CITY COUNCIL PASSES ORDINANCE AT REGULAR SESSION, COVERING SEWER CONNECTIONS AND TANKS

To Require Residents Of City To Connect Or Build.

At the regular meeting of the Morehead City Council held on Tuesday night of this week, two of the most important ordinances that have been passed in recent years were adopted by unanimous consent of the members present. They were: first an ordinance, requiring all residents and home owners of the city of Morehead who have not connected with the sanitary sewer, install in their homes, toilets and cecp tanks. The ordinance states that these toilets and cecp tanks must be built to conform with the requirements laid down by the State Board of Health, plans and specifications for which may be obtained at the local county health office from Dr. T. A. E. Evans.

The second ordinance was one requiring that local residents and home owners connect with the sanitary sewer.

The ordinances will be put into force immediately. It was learned from authoritative sources that several of the newer homes built in the city had installed cecp tanks in their toilets, but that as a matter of saving expenses had connected these cecp tanks with the storm sewers rather than the sanitary sewers. Thus the overflow from the cecp tanks is disposed of through the storm sewers, a method that is not only unlawful but is extremely dangerous to the health of the citizens of the community. The ordinance is aimed to stop this practice in the future, and to undo the infringements of the past.

The council plans a thorough investigation of the practice, with a view to learning where it has been done. They will then require all those houses where this has been done to connect with the sanitary sewer. Any infringements will be summarily dealt with, according to

Just about a year ago the News ran an editorial discussing the need of new homes in Morehead. At that time there was unquestionable need of many new homes to accommodate not only new families desirous of moving to this city, but to take care of the annual overflow of students from the Morehead State Teachers College, which begins with the second semester and continues through the summer.

Not taking too much credit for the fact, but almost immediately Morehead took on a seige of building that has been unequalled in a like period of time in several other cities the size of this. New homes began to appear almost over night. Substantial homes, modern homes that would be a credit to any city.

The editorial stated that Morehead needed fifty new homes. Since that time less than a year ago, almost that many homes have been erected or are being erected. Lots are going at a premium.

And the peculiar thing about it is that Morehead still needs fifty new homes. There is not a vacant house in town, nor has there been for several years. Rentals are higher here than in any city of its size either in Kentucky or the United States. The demand is greater than the supply, which always keeps rentals at a high level.

Caudill, who had been visiting in the city. The death was pronounced due to internal hemorrhage by Dr. E. C. McGehee, Boyd county coroner.

Mr. Caudill is survived by his widow and one son, S. J. Jr., and two brothers, C. B. Caudill of Shelbyville and E. D. Caudill of Beverly Hills, Calif. ## Eagles To Meet Union Saturday

Minus the services of Woodson Dale, who has been prominent in the work in his back field this season, Coach Downing will take his varsity Eagles to Barboursville for their annual tussle with Union College at that place Saturday.

Morehead has fared badly thus far this season, going down in defeat before the strong Georgetown team two weeks ago by a 19-0 score, and losing out to Rio Grande in their first contest by 7 to 6.

The Eagles, with two weeks lay-off under their belts, and with consequent better training in fundamentals, will go into the game in much better shape outside of the loss of Dale through injury, than for either of their two previous encounters. The past two weeks drill has hardened the squad and rounded them out into better form.

So that, while, Union is more or less of a favorite to win, the contest is likely to be more of a battle than is expected, with the locals regarded as underdogs, standing a good chance to cop the game.

Transylvania comes to Morehead the following Saturday, October 19 for a game and on Saturday, November 2, the annual game for which Morehead is pointed takes place when the Eagles meet Eastmoreland in the annual Homecoming battle.

Crockett, Democratic candidate for State Senator from this district and J. J. Thomas, of Owingsville, Democratic candidate for the office of Representative Both Mr. Crockett and Mr. Thomas talked for a few minutes. ### FOR SAFER DRIVING

West Virginia is making an effort to "make the highways safer," and this program as launched by the Department of Public Safety is to be commended.

Upon entering the state recently we were halted by the State police. Our brakes were tested and approved, lights turned on for inspection, horn sounded for clearness and our drivers licenses examined. All were found to be o. k. After the inspection a little yellow tag was placed inside the car notifying police elsewhere that the car had passed the West Virginia safety test.

