CO Our Cincinnati papers of Saturday last, found their way to this city on Wednesday morning; but by what route, we know not. The news is too stale for this market, so we must draw upon other resources.

To TRAVELERS -For the information to 1 BAVELERS—For the information of those who may desire to go East, during the time navigation may be obstructed, we would say, that our old friend, D. The route is a pleasant and expeditious one, and the accommodations of the first order. Hadron Stant Emocrat.—Under this title a new Democratic puper has been essablished at Marshall, Ill., by Messna. Canze & Well-Land, the second number of which has reached our table. It is a large sized Imperial, got up in handsome style, and its citiorial columns display a very high compliment to our excellent plants of the standard sta

ALL INE SAME.—When the celebrated engineer Brunel, who accomplished the desparate experiment of tunnelling the Thannes river, was brought before a consistent of the British Parliament, he was saked if a speed of eighty miles per hour more dangerous to the travellor upon it than a speed of forty.

"It signal be just the same," said he. "And's speed of ninety." Just the same."

"And speed of ninety?"
"Just the same."
"And a speed of one hundred?"
"Just the same?"
"For," added he, if the cars should run off the track at the conveniently go any further."
