love with you, was she?"

She was in love with the Admiral and I was in love with the Admiral's grandmother!" he flared.

China Doll's cheeks were flushed as she went down to dinner at the Captain's table. The saloon was uncrowded. Mr. and Mrs. Timmon's a Mrs. Aiken, Romanoff, a pearl buyer, Mrs. Vellberg, obviously an adventuress, and a newly named

Sybil was saying, "Music, lanterns, uniforms—all the attractive men at the post."

Gaskell smiled down at her. And it was my luck—when I met the most charming person there—to find her married. Her husband was at sea, though, so I claimed every dance. We walked back to the hotel together. That was six years ago, and her I am!

China Doll sat down. Her voice strident with bitter purpose.

"Speaking of messings, Jamey," she addressed McArdle, "remember made a tournament out of her garter or something. McArdle addressed himself slyly to Gaskell.

Miss Yu-Lan to break the uncomfortable silence, murmured to Sybil "I'm sure I saw you in London two years ago."

China Doll broke it with a high affected English accent.

I was that that season—what jolly fun, too—padding my pretty little punt down the cool crystal Thames.

Sybil's cheeks were flaming. She ventured more social small talk with China Doll sat down. Her voice strident with bitter purpose.

McCaleb, in search of local color, Sybil Barclay sat at Gaskell's right

At his left was Miss Yu-Lan, daughter of the man reputed to own half of China. Sir Guy and Jamey McArdle filled out the table, except for China Doll's vacant chair. She caught a fragment of conversation as she came into the saloon.

Squar on ball at Gibraltar.

the night in that post-war hunt in Saigon when you and I met up with a certain party? He had a shiner on his left eye that lit up the whole street after we dragged him out of the battle of the century."

Sir Guy, with a meaning look at Gaskell, burst into uproarious laughter.

And a cut in the right leg he'd of bled to death if China Doll hadn't interrupted.

"Rawk—it was just too amusing for words. Her accent was a deliberate mockery of Sybil's speech.

"There I was with a cinder in my eye as large as paving block—with the Grande Duke on one side of me and the Marquis on the other.

The group gasped, relaxed into stricken silence. Gaskell infuriated by the insult to Sybil, said, Miss Portland is a professional entertainer.

Sybil smiled faintly and China Doll turned on her with a vicious snarl.

"Think it's funny, ah? What are you laughing for?"

"You must be very fond of him," said Sybil coolly, "to humiliate your self like this. See you later, Alan."

The quiet dignity of her departure stung China Doll like a lash across the face. She cried after Sybil.

"Don't worry! He knows where the Royal Suite is—so do I. I had it myself the first time I sailed this ship."

Gaskell's face tightened. He got to his feet with deadly calm.

"You've saved me a lot of trouble said Gaskell acidly. His eyes flayed her. "You've painted the whole dirty picture for her with a nice, truthful brush. Thanks!"

He turned his back contemptuously and walked on, ignoring her pleading, outstretched hands. Subtly checked China Doll. Her own braininess had driven away forever the man she loved.

Sybil Barclay stood in the chart house with Captain Alan Gaskell.

"I once hoped you would, kingly me very well." He chuckled wryly, without humor. "But not that well."

She was silent and he went on, staring distantly out a window: "I've been thinking about heading for England this spring."

"Oh, Alan—I'm glad—" The note of hope in her voice perturbed him.

"So perhaps—" he leaned back in his chair and avoided her eyes—"I'll be running into you back there."

"Are you going back — alone?" "Alone?"

"I thought perhaps—that girl!" He rose with a rueful laugh and his words came hesitantly. "I'd be a fool to deny her, Sybil. The proceeding have been as obvious as she pictured them. She has her qualities — but just for what she represents — 'ashore in China'—"

"I certainly didn't expect the China Seas to be a monastery."

He found her understanding disconcerting, but it fanned a flame of hope to life. He began to pace the floor restlessly. "I know you understand why I resigned and disappeared. You didn't need a letter from me."

