THE COURTS TAKE A STAND AGAINST DRUNKEN DRIVERS

We commend Judge D. B. Caudill for his instruction to the October grand jury to "fully investigate all reports of drunken driving."

Judge Caudill intimated that drunken drivers will not fare well in his court. He termed them "potential murderers" and "menaces to society."

If the juror in Rowan County will heed the plea of Judge Caudill much will have been done to curb this highway demon. The lives of innocent men, women and oftentimes children may be saved.

The Louisville Courier-Journal Sunday quoted a physician at the City Hospital as saying the majority of accidents were directly caused by alcohol.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK HERE

Fire Prevention Week is here. What are you going to do about it?

If you are short-sighted, you will do nothing. If you have any interest in protecting your property and your family's lives, you will use Fire Prevention Week as an occasion for taking the simple, essential measures that usually suffice to make homes and places of business safe from the most common and dangerous fire hazards.

Fire Prevention Week is not designed to sell anything. It is designed to serve—to protect. During the Week insurance companies, civic bodies, fire experts and fire departments will use the radio, newspapers, displays and printed literature in an effort to make you think and to make you act.

In the average home grave hazards exist of which the owner knows nothing, ignorance, as well as carelessness, is a prolific source of destructive fire.

The simplest and most easily corrected causes are responsible for the great bulk of fires in dwellings. A slight fault in a heating plant may devastate a home. Accumulation of papers, clothes, furniture and other odds and ends require only a spark to burst into flame. Improperly stored fluids such as gasoline, benzine and kerosene are a constant menace. Amateur repairs of electric appliances and light cords cause millions of dollars' loss annually. Paint or oil-soaked rags are often the cause of spontaneous combustion. An improperly protected hot electric iron, or cigarette ashes invite fires.

It costs you nothing to eliminate these hazards, and takes a little time. That small effort may save you thousands of dollars—and infinitely more important, save a life. It is your responsibility to see that you make the most of it.

THE ABNORMAL SECURITY MARKET

There is open debate today whether the excessive regulation of the New York Stock Exchange has created such a "thin market" that the public interest is being endangered. In other words, are not stock transactions being so restricted that large blocks of stock can no longer be sold advantageously, due to lack of buyers?

James M. Landis, retiring chairman of the SEC, in his good-bye interview expressed the opinion that odd lot buying and selling is being restricted.

This statement has drawn pointed criticism from New York papers, the New York Journal of Commerce stating that the SEC's own statistics show that all odd lot trading averages only some 15 per cent of the total turn-over. If large investors decide to sell, therefore, the excess of odd lot buying, small at best, obviously could not be counted upon to stabilize quotations. It is an open secret that large blocks of stock are being traded privately off the floor of the Exchange, because of the very restricted market that is now available on the Exchange."

The New York Herald Tribune says: "A matter of fact, the weakest and most undesirable feature in the market is the odd lot buyer who trades on margin. He is known as the shoestring trader."

The New York Times said editorially that while Mr. Landis pointed out that he was not arguing for the complete elimination of the speculative operator, but against his dominance of the market, he failed to give an idea of when he felt "dominance begins."

President Gay of the New York Stock Exchange said: "I pointed out recently in my annual report that it was 'fearful' in an effort to cure what might be termed sporadic evils, undue restrictions are being placed on normal action, thus creating abnormal market conditions." I can only repeat what I said in that report. This is not said in a fault-finding spirit. We the New York Stock Exchange are in sympathy with the endeavor to promote the public welfare by those who are charged with the administration of the act of 1934. We see, however, grave danger if regulation is carried to the point where the normal public service rendered by a broad, liquid market is destroyed."

HIGHWAYS OF TOMORROW

Compared to the roads of a generation ago, modern highways are marvels of excellence. Yet, in spite of this phenomenal development, today's system is woefully inadequate, as Frank T. Sheets points out in an article in Public Safety.

"Progressive strides have been taken and must continue to be taken in driver education and in providing safety regulation for vehicles," says Mr. Sheets, "but the ultimate in traffic convenience and safety will not be reached until we actually provide adequate highways and build safety into every modern highway."

Today's engineers have designed tomorrow's highways. These magnificent roads will include terminal facilities in cities whereby traffic will move to various points with a minimum of congestion; modern highways with many lanes, with divisions in the center to prevent head-on collisions, will carry cross-country traffic, avoiding congested areas enroute; intermediate highways will serve local traffic needs; even the lowest grade, little-used roads will be given some form of all weather surface; arterials, urban streets will carry into and through cities and towns that part of rural main trunk traffic which has business in the metropolitan area.

This seems a far off ideal, but not long ago the automobile, the radio, the airplane, the telephone were not more than a few lines, with divisions in the center to prevent head-on collisions, will carry cross-country traffic, avoiding congested areas enroute; intermediate highways will serve local traffic needs; even the lowest grade, little-used roads will be given some form of all weather surface; arterials, urban streets will carry into and through cities and towns that part of rural main trunk traffic which has business in the metropolitan area.

WILL IDAHO MAKE A DENT?

Idaho is meeting an emergency with emergency treatment.

During the first six months of the year, Idaho's traffic deaths increased alarmingly. Idaho officials didn't attempt to correct the situation with talk and vague suggestions. Instead, the governor ordered the departments of public works and law enforcement to utilize their joint man power, finances and equipment for the purpose of properly policing and supervising roads. Vacations of all patrolmen were cancelled, and seven new officers were added. Additional patrol cars equipped with radios, loud speakers and special lighting devices, were purchased.

It is too early to know the result of this emergency action, but Idaho is doing something. Traffic deaths and accidents have increased lately in most all states. Sporadic safety campaigns are started in bursts of enthusiasm that soon die. Brief law enforcement drives are instigated and then forgotten. And the accident toll soars.