The officers making the inspection inquired where we were going, welcomed us to the state—but added two words to the end of their greeting. They were: "Drive safely," and handed us a pamphlet with a few suggestions for safe driving. Some of these suggestions are so good that we are going to pass them on to you.

"Here's a suggestion which would cut down automobile accidents about fifty percent over night: Drive safely enough for yourself and the other fellow too!"

"In other words, expect the wheel of the prize idiot around the next corner. If you can imagine a congenial imbecile at the wheel of the car coming at you from the opposite direction, you will probably hug the right side of the road and slow down. Think of every intersection with the idea that the other road is filled with morons.

"This may sound cynical, but its not any too high an opinion of your fellow motorists, when you think that they killed 36,000 people and injured 950,000 in 1934.

"People rush like mad to get somewhere, and it doesn't amount to much after they get there. The places to go remain the same, even though cars are faster. If you are hurrying to meet somebody, just remember that the chances are that he will be thirty minutes late, having been smashed at the intersection.

"A little ordinary courtesy would help in this safety problem. The minute, some people get behind the wheel they seem to regard all men as an enemy. As a matter of fact we have already killed more people with automobiles than all of our enemies in all the wars we have ever fought.

"Almost every accident could have been avoided if every driver had allowed five minutes a day for safety and observing the law, along with showing his fellow human beings a little more courtesy."

Rev. Dr. Gilbert H. Fern has accepted the pastorate of the Christian church of Morehead. His pastorate began Sunday, October 15. He is at present living in Ewing, Ky. of a wife and one son, 16 will move to Morehead as soon as the parsonage is vacated by Mr. William Garzey who has occupied it for the past year.

He is, without any doubt, the best vote-getter that has campaigned through Kentucky in twenty five or thirty years. How he does it is not so easy to tell, but if you know what is meant when you read that "he gets down to earth" with his listeners, you have the idea.

Two minutes after he has started talking to an audience of strangers the effect is obvious. By methods he probably doesn't understand himself he has become one of them. He has little of the outward marks of a political speaker. No jokes, no creativity, no marshalling of facts.

He is no court's jester or song-lard, as successive opponents have called him. He does not treat the State's problems flippantly, or dispose of them with a jest. He talks seriously enough, although his audiences are laughing with him at his description of his own plight or that of his opponents through all the speech.

He talks less than the usual politician, rarely more than fifty minutes. He leaves his listeners with an idea that he knows the problem, the solution, and has the determination to solve it so the people will be benefited.

Moves With Crowd
When the speaking is over he moves away with the crowd, which wants to see him at closer range, to hear him talk some more, to shake his hand. There's little formality to that. He'll spot an old friend in the crowd, hurry to him.

Happy's greetings are always enthusiastic. He's likely to put both arms around a man he doesn't know as a boy, and hug him. It doesn't look as if he had the old friend if not hugged. You somehow get the idea body else was looking.

Last week, for instance, a man pushed through a crowd around Happy after one of the speakings in the mountains. Soon he and Happy were in each other's arms. It developed, from their conversation that they had played ball together eighteen years ago, and had not seen each other since those days.

Soon, apparently oblivious to the crowd, Happy was asking his friend if he remembered the day Joe Burman played third base in his overcoat. The friends remembering Happy got to reproducing the play on third base when Joe let a ball get through his hands and lost it in the tall of his overcoat when he began fumbling around on the ground to recover it.

Boys Follow Happy
Thereafter, for an hour every boy in the crowd who had heard Happy tell the story, followed him about town, an ardent Happy fan. And there were some older ball players, too, who had taken a fancy to Happy through his three minute talk with his friend.

That the voters are for him where he goes is evident. You can sense it as soon as he arrives. In the courtrooms it seems almost tangible, public sentiment becoming something you can reach out and touch. Something solid and substantial.

That more than the estimates of county leaders, indicates that Judge Swope, even with the aid of a "bolt" will fall far short of his goal.

When all this is summed up it sounds like Mr. Chandler has much better of the race with Judge Swope fighting almost insurmountable obstacles. And that pretty correctly sums it up. Mr. Swope must try for a political miracle.

What is behind the trend to Mr. Chandler? He has just gone through a hard Democratic fight that ranged through two primaries. He won his nomination just two months before the November election with little for the sounds to deal Mr. Swope, to all purposes nominee of a convention held in June, had no wounds to look after.