Sybil nodded. "Bart admired you Alan. He was terribly puzzled by your leaving."

"It was all I could do, wasn't it?" "Yes. We might have broken his heart if you'd stayed."

He came up behind her as she stared out the window. His probing eyes were steady, but his voice was husky with a torment of emotion.

"Sybil — now that we've met again — if I thought there was the slightest chance — I'd stumble out with everything I said five years ago. I'd —"

She turned to him with a heart hunger which caught his breath.

"Alan, let me undo a lie I told, I'm not vacationing. Traveling for pleasure. I've followed a memory deep in my heart. Traced you here — found your ship. And now that I've found you — I don't care a snap of my fingers how you've lived. Do you understand? I'll always be in love with you."

The cleansing miracle in her eyes staggered him. Made her infinitely desirable. His arms reached out for her hungrily and their kiss bridged the years that had separated him from a fragile dream. After awhile, when she pulled away from his demanding arms with a happy sigh, she said softly:

"Will you wait till spring now?"

Exaltation flamed in him and the words came tumbling:

"Watch me! I'll sign off at Singapore—we'll dig up a magistrate— of a chaplain—"

"Even a Buddhist monk, my dear," said Sybil joyously.

COLLEGE THEATRE

The blending of tender romance with stark drama permeates the youthful love with its dreams and hopes, its heartaches and joys and its human appeal in "Freckles," the pictureization of Gene Stratton Porter's famous novel, coming to the "Freckles" brings to life the story of one of the most popular characters in American literature. The story of the orphan lad who came into the timber country of Indiana to seek his fortune and found romance in the face of discouraging privations is known to more than fifty million persons here, and a vast number abroad, where the book has been published in German, Swedish, Norwegian and other languages. Even a Braille edition has been issued for the benefit of the blind.

A splendid cast of youthful actors whose talents merit stardom is entrusted with the leading roles in "Freckles." In the title role is Tom Brown, clever young actor who scored in "Anne of Green Gables," Carol Stone, a beautiful ingenue, has the role of schoolmistress Mary Arden. Virginia Weidler, of "Ladle" fame, plays the role of Laurie Low, the tot who always says the wrong thing at the right time and furthers the cause of Cupid.

The familiar story concerns "Freckles" efforts to overcome almost insuperable obstacles in his search for happiness. He winds his way to the Lumberlost country of Indiana, and gets work as a timber guard through Mary's and Laurie Low's efforts. His romance with Mary intermingles with pulse-racing thrills. His rescue of Laurie Low from a forest giant hurtling to the ground is said to offer a sensation rarely yielded by the screen; and his fast fight with lumber thieves form a gasp provoking climax.

Shirley meets the crisis with a brave smile. She plays at being happy to robbers' a shattered dream. "Our Little Girl" is a poignant story, tenderly conceived, freighted with heart jugs yet leaving the audiences, from all reports, strangely happy.

Hundreds of novels and short stories in print and typescript were read before this particular story was selected for Shirley. When the list thinned down to thirty, the producer discovered that "Our Little Girl" was ready-made for the adorably star.

It tells the story of a happy family disintegrated by suspicions, threatened with wreckage, and of a little girl who runs away from her home when she finds all the joy and safe-guards gone. Alone Shirley Temple suffices to make any picture popular. But producer Edward Butcher has loaded "Our Little Girl" with talent. Rose Marie Ames plays Shirley's mother; Joel McCrea, who needs no introduction, plays her father.

"Poodler" Hanneford, world famous clown and circus rider; has an amazing act; he climbs, rides, falls and thrills in the circus sequence which has everything complete from the wild animals to the big three ring tent.

Lyle Talbot, Eric O'Brian, Moore, Jack Donaghy, continue the list of fine supporting cast. The direction is by John Robertson.

When Irvin S. Cobb presented Shirley with the Academy Award, he happy and made more children laugh than any child your age in the history of the world!

"Our Little Girl" is said to sustain this encomium.