Dismissing all humanitarian considerations, and looking at the accident problem from the economic standpoint alone, accident reduction is a burning necessity. Last year the direct cost of highway accidents was more than a billion and a half dollars—and the indirect cost was several times as great. Today we actually spend half as much money, directly, to pay for accidents, as we pay for gasoline. The average cost is $43.00 per family per year.

Will Idaho make a dent in highway slaughter? Other states should watch the experiment.

NINETY-EIGHT PER CENT SOLVENT

During the depression the holders of life insurance policies in companies representing more than 97 per cent of the total insurance in force in this country had their policies maintained without impairment.

Companies representing less than 3 per cent of total life insurance in force went into receivership. Even in the case of these companies, loss to policyholders was not complete, as salvage served to pay off a large percentage of obligations.

Few other industries can point to a record of 98 per cent solvency during the worst depression in American history.

THE MOST VALUABLE "CROP"

While adult farmers are struggling with the problems of production and marketing, a splendid new "crop" of farmers of the future is growing up. More than a million farm boys and girls are now enrolled in the 4-H clubs. Here they are learning practical lessons in successful agriculture. On a not distant tomorrow, they will be operating the nation's farms, organizing and running the nation's farm marketing cooperatives and working out the problems of the farm.

The Argentine tobacco industry has a manager who has reached the highest point in history, augurs well for the agriculture future. The training and information these young farmers receive in their 4-H clubs and elsewhere will prove invaluable.

Sunday School Lesson LESSON FOR OCTOBER 10

THE CHRISTIAN IN GOD'S KEEPING

LESSON TEXT—John 1-4, 17-25

GOLDEN TEXT—Keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life.—John 2:1. PRIMARY TOPIC—Why David Sang.

JUNIOR TOPIC—In God's Keeping. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Keeping Oneself Christian.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Safe in God's Keeping.

To be born is only to begin life. The years will stretch out before them for their growth, their struggles, their joys, call for courageous living.

So it is with the Christian. He is a "born one," as we saw in our lesson of last Sunday. But when he is born again, he is ready to begin the Christian life.

The Epistle of Jude sheds much light on the dangers which beset the Christian's path, and exhorts him to holy living and scriptural service. It opens with a description of the "unbelievers" and closes with an ascription of praise to God. It reveals the Christian as one who is:

1. Called in Christ (vv. 1, 2). The entire Trinity is seen to be active in our redemption (See Revised Version). Jude writes to "them that have been called."

2. "Called" by the Holy Spirit calls men unto salvation.

3. "Kept for Jesus Christ"—until he appears.

4. Called in Christ (vv. 3, 4, 17-23).

As Jude began to write of the "salvation" which he had in common with his readers, the Holy Spirit moved him to deal with a very urgent and vital problem—the hostility of wicked men toward the gospel of Christ, and their efforts to destroy "the faith."

The Christian life includes:

1. Contending for the faith (vv. 3, 4). "The Faith" is the body of revealed truth, the gospel, the good news of redemption in Jesus Christ. It is a final revelation "delivered once for all" (R. V.). There is no other faith, and there never will be another.

"The world hates the gospel, and attacks upon it are had incessantly, but the most insidious assault is that of those within the church who profess to believe in Christ, but who are in reality destructive work Christians must "contend earnestly," at the same time as they are to be delivered from their sin and its terrible judgment (vv. 15-16).

2. Obeying the commandments which they live (vv. 17-18). Some folk seem to think that being a Christian means entering into a piece of security and then promptly going sound asleep. Far from it. The Christian, knowing God's Word, is keenly aware of the dangers of this ungodly world.

3. Keeping their own souls (vv. 20, 21). The best defense is a vigorous offense. It is to contend against error is to build up one's own faith by the study of God's Word, and to contend with his children, but above all by prayer "in the Holy Ghost."

And above all there will be an abiding in Christ, and a looking for the fulfillment of the mercy of Christ at his coming.

4. Saving the souls of others (vv. 22, 23). Soul winning is the most effective mission of the Christian's life. It is to evangelize. It most effectively counteracts error and worldliness. It builds up the church. Why not do it? Note that there are two types of sinners to be rescued. Some are "in doubt" (R. V.), needing tender and careful instruction. Others are in grave danger, and must be rescued by drastic and decisive action. Soul-winning is urgent business.

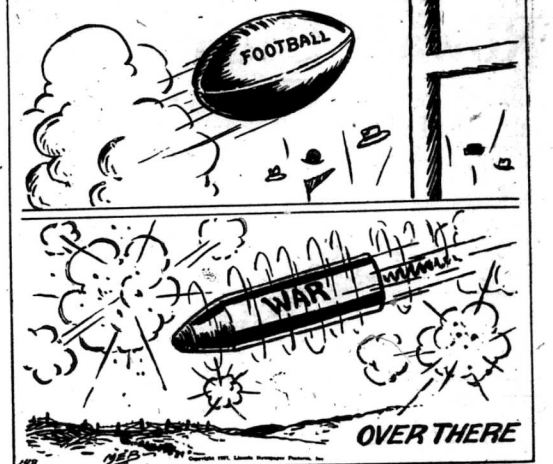

III. Kept by Christ (vv. 24, 25). The theology of the club is that Jude has been given a haven of comfort and assurance for God's children throughout the centuries. Hither have come the strong, the faithful and true, and the trembling soul who had not yet learned that he may fully trust God. These verses present two truths:

1. Assurance. "Our Saviour is able to keep us from falling, ye beloved, unto sinning" (R. V.), and to present "faultless" (without blemish)—(R. V.), with exceeding joy, before the glorious presence of God.

2. Worship. Such a God and Saviour is indeed worthy of the outpouring of the Christian's praise, adoration and worship. To him would we gladly ascribe "glory, majesty, dominion and power" for "before all time" (R. V.).