By some of the backstage rules of politics Mr. Chandler should have been weakened, his strength spent in the primaries. Mr. Swope, by the same token, should have been stronger, in better strategic position for the November fight.

But the rule, if it is good ordinarily, just didn't work out this time. Mr. Chandler gives every evidence of being stronger with the people by reason of his primary battle. He is better known than Mr. Swope, his record, debated for four months is known everywhere.

Says Opponents Made Rules
He has the pronounced advantage of having won an uphill battle. He himself tells his audiences that in the primary battles his opponents made all the rules.

They wanted two primaries, and they wanted only one, he says, "and when they got two they wanted only one and I needed two, and now some of them don't want to abide by the game they played by their own rules."

There are some leaders who want to bolt. The Louisville banquet during the week showed that. But there will be only a thousand or two, or maybe three of four who will follow the bolt, and that's far too few. Eight Congressional Districts are headed the other way.

CHINA SEAS

CHAPTER THREE

The Kin Lung had become a torture ship to China Doll. Her fellow passengers pointedly avoided her following her impassioned outburst. And to make her dumb misery complete, the rumour spread swiftly about the ship that Sybil and Gaskell were to be married in Singapore. China Doll knew bitterly that it was true. She read it in Gaskell's distant eyes, his mellowed mood, the gentler way in which he conducted the ship's affairs.

Jamsey McArdie was the one soul aboard who was not above associating with China Doll and in a spirit of reckless rebellion she set about his conquest to flaunt in Gaskell's face. But she had no heart in the game and on impulse she sought out Gaskell in his cabin. Sir Guy was with him.

"Honesty, Alan," said China Doll, extending her hand, "I wish you all the luck. You'll never be ashamed of that baby. N. sir, she's the real McCoy. She'll make a marvelous wife for you."

"I hope you mean that," said Gaskell quietly. "I want you to, I do!"

"That's better!" He gripped her hand with genuine emotion. "Let's quit like good friends—not a pair of alley-cats—what do you say?"

His touch ran through her like a flame, searing away the last shreds of her reserve. The whiskey she had drunk was pounding at her temples.

"You poor sap!" she cried. You couldn't quit me any more than I could quit you!" Blinded by sudden tears, she hurried out the door.

A falling barometer left Gaskell no time for tender emotions. The Kin Lung was in for a typhoon. The most destructive trick in all creation's weatherbox. He could run the ship into a sheltering river mouth and leave to until the blow was over—but they were in Malay pirate territory, and a typhoon was the lesser evil. Already Sir Guy, in the saloon, was terrorizing the passengers with tales of pirate raids, explaining the little trick by which the pirates identified their helpers concealed aboard ship through matching two halves of a torn bank note.

In an hour the lashing fury of the storm was on them in its full frenzy. The blasting gale tossed the Kin Lung like an eggshell. Gaskell on the bridge, turned impatiently as a white faced officer came up and reported.

"Miss Portland and Mr. McArdie unaccounted for, Miss Portland—the gale with the strength of a his face. He snarled an order to two thousand demons tried to hurl into seamen. They found McArdie's cabin, broke down the locked door. Jamsey McArdie entered from the bedroom, China Doll at his heels. Both had been drinking. Jamsey greeted Gaskell with an impudent grin. In China Doll's face was intense relief, as if she had just been rescued from imminent disaster, but Gaskell was forming his own conclusions as to her presence in the deck, churned white with raging water. The gale squeezing the breath out of them like a constricting garpent.

Hell had broken loose on deck. The lashings of the steam roller parted. The mad machine lunged and crashed a monster of destruction which smashed steel bulkheads like kindling. From the safety of the Main Saloon Sybil and China Doll watched Gaskell direct the fight to control the juggernaut. It was an elemental battle with hor-

"I hate to break up such a tender moment," Gaskell rasped, "but I'll have to ask you to continue, your tender raptures in the Main Saloon"

she can't find her anywhere. I think she was washed overboard.

"Overboard!" Gaskell ripped out a startled oath. Horror shocked him, and a queer, numbing grief. China Doll, washed overboard!

"I checked up on Mr. McArdie," the officer stammered. "He isn't down with his pigs I tried his cabin—but the door was locked!"