The Argentine tobacco industry has a manager who has reached the highest point in history, augurs well for the agriculture future. The training and information these young farmers receive in their 4-H clubs and elsewhere will prove invaluable.

Officers Have No Clues In Strange New York Murders

Red Circle Is Drawn On Forehead Of Young Man And Companion

A single red circle crudely drawn upon their foreheads, a young couple was found shot to death Sunday in a parked automobile just off a heavily traveled scenic highway some 12 miles from downtown New York.

Police said the victims, who had been sweethearts for a year, apparently were slain by a supposedly mad killer calling himself "3-x," who in the past had boasted, in letters to a newspaper and to the authorities of such slayings.

Each had been shot through the head. The body of the man, tentatively identified as Louis Weiss, 23, was bolt upright behind the steering wheel. That of the girl, Frances Hajek, 18, was halfway out of the open door of the small automobile. She had been stabbed as well.

A solitary stroller found the bodies.

The girl's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hajek, operators of a bakery, said she and Weiss were "practically engaged" and had left in the automobile at between 8:30 p. m. and 9 p. m.

Sunday night.

Weill strap watch, its crystal broken, was found to have stopped at 2:45 a. m. and there was conjecture that the murderous assault had occurred at about that time.

As to what fluid had made the curious red circle upon the forehead of each victim, there was no immediate agreement among the investigators. An autopsy was expected to decide.

The machine in which they lay dead stood in a wooded section.

The supposition that "3-x" was the killer was based upon the curious nature of the crime and the fact it occurred in a section where he had "confessed," he had killed other persons.

The girl was graduated only last June from high school and occasionally helped out in the bakery shop of her father.

"3-x," according to his letters, was most active in that vicinity from three to five years ago. The slayer was seen by a girl, who was raped by him after she saw her escort shot and killed, but she was unable to identify any of the numerous suspects.

In his last letter, "3-x" said he was "feeling better" and was planning to fly to Russia in a "red airplane."

Wallace Heard By Group Of Farmers From This County

Thousands Listen To Secretary Of Agriculture Speak At Louisville

Thousands of farmers from Kentucky including a good Rowan County delegation, Tennessee and Indiana heard America's No. 1 farmer—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace—plead yesterday for a national program of "balanced abundance and security for both the farmer and consumer."

He also asked for "farm solidarity" when a new, broad agriculture bill is laid before the next congress.

"I believe a majority of you now favor farm solidarity," he said, "but will you then?"

Wallace spoke at the horse show pavilion at the State Fair grounds. Approximately half of the 10,000 farmers attending the fair were occupied by a cross-section of farm folk—from the sharecropper to "gentleman farmer."

His broadcast address frequently was interrupted by applause and several times he degressed from his prepared speech to stress particular phases of his views.

The secretary, himself an Iowa "dirt farmer," was introduced by Robert W. Bingham, Louisville publisher and ambassador to Great Britain.

Judge Bingham described Wallace as the "greatest secretary of agriculture since his father," who, he said, was the "great agriculture secretary of my time."

The six principles of the proposed legislation, Mr. Wallace said are:

- "First, that agriculture has a right to a fair share of the national income.
- "Second that consumer as well as farmer interests should be safeguarded through an ever-normal granary.
- "Third, that conservation of the soil is vitally important to the nation.
- "Fourth, that farmers ought to be assured of security of tenure of farms they occupy.
- "Fifth, that farmers co-operative movement ought to be encouraged.
- "Sixth, that provisions ought to be included in any national farm program favoring the family-sized farm."

SEED, LIMESTONE TESTED ON FARMS

George Barrett, a Metairie county farmer, sowed two kinds of alfalfa seed this year—northwestern—grown Grimm and Oklahoma—grown. Seed from the Northwest produced a good stand while that from Oklahoma was almost—complete failure.

R. R. Rankin, county agent, in reporting the test says men who succeed best with alfalfa do all of the following things: First they have the soil tested, and then apply limestone and phosphate as needed. Then they sow 15 pounds of native or northwestern produced seed to the acre, and they inoculate the seed.

In Mercer county, H. M. White-neck limed half of an eight-acre field, and then sowed the whole field to rye, followed with clover and timothy. The limed portion produced 25 bushels of rye and a ton and a half of hay to the acre. The other half of the field, although it was manured, produced 17 bushels of rye to the acre and practically no hay.

Holbert Davis of McCracken county tested the value of limestone and phosphate in producing hay, chiefly lespedeza. Where no treatment was used he cut 1,400 pounds of hay to the acre; where limestone alone was applied, 2,500 pounds, and where limestone and phosphate were used, 4,000 pounds.

Approximately 3,500 persons saw the exhibits and contests of the 4-H and Utopia fair in Boone county.

A recent check-up shows that 7,453 cattle have been tested for Bang's disease in Oldham county with 546 reactors.

Fleming Man Held On Attack Charge

As Call wriggled through the hole, Deputy Evans rushed from the garage, located on Water street, to give chase. At the door he was met by Eugene Call, 33, brother of the wounded man.

"Genie," as the brother is known, was loading cartridges into a .22 rifle. These had just purchased at a store across the street. He raised the gun, witnesses said, but Evans closed in and arrested him before he could take aim. He is in the Fleming county jail on a charge of attempted assault, winning the street.

Brookline Call, termed a "bad actor" by Fleming County authorities, had attacked the wife of his wife's brother last July while "hiding out" at the farm of his father-in-law, William Saunders, near Poplar Plains, the officer said. He was wanted for operating a car while intoxicated. The deputy marshal was informed that the girl bride of Morrison had "kept quiet" about the incident because Call had threatened to kill her as well as her husband. Subsequently she became ill, he was told, and thus the matter became known. The officer said the girl had seen Commonwealth's Attorney Marmaduke Hargett in regards to the warrant which was handed to him Saturday.