"Why didn't you break it down?" Savagely, Gaskell picked his way to the deck, forcing open a door which

I hate to break up such a tender moment, Gaskell rasped, "but I'll have to ask you to continue, your tender raptures in the Main Saloon,

He shoved Jamsey roughly toward the door and took China Doll by the arm, and at that instant a terrific wave struck outside the cabin, pouring through the wrecked door and bowling them over, like nine pins, Gaskell picked up the screaming China Doll and carried her overable death the penalty for failure. The two women, every straining fiber of their bodies urging Gaskell on, were limp as rags when he finally succeeded in dropping a hook over the roller and pulling it into place with the winch.

It took hours to ride-out the typhoon, and late that night Gaskell returned to his quarters worn with weariness. He was pouring himself a drink when he became aware that someone was in the room. He turned. It was China Doll, her eyes shining proudly.

"I've been waiting for you to come off watch," she greeted him. "Boy Oh boy, did I get a kick out of you today! No fooling, sailor, you sure looked pretty good in there hogtying that steam rigler, and—"

"Purely vanity, I suppose," Gaskell. "I knew my bride to be was looking on."

China Doll glanced toward the deck.

"I've got a mighty good reason for being here," she began in a low tone.

"Of course you have," Gaskell sneered. The contempt in his voice flecked her to rage as he tossed off his drink scornfully.

"Oh, is that so?" flared China Doll. "Well, mister, I don't know what you're all burned up at me about and I care less, I only came here for one thing—"

"I'm quite aware of that, Dolly," he said bluntly. "And I want you to know I appreciate it. Indeed, there are times when your solicitude for my physical welfare approaches the beautiful." He raised his glass sardonically. "And here you are now—waiting for the tired mariner to come off watch—ready to comfort him in the soft warm haven of your arms—as only a woman like you can comfort a man—who's to tired, to drunk to care who it is—"

The stupid insult of word and manner pierced her like a knife.

Go on—this is the payoff! she shrilled, and her voice rose on a wild note of threat. Just keep it up you're going to talk yourself out of something in a minute.

Gaskell ignored her, started to ward the door of his bedroom.

Intriated, she followed him. "You won't be so high and mighty when I get you down a peg or two The door slammed in her face; she heard the lock click shut. She pounded wildly on the panel, yelling: "Just wait—I'll fix you—you'll be glad to come crawling back to me on your hands and knees."

There came no answer. Her rage dwindled into sullen purpose. She went out, and sought Jamsey McArdie, turning over a key to him she had taken from a hiding place in Gaskell's cabin. It was marked

"Arsenal."

(What is Jamsey going to do with the stolen key to the Arsenal? Don't miss the exciting climax to this thrilling story.)

This Week At The Theatres

COZY THEATRE

Picture-lovers will find W.B. Rogers' brand of humor irresistible, and this includes the entire screen public, are delighted with the news that his latest picture, "Life Begins At 40," coming next week to the Cozy Theatre is crammed with fun.

Advance reports label this Fox Film, suggested by the Walter B. Pitkin book hit, a bang-up laugh riot. Critics say it easily eclipses previous Rogers' favorites, "Judge Priest," "David Harum," and "The County Chairman."

Rogers portrays a double-listed, tender-hearted county editor who proves that the years after forty are the best and goes in quest of the fun-tain of youth. He launches a series of situations that smash the funny bone to smithereens.

The supporting cast includes Bobbie Hudson and Richard Cromwell in the romantic leads, George Barbier, Jane Darwell, Slim Summerville, Sterling Holloway, Thomas Beck, Roger Imhof, Charles Selton, John Harford, and Ruth Gietzie.

"Life Begins at 40," relates the romance of a young school teacher and a youth "railroaded" to prison. The shrewd editor brings to light facts that clear the boy, and snags up a horse's nest of fun in the process.

COLLEGE THEATRE

"The Dark Angel." Samuel Goldwyn's gripping romantic drama, starring Fredric March, Merle Oberon and Herbert Marshall, will be the feature attraction at the College Theatre Friday, October 18.

This powerful and beautiful love story set in a lovely, quiet corner of south England, reflects the heart of a woman and two men— one of whom she loves, while the other loves her.

A great emotional climax is reached when the man she loves comes to a realization of his love for her. Their happiness is short lived, however, as the relentless forces of life tear them apart. Years after when the girl has resigned herself to a betrothal to the other man, a kinder fate intervenes and the lovers are reunited.