Call lives between Hillsboro and Sunset in Fleming county. He is married and has one son. His father is "Hokoy" Call.

Unaware that a warrant was out for his arrest, Call had gone out for Flemingburg yesterday to have his car repaired at the garage. The prisoner is being kept under guard at the hospital here.

Red Cross Sends Supplies To China

"As president of the Chinese Red Cross Society I wish to express to you our sincerest appreciation for this manifestation of human kindness. I need not point out just how your generous support to the Red Cross work in China would bring our country to a great inspirational height."

At the Red Cross national headquarters it was recalled today that the Chinese Red Cross and other Chinese societies had sent a contribution of 100,000 Chinese dollars for the Ohio-Mississippi valley flood relief fund last February, when more than a million American citizens were in great distress. The Chinese Society also offered large contributions of other supplies but these were not accepted due to the difficulty of handling.

EXCLUSIVE STORY—FOR ONE-LEGGED MAN

A shoe exchange for one-legged persons and other cripples has just been opened in San Francisco. It is intended to do away with the necessity of buying two shoes when a person can wear only one. Odd-sized shoes for various other afflicted persons will be sought through voluntary contribution.

Eventually the exchange hopes to work with similar agencies in other cities, so unwanted shoes may be exchanged and put to good use.

50 SQUARE MILES OF FISH

Lured by millions of "mushes" or red sea shrimp, on which they feed, giant tuna thronged the waters off the coast of Honolulu in such numbers recently that the school was estimated to cover 50 square miles. Fishermen who ordinarily at sea three or four days filled their boats to capacity in two hours.

FARMERS FOLLOW COUNTY PLANNING

Grant county farmers are already acting on reports obtained from a recently completed county-wide land survey and planning program, in which land was classified according to its best uses. County Agent Robert Hume.

The county was divided in areas according to its soil types, including regions fit for raising cattle, those adapted to dairying, and those best suited for the production of sheep and beef cattle. Two farmers have purchased western ewes, the first to be taken into the county in years, and two purebred breeding flocks have been established.

DEMAND FOR IMPORTED CIGARETTES IN MEXICO

The increased demand for imported cigarettes in Mexico has prompted local manufacturers to plan the introduction in that market of competitive brands, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Department of Commerce.

One manufacturer is reported to have obtained a license to manufacture a well-known English brand of cigarette to be sold in the market under the English trade mark at a price less than that at which American brands retail.

Since the increased demand for cigarettes of foreign manufacture has accompanied the increased number of American tourists in Mexico, it is believed doubtful if the introduction of new brands of cigarettes will adversely affect the sales of cigarettes of United States origin.

FRENCH LIKE APPLES FROM AMERICA BETTER

In a recent report on the organization of the French fruit and vegetable market it was stated that the large importation of American apples into France was due to the quality, as compared to the quality of apples offered by French growers. It was further stated that if French growers wish to take a place on the markets supplied by American growers they must depend not only on customs protection but on the manner in which they treat their fruits, especially as concerned the fight against parasites.

U. S. FISHERMEN SPEND $8,062.87 FOR LICENSES

Charles E. Jackson, Acting Commissioner of Fisheries of the Department of Commerce, says that fishermen spent $8,062.87 for licenses in the United States during 1935-36.

This is an increase of 99.6 per cent over the amount spent during 1934-35. During this period their number increased from 5,121,320 to 5,822,446, an all time high.

The sale of non-resident anglers' licenses in the United States increased approximately 35 per cent, tourist licenses, 3 1/2 per cent. Resident's licenses increased 14 per cent and women's and children's licenses, 20 per cent. One state, Kansas, practically doubled its revenue from the sale of fishing licenses during that period, while the sales in Mississippi were up 300 per cent. Decreases occurred in six states.

EGYPT REOPENS OLDEST GOLD MINES IN WORLD

Following recent surveys made of the Skukkary mines located on the Red Sea and known to be the oldest gold bearing areas in the world, the Egyptian Government has reopened the mines on a large scale.

These mines were formerly worked by Egyptians who produced large quantities of ore many years ago. The expansion of the gold mining industry in Egypt is being received enthusiastically.

WAR CAUSES AUTO SHORTAGE IN JAPAN

Due to the commandeering of a large number of used motor vehicles for use in the military activities in China there is a marked shortage and stimulated demand in the automotive trade in Japan. In addition to the trucks which the army has put into use it is understood locally that the military have contracted to take practically the entire domestic production of commercial vehicles and have also purchased large number of new imported vehicles. It is expected that there will be an enormous increase in the demand for automobiles in Japan. Independent ads get results.

CANADIANS SMOKE MORE CIGARETTES

Consumption of cigarette in Canada in July of this year totaled approximately 665,000,000, to establish a new all-time monthly record.

It is estimated consumption of cigarettes in the full calendar year will approximate 5,000,000,000 compared with 3,755,000,000 consumed in 1932.

Cigarette consumption in Canada has been increasing steadily since the excise tax was reduced from $6.00 to $4.90 per thousand. Consumption of cigarettes in Canada in the summer greatly exceeds the number consumed in the winter.

board of parole. Warden Joseph Ragen, who ordered the prisoners locked in their cells as the strike spread through the gray-walled prison estimated that between 1,500 and 2,000 convicts had refused food. The big prison, one of two at Joliet, holds approximately 3,400 inmates.

"We don't expect any further trouble," Ragen said. "The men will be kept in their cells at least through Tuesday. We have stopped all mail and visitors privileges, cut off the central radio system into the cell blocks and banned purchases at the commissary."

Some of the prisoners, Ragen said, apparently were living on supplies purchased at the commissary before the strike was called.

Two hundred convicts from a cell house refused to pick up their breakfast trays this morning after filing with other prisoners into the cafeteria. Prison authorities immediately ordered the 460 inmates of the cellhouse locked up.

FARM KITCHENS TO BE STREAM-LINED

Farm kitchens are going stream-lined in Ohio county, Kentucky, where 21 members of homemakers' clubs recently made a tour of kitchens that had been re-arranged, repaired, re-equipped and made convenient and livable. Mrs. Clay Wilson showed the visitors how she had completely done over her kitchen at a cost of only $26. Cupboards had been built in, a sink installed, linoleum laid, equipment rearranged. Mrs. Arthur Bell had spent only $10 for floor covering, in making her kitchen over. Home labor and materials did the rest.

Only Mrs. S. L. Richeson had bought everything new, hired carpenters and redecorator. A score of kitchens were inspected and many more will be remodeled as a result of the tour, according to Mary K. Davis, county home demonstration agent.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE SETS NEW RECORD

The registration of 528 men and women for the first semester of the 1937-38 school year sets a new enrollment record for the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky. The number of students last year was 517, which was the largest previous enrollment.

Three hundred and twenty-nine men and women are studying agriculture and 200 women are studying home economics. The registration by classes follows: Freshman, 113 men and 50 women; Sophomore, 82 men and 53 women; Junior, 75 men and 50 women; Senior, 55 men and 51 women.

LEBEUS MITCHELL

THE STORY THIS FAR: Brought together by her estranged husband to help his political ambitions, Katie O'Shea and Charles Stewart Parnell, leader of the Irish Nationalist cause, fall in love. When Parnell is taken ill upon his return from Ireland, where he has helped to quell the violence following the Phoenix Park murders, to face a charge before the House of Commons of complicity in those crimes, Mrs. O'Shea takes him into her home and nurses him back to health.

CHAPTER SEVEN

THE TRIAL

Charles Stewart Parnell sat at the table with his counsel, Sir Charles Russell, in Phoenix Park. The first few months in the Strand while the editor of the paper which had published the letters connecting him with the Phoenix Park murders had been questioned by the Attorney-General, Sir Basil Blackett, Parnell drew out a part of the parchment and looked at the editor's name.

"No, Sir Richard, none." Did you make any attempt to test their authenticity? "I submitted them to a handwriting expert, Mr. Ignatie. His report was that they were in Mr. Parnell's handwriting."

"Where did you procure these letters?" "From Mr. Houston, secretary of the Irish Loyal and Protective Union."

"What was your motive in publishing them?" "I considered it a public duty."

"The witness was then turned over to Sir Charles Russell for cross-examination. Sir Charles asked the editor a question that the Irish Loyal and Protective Union was a Conservative organization opposed to Mr. Parnell; that its objects were to destroy the Irish Nationalist Party, and that it would be very pleased to be provided with evidence against the Irish Nationalist leader. With some hesitation, the editor admitted that he was in sympathy with the Loyal and Protective Union, but refused to state that he had been eager to believe the letters. He had, he stated, trusted Mr. Houston. He objected to counsel's insinuation that he was anxious to shut his eyes to any doubtful origin of the letters, but was obliged to admit that he had met Mr. Houston only once and that he knew, from Houston's testimony, that the letters had been obtained from a Dublin journalist named Richard Pigott."

"Do you know Mr. Pigott?" asked Sir Charles. "I know of him," answered the troubled editor. "Did you have trouble at the time to ask Mr. Houston if he got those letters, would you, from any knowledge of Mr. Pigott?"

"No, Sir Charles, I have no doubt you have been attempting to find evidence damaging to me and the Irish Loyal and Patriotic Union. You are not ashamed of yourself, are you?"

"I laugh at you through the court room and the Attorney-General cried: 'Checkmate!'"

"At this juncture Parnell whispered in his counsel's ear, showed him the letter Katie had found in his desk."

"There was new animation in Sir Charles' faces as he resumed his cross-examination. 'Mr. Pigott, supposing you wanted to forge a document, how would you set about it?'"

"The Attorney-General objected but the witness directed to answer. 'I have no idea,' said Pigott. 'It is a matter of speculation into which I have never entered.'"

"I am glad to hear it, but if you did want to do it, you think it would be of help to have a genuine letter in front of you?"

"I should imagine it might be of some assistance, yes." "Have you ever had in your possession a genuine letter from Mr. Parnell?"

"I have had the letters which the newspapers printed." "I said a genuine letter, Mr. Pigott."

"I believe those letters to be genuine."

genuine." "Well, that is the difference between us. However, we shall see. Have you ever had any other letter of Mr. Parnell's in your possession?"

"I have not." "Then how did you know that the handwriting was genuine when these letters came into your possession?"

"I had seen his handwriting." "Did you make any effort to compare the two writings?"

"Yes, I did. I compared them and they were identical." "Then you must have had a genuine letter in your possession to make the comparison."

"Yes," admitted the uncomfortable witness. "I forgot that." "Quite. And a number of other things, too, no doubt. Has Mr. Parnell ever written to you?"

"He has not." "Or you to him? Be sure, now." "No, I to him. I am quite sure."

"I put it to you that you wrote to Mr. Parnell more than once in an attempt to obtain a specimen of his handwriting for you to copy?"

"I never wrote to him."

At this juncture, Parnell showed his counsel the letter Katie had found in his desk.

"Very well. Would you look at this letter, Mr. Pigott?" "May I see that letter?" asked the Attorney-General.

"One moment. I am putting it into evidence." After the witness had been given an opportunity to see the letter, it was passed to the secretary of the court who in turn handed it up to their Lordships. Sir Charles resumed his questioning.

"Now, Mr. Pigott, do you recognize that letter?" "I think I have seen it before."

"Is it in your writing?" "I believe it is." "Believe? Don't you know? Come, Mr. Pigott, is it in your handwriting? Yes or no?"