Sidney Franklin, who handled the megaphone on "The Barnetts of Wim pole Street," "Smilin' Tom," and other outstanding film productions, directed "Dark Angel."

Announces For Member On School Board

ANNOUNCES FOR BOARD

The announcement of D. B. Leadbetter of Haideman for the office of Member of the Board of Education, arrived too late for insertion in this issue of the News. Mr. Leadbetter, however, has asked the News to state that he has filed for the office and will make the race.

His announcement will appear in the next week's issue of the News.

TO THE VOTERS OF ROWAN COUNTY:

I take this method of announcing to my friends, the voters of Rowan County that I am a candidate for the office of Member of the Board of Education of Rowan County, subject to the will of the voters of the county at the general election on Tuesday, November 5, 1935.

I am making the race at the request of many of my friends and am pledged to no one for any favors or support. If I am elected I promise to do everything in my power to further the interests of the schools of the county without reference to any particular group or faction. I am against the consolidation of schools. I am making this race independently and will appreciate the support and influence of any and all voters of the county without reference to party or faction, promising a square deal to all concerned.

Robert Corsette.

TO THE VOTERS OF ROWAN COUNTY:

I am making the race for Membership on the Rowan County Board of Education this fall and wish to take this opportunity to give my platform and the things for which I stand and for which I will work if elected.

I am absolutely opposed to consolidation of schools in Rowan County and believe that keeping the schools close to the children will be of best interest to all concerned.

I stand for the strictest economy in operating the schools and will work to keep the school system on a sound economic basis.

I believe the school children of Rowan County are entitled to as good instruction as can be secured for them and that teachers should be selected purely upon their qualifications and merits.

I am running an independent race and am assigned with no political faction. If you believe I would serve you well as your board member, I will appreciate your vote and support.

Jesse Williams.

TO THE VOTERS OF ROWAN COUNTY:

I desire to announce to the voters of this county that I am a candidate for member of the Rowan Co. board of education, subject to the will of the voters of the county at the general election to be held Tuesday November 5, 1935.

I have been a resident of this county all my life. I received my education in the public schools of this county and the old Morehead Normal School, and taught in the public schools in this county for 13 years and believe I understand and am able to deal with the problems of the public schools of this county. I am in favor of any move for the betterment of conditions for our children and their teachers.

I do not favor the consolidation of the public schools in this county, as I do not believe it practical nor economically sound.

I am in favor of most rigid economy consistent with the proper maintenance of the highest standards of education in this county.

Very truly yours,
Herbert Bradley.

members of the city council.

"There is no reason," they say, why anyone should be permitted, merely that he might save a few dollars expenses, to endanger the lives of every citizen of Morehead. These ordinances are designed to give those who have done their share toward protecting the sanitary conditions of the city by proper installation of sewer connections or the installation of proper sanitary toilets, the protection to which they are entitled. The ordinances will be strictly enforced, following a thorough investigation of the conditions.

"Each home will be inspected and recommendations made which will insure the proper sanitary protection for each individual.

"Morehead is probably the fastest growing city in Kentucky. New homes are being built so rapidly that it is becoming the surprise to visitors. To keep pace with this rapid growth and to keep the city's health record at a high level, the Council intends to do everything in its power to insist on the proper measures being taken."

The action of the council in passing the ordinances and in notifying residents of their intention to enforce them rigidly, is calling for endorsements from practically every citizen of Morehead, who feels that first and foremost in building a community, the consideration of health is most important.

The playground of the Farmers school has been more than doubled in the past week by the addition of the Baptist church lot and the corner of the Bays lot at the back, extending to the C. & O. right of way. Saturday a group of public spirited Farmers citizens met at the school ground and cleaned off the church lot, making it ready for the use of the students. If we can hold the cooperation of the parents, we should be able to finish clearing the back of the lot within two more Saturdays. When this is finished Farmers will boast one of the best, if not the finest playground in the county. In addition to the benefit to the school, the clearing of these lots will add materially to the appearance of the town.

Louis Rayburn, a sophomore, is moving with her father and mother to W. Va., next week.

Fred Swim, a freshman, has been out of school for the past seven days. The Farmers P. T. A. missed first prize for representation in the Fair parade. It happens that there were enough parents from Farmers in Morehead to have won that prize. Had they marched in the parade.