"Well, then . . . yes," Pigott maintained his dry lips. "Good. This is one document we both regard as genuine. Read it carefully, Mr. Pigott. Do you see anything wrong with it?"

"There isn't anything wrong with it."

"My Lords," said Sir Charles, "I would like to point out a somewhat remarkable coincidence. In the newspaper letter attributed to Mr. Parnell, the word 'testimony' is misspelled 'tes'-ny.' Now this letter which Mr. Pigott has acknowledged to be his starts as follows: 'Honored Sir: I have some hesitancy in approaching you again . . . and the word 'hesitancy' is misspelled in exactly the same way. My Lords, when I opened this case I said I represented the accused, meaning Mr. Parnell. But, with the appearance of this letter, I say that the tables have turned and that now I represent the accusers. The accused is this pertaining to the witness?"

Balance Budget Of Human Needs, Held Paramount By FDR

President Urges Preservation Of Nation's Natural Resources

President Roosevelt told a big crowd this week balancing the budget of human and natural resources was just as important as balancing the Treasury budget. He spoke from the rear platform of the train taking him some to Hyde Park, N. Y.

In Montana to view Fort Peck Dam, another of the Administration's huge works, he said he was interested in seeing Eastern Montana because, he, the people and Congress had a plan ahead for it-use of more water. He said he had talked with Senator James E. Murray and they agreed that in a fourth area like that part of Montana the time had come to use WPA work in building any more schools, stadiums and armories, but for dams.

Quoting an editorial in a Great Falls paper about the need for balancing the budget of "our resources," the President said that was "well worth thinking about." The President said "the time has come when we must use our WPA, not for armories, but for water." He said he had come to that conclusion after a discussion of drought conditions in Eastern Montana.

He said "balancing the budget of our human and natural resources is just as important as balancing the budget of the Treasury."

He said he was going to do everything possible to balance both.

A banjo player in the crowd played and sang about "Franklin Tying the Devil's Tail."

Mr. Roosevelt crossed Montana with all principal Montana officials in his entourage, except Senator Burton K. Wheeler, who led opposition to the President's Supreme Court reorganization plan. Wheeler sent a telegram expressing regret that he was kept by business in California, adding: "I can assure you all the people are profoundly grateful to you for what you have done and are doing to assist them. It is my earnest hope that you will be able to tell them that the power development at Fort Peck will go forward immediately."

Fort Peck Dam, to cost $108,000,000 when completed, is the last mammoth government-sponsored project to be visited by the President on his two weeks' tour of the West ending Wednesday at Hyde Park.

CHICAGO URGED TO QUIT BIG TEN CONFERENCE

A recommendation that the University of Chicago drop intercollegiate competition and withdraw from the Big Ten athletic conference was urged editorially this week by the Maroon, student newspaper, in its first issue of the school year.

"The money and attention to varsity athletics is utterly disproportionate to the number benefited," the newspaper said. "Not are athletics by any means always of benefit to the competitors. The money would be better spent on enlarged and diversified activities."

Editor William McNeill said he saw "no reason for Chicago to remain in the Big Ten."

"If present commitments prove it dropping out now, it should do so next year."

VOLUME PRICES DOWN IN OLD BALT SALES

Light sales followed the heavy opening breaks on the Old Belt tobacco markets of North Carolina, but opening prices, which ranged from averages of $25 to $30 a hundredweight, were somewhat lower.

North-Salem, the largest North Carolina market, reported sales of 1,327,836 pounds for an average price of $24.15.

Other North Carolina markets also reported sharp declines in sales, usually after the opening day rush.

RUBBER FENDERS THE LATEST IN ENGLAND

An increasing number of London transport buses are now being equipped with rubber fenders. A new method has been devised by one of the rubber manufacturers whereby the fenders are cured or moulded into shape and by careful compounding of the material sufficient rigidity is given without impairing flexibility.

It was stated that it is extremely difficult to distinguish one of the rubber fenders from the standard metal product and the cost of repairing or replacing damaged fenders has been reduced to a minimum by use of rubber.

DRESS UP YOUR MALE WITH GOOD BISCUITS

If you plan meals three times a day, week in and week out, you're probably well-acquainted with that bugbear of all good cooks, "Old Man Monotony." Well, there's an easy way to break "Old Man Monotony"—an old-fashioned way stolen from Grandma's table, heaped with its wonderful array of tempting dishes—hot biscuits!

It used to be that flabby, golden-brown biscuits were a sort of prerogative of experienced cooks. But today, with specially prepared biscuit flour, even the newest bride can surprise her husband with a plate of biscuits. And how men love them—especially if the jam or the honey pot is already on the table.

But if your meals are costly, vegetables are mostly limited to what

Morehead Team To Meet Georgetown There On Friday

Teachers Rule Favorites Although Bengals Have Weight Edge

The Eagles of Morehead College, unbeaten, untied and unscored on will attempt to protect that spotless record Friday afternoon in a game with the Georgetown College Tigers at Georgetown.

Although the Bengals have a larger team than Morehead the Eagles, by virtue of their play in the Cincinnati and Tennessee Tech matches will be favored.

The game is scheduled to get underway at 2:30 p. m. Central Time. Plans are being made to bring back to Morehead a play-by-play account of the match.

Although Coach Ellis Johnson has not released an official lineup for the game it is possible that he will start the same line as in the East Tennessee match. Tim Wyant and Custer Reynolds who were not in the Blue and Gold lineup at the first whistle in the Teachers last appearance, will possibly be starters in the Georgetown fracas.

Morehead will have no all-star if the Eagles lose this one. The locals are in better physical condition than they have been at any time during the year. The moral and spirit on the field is excellent. Although outweighed past records indicate that Morehead is the strongest team and a victory for Georgetown would be a major upset.