At that the Farmers school captured about thirty prizes in all.

CORN-HOG VOTE TO BE HELD IN STATE

According to information from the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in Washington, a corn hog referendum vote will be held in Kentucky October 26. It is announced at the University of Kentucky.

All operators and owners of farms which produce corn or hogs this year may vote whether they signed 1934 or 1935 corn hog contracts or not. Each eligible person is entitled to only one vote regardless of the number of farms he may own or operate, no matter where located. Ballots of contract signers and non-contract signers will be tabulated separately.

Community committees are to determine the eligibility of the voters and direct the referendum in the community under the general supervision of the county allotment committee. The voting place will open at 8 a. m. Persons unable to vote in person may mail their ballots to reach the polling place not later than October 26.

In preparation for the referendum, county meetings will be held the week of October 14 and the following week, in which the corn hog situation and the adjustment program will be discussed.

RED QUILL POISON KILLS RATS AND MICE

Cold weather drives rats and mice from fields to the shelter of buildings. Before corn cribs are filled and vegetables and fruit are stored, many farmers destroy rats and mice and mice as possible.

The use of red quill bait is recommended by G. C. Odekerk of the U. S. Biological survey, who is cooperating with the Kentucky Experiment Station in the control of rodent pests.

This poison is prepared in the proportion by weight of one part of red quill to 16 parts of food. It is well to use several different feeds such as cereal meat and vegetables so the rats and mice can have their choice. Red quill is relatively harmless to domestic animals and should be used where ordinary poisons would be dangerous.

Where rats are burrowed under floors, calcium cyanide powder can be forced into the holes with a duster. It forms a gas as it comes into contact with the air, and persons using it should stay in the open and avoid breathing the powder or gas.

Barium carbonate also will kill rats. It poisons other animals, however, and should be used with care. It is odorless, tasteless and low in cost. Several kinds of baits are advisable, as with cyanide, such as canned salmon and hamburger. Use one part by weight of the poison to four parts of the food.

Many good poultry raisers buy breeding males in the fall, so they will be able to select the best birds. Plenty of size, vigor and type are advisable, and of course the flock should be noted for the number and size of its eggs.

A white substance called par-dichlorobenzene that has an odor much like moth-balls, is used to control the peach tree borer. It is sprinkled in a ring around the trees and gives off a gas that penetrates the tunnels and kills the pest.

Written each week by Rev. B. H. Kase, Pastor of the Baptist Church.

SUBJECT: The Will of God For Our Times. Jer. 7:1-11, 21-23.
GOLDEN TEXT: "Obey my voice and I will be your God, and ye shall be my people." Jer. 7:23.

God's greatest difficulties have always been inside the church; that is, with people whose profession was hypocrisy. This sin is one of the most deadly of all sins. Worship of the hands without worship of the heart is an abomination in the sight of God.

Joshua had repaired the temple, instituted great reforms; the people had turned gladly back to the worship of Jehovah. But their worship had come to be mixed with the methods of heathendom. Everyone was having an hilarious time in the temple, each trying to bring a better offering than the other, all joking merry and rejoicing to the point of fanaticism. The leaders of religion were popular and the priests were again in their day. Jeremiah had watched this insincere worship for these years, and it made him sick to witness the formalism, hypocrisy and the shameful lives of those who worshipped so lavishly.

Upon such a scene God called Jeremiah to enter. He was young and timid. But having been assured that Jehovah would be with him, he went boldly. "Amend your ways and your doings," he cried. The people were astounded. The priests were insulted. They never let a man interfere with their worship. What audacity that this young man should dare to interfere in the midst of the most popular day of the church! Jeremiah drove at the heart, and demanded that they clean up their lives; repent of their sinfulness, and turn in their hearts to humble worship of Jehovah. He condemned their showy forms of worship, their insincerity, and bluntly told them of their hypocrisy.

Immediately the priests demanded his arrest, and he was in imminent danger of death. At the close of his address they seized him under the waving charge of blasphemy. Strange enough, the princes were more friendly to him than the priests, and wanted to deal fairly, in concert with him, but the priests wanted to kill him without trial. That is the history of false leaders in the church. What they seek is a cloak for sin, and religion never had an enemy outside the church as great as these inside who really belong outside. What might have escaped had it been left to the trial courts, but the howling mob of hypocritical priests and elders demanded his crucifixion. Such is the history of false religious leaders down through the ages.

While Jeremiah was on his knees praying for his rebellious people the Lord told him to get up. That the people were not heeding. His words nor his prayers. That they were given completely over to sin and idolatry. That there was no need to pray any longer, for He had decided to punish Israel. His warnings had been extended. His warnings given. His pleadings sent forth, but to no avail. Now, loving His people still, Jehovah announces widespread punishment and refinement. Pity the man or nation that rejects God's mercy until punishment finally falls upon them!

How this day needs to learn the lesson Jeremiah preached! How like that day is this day! And today, the man who calls for a religion of the heart, and speaks against the formalism of the church today, will find the priests of religion ready to crucify him.

How Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Bad Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fifth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs is one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminators and clearing agents, and it is the germ-killer mucous-

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the system. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family pack and ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

Millions in Grain, Coal and Lumber

LAST year, Kentucky distilleries bought nine million bushels of grain—worth $10,000,000—enough money to give $30.00 to every farmer in the State. Kentucky distilleries used 800,000 Kentucky-made barrels—manufactured from 3,000 solid carloads of white oak lumber, a native Kentucky product. . . . Kentucky distilleries used 200,000 truckloads of coal, which had taken 2000 Kentucky miners one entire month to produce. . . . All this work and income may be lost to you and Kentucky unless you vote "Yes" to repeal the State Prohibition Amendment on November 5.

Why It Is Necessary to Vote on November 5

- Prior to 1933, Kentucky was dry under both the Eighteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution, and a State Constitutional Prohibition Amendment.
- In 1933, national repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment legalized the distilling industry only so far as the Federal Government was concerned.
- National Repeal still left Kentucky with State prohibition laws which, under our State Constitution, could not be repealed until the November election of 1935.
- Pending that date, the Legislature in 1934 passed an act known as the Liquor Control Act, which now permits (as an emergency measure) the sale of alcoholic beverages.
- The Liquor Control Act, which is merely an emergency measure enacted pending the repeal vote, must not be confused with the State Constitution's Prohibition Amendment.
- The Prohibition Amendment is a permanent part of our State Constitution unless the people of Kentucky vote to repeal it on November 5.
- A vote for Repeal in November is NOT a vote to repeal the Liquor Control Act now in effect. It is simply a vote to put an end to Constitutional Prohibition in Kentucky, and to replace it with a system by which each county, city, town or precinct may determine for itself whether or not alcoholic beverages may be sold there.

If you wish to keep PROSPERITY in Kentucky—if you do NOT wish to go back to the hard times of 1932—

Candidate for Lieutenant Governor, Editor, Secretary Democratic State Committee

Keen Johnson, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor, is publisher of the Richmond Daily Register and secretary of the Democratic State Central Executive Committee.

Born in Lyon County, son of a Methodist minister, the late Rev. Robert Johnson and Mattie D. Holloway Johnson, he lived in numerous Kentucky towns where his father was stationed as a minister. Early boyhood days were spent on a farm in Livingston County.

He was graduated from the common schools in Jefferson County and a boys' preparatory school, Vanderbilt Training School, at Elkton. Later he was graduated from the University of Kentucky with an A.B. degree in journalism and is at present president of the University of Kentucky Alumni Association.

Johnson volunteered for military service immediately after the declaration of war and served two years and a half in the army during the World War, one year of which was in France. He went overseas with the Eighty-ninth Division and has been active in the American Legion.

Upon his return from France he made his debut in newspaper work with the purchase of a weekly newspaper at Elizabethtown, The Mirror. He later sold the property and entered the University of Kentucky to complete work required for a degree which had been interrupted by the war. When a child has had a bad fall, severe enough to cause a bone fracture, it is better to leave the child where he is. Lifting and carrying is usually clumsy done. As a result a simple fracture may be made worse, even to the extent of becoming compound. Place the child in a comfortable position - by adjusting the head, arms and legs. Talk to him quietly and confidently while waiting for a physician.

For scratches and cuts, wash with green soap or alcohol. Allow to dry and apply iodine.

For nosebleeds, allow the child to sit up with head inclined slightly backward. Place a cold compress to the back of the neck and a nurse or cotton pack under the upper lip. Press the nostrils, but do not permit blowing or cleaning. The blood hastens clot formation.