Coach Johnson will uncover as little as possible of his attack Friday. On the sidelines will probably be scouts from both sides that Morehead meets this year. Eastern, determined to win the Morehead game this year, has already scouted the Eagles twice. The Maroon coaching staff will be on hand Friday to look the team over.

YOUNGER GENERATION "WARMS UP" FOR WORLD SERIES

A new baseball craze has taken Minneapolis youngsters by storm. The game is spreading so rapidly that the World Series may be fought out in miniature in thousands of backyards all over the country while the real battle for the world championship takes place.

The popularity of the model baseball game is due mainly to the fact that it is simple and costs next to nothing. The "playing field" can be laid out anywhere with a wooden box for a backstop and a few boards for fences to enclose the "outfield."

The "players" are cardboard rectangles of big-league stars cut from empty cereal boxes. The "ball" is a metal disk or ball bearing which is "thrown" over the "plate" by bending the pitcher back and letting it go like a catapult. Any flat wonder that for generations this game has been disputed among Indian tribes of the north and south as an ideal hunting ground, and that their warriors' bloody battles were constantly fought.

Cheerfully as they killed one another, the Indians never wanted to destroy animals, making only those needed for food and clothing. Killing for sport was unheard of and when their wild life was never depleted.

A century and a half after settlement by white man, where it was abundant in the past, however, most of it, as needlessly and wantonly destroyed as were magnificent forests, is lost in America. The buffalo, which might have furnished us our best breed of cattle, shot in countless hundreds as game targets, either deer wiped out almost as wastefully; passenger pigeons and geese, the ivory-billed woodpecker, grouse, and beautiful woodcock, only a memory; the sight of a wild-turkey a news item; beaver and wolf gone and bear, otter, coon and wildcat all but gone; fish so scarce as to require annual restocking; and also the queer, only remaining game bird of the north, save a few doves and snipe and ducks; while the smaller furbearers in the past 25 years have been so nearly wiped out by overtrapping that fox, mink, muskrat and even marten are so generously depleted, and skunk and opossum survive only because of their fecundity, and remain, with the remnant of mourning hawks, owls and snakes, the sole natural predators of the farm against ever-multiplying house and rodent, while the song-birds, its desperately-needed defense against insect armies, have decreased 50 per cent in the past 20 years.

In vain our biologists have warned us. Says Dr. Furber, one of our own biologists, of State University, in "Animal Friends and Enemies": "There was a time when the state could be said to be a wild life. But ruthless slaughter, ignorance of the economic importance of wild life, execrable superstition and prejudice, have reduced our animal heritage to pitiful proportions. The truth is, we have very little wild-life to preserve."

Eagles Impressive In Hour's Practice With Frosh Team

Varsity Will Be Stronger For Balance Of Season, Writer Avers

Those persons who think that the Eagles won't be fairly strong the rest of the way out - instead it appears that the men of Ellis Johnson and Len Miller will be awfully powerful - possibly two touchdowns better offensively than they have been at an early time this year.

It is recalled that Morehead did not get started last year until mid-season. The Eagles scored impressive victories in their first two games, but this corner believes that from now on you can look for a still more powerful team.

Saturday afternoon the varsity annihilated the freshmen. They scored 30 touchdowns in an hour's scrimmage that everyone kept counting. It wasn't a regulation game, but the varsity played the ball each time on their own 20. In one or two plays it was generally another touchdown.

First Donald Fair and Gordon Stanley did the running while they had so many 80 yard gallops that they looked like a 2-year-old horse after a mile. The varsity horse, Reynolds went into the backfield and galloped over, around and through the freshmen, for a touchdown on every other play.

All the injuries should be healed over in a few days. The tangle of players for the game in the KIAC back there Friday afternoon. Wyatt, Reynolds, Flannery, Hammons, Fair and Gordon Lowman, all of whom have been hurt, are in good physical condition. That game will be a pretty fair test of what Morehead will really have this year. The Eagles will attempt to average a 6-6 record during the Georgetown team last year.

Morehead will rule odds-on favorite in the Georgetown game. Back this year with a big team which has been pointing for this match.

port during 1937 about 660,000 pounds of the "Kavalla" type. The tobacco crop of Algeria in 1936 was satisfactory in quantity, but was said to be of inferior quality; however, it was sold at steadily improving prices.

The tobacco crop of Cuba during the first 10 months of this year amounted to $113,163,402, which represented 65.5 per cent of that country's total export trade for the seven month period.

Some demand for American paint products continued especially active in July and resulted in exports of ready mixed paints, varnishes and lacquers reaching a level which has been exceeded only once in the past five years.

Since Spring of this year when foreign tourists to Paris were 33 per cent more numerous than for the corresponding season of 1936, the tourist movement to France has continued to surge forward in increasing numbers.

A large number of large mirrors designed to enable drivers of vehicles to see traffic approaching from various directions will be installed at street corners in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Spain's foreign trade showed a favorable balance of approximately $27,053,000 for the first half of this year as compared with practically a balance trade during the corresponding period of 1936. The United States still retains first place among the nations of the world as principal supplier to France.

With the advent of the apple shipping season in Nova Scotia and the movement of approximately 1,500,000 barrels to overseas markets, mostly to England, there has developed a shortage of shipping facilities at the port of Halifax.

The per capita consumption of flour in Argentina during the year 1936 was the lowest registered during the past five years. German production of chemicals continued to surge forward during the first half of the current year with the demand for certain lines so heavy at times that factories found it difficult to make prompt deliveries.

The Peruvian Government has recently enacted a law under the terms of which the exportation of pig iron from that country is absolutely prohibited. Imports of iron ore into Poland during June 1937 were 21 per cent higher than in May and 231 per cent above receipts in June last year.

A hundred cattle men from Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois visited the Union county fair, purchased herds.

A 10-acre alfalfa field belonging to S. S. Arnsdall, Magnolia, Kentucky, is producing good crops. J. W. Van Arsdall, Jr., Mercer county, exhibited 40 purebred hogs at the Ohio agricultural fair.

THE BULL OF THE BUCKHORN

CUSTER REYNOLDS

Custer Reynolds, who has been ridden by injuries this year, is now in shape and should justify the reputation he has earned as one of the State's greatest offensive grid stars. Reynolds performs at halfback for the Morehead College Eagles.

Raceland Defeats Morehead 14 To 0

Vikings Play Stubbornly But Are Fouted On Two Reverse Plays

Two double reverses which caught a determined but inexperienced Morehead High School team unawares resulted in victory here. Friday afternoon for Edgar McNabb's Raceland Ramblers in an Easy Conference grid tilt. The score was 14 to 0.

With the exception of the two touchdowns the Vikings, playing a far superior brand of ball to their performance at Louisa, held the more highly rated Ramblers on practically even terms.

There was no individual star in the Morehead lineup. The team, realizing it was up against greater odds, fought stubbornly. It was the best showing of courage that Morehead High has put up for several seasons and indicates that a victory over Grayson there Friday afternoon would be no great surprise.

Morehead fans are unanimous in believing that the team has shown rapid strides and much advancement has been made with the green and comparatively small squad.

advantage of a pitching staff that has been ranked by many as outstanding in the league. The 1937 club didn't have any power, finishing seventh in the batting lists, and it didn't have the defense to make up for it. It was seventh in the fielding ratings. The good pitching thus was discounted by the defensive lapses.

Reds Need Players More Than Leader

Cincinnati Team Woefully Weak At Bat And On Defense Records Show

The immediate needs of the Cincinnati Reds is a new manager, but of more ultimate importance in the opinion of General Manager Warren C. Giles is the acquisition of players for his manager to manage.

A good pilot is the foundation of a ball club, and a good foundation is necessary before a team can climb in the race. However, there isn't a man alive who can hit, run or throw for his players. An outstanding manager can elevate the player's mental state, add confidence, and realize what is good and what is bad for a player or team.

An athlete who can't hit, run or throw wouldn't be able to help a club if a Houdini appeared to take him in hand. That's the situation on the Cincinnati ball club. Giles feels there is no use trying to kid himself into believing that the mere signing of a good manager will eliminate the team's difficulties. It will not. A team's difficulties, if they are a capable pilot and a strengthened lineup must be combined.

Players, now is to get new players. And, that's where the new skipper will come in. Whoever it is should have definite and good ideas about the value of ball players. Any possibility who looks like he hasn't will not get the job.

If the Reds of 1938 don't have another thing they will have. Speed and defense will put them in position to take some

SUGGEST STORAGE OF PART OF APPLE CROP

Prospect of a good apple crop—the best since 1931—brings an suggestion from the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture that growers arrange storage of good keeping varieties, such as Stayman, Winesap, Rome, Black Twig and Black Ben.

There are many fruit storage houses in the state, and other buildings can readily be made into storages. W. W. Magill, fruit specialist at the college, points out that the principles of cool-air storage are insulation and ventilation. During the warm months of fall, it is necessary to cool the houses at night.

Harvesting of the major part of the Kentucky apple crop extends from about middle September to middle October.

State Game Supply Nearly Gone, Says College Biologist

Kentucky, Once Hunters Paradise, Barren Of Big Game

The first white men in Kentucky found it a paradise for hunters. Buffalo in vast herds followed deep trodden traces through forests and canebreaks to the salt licks, bears were numerous in the hills, elk and smaller deer grazed or browsed everywhere, stalked by panther and wolf, while the smaller predators, fox, wildcat, opossum and weasel, feasted upon rabbits, squirrels and field mice. Along the streambeds, as rapidly as fish, the otter played on his slides, the beaver constructed his amazing dams and houses, the coon washed his crafty dinner, the mink darted swiftly. The wild turkey's call was heard in all sections, passenger pigeons darted the air in their flights, wild ducks and geese, quail, grouse and doves, were so plentiful as not to be valued at all, and song birds of every hue delighted the eyes and ears of an Audson. in Sun Valley, Idaho, on location for "I Met Him in Paris," gay romantic new comedy which opens next Sunday at the Cozy Theatre. Ketchum, the little town at the head of Sun Valley, wasn't built with any idea of making it headquarters for a Hollywood film troupe. Hence, the storage space is strictly limited.

When the prop men started hunting around to try to ferret out a building to hold the immense wardrobe of the stars and the other members of the troupe, the only space available was a one-room brick place occupied two years ago by the Ketchum State Bank.

So, when the stars arrived in the little town, they found that thoughtful valets and ladies' maids had laid out their snow-things on the counters over which checks and currency had passed, while all the particularly valuable things—furs and imported neckties—were stored in the bank's vault.

Jury Starts Probe Of Denhardt Murder Grand jury investigation of the sensational killing at Shelbyville two weeks ago of Brig. Gen. Henry H. Denhardt by the brothers of the woman he was accused of murdering was begun Monday with testimony of Jephtha Truett to whom Roy and Dr. E. S. Garr handed their still smoking guns.

In case of an indictment being returned both commonwealth and defense indicated the trial would begin soon, possibly before the civil cases now pending might be cleared this week.

Roy Garr, who admitted shooting the portly former Lieutenant Governor and war veteran, Dr. Garr who admitted firing twice and Jack Garr who was present but denied firing are free on bond.

County Attorney Coleman said the jury testified before the grand jury today in the Garr case and expected to call other witnesses soon.

Christian Endeavor Begins Fall Work The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Christian Church has opened its fall and winter work with a large attendance and enrollment. The meeting was held at 8:30 p. m. Professor C. E. Nickeil is the sponsor. A large attendance was present last Sunday.
